

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

From the accounts contained in daily newspapers of robberies, holdups, murders, etc., etc., one stops to figure out what the country is coming to. Is it a lack of vigilance on the part of peace officers that so much crime is committed? Or is it not true that the cause of much of the lawlessness of the land may be attributed to the fact that the men and women that make up the real juries of our courts? So much disregard for law and order has been shown at Newport, Ky., that Gov. Morrow has had to point out to the civil authorities of that city their duty, with an imperative demand to enforce such measures as will insure peace and the preservation of life to the people of Newport and to the stranger who perchance may enter its gates. Strange, indeed, that men should be permitted to hold office who haven't the backbone to enforce the law. Much of crime and lawlessness could be checked if we had the right kind of men in office—men who would disdain to accept any part of the bandit's ill-gotten gains.—Ex.

Henry Watterson, Kentucky's most famous newspaper writer, died at his winter home, in Jacksonville, Fla., at 6:30 o'clock Thursday morning, December 22, 1921, aged 81 years. Mr. Watterson's brilliant editorial career in connection with the Louisville Courier-Journal gave to him a national reputation, and no writer of his day was ever more extensively quoted than Henry Watterson, as he was affectionately called. He was a Democrat in politics and stood high in the councils of his chosen party. His prolific pen is forever stilled and all newspaperdom mourns the loss of one of the most gifted journalists this country has ever known. His devoted wife and son were at his bedside during the closing hours of the earthly career of this illustrious newspaper man, than whom no better ever contributed an article for the reading public. The remains of Mr. Watterson will rest in a vault at Jacksonville, Fla., until spring, and then be removed to Louisville, Ky., and be buried in Cave Hill Cemetery.

Real progress is dependent, even more in the home than anywhere else, upon not only material but also spiritual advancement. It is not enough to show a woman how to make better bread or to induce her to lighten her work by use of a fireless cooker or some other labor-saving device if we have not at the same time helped to give her a larger view of life as a whole and some opportunities for desirable recreation and pleasure.—Miss Margaret Whitmore, State leader of home demonstration agents, College of Agriculture.

Everything goes so high and then comes down. Land went soaring and then tumbled into bankruptcy. Farm products sold for stupendous prices and then fell so terrifically that it horrified speculators and producers. And now when skirts go a bit higher and then flutter downward, we will tell the cross-eyed world men will root and wallow in the dust of humiliation and disappointment.

Rev. R. F. DeMoisey after having occupied the pulpit at the Burlington Baptist church for five and one half years, presented his farewell sermon Sunday Dec. 25th. His remarks were very touching, and his people wish for him a field where his work can be continued. He leaves the Burlington Baptist church after this long service without an enemy.

Until the sudden fall of the mercury which came on Saturday night, the 24th, of Dec. 1921, was the mildest known for many years. According to the statements of some of the older citizens, it has not been cold enough to force the snakes to hibernate, as several have been killed during the past month.

Howard J. Aylor, who was at home from Purdue University with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Aylor, of East Bend neighborhood, during the holidays, was calling on relatives and friends in Burlington, one day last week.

While the colleges offer such degrees as Doctor of Laws and Master of Arts, what the students want is to become Masters of Curve Pitching and Doctors of the Forward Pass.

Tanlac strengthens the nerves and brings back the normal state of health through its effect on the appetite and nutrition of the body. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

J. K. Sobree, of Hathaway neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday. He called at this office and had the date of his subscription moved up another year.

Beginning with the new year quite a number of new subscribers have been added to our list of readers.

AN OLD KENTUCKY HOME

The Louisville Times has suggested that an Old Kentucky Home be built in the Kentucky State Fair grounds from logs and timbers supplied by the different counties of the State, the Home to have all the furnishings that still make the Old Kentucky Home log a delightful reality to many and a fond recollection to many more.

It has been suggested that the newspapers of the state take up in their respective counties the task of securing a log or logs and naming a representative of the county to come to Louisville and help erect the building. The plan, you know, is to have the house built just as was done in pioneer times when every man in the community joined in at the house raising, but in this case every county in the State will have a hand at actually building the Old Kentucky Home.

Boothe county should do its part in this praiseworthy undertaking. There will be very little expense attached, except the securing and shipping of logs to Louisville. It is to us that this would be an interesting project for the schools of the county to put across. The log or logs could be collected, a day set aside for their dedication to the purpose of erecting the Old Kentucky Home in which every log has a history of its own. We should like to hear some suggestions on the project.

PARDONED.

"I will never consent to the pardon of this man. I know that in certain quarters of the country there is a popular demand for the pardon of Debs but I shall never be accomplished with my consent. Were I to consent to it, I should never be able to look into the faces of the mothers of this country who sent their boys to the other side. While the flower of American youth was pouring out its blood to vindicate the cause of civilization, this man, Debs, stood behind the lines, sniping, attacking and denouncing them. Before the war he had a perfect right to exercise his freedom of speech and to denounce, but once the Congress of the United States declared war, silence on his part would have been the proper course to pursue. I know there will be a great deal of denunciation of me for refusing his pardon. They will say an old-blooded and indifferent man who did not expose the cause for which our boys were fighting to maintain on the battle fields in France can expect nothing but the strongest condemnation from the members of the American Legion and all Americans who took part in this great struggle. We do not believe that the President in granting these pardons has performed an act that will be endorsed by the members of his own party. What will the Gold Star mothers in the United States think of this?"

That is what President Wilson said when he was asked to pardon Eugene V. Debs, the same Debs who was pardoned Christmas day by President Harding.

Eugene V. Debs and 23 others who were convicted for violating the espionage act have been pardoned by President Harding. The President's short time ago pardoned Pelham Kruse and Schoberg who were convicted in the United States Circuit Court at Covington for a violation of the act and the conviction was sustained on appeal to the U. S. Supreme court. The President in extending executive clemency to these men who did not expose the cause for which our boys were fighting to maintain on the battle fields in France can expect nothing but the strongest condemnation from the members of the American Legion and all Americans who took part in this great struggle. We do not believe that the President in granting these pardons has performed an act that will be endorsed by the members of his own party. What will the Gold Star mothers in the United States think of this?"

CHRISTMAS DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. John Rouse, of near Florence, entertained their three children and their families with their usual Christmas dinner Monday, Dec. 26th. All the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren were present except four grandchildren. Those present were four grandsons: Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rouse and children Ella Marie, Kenneth, Lotie, John Edgar and Rosie Belle; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Snyder and daughter Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Mose Rouse and children Charles, Attilla, Mary Blanche and Joseph; Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rouse and baby Harold Dudley; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Clarkson and son Robert; Mr. and Mrs. Ab Robins and children Alfred and Lula Frances; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Snyder and baby Alice Fay; Mr. and Mrs. Willie Snyder; Mr. and Mrs. John Rouse and Mrs. Virgie Clarkson; Mr. and Mrs. Rouse are happy to see their big family all gathered together in the merry Christmas time. Mr. Rouse is in his 88th year and Mrs. Rouse is in her 85th year.

Since our last issue the year 1921 has passed into history and the new year—1922, has entered upon its cycle of time, and many new resolutions will be made for the year. If you have not already made all of your resolutions, why not include in the list "a resolve to quit borrowing your neighbor's paper and to subscribe for and have your home paper sent to your own address." This will be more satisfactory to you and a real help to the publisher. Try it, for you know that it is the "home paper" that rejoices with you in your prosperity and sympathizes with you when you are overtaken by adversity. Every week day in the year the editor labors for the good of the people in general. His columns are open for the advancement of education and moral training. Religious matters always find space in columns of your home paper. When a darling babe arrives to brighten your home and to make life worth the living, the fact is mentioned in the "old home" paper; when death invades your home, it is your home paper that pays tribute to your loved one's memory, and points you to Him who alone can comfort you in your time of grief. If your fair and accomplished daughter or dutiful and noble son puts on the yoke of matrimony, it is the home paper that commends them to the world with heartfelt wishes for their happiness and prosperity. In short, a moral duty you owe to yourself and family to support your home paper and your editor needs your help.

A NOVEL EXHIBIT

One of the most novel exhibits planned for the National Health Exposition is that of the Louisville health department. Because of the large appropriation needed, Dr. E. L. Owen, City Health Officer, has not officially announced his plans until he has the consent of Mayor Quinn.

He intends to have a moonshine still in operation, under permit of the Federal Prohibition Officers, but the liquor that comes from the "business" end of the coil will be poison. The distillation will be intended to show the danger in home-made liquors as it will run through lead, then a zinc coil and the mash will be cut with lye, methods said to be used often in the manufacture of moonshine liquor. Many moonshiners use lead or zinc coils and others use copper. The combination of these chemicals, Owen says, and he expects the little distillery to carry its message of warning more effectively than any pamphlet.

A QUESTION OF BARTER AND SALE

From the evidence taken before the Congressional Committee it appears that there was nearly $200,000 spent in Michigan to secure the election of Senator Newberry, yet it is claimed by his friends that a number of business men subscribed this fund, which is more than four times the salary that he will receive as Senator. The law of the U. S. as well as the law of Michigan provides that a candidate can not spend in order to secure his election one twentieth of this sum; yet it will be overlooked that the sum was spent by others in behalf of Mr. Newberry. Why would any set of men spend such an enormous sum to secure the election of a man to public office? Is the honor of having a seat in that august body, the United States Senate, worth any such sum, "as it becomes a question of barter and sale? The very fact that such a large sum was expended in securing the election of any man to the United States Senate, at once, cast a dark shadow on that election yet you will find that this election is being defended, even Senator Ernest from Kentucky will maintain that there was nothing wrong in the election of Mr. Newberry. It is hard for any one to see the logic of this conclusion except that it be for purely political purposes.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank those who so kindly remembered me during Christmas week. Especially the ladies of Burlington and vicinity, whose names are attached to the great get-together remembrance received. All were more than appreciated and touched me deeply, and the special remembrance is one of my most valued possessions, and I shall take pleasure in thinking of those dear, kind friends, and I wish them one and all, the very best through 1922.

KIRKLEY L. RICE.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the friends and relatives for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness of my wife, and for Dr. Nunnally's and Mrs. Stamper's close attention.

CHESTER GRANT.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

New Year's was a great old night in many of the big towns before prohibition cast its shadow over the high jinks. The fact that they were urged to swear off on old habits, seemed to incite a lot of people to shout that "They should worry."

They appeared to have resolved not to be any better in the new year than in the old one. Many companies of people from time immemorial have danced from the old year out to the tune of rhythmic music. Under such inspirations the new period of time looks rosy with anticipation. New Year is neither a thank for melancholy reflection nor for dissipation. Some of the revelers would be better off to spend these dividing hours at the watch night meeting, gaining there some new purpose and determination.

And over serious people might look at life with more hopefulness, if they sometimes saw the old year amid scenes of merriment.

To all, young and old, the Recorder says Happy New Year, with the wish that it bring new satisfactions to all its readers.

THE RAKE-OFF OF POLITICS.

Not much money is taken away from the American taxpayer now—by direct taxation—public treasuries. Most public funds are expended honestly. Where the taxpayer frequently suffers, however, is in the tendency to provide "rake-offs" to those who command influence in the purchasing of supplies and making of contracts.

By easygoing people are tolerant about this spirit in politics, regarding it as impossible to stamp it out, and believing that public services are frequently tainted with it. But human nature may be more honest than they think it is, and if the voters exercised reasonable care in electing officials, abuses would disappear.

Modern graft is a skillful proposition, and the taxpayer who has to pay for it never knows where the money went. If the manufacturer of a certain form of supplies must pay $100 to some official to secure his favor on a $500 contract, the bidder is going to put up his price by $100 to pay the cost of the rake-off. The people pay the whole bill.

Public officials and legislators are as a whole a well meaning class of men. It is the exceptional one who is purchasable. But they are put up against many temptations. Sometimes the hooks they are asked to swallow are so very cleverly baited, that a man does not realize that he is doing anything wrong. The rake-off they are asked to take may not include any cash. It may be merely a chance to secure some business promotion, some personal favor, or take part in a profitable deal, as the reward for using influence.

You might never be able to prove that such a deal was illegal. Yet by some skillful means the representative of the people may be induced to lose sight of the public interest. In electing men to public office, the voters ought to scrutinize the personal record of candidates. The men they choose are subjected to peculiar temptations, and something more than ordinary standards of honesty are needed.

A TAINTED BONUS.

The liquor interest of this country are going to make another effort to permit the sale of beer and light wines and this time over the graves of those who died on the fields of Flanders and attempting to purchase that grand body of young men who stood ready to shoulder the cause of right and humanity by raising a fund by taxing those things in order to raise a fund to pay a bonus to all soldiers in the great world war. This is an insult to the soldier and the American Legion should denounce this as an insult to their grand organization. No argument can or has ever been advanced sustaining the liquor traffic, a traffic that is a disgrace to any community in which it is carried on. This agitation will not develop into a reality, the soldier does not want a tainted bonus; hence some other source must be looked to in order to raise the seven or eight out of which the bonus can be paid.

MILK MEETING.

The members of the Hebron Local of the Queen City Milk Producers Association will hold their annual meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year at Hebron Tuesday, Jan. 10th, at 7:30 p. m. Solicitors of the Co-operative Milk Association are requested to make their final report at this meeting.

E. J. AYLOR.

Chairman.

Last Saturday was an ideal winter day, besides it was the last day of the week, the last day of the month, the last day of the year, the last day for a number of those who have been in office the past four years, and also the winding up of the hunting season until next November.

THE NEWBERRY SCANDAL

In the moral declension notably marked in American public life during and since the Congressional elections of 1918, few incidents have been so depressing as that of the effort made by this Michigan millionaire to purchase a seat in the Senate. Methods in that campaign, admittedly employed by him, by his brother and by his political supporters and henchmen, are little less than a rebuke and a menace to the people of Michigan and to the people of the whole nation as well. Evidence of this corruption is embodied in court records as well as in the files of the Senate Committee on Elections, charged with investigating the case. This evidence, in conclusive form, is marshalled against Mr. Newberry by Senator Kenyon so smitingly that one with keener moral sense than that of the man from Michigan might have leaped to his feet in the Senate and protested, "My God! Am I as bad as that?" even as Warren Hastings exclaimed when Edmund Burke denounced "the robber of India" in the British House of Commons as "an enemy of mankind."

This question now confronts the Senate and, as Kenyon admits, will be answered in the negative: Has that body the courage to purge its membership of men like the Newberry stripe?—Courier-Journal.

NEW "PEACE" DOLLAR

The new silver dollar of the 1921 design—the "peace" dollar—was put in circulation Tuesday, according to the Treasury. Coinage of the new dollar was being rushed by the Philadelphia Mint, officials said today, and the first dollar of the new series struck off has been presented to President Harding.

The new dollar has the head of Liberty on one side and in the other a dove upon a mountain top, clutching an olive branch struck by the rays of the sun, with the word "Peace" beneath it.

This is the first change in the design of the dollar since 1878, and will remain as the design of the dollar for 25 years unless changed by legislation, as coinage laws prohibit any change in the design of the standard silver dollar more often than once in that period, except by special legislation. There will be 180,000,000 dollars of the new design.

GEORGE T. RENAKER.

Geo. T. Renaker aged 65 years, passed away at his home in Florence, Ky., Tuesday night, Dec. 27th. A short service was held at the house Thursday evening to allow his Boone county friends to attend. The following morning, (Friday) his remains were taken by Undertaker Philip Taliaferro to Renaker, Ky., his old home in Harrison county, where the funeral service was held by Rev. Red and Tomlin, in the M. E. church. Interment in the local cemetery.

Mr. Renaker is survived by five sons and three daughters, a mother and six brothers. One son J. C. Renaker being cashier of the Florence Deposit Bank. He was a man that was highly respected by every one, as was shown by the host of friends that were present at each service.

A BOY'S PRIVILEGE.

From birth a boy can own property; at 7 he is if intelligent answerable for crime; at 14 he, if necessary, could choose his guardian; at 14 he is punishable for a misdemeanor; at 18 he is qualified for military service; at 21 he may declare himself independent of his father, and is old enough to vote, work the roven and be sued for breach of promise; at 25 he is eligible to congress; at 30 to the United States Senate; at 40 to the presidency; at 60 he is exempt from military service and jury duty.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Some economists worry about the waste of money involved in cutting off evergreen trees and using them for hanging presents on. If saved, these trees might of course some time grow to monster size and make lumber out of which you could build houses.

Yet the material used for things are not the only ones that count. Christmas trees give an air of beauty to a holiday festival that no substitute or artificial creation can ever imitate. They help to make this holiday one of supreme joy for the youngsters. The Christmas romp without a tree seems like a kind of fake.

You can grow evergreen trees to take the place of the little one that is nipped off to carry away to some city home. But it is not so easy to grow the sentiments of love and faith and joy in the child's heart. A happy Christmas, with the suggestion of beauty and growing life that the little green tree brings, helps a child love his home, his parents, and it assists him in developing the giving spirit. These sentiments implanted in his heart, are worth more than the material value of the little tree.

BELOVED TEACHER DEAD.

Miss Lillie Rouse Dies After Brief Illness—Schools Honor Her Memory.

Miss Lillie Rouse, 57 years old, principal of the Griener Creek school and one of the best known teachers in this county, died at 3 o'clock Monday morning at the Woodford Memorial hospital, after two days' illness of pneumonia.

Miss Rouse was in school Friday. She was taken ill Friday night and her condition Saturday was so serious that she was removed to the hospital. Many of her friends had not heard of her illness when her death was announced.

Miss Rouse had been a teacher in the Woodford county schools for ten years—first at Mortonsville, then at Troy, and she was in her third year as principal of the Griener Creek school. She was one of the founders of the Troy high school.

She was a woman of fine Christian character and splendid mental gifts, with an understanding sympathy and tenderness. She taught her pupils not only with textbooks but imbued them with integrity, courage and all the finer traits of character. Not only a multitude of children, but strong men and women wept at her passing. It is not too much to say that in her consecrated service Miss Rouse did more for her country than many men who have sat in the halls of Congress and whose names are widely known.

Friday afternoon, her last time in the school room, Miss Rouse in a talk to her pupils reviewed her work in Woodford and told how God had guided and directed her.

Miss Rouse was a daughter of Martin and Louisa Utz Rouse, of Lexington. She is survived by two sisters, Miss Ira Rouse, Lexington, and Miss Hettie Rouse, Florence, Ky., and one brother, H. V. Rouse, Lexington.

Funeral services were held in Lexington yesterday morning at 10:30, the Rev. E. C. Lynch officiating. Many teachers, pupils and other friends from this county attended. The burial was in the Lexington cemetery.

All the schools of Woodford county were closed yesterday morning as a tribute to Miss Rouse's memory.—Lexington Herald.

COURT HOUSES CHANGES.

The county officials who were elected at the November election, were conducted in to office Monday, January 2nd. Sheriff L. A. Conner, Circuit Clerk Charles Maurer, Tax Commissioner H. W. Riley and County Clerk W. R. Rogers stepped down and out to make room for Sheriff B. E. Hume, Circuit Clerk Robert E. Berkshire, Tax Commissioner J. S. Cason, County Clerk Miss Elizabeth Rogers, who has been the efficient deputy under her brother ever since he has been in office. Those whose terms expired Monday have all given a good account of themselves in office, and three of the six will be new faces in the court that will look after the financial interests of the county for the next four years. They assume office under a slight financial handicap.—Each Ad eve.

of the members we are certain, have the best interests of the county at heart, and with co-operation, on the part of the citizens of the county, will conduct the county's business in a business way.

The new members of the court are C. Sleet, Beaver-Union; F. M. Walton, Petersburg-Bellevue; and B. C. Kirtley, Carlton-Hamilton precincts.

LEGION NOTES

More than 16,000 former service men are suffering from tuberculosis in Denver, according to C. J. Harris, director of the American Legion's service division, who is making an investigation of the care of these men. The situation is getting beyond the control of civic authorities and adequate hospital facilities are a pressing need, Mr. Harris reports.

Parents or wives of Americans who died overseas during the world war and whose bodies have not been returned would have an opportunity to visit the graves of their deceased at government expense in a resolution introduced into Congress by Rep. Hamilton Fish, New York, a member of the American Legion. The resolution directs the Secretary of War to provide transportation to American cemeteries overseas.

Both eyes destroyed by American shrapnel during the world war, Franz Roehel, who served the Kaiser, now is kept from suffering by an American doughboy's discarded suit of "civvies." Someone bought the clothing at a rumage sale by the American Legion post of Maspeth, Long Island, and sent it to a woman acquaintance in Germany. She gave it to the needy German soldier.

"No man can use the little pension the Government gives me for food and need not go hungry," the former enemy soldier says in a letter of thanks to the Legion post. Er-Soldaten Roehel lives in Ekren, Germany.

RAISE CHICKENS TO HELP INCOME

Excellent Means for Providing Needed Comfort and Home Beauty.

YOUNG WOMEN LEAVE FARMS

Home Demonstration Agents Exert Much Influence in Pointing Out Ways of Making Money or Producing Food for Family.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The service of the home-demonstration agent, who is supervised by the United States Department of Agriculture and State Agricultural colleges, is not confined to the house, but follows the woman into the garden, the poultry yard, and dairy to assist her in outside tasks when these contribute to home comfort.

Judgment as to relative values usually guide the home maker in determining the amount of outdoor work it is profitable for her to do either as a money-making scheme or as a means of producing food for the family table. Often when the woman lacks even small resources to bring needed comfort and beauty to the house, such industries as poultry raising and gardening provide the needed increase in income from which all the family may derive benefit.

It is poor business from every standpoint, however, if work out of doors results from an attempt to take on the duties without releasing any household tasks or if it means neglect of housework or sacrificing attention to children, thus lowering instead of increasing the standard of living.

Statistics show that young women are leaving the rural districts for the cities in larger numbers than young men. Where this is true, the influence of the home-demonstration agent has been most telling, helping young women to feel their economic importance in agriculture and home pursuits and in discovering ways of making incomes on the land equal to those that could be earned in shop or factory.

Work With Poultry. Poultry work has been promoted in several states through demonstrations along lines of poultry selection, breeding, raising, feeding, housing, culling, canning, preservation of eggs, and co-operative selling of poultry products. Many flocks have been improved when farm women have found through culling demonstrations that 40 per cent of the average flock is non-productive. Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Missouri and Vermont, carried on intensive poultry culling campaigns in which the home demonstration agents played a prominent part. Schools of instruction were held so that those trained might not only eliminate their own non-producing birds but teach their neighbors through community demonstrations.

In Missouri, 73,705 birds were eliminated from 1,593 flocks culled with an estimated saving of $50,161. In the co-operative buying and selling of eggs, 8 cents a dozen more was received than on the local markets.

Fewer Nervous Breakdowns. Community working and trading centers mean much to rural women, not only from the standpoint of economy, time, money, and effort, but as a means of persuading the stay-at-home to walk through her gate and down the road to join her neighbors in some task which is made lighter through co-operation, and from which she returns refreshed and encouraged with new ideas and plans not only for her own housekeeping but for the larger housekeeping of her neighborhood.

No amount of socialized work, however, takes the place of real recreation, as it looks too earnestly toward a finished result. Care-free recreation for the delight of the moment eases nervous tension, promotes good fellowship, and is as necessary for the mental and physical polish of men and women as it is for boys and girls.

Home-demonstration agents, where no other agency is meeting this need, are co-operating with farm families in home and community recreation which includes games, chorus singing, drama, and pageants.

Recreation Specialists. The extension department of the Montana state college, realizing the importance of this, employs a recreation specialist whose work is stimulating a fine social community spirit in many localities in that state, where homes are so far apart. Montana is thus putting into practice a conviction that is growing everywhere—that, while it is their first business to promote efficiency, this should be looked upon as a means of stimulating a richer and more satisfying rural life by freeing the housewife's time and energy so that she may give attention to the attractiveness and comfort of her home, the training and companionship of her children, the enjoyment of books and neighbors, and the building up of recreational, social, and educational life of her community. This will increase the percentage of active thinking women of service to society and reduce the percentage of passive slaves of routine, whose tasks cease only to begin again with a new day.

FAVOR PLASTER FOR FARM KITCHEN WALL

Most Common and Generally Satisfactory Material.

Mortar Must Be Properly Mixed and Applied to Prevent Development of Cracks and Blisters—Light Colors Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The commonest and most generally satisfactory material for the walls and ceiling of the farm kitchen is plaster. The mortar must be properly mixed and applied to prevent the development of cracks and blisters and injury to the surface finish. For the same reason freshly plastered walls should be allowed to dry thoroughly before the finishing surface is applied. Instead of plaster, some of the composition boards that do not warp may be used. They may be painted or papered and varnished, but before this is done nail holes should be filled with plastic filler made for the purpose. Steel wall and ceiling coverings are durable when they are kept well painted to prevent rusting by steam. Tile and vitrified brick, well glazed and matched, afford an excellent wall surface, but they are costly. Metal tiles are cheaper and nearly as satisfactory.

The most desirable finish for walls and ceiling is one that will not peel or crack and can be easily washed or very cheaply and readily renewed. A good oil paint gives general satisfaction; it can be brushed off with a dry wall brush or cleaned more thoroughly with a damp cloth and mild soap. Wall paper, unless varnished, is very easily loosened by the steam from cooking. A wall covering of painted cloth is somewhat more expensive, but it is more durable, and has a smooth washable surface. Water must be used very sparingly on a wall covering of this kind, for if it seeps in the seams the wall covering will become loosened.

The best color or tint for the kitchen walls is determined by the location and lighting of the room, any household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Light colors are preferable for dark rooms because they reflect and diffuse the light into darker parts of the room, while dark colors absorb a much larger proportion of the light. Where the principal exposure is toward the south, greenish grays are desirable, but if toward the north or east, with little opportunity for sunshine, the light yellows or creams are better. Two shades of brown often give a satisfactory finish.

GIVE PLENTY OF VEGETABLES Material Furnished to Growing Child for Forming Bone and Tissue—Mild Acids Helpful.

Vegetables and fruits are now considered a necessary part of the diet of the child. The reasons are many, but most of them may be summed up by saying that these furnish material needed to form bone and tissue and to regulate body processes. The mild acids which some of them contain help to prevent constipation; so, too, does the cellulose or fiber, especially when it is raw, though its value for this purpose may have been exaggerated in popular literature.

Green vegetables are also a valuable means of introducing into the diet mineral matters, particularly iron, in a form in which the body can utilize them. Even at city prices green vegetables have been shown to be an economical source of iron. Leaf vegetables, like spinach, beet greens, kale, etc., have recently been found to contain some of the growth-promoting substances that are found in milk.

All Around the House All game should be soaked in salt water over night before cooking.

To prevent wool gloves from shrinking, put cloths in the fingers while they are drying.

There is no better substitute for butter in cake baking than, chicken fat. It may be used for any purpose for which butter is used except on bread.

Electric cooking devices that can be used at the table make the Sunday evening meal pleasant, and permit the serving of hot foods quickly and informally.

NOW THE TUXEDO

When the sweater-coat began to grow luxurious and aristocratic it assumed a new name—it is now the Tuxedo. It is made in wool, fiber silk or silk, with much attention given to its design and finish. Here it is shown in silk, with self-stripe, bordered by a strip in contrasting stitch, finished by narrow fringe and belted with plaited grille.

EXPERIMENTS CONDUCTED

By Road Experts To Evolve Best Materials For Highways.

Experiments to determine just what kinds of material are best for concrete, and in what proportions to mix them so that they will wear well in a road, are being made by engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture. An apparatus will be used that consists of a heavy steel wheels which, guided by a mechanical arrangement, roll continuously back and forth over the pavement.

More than 40 different sections of concrete pavement, each 10 feet long, will be laid. Materials from many different parts of the country are being shipped to the Government Experimental Farm at Arlington, Va., near Washington. They will be mixed with varying quantities of cement and water to determine which is best.

Experience has shown that there is a measurable amount of wear of the surface of a concrete road each year.

FARMERS REALIZE VALUE OF MANURE CONSERVATION

Realizing that farm manure contains much valuable plant food and organic matter, Kentucky farmers this year are giving increased attention to its conservation and careful use, according to R. E. Stephenson, a member of the College of Agriculture. Many farmers are realizing that the manure produced on their farms is the cheapest source of plant food which they have and as a result the material is being hauled and spread frequently or stored properly instead of being left in the barnyard where it is exposed to weather conditions that leach out the plant food.

"Experiments and experiences of different farmers show that several factors determine the method in which manure should be used," Mr. Stephenson said. "On heavy soils, better results usually are obtained when the manure is plowed under because it can be mixed better with the soil in this way and the decay of it will tend to open up soils which have a compact texture."

"The coarser the material, the more advisable it is to turn it under rather than to top dress with it. Coarse, strawy manure, if not plowed under in the fall, gives better results when turned under early in the spring to allow time for mixing and compacting the soil and manure. We have found that fine manure gives better results for top dressing."

"On poor land, it is best to use part of the manure for top dressing and the remainder for plowing under and to apply all of it to the corn land. Top dressing at least the poorest part of the field should help to get a good stand of clover or grass and eliminate some of the difficulty which Kentucky farmers are having in producing clover crops."

SCHOOLHOUSE FIRE HAZARDS.

The number of schoolhouse fires is said to be increasing, partly because of modern equipment. The use of moving picture machines, kitchens, technical apparatus, chemical and physical laboratories, constitute hazards. Also school buildings are used more for social affairs, so that all kinds of people may resort to them and do something to cause a fire.

The National Fire Protection Association claims that 80 per cent of existing school buildings are fire traps. Teachers and janitors in control of school buildings, particularly those not of fire proof construction, should be instructed to be constantly on their guard against the fire peril, using the greatest degree of care to assure the safety of the precious lives and costly property under their care.

Don't fail to write it 1922.

Mr. R. H. Walker is erecting a nice 3-room bungalow in Park Addition.

Born Dec. 30th to Raymond Goodridge and wife a fine boy, Raymond is wearing a smile that won't come off.

High water caused a gloomy Xmas for those living along the Ohio river. Many of the farmers losing corn, hogs and cattle.

At the close of the year 1921, only about 250 owners of dogs had applied at the county clerk's office for licenses for the year 1922.

The County Clerk's office was a busy place the latter part of last week—issuing auto licenses for the year 1922, was the cause of the rush.

New Year's eve in Burlington was very quiet, even the old custom of ringing the bells, announcing the departure of the old and the arrival of the new year was abandoned.

Henry Payne, colored, one of our readers from Hebron neighborhood, was in Burlington, last Saturday, and called at this office and renewed his subscription for another year.

Philip Taliaferro passed thru Burlington Saturday in his automobile ambulance taking Clifford Hedgcock to Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, O., where he is to receive medical attention from Dr. Gordon McKim.

Herae Cleveland, who is a teacher at a Military School at Lebanon, Tenn., was in Burlington, last Saturday, shaking hands with many friends. He left Monday for his post of duty after a three week's vacation visiting friends in St. Pleasant neighborhood.

Walter R. Huey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Huey, of Burlington, and Miss Sara Mae Northcutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Northcutt, of the Dixie Highway, near Richmond, were married in Covington, December 24th. The young couple have the best wishes of many friends for a long and happy married life.

According to the records at the county clerk's office there were 14 deaths reported in the Burlington precinct for the year 1921. Of this number three were children under ten years of age, two whites and one colored. Out of the eleven other deaths only four reached the limited time—three score year and ten. The average ages of these eleven was 62 years.

At a mass meeting of farmers of Daviess county last Saturday afternoon a resolution was adopted urging the Kentucky Legislature to submit an amendment to the constitution to the voters which would give to the county judge and two commissioners in each county the power to appoint the Sheriff, Tax Commissioner, County Clerk as all other county officers, and pay them on a straight salary basis.

Under the above law how would we get the county judge and two commissioners?

A bill prepared by Attorney-General Chas. I. Dawson and ex-Attorney General W. M. Logan, authorizing the electorate to vote on a bond issue in November, 1922, for $50,000.00 to construct the State primary roads authorized by the legislature of 1920, will be presented to the incoming Legislature. The bond issue will complete the roads in five years, while under the present system it will take forty years. Tax will be levied on automobiles, one cent a gallon on gasoline and a three-cent tax on real estate to meet the interest and create a sinking fund to pay off the bonds.

Many cities and towns are making drives on loafers, vagrants and all persons having no visible means of support. These are the fellows who are committing all these robberies. There should be a clean-up all along the line. Why should the good, substantial, law-abiding citizens let a few loafers create all this uneasiness among the people? If a man without visible means of support, is enjoying the fruits of this life without working, he is without doubt stealing or bootlegging. There should be a law to bring him before the court and ask for an accounting. To make a man go straight is not infringing upon his personal liberty; but if he persists upon stealing that which the other fellow has made by the sweat of his brow he has trampled under his feet sacred personal liberty.

True Detective Stories
OUT OF THE AIR

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

SOMEWHERE, somehow, the Germans were getting messages through from the United States to the fatherland. That much was certain. Washington knew it beyond the shadow of a doubt, but the way in which the messages were transmitted was a mystery—dark and apparently unobtainable.

This was in the days before America entered the war, in the days when the United States was, theoretically at least, a neutral nation. But Von Bernstorff, Von Papen and the rest of the embassy at Washington were doing everything they could to further their schemes from this side of the Atlantic.

But not even the secret service could penetrate the mystery of the messages. That these were flashed from the huge wireless towers on this side of the Atlantic, or relayed from the German radio stations, seemed fairly obvious. But how?

"They must be sending the stuff through the air," argued the chief of the secret service to Talbot, one of his best men, "for the simple reason that we've closed all their other channels."

"Any idea as to the code they are using?" asked Talbot.

"None at all," said it's probably concealed somewhere in the messages which they send out to the ships at sea—press bulletins, stock quotations, and the like. We've studied them carefully, but haven't been able to find a thing."

"How about the outburst from Nauen every morning?"

"The only explanation for that seems to be that it's an attempt to 'fog' the air so that ships and other towers can't get anything through."

"Yes, but in that case would the Germans send it for an hour every morning? Why not all day long? And why that hash of language that doesn't mean a thing? If they were trying to fog things they'd wireless the Bible or Nietzsche or excerpts from some other long book instead of that mess of meaningless rot."

"All right," retorted the chief, "if you think there's a clue there, go to it."

But Talbot didn't begin his investigations with a study of the Nauen "hash." He made his way first to the laboratory of Charles E. Apgar, a deep student of wireless telegraphy. It was to Apgar that he told his troubles and, when he had finished, the expert leaned forward and picked up something from the table in front of him.

"See that?" Apgar asked. Talbot nodded.

"Looks like an old-fashioned cylindrical phonograph record," he said.

"Just what it is," admitted the expert, "only you use it in connection with a wireless phonograph."

"A wireless phonograph?" and the government operative's voice showed that he had never heard of such a contrivance.

"Yes, a phonograph attached to the receiving end of a radio station. I finished working on it a few days ago, and I think it's just what you need for this job. It will record and keep track of every sound that comes into the station, enabling you to 'listen in' on messages months after they have been sent. With a supply of these records and the necessary patience you ought to be able to figure out the system the Huns are using, without their being any the wiser. It may take weeks or even months, but it's just a question of being everlastingly at it."

Apgar was right. Talbot found that took him pretty four months of ceaseless listening-in at the end of a De Forest audio detector which picks up sound waves from thousands of miles away, and even then he would never have located the secret had it not been for the wax cylinders. But with the aid of these automatic detectives he was able to repeat each message until he had it almost by heart, trying out the various combinations and symbols until he stumbled across the right one.

Then, one morning, when the chief of the secret service least expected him, he burst into the office with the exclamation:

"I've got it—the fifth, tenth and fifteenth flashes! See?" and he held out a sheet of paper on which were rows upon rows of figures and letters, commencing with "5-8-K-14-B."

"Looks interesting," admitted the chief, "but what does it mean?"

"Got a German dictionary here? No—well, I have. Luckily I've an old edition—just the one they're using for the code. The letters give the numbers of the pages, and the figures designate the words, the big ones in bold type. Five and eight K means the fifth and eighth words on page eleven, 14 B means the fourteenth word on page two and so on. By squaring 'em so far apart in the meaningless wireless messages—or even in the press bulletins sent out from this side—they are able to fill in with lots of stuff to throw you off the scent. But the code's simple enough—that's what makes it so wonderful!"

And it didn't until Von Bernstorff received his sailing orders that he knew the secret service had been plucking his messages and his instructions out of the air, through the ingenious use of a wax phonograph cylinder.

FOR YOUNG GIRLHOOD

There is nothing in headwear that outclasses the fine, soft beaver or felt hats made for children. Their beauty and refinement carry them triumphantly to every part of the world, and they are a safe choice from the first to the last hat for girlhood. Three of them are pictured here, and of course their only trimming is a dash or band of ribbon.

RED PROPAGANDA.

Attorney General Daugherty's annual report states that 427 radical propagandists arrived in this country last year. They are carrying on their work.

When some industrial trouble appears, you see these radicals coming forward and demonstrating the class hatred that they have so carefully exploited. They succeed in convincing some people that the business system is a cruel and ruthless machine, the purpose of which is to grind the life out of poor people, in order to make profits for the hog-rich.

These propagandists enter old established trade and industrial unions, and by their persistence and volubility gain influence in these organizations, and use them for revolutionary purposes, contrary to the desire of the majority of the members.

These emissaries never mention certain fundamental facts. The first of these is that if the income of the rich were all divided up among the mass of the people, it would amount to only a small sum for each person.

The second is, that people of wealth, with all their faults, do not spend the bulk of their earnings on personal luxuries. The bulk of their revenues are saved and used for improving farms, for creating factories, and harnessing water powers, for building railroads and making machines. This equipment reduces the cost of production, and helps keep prices down.

Third, a community either has to reward skill, enterprise, and industry, in which case some people will become richer than others, or it must treat everybody alike, in which case a premium is put on laziness, and the community sinks into the misery that exists today in Russia.

Nothing is gained by persecuting the red propagandists, but some one who knows something should answer their silly arguments.

CODDLING STUDENTS.

Many school authorities are getting out of patience with what they claim is the indifference and languid interest of modern school pupils. Some people will call them old fogies and think they are out of sympathy with young people. Yet they see more of the tendencies of the younger generation than the rest of us, and their opinion is entitled to attention.

For instance, a representative of Amherst College, recently wrote a letter to the New England Association of Teachers of English, in which he complained of the "coddling process to which high schools are adding. He said that the 'modern movie sick generations has not the guts to do anything hard.'

Many other school authorities feel that while the present generation of students may compare favorably in ability with the past, yet their attention is diverted by too many things. In the old days there was nothing to do but go to school, and the pupils put their mind on their studies. Now there are movies and dances to attend, athletics to take up no end of attention, automobiles to be driven, and a constant success of distractions.

In opposition to this point of view, you will hear some teachers defend the young crowd, and say that the college authorities and school superintendents are too scholastic, and insist on a pedantic degree of perfection.

It is undeniably true that young people in these days have too many distractions. Many parents allow their children to go to social events all through the week, and then are disappointed if they fail to pass their tests or enter higher institutions of learning. It takes some concentration to succeed in life. If the young folks expect to make good, they must make their school work the position of first importance.

There would be no objection from pedestrians if motorists would start a courtesy campaign.

Who could refuse a dainty salad prepared according to the following recipe:

Tango Salad.—Peel, halve and core ripe, juicy pears and if desired cut in thin slices without cutting quite through to preserve the shape and make the salad easier to serve oneself. Rub the pears with lemon juice, or squeeze a few drops over them to prevent discoloring. Set a ball of cream cheese or a cube of Roquefort or any desired cheese in the cavity in the center of the pears; set aside on heart leaves of lettuce and pour over a highly seasoned dressing like the Tango Dressing.—Take one-half cupful of mayonnaise, add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, one-fourth of a cup of chili sauce; beat until well blended, then beat in the mayonnaise dressing. Sprinkle the salad and dressing with julienne strips of pickles. The canned red peppers should be well rinsed when taken from the can and dried on a cloth before shredding.

Lemon Cheese Cakes.—To make a filling for five individual pies, take one egg, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, the grated rind of a lemon, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, and one-fourth of a cup of sifted sponge cake crumbs. Beat the yolk of the egg, add the sugar, salt, lemon rind and juice and the cake crumbs; mix thoroughly, then fold in the white of the egg beaten stiff and turn into small tins lined with rich pastry. Bake until the filling is set.

Spanish Sandwiches.—Chop twelve drained anchovies, two tablespoonfuls of capers, four branches of parsley, then pound with a pestle, adding meanwhile a teaspoonful of made mustard, one tablespoonful each of oil, vinegar and two hard-cooked egg yolks. Mix and spread on bread prepared for sandwiches, sprinkle with the chopped egg whites, press together, and serve.

Out in the country they are killing 500 pound hogs and having fresh pork dinners, while in the cities they are consuming lemon tea and crackery wafers and claiming they aren't hungry.

A Letter to Irene

HOTEL SOAKITUUM

ATLANTIC CITY September

Dear Irene—

You wanted to hear about this place—well, in the first place it's a lack number being about all they are too it is a big Board Walk made outa wooden boards and back home in Stockton we've had cement walks since the puppets at Willie!

Next comes the Atlantic Ocean swimming of which you have probably heard and in between the Board Walk and the Ocean is the Beach which is made outa sand where they go swimmin only of course it is lots larger than the old swimmin hole at Johnson's creek and if the Quirk were the swim bathing suits back home they would get threw in the Oldbathes!

Beyond the Board Walk is a lot of the Swelliest hotels in the World full of Society Millionaires with ride up and down the "Board" Walk (pretty good hey) in Wheel chairs lookin more tired than the Fellars who is pushing the chairs. Pretty soft, hey Irene? Why ain't I wealthy insted of so goddurn handsum?

One chair had nuthin but a Daug in it and if it wuz me I would of loved that Mutt so hand that she fella over in Ireland wood be sayin, "Hoaly Smoke! Lookit the Daug coming down oute the Sky! He must of fell from an aereplane, be Gorry!" That's the kind of a Guy I am!

Then they is shops and fiars out into the Ocean full of merry-go-rounds and bands and rides and gyp games where you don't git nuthin but left, and dance halls and movies and Everythin!

We're leaving for New York tomorrow where the Boss and me expect to git some swaths on the Gay White Way. Remember me to Gabe and Whizz and the kids
Yours Respectively
Mickie
P.S. I bet they're all dead!

HOLD-OVERS

B. H. Riley succeeded himself as County Attorney last Monday, and he has looked after the county's business, exerting his best efforts at all times, and he will continue to do so as long as any interest of Boone county is at stake.

Jailer Fowler began another term as jailer of Boone county last Monday. Mr. Fowler has made a good official and takes great interest in the property of the county that is under his control. He is always found at his post of duty and the grand jury compliments him on the condition in which they find the public buildings.

Chas. Maurer who retired as Clerk of the Circuit Court, retired from office Monday, and he is now a full fledged farmer. Mr. Maurer was punctual with all of his official duties, and has performed the duties of his office in a manner that is a credit to him. He has served his people well and retires from office with a clear record.

KILLED IN GRAVEL PIT.

Robert Hamilton, of Beaver, was killed Monday morning in East Bend by being caught under sliding sand. Mr. Hamilton, with Mr. Geo. Baker, and others went to East Bend for a load of sand and while loading their wagon the sand began to slide and caught Mr. Hamilton, completely covering him, and before those who were with him could get him from under the sand he had died. Mr. Hamilton was born and reared in the Hamilton precinct. His funeral was held Wednesday, Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Funeral services were held at Hughes Chapel near Beaver, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Hamilton was a member of the American Legion who attended the funeral. He was buried with military honors.

Poultry Show and Sale

By Boone County Poultry Association at Burlington, Ky., Saturday, Jan. 14th.

This event promises to start the onward and upward trend of the poultry industry in Boone county. The poultry industry in Boone county is falling far behind its possibilities, since it is close up to the Cincinnati market, which assures the top price for all our surplus eggs and poultry. Local poultrymen fail to appreciate their marketing advantages, to cite one specific case, during the holidays we were selling our turkeys on foot at 48c to 50c per pound while counties in Southern Kentucky were getting but 30c per pound. This difference in price can easily mean the difference between profit and loss. This market applies to all produce from a dozen of eggs on up.

A Boone County Poultry Association has been organized for the purpose of fostering and promoting the poultry industry and a committee has been appointed to draft by-laws and a proposed advertising circular for mailing list. Both by-laws and circular will be submitted for approval and amendment at the day of the show.

The show and sales committee are composed of Hubert Conner, J. F. Cleek, Mrs. J. Colin Kelly, Mrs. B. C. Graddy, Chas. Maurer and Judge N. E. Riddell. These two committees will meet at Burlington Friday at 10:00 a. m. Jan. 6th. All interested breeders are invited to meet with them. If you have any pure bred male birds, pullets or hens of merit, of any breed, list them with any of the committee.

Mr. Holmes Martin, Head of Poultry Department, Lexington, will assist us show and sale day. He will lecture on breed, type and disqualifications of the several breeds.

Watch next week's issue for premium list and ad.

BROWN RATS BEGIN ANNUAL HOME HUNT.

Barium Carbonate Poison Recommended to Farmers As Check On Pests.

Inquiries from farmers and other persons troubled with the common brown rat indicate that the time of the year has arrived when these pests gather up their belongings and move from the fields into buildings and barns where the supply of food is more plentiful and the conditions more home-like, according to workers at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. These rodents annually destroy about $200,000,000 worth of grain and food products in the United States and are worthy of considerable attention from farmers, according to workers who have recommended barium carbonate poison as one of the most effective means of destroying them.

However, rats soon learn to avoid any particular kind of poisoned bait and for that reason should be given a varied diet, Harrison Garman, entomologist at the station has pointed out in the suggestions given.

Three kinds of bait, and more if possible, including grain, meat or cheese and a vegetable give best results. It is better to offer them the bait without poison first and then alternate poisoned and unpoisoned food until the rodents are killed. One part of barium carbonate mixed with four parts of bait has been found to be effective. If the two are not mixed, the poison may be sifted over the bait and then rubbed in.

Since barium carbonate is poisonous to children and domestic animals, are should be taken in placing it about the farm or home. The bait should be inspected daily and any that is not eaten replaced by another kind.

In their suggestions, the station workers have pointed out that destruction of rats is a community problem and that even if one's buildings are rat proof, the pests will give trouble if permitted to breed in the vicinity.

If informed by an adequate farm record, the farmer might discover whether or not he can make unprofitable projects profitable or if it would be better to abandon them to devote his energy to those which he is able to make successful.

CROP ROTATION SYSTEM IS FARM BALANCE WHEEL.

In pointing out to Kentucky farmers that the winter months are the ones in which to plan the farm crop rotation, specialists at the College of Agriculture have emphasized the fact that a rotation brings about better distribution of farm labor, saves plant food, builds up impoverished soils, reduces loss from plant diseases and insects and produces a supply of home-grown feeds.

"A good rotation should be so planned that a legume, such as clover or soybeans, will be grown from one to two years out of the four or five," R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist of the college said. "Since legumes are soil builders, the poorer the soil, the greater will be the demand for legumes. With legumes grown in the rotation for feed and manure carefully saved and returned to the soil, farmers should have no need to purchase nitrogenous fertilizers for ordinary farm crops."

"The production of crops for feed or cash also should be considered in planning the rotation. Where bogs are extensively raised, ample provision should be made for corn production. A dairy farm, on the other hand would call for less corn and more hay and pasture."

"Another point to observe in planning the rotation is to provide for a crop on each field throughout the year. Erosion and leaching remove more plant food from bare fields than the production of a crop would. Special cover crops, such as rye, sown early in the fall, will be needed in some cases for the rotation to prevent this leaching and erosion."

"On a hog farm, a rotation in which corn and soybeans are planted together for two years and then followed with wheat in which grass and clover is seeded should prove satisfactory from a soil improvement standpoint. In this case, rye should be used as a winter cover crop after the first crop of corn and beans are harvested. A dairy farmer might prefer corn one year, followed by a rye cover crop plowed under in the spring for soybeans, which would be harvested for hay in the fall. Wheat could be used to follow this and grass and clover seeded in the grain the following spring. A tobacco grower in the dark belt would find a rotation of tobacco, wheat and clover a satisfactory system to follow."

A meeting of the American Legion will be held at the court house in Burlington, Monday night, Jan. 9th. All members are urged to be present. A lunch will be served.

McGLASSON, Commander.

The square in front of St. Sophia's familiar to every visitor to Constantineople, is not a Y. M. C. A. play ground.

Fiscal Court

The Fiscal Court was in session Tuesday, Jan. 7, at the first meeting of the new members.

The court is composed of N. E. Riddell, county judge, and Esquires J. C. Bedinger, E. J. Aylor, R. H. Tanner, Frank M. Walton, B. C. Kirtley and C. C. Sleet and Benj. H. Riley, County Attorney.

John Baldwin was employed by the court to perform the duties of Road Engineer for the year 1922 at a salary of $1350.

The jail was ordered painted, as directed by the grand jury.

The County Judge and County Attorney were appointed a committee to get estimates of putting toilet rooms in the court house. This is being done at the urgent request of several grand juries, and it is an improvement that should be made.

The court could not comply with the request of the Gallatin Fiscal Court and join with that court in building a bridge across South Fork creek—the finances of the county would not permit this county to join in that improvement.

There was expended on the roads in Boone county during the year 1921 $93,000.00 of this sum $33,000.00 was work that had been contracted before 1921, leaving the sum of 60,000.00 that had been spent on the roads in 1921, and the county owes about $7,300.00. This leaves the road fund completely exhausted, for the first time in the history of Boone county. The road fund for 1921 was $56,000.00.

LESS CULTIVATION AND MORE GRASS IS ADVISED.

An increase of at least one-third in the acreage of grasses and legumes grown in the State and a corresponding decrease in the acreage of cultivated crops should result in increased profits for Kentucky farmers during the coming year, according to recommendations being made by the soils and crops department of the College of Agriculture. Much of the soil in the 5,000,000 acres that are being plowed each year to produce cultivated crops is too poor to produce paying yields, specialists of the department say.

Of the 5,000,000 acres being plowed each year, 4,800,000 acres are utilized for cereals, corn being the principal one with an acreage of 3,250,000 acres. On the other hand only about 2,000,000 acres of hay and forage crops are being grown each year.

In emphasizing the importance of an increased pasture and hay acreage, the specialists have pointed out that under average farm conditions it is desirable to reduce the amount of plowing to a minimum. Each crop produced and removed from the field removes a large amount of fertility, only one-third of which can be returned to the soil even where the best methods of manure conservation are practiced. In addition nearly three-fourths of the plowed land is left bare in the winter with the result that erosion and leaching remove a large amount of plant food.

In contrast, the specialists have pointed out that there is no erosion and very little leaching on land used for pasture or hay. A pasture sod holds the virgin soil and when the soil is grazed or mowed to the soil. Even on hay land where the crop is removed the soil is held and the only plant food taken away is that required to produce the crop.

If legumes can be grown with the grass, it will be a decided advantage to the farmer, the specialists say. Japan clover and red top should give good results for pasture mixture on poor, sour soils. If hay is to be grown on a similar soil, limestone and clover should give good results. All grass and hay land not in a high state of fertility should produce greater yields if given an application of phosphorus fertilizer.

The officials of Newport and Campbell county said that they did not need the State troops in Newport, but later developments show that Governor Morrow acted wisely when he ordered the troops there. No attempt was made by the officials to see that the lives of the citizens of Newport were protected. It is common gossip that Newport is a wide open town and that those whose duty it is to suppress crime make no effort to make the city a fit place in which to live. If all reports are true Newport is a Monte Carlo, and all of the criminal element of Cincinnati is dumped in Newport, and it looks like that element is welcomed as they are not molested.

The tobacco trust is making a bluff that they are going to hire experienced tobacco growers to raise tobacco outside the Burley district. This is a direct threat against the pool, and will amount to very little. It is hard enough to produce tobacco in the present time when the market is still so tight that growers who will put their nose to the grindstone in the cultivation of the weed. The members of the pool need not fear any trouble from this source.

J. H. Sleet, of Heaven Lick, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Friday.

PIGS TO HAVE PROMINENCE AT TENTH FARM CONVENTION.

Lexington, Ky.—Realizing that the hog is coming to occupy a more important place in Kentucky's farming industry, the College of Agriculture is making plans to give special attention to practically all phases of pork production in the general program of the tenth annual Farm and Home Convention to be held here Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2 and 3 according to an announcement from the college. J. P. Phillips, vice-president and treasurer of the Birmingham Packing Co., Birmingham, Ala., will be one of the principal speakers on the swine program which will be held Wednesday, Feb. 1, according to the announcement.

In order to help farmers with their hog feeding, breeding and slaughtering problems, Mr. Phillips will give a demonstration and lecture which will follow the life of the pig from the time he is one month old through the feed lot, market, slaughterhouse, the cutting and curing process and finally to the consumer. In view of the fact that Mr. Phillips has had wide experience in the live stock and dressed meat business, his demonstration and lecture are expected to be of considerable value to farmers of the State.

NONPAREIL PARK.

A large number attended the dance Saturday night at Florence.

J. E. Whitson, of Eranger, was calling on friends here one day this week.

Mrs. Carl Anderson and Miss Belle Long spent Wednesday in Cincinnati, shopping.

Mrs. Henry Tanner had for her guests Monday Ada Aylor and Mrs. Lloyd Aylor and children.

The many friends of Raymond Geiger regret to hear that he is very ill at his home in Nonpareil Park.

Miss Minnie Baxter, of Nonpareil Park, enjoyed a delightful visit Sunday with friends at Bullittsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rice had for their week-end guest Miss Sadie Conner and Mrs. Parker, of Richmond.

Johnny Baker and family, of Cincinnati, enjoyed the week-end with John and wife, of Shelby St.

Mrs. J. Morgan of Burlington pike, who has been seriously ill was taken to a Cincinnati hospital, last Sunday night.

The many friends of J. G. Renaker, Cashier of Florence Deposit Bank, regret to hear of his father's death last week.

Mrs. Anna Cleek and Rufus Tanner and wife, of Erlanger, attended the Odd-Fellows Supper last Saturday night.

Miss Minnie Baxter, of Nonpareil Park, spent Monday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tanner, of Burlington pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Sayre and son, of Covington, enjoyed the week end with Edward Sydnor and wife, of Shelby Street.

Miss Katie Bradford, of Union pike, is enjoying the holidays with her brother, John Bradford and family, of Georgetown.

Miss Ida May Rogers and Miss Gertrude Stephens, of Erlanger, spent the week-end with her sister, Miss Idelle Stephens, of Devon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sydnor and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Aylor and children, spent Sunday with Miss Mattie Rouse and family, of Erlanger.

Dr. Robert Stephens, of Nashville, Tenn., has returned to his home after enjoying the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Cora Stephens and other relatives here.

L. T. Utz, of Union, was brought home last week from Christ's hospital, and we are glad to hear that he will soon be able to take charge of his official duties.

John Tucker and wife motored to Bellevue Sunday to attend the dinner given at the beautiful home of Lou Tucker and wife, being their wedding anniversary.

The Missionary Society of the Baptist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Franklin Rouse, on Thursday, Jan. 5th. All members are requested to be present.

Ed. Markberry and family, of Erlanger, will move to their beautiful new home which has just been erected in Nonpareil Park. Glad to have them in our town.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Aylor, of the Union pike, entertained Sunday with a six o'clock dinner in honor of John Aylor and wife, of Hebron, Roy Tanner and wife, Miss Beulah Tanner, and Carl Kline, of Hebron.

The members of the Baptist church remembered their pastor, Rev. John Garber, on Christmas morning with a nice box containing all kinds of good and useful thing which was greatly appreciated by the pastor and wife.

VERONA.

Mrs. Ella Vest has been quite ill the past two weeks.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Williams a fine girl baby on Friday, Dec. 23d.

Miss Susie Wasson is reported improving after an attack of appendicitis.

Many good resolutions are being put in use at this the beginning of a new year.

The thermometer dropped to near zero last Sunday night, the coldest of the season.

W. B. McCormick gave the young people a Rook party Friday night, which was enjoyed by all.

Willie Scroggins, who has been quite ill, is reported improving after an attack of influenza.

Joe Estrage has purchased the 49 acre tract of land of J. B. Fennell, near town for $65 per acre.

Misses Katie, Eva and Eugene Roberts were entertained by their sister, Mrs. Mattie Ransom, last Friday.

The young people were given a social at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Smith, last Thursday and were delightfully entertained.

The young people were loyally entertained at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Esterage last Wednesday night. All in attendance enjoyed the evening.

The Fiscal Court held a meeting Dec. 31st to pass on the tax list and settle the accounts of Ex-Sheriff L. A. Conner, in order that he could close his accounts and turn over to Sheriff Hume the funds belonging to the county, in order that all claims against the county can be paid by Sheriff Hume. While in office Mr. Conner collected more than three times as much of the delinquent list as it formerly did for.

STATE NEWS.

TURKEYS WORTH $100,000 (Owingsville Outlook.)

It is estimated that the turkey crop of Bath county will bring the raisers $100,000 this year. The prices paid were 25 cents to 33 cent a pound on foot.

SPOTTED SERPENT SLAIN (Georgetown News.)

Charles Kirkpatrick, a farmer living on the Lexington-Georgetown pike, killed a snake Saturday on his farm which measured six feet in length. It was a spotted snake he said, but he did not know the name of it.

FURNISHES MANY "EATS." (Cynthiana Democrat.)

Last week Mr. R. E. Florence, well known farmer on R. D. 3, butchered a hog that was 20 months old to the day. The yield included 610 pounds of meat, 16 gallons of lard, 1 tub of sausage.

REMARKABLE WOMAN. (Madisonville Hustler.)

This city possesses a remarkable woman in the person of Miss Frene Traylor, who is 77 years old and is able to read and thread a needle with out wearing glasses. She also does her housework. Despite her age Miss Traylor has good health.

BLACKBERRIES IN BLOOM. (Falmouth Outlook.)

Mrs. Florence Hightower and daughter, Miss Mary Laine, of Crittenden, sent us a blackberry vine in full bloom which they found near Morning View. To see blackberry vines in bloom at Christmas will make the people who went to Florida for the winter blush with shame.

800-POUND PORKER. (Bardstown Standard.)

Charles Wheeler brought to town last week to weigh, a large hog which tipped the scales at 805 lbs. This hog is of the O. I. C. breed. Mr. Wheeler has another of this same breed weighing 500 pounds. Both of these porkers will be killed as soon as the weather permits.

A PLEA FOR THE PONIES (Burkville News.)

Horse racing in Kentucky must not be stopped. Kentucky is the garden spot of the world, and what has helped to make it so more than its pretty horses? Kings and counts have crossed the mighty deep to witness our horse race in the Blue Grass State. Abolish other things—anything—but please, Mr. Preacher, "let the ponies run."

HEN HAWKS CAPTURED. (Falmouth Outlook.)

Cole and C. L. McMillen of near Elizabethtown, came to town Tuesday with three large hen hawks, two of them alive. They caught the hawks in a steel trap, using a dead rabbit for bait. The method, as they explained it, was to pin the rabbit to the ground and several steel traps around it. Hawks are very destructive to poultry and game, and in some States there is a price on their heads.

ACRE PAYS $2,399. (Hartford Republican.)

Watt Stevens delivered the tobacco grown upon one acre last Saturday, which weighed 1,805 pounds, receiving therefor $18, 130 and 32 for the three classes. The total amount received being $2,399.30 for the one acre. Mr. Stevens has cultivated tobacco upon this particular lot during the past several years. A few years ago he grew Burley upon the same plot, for which he received $35 per hundred, from the ground up.

CAPTURE LARGE EAGLE. (Springfield Sur.)

While hunting along Little Beech about five miles from this city last Saturday, Bert Thompson, "Doc" Mudd and Sammie Clements took a number of shots at what they thought to be a large hawk. A number of shot found the hawk and one wing of the bird was broken, bringing him to the ground. Upon investigation the boys found that they had crippled an eagle, the first seen in this county for many years. The bird, angered by its wounds, put up a strenuous fight and the boys experienced some trouble bringing him to town alive. The eagle had a wing spread of fifty-six inches. He was later killed by Thompson.

EARLY BAPTIST RECORDS (Green County Record.)

An old copy of the Russell Creek Association minutes dated 1855 was found when the old Smith building on West Street was razed this week, and given to G. H. Wallace who brought it to the Record office. It is a record of a meeting which was held in Macedonia Church when Mr. Wallace was a baby, but some of the names mentioned are of men he has known. It would be interesting to many of the older members of the association.

The above article refers to Baptist Minutes of old, but our friend and neighbor Mr. H. B. Robinson informs us that he has the original printed minutes of the Green River Baptist Association of the years 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803 and 1804, after which year the Russell Creek Association was organized, and Mr. Robinson is also the possessor of the printed minutes of this association from the year 1804 to 1854, with the exception of the year of 1820. Mr. Robinson is very proud of these printed Baptist minutes and they certainly date back yonder when we were quite young.

(M. E. Small in Carrollton News)

All nature should prove to fair-minded people that Kentucky was the Garden in which our forefathers was placed. Kentucky is in truth the land of flowers. Its waving blue-grass, beautiful hills and fertile lands make it the Eden of today; and the Eden of today, a land in which Adam and Eve dwelt happily until a snake from the East crawled across her borders and tempted our forefather, and he fell. Cain and Abel always drove the cows to pasture in Ohio, for there is where Adam kept his hogs and cows. One day Cain and Abel fell out, when they had got the cows to pasture, and Cain killed Abel. He was afraid to go back to Eden and face his father and mother so he went down into Indiana, which at that time was called the Land of Nod. There he married a squaw, built a large city, and raised a mighty nation of people. Just what Adam and Eve history fails to inform me. But one thing I do know, is that the daughters are dressing much the same as their "grandma" did.

THE MIDDLEMAN'S FUNCTION.

President Harding in his recent message called attention to the demand of the farmers for a larger share of the price paid by consumers for food products. It is universally admitted that too much of what the consumer pays goes to middlemen.

Yet the middlemen could never have built up their business if they had not rendered a real service. Suppose an individual fruit dealer were to undertake to deal directly with the fruit growers. He would have to buy the greater part of these fruits in states 1000 to 3,000 miles away, almost all in small lots. His freight and cartage costs would be heavy.

The middleman comes in at this point, and makes a saving by having the fruit come in car load shipments, saving freight and cartage.

He may be able to deliver small lots of fruit around to the various retail dealers cheaper than these men could buy direct from the producer.

It is of course possible that a group of these dealers could organize so as to buy in carload lots, and hire truckmen who would receive these loads when they come in, and distribute them about to the retailers participating in the deal. Probably more of that kind of thing could be done. But it involves considerable machinery. Retailers can not tell in advance just how much of a given supply they are going to be able to sell. It is a great convenience for them to be able to telephone to some near by wholesaler and obtain every few days such a quantity of stuff as they need. Thus they can get along with a smaller capital and avoid locking up so much money in merchandise.

It is proving possible for groups of farmers to sell direct to wholesalers who are located close to retail dealers that use the product. In that way one or more profits and some handling are frequently saved.

DID YOU BELIEVE IN SIGNS? (Wine and Pipe.)

A crack in your chimney is a sure sign that you are going to move.

If you dream of smelling smoke, it is a sign that you are asleep and better wake up.

To see a paper hanger paste the paper over a fly hole indicates an impending loss.

It is worse luck to look into a dark closet with a match than to see the new moon over your left shoulder.

If you can see the shadow from an oil lamp while filling a gasoline tank, it indicates a crowd of people is coming to your house.

When the wind moans, it is extremely bad luck to turn trash near a frame building.

If you smell gas or gasoline and look for it with an open flame light, it tells that you are going on a long journey with no return ticket.

To pick up a live wire in the street indicates that your friends will send you flowers.

Trying to see how fast the old boat will run indicates the receipt of a number of unwelcome bills.

Staying out late at night when your duty next day requires you to work your tension stuff, means that your relatives and friends will be remarking as to how natural you look.

When a couple spend their Sunday afternoon looking in the show windows of furniture houses, it means the "High Cost of Living" will soon be experienced by somebody.

Some states have a lazy husbands law, but it is impossible to enforce it owing to the limited jail accommodations.

WINTER GOOD THINGS.

A salad which is most attractive and is not common may be prepared as follows: Take a small sized and uniform beets that have been canned.

Hollow the center and fill with diced celery and minced onion mixed with mayonnaise. The beet is served on a heart leaf or lettuce and the receptacle will be as good to eat as its contents.

Vanilla Bavarian Cream.—Soften one-third of a package of gelatin in one-third of a cup of cold milk. Make a soft custard of one cup of milk, three egg yolks and two-thirds of a cup of sugar; add the softened gelatin and stir over ice water until beginning to thicken, then fold in one cupful and a half of beaten cream, a teaspoonful of vanilla and a pinch of salt. Dissolve the gelatin and sugar in the hot milk.

Stuffed Pudding Without Eggs.—Mix together two cupfuls of soft crumbs, one cupful of minced raisins, half a cup of molasses, one cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful each of clove and cinnamon, and if a dark pudding is desired, two tablespoonfuls of cocoa. Turn into a buttered mold and steam two hours. Serve with a hard sauce.

Molded Custard.—Soften one-fourth of a package of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold milk. Make a soft custard using three egg yolks, one-third of a cup of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add the softened gelatin, stir until dissolved and let cool; add half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract and strain into the mold. When unmolded pour over a half cupful of fruit jelly dissolved in one-fourth of a cup of boiling water. Or serve with beaten cream.

Oatmeal Soup.—Have a quart of chicken broth boiling over the heat, sprinkle in three tablespoonfuls of quick cooking oatmeal, stir and boil five minutes; set into a double boiler and let cook half an hour or longer. Take two stalks of celery, three slices of onion, six slices of carrots, and four branches of parsley, cook in the broth. When ready to serve, strain and add three cupfuls of hot milk and a teaspoonful and a half of salt. Use oatmeal if a thicker soup is required.

AGRICULTURE.

(Cornell Extension Service)

Pruning is one of the odd jobs that may be done at any time during the winter when weather permits.

One way to help save young apple trees from damage by mice is to tramp the snow around the trunk solidly.

A wood lot is just as deserving of care and good treatment as is the garden, the orchard, or the family flivver.

It's not too early to get garden and nursery catalogs for the planning of next year's fruit and garden crops.

Cheap clover seed is cheap. It is likely to be so cheap that it will prove costly in the long run. The same thing goes for alfalfa.

Community meetings not only let you know what's new in agriculture and home economics, but give you another chance to rub elbows with your neighbor.

These women that pay $500 a year to have their faces massaged must be awful plain looking to start with.

THE PRESIDENT'S FUNCTION.

There are two conceptions of the function of the president in his relation with Congress. One is that he is simply one or two co-ordinate branches, each of them wholly independent of the other. It is not his business to tell Congress what to do, more than to make such recommendations as seem wise to him. The President and Congress are supposed to work along their separate lines and not to interfere with each other. This seems to be largely President Harding's view.

LONG TIME LOANS

The Boone County National Farm Loan Association Now in Operation.

By act of Congress Federal Land Banks were chartered and located in various parts of the United States for the purpose of enabling the farmers to secure long time loans by mortgage on their farms at a reasonable rate of interest.

One of these Federal Land Banks is located in Louisville and serves the States of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. This one Land Bank at Louisville is making more than a million dollars per month in loans to farmers in these four states.

Before a farmer can secure a loan from the Federal Land Bank he must first make application to and become a member of a Local Farm Loan Association, which Association handles all details in connection with the loan for the Federal Land Bank. No loans are made direct to the farmer by the Federal Land Bank but are made through the Local Farm Loan Association of his county. A local Association is formed by not less than 10 farmers applying for loans of no less than $20,000. A charter is then granted the Local Association and the Association is then in position to receive applications for loans from farmers from time to time as the Federal Land Bank is able to supply the Local Association with funds for loanable purposes.

A local Farm Loan Association has been formed to serve the farmers of Boone County National Farm Loan Association, to be known as The Boone County National Farm Loan Association. This Association has a President, Vice President, Secretary-Treasurer, a Board of Directors and a Loan Committee. A. B. Renaker is the Secretary-Treasurer, and by virtue of his position he is the chief executive officer of the Federal Land Bank of Louisville for Boone County, where duties it is to look after the business of the Federal Land Bank in this county.

No one can become an officer of the Association unless he be a borrower, except the Secretary-Treasurer who may not be a borrower.

No one may borrow unless he be a bona-fide farmer and the money must be used for the four following purposes:

1st. To purchase land.

2nd. To provide buildings and improvements.

3rd. To purchase equipment, fertilizers, live stock and etc.

4th. To pay existing debts, incurred for the betterment of the farm.

Fifteen Charter members, totaling $68,000 in loans signed the organization papers asking for a charter of the Boone County National Farm Loan Association of this county.

The Federal Land Bank does not have unlimited funds to loan but tries to distribute their loanable funds over four states as much as possible. The loanable funds are mainly derived from the sale to the investing public of Farm Loan Bonds which are issued against the mortgage loans taken from the farmers and if the bonds do not find a ready market at all times it causes the Federal Land Bank to be short on funds until more bonds are sold. It is the purpose of Boone County's Local Association to be in readiness to place loans at any time the Federal Land Bank has the available funds for this county.

Loans are made from $100 to $10,000 to any one party and are made from five to 40 years. A $1,000 loan is completely liquidated, both as to principal and interest in 33 years by the payment of $35.00 every six months as a part of the $35.00 payment is applied on the principal each time. Loans may be paid in full or in part any time after five years or may be paid before five years by a small compromise agreement. The balance due on a loan paid before maturity would be that amount by which the principal has been reduced from each semi-annual payment as made by the borrower, as shown by a printed table in the hands of the Secretary.

Loans are made on the following basis—50 per cent of the appraised value of the land exclusive of improvements, and 50 per cent of the appraised value of the insurable buildings. The borrower is required to contribute 1 per cent of the amount of his loan in the beginning toward the expenses of the Local Association. He is also required to pay for the abstract of title and such other necessary expenses required in closing the loan. The borrower is required to take 6 per cent of his loan in stock in the Federal Land Bank on which he receives annual dividends and the stock is returned to him in cash when his loan is paid. Any information in connection with securing a loan from the Federal Land Bank will be gladly given by A. B. Renaker, Secretary-Treasurer, Burlington, Ky.

It is expected that another allotment of funds will be made Boone county within the next few months and the Secretary would appreciate knowing what farmers desire to participate in this next allotment of funds; their names, addresses, number of acres to be mortgaged and amount of loan desired. Their requests will be filed and they will be notified when any funds are available to take care of their desired loan.

This Local Association should prove of great benefit to the farmers of Boone county and assist very materially in relieving the financial condition which has existed for the past two years.

If the Federal Land Bank can not make a farmer as large a loan on his farm as he requires, under their rules for making loans, there is no objection to a bank or an individual taking a second mortgage for the difference if the bank or individual knows there is sufficient margin over and above the Federal Land Bank's loan to warrant a second mortgage.

Loans are now made at 6 per cent but as stated above the $35.00 semi-annual payment takes care of the interest and payment every 6 months without any additional payments being made and the loan is automatically liquidated in full in 33 years.

Should the rate of interest be decreased (it can not be increased during the life of the loan) the borrower has the right to cancel his loan after five years and take out a new loan at the reduced rate.

The borrower is required to keep all buildings insured and make the loss payable to the Federal Land Bank.

WANTS THE NEWS.

In subscribing for the Recorder Rev. C. E. Baker writes:

Editor Boone County Recorder, Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir:—Please find enclosed check for $1.50 for one year's subscription to your paper.

We are beginning to feel very much at home here. We have had a splendid revival here since I moved. I am to begin a meeting at Aberdeen, Ohio, Jan. 9th.

We are anxious to hear from our friends in Boone county, and thought we could hear from many each week by taking the Recorder.

Rev. Baker and family moved to Dyer, Ky., from Bellevue, this county some time since.

AURORA POULTRY SHOW

Aurora, Indiana, February 2, 3, 4 and 5th.

The Dearborn County Poultry Association is putting on its first Annual Poultry Show at Aurora, Ind., Feb. 2, 3, 4 and 5th. Liberal cash premiums are offered on all varieties and breeds in both the Fanciers' and utility classes. Also, about 25 silver cups will be awarded as special premiums.

The farmers and poultry raisers of Boone county are heartily invited to attend and exhibit at this show. Premium lists may be had by writing Sec'y Elw. W. Meyer, Lawrenceburg, Indiana, or the County Agent, C. C. Madison, Aurora, Indiana. This matter should be looked after at once because the entries will close January 25th.

A big Annual Farmer's Banquet will be held in connection with this show on Friday, Feb. 3rd, at 6:30 p. m. Tickets may be secured by remitting 75 cents each to either of the above addresses. Ticket sales will close January 25th. This banquet will be addressed by Prof. G. I. Christie. The program will also include excellent musical and entertainment features. Everybody is invited to attend.

PROUD OF HER OLD HOME

Los Angeles, Cal.,

Dec. 31, 1921.

Boone County Recorder,

Burlington, Ky.

Dear Edson—Enclosed you will find $1.50 for Recorder for 1922. We are having a warm rainy Xmas. Today is hot and sultry and very threatening, whether a storm or an earthquake we do not know yet.

We "Burlingtonites" were much pleased and proud to see Arthur B. Rouse's photograph in the Los Angeles Times on the morning of December 28th, with the statement of his election as chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee. Burlington has turned out some very fine sons and daughters, and though we are far away we have an interest in all concerned.

With best wishes to you, the Recorder and all our friends for a happy and prosperous New Year, I am, Yours Sincerely, FRANCIS GRIFITH.

F. J. Rouse sent to market Monday morning seventeen 800 pound Chesterwhite hogs. These pigs were fattened in June.

A NEW MEMBER

What He Found at the First Meeting of The Boone Fiscal Court.

We found a court composed of good earnest men who showed every evidence of wanting to manage the affairs of Boone county in a safe and economical manner. We found some good and efficient officers two of whom we would make special mention: Our care taker of the County Infirmary and our Jailor. We felt we would like to have given them more pay as they felt they deserved it, but owing to financial conditions we have to retrench wherever possible. We feel exceedingly fortunate that we were able to secure the services of Mr. John D. Baldon as our County Road Engineer. A man of considerable experience in road building, and who is able to handle the road machinery efficiently. We will know more about Mr. Baldon after one or two years as he will have to report to the court and to the people of the county. We hope and trust that he will be able to make a good report.

These are some of the pleasant things we found. But also found some unpleasant things, one of the chiefest and most important is the terrible condition of our roads thru-out the county and an almost depleted road fund, with only about funds enough available this year to do the repairing that necessarily needs to be done. In order for Mr. Baldon to succeed under these conditions he must have the hearty cooperation of all the people, and especially of the farmers living along these roads, and when he comes to you in the spring, "you farmers with heavy teams and nice red wagons" do not turn him down "stating you can make more money out of your team on the farm" and compel him to go down on some back lane and get some one with a small team and poor equipment and expect him to do the impossible. Co-operate and do the ditching and hauling in front of your farm as cheaply as possible, that we may have money to run the crusher and other road machinery and see that we get value received for every dollar expended. When you are ditching or hauling rock on the road in front of your farm you are adding to your own comfort and advantage as much as to your own improvement on your farm. You are able to do this work cheaper than a road crew can do it, because you are right at home. Let us think co-operation, talk co-operation until we enthuse all with the spirit of patriotism, as in the time of war when we sent our five minute men out to educate and to inspire to greater service.

There may have been some mistakes made, no doubt the present court under the same conditions would have made as great or greater. The best means of development is to profit by past experience. What has been done is done and all the criticizing and fault finding will not remedy it. So let us face the facts as they exist today and put our shoulders to this mixed wheel and give a boost and don't stop to holler. Let our road engineer do all the hollering and we do the lifting and boosting and in two years we will see a great improvement in our roads "more anon."

Respectfully,

C. C. SLEET.

LEAF MARKETING

President Informed Of Kentucky's Co-operative Move In Tobacco Sales To Examine Real Rates.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Co-operative marketing of farm products will constitute a definite part of the programme for the National Agricultural Conference to be called by Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace, and probably to be held in Washington, January 23, it was made known today.

This phase of the conference programme was discussed with Mr. Wallace on Tuesday by Clifford Ross, of Burgin, Ky., who has been associated with the burley co-operative tobacco movement in Kentucky, and who is now engaged in similar work in West Virginia.

TO PREVENT POTATO SCAB

Potato scab can be eliminated if a different plot of ground is planted in potatoes each year. Never plant your potatoes in the same place two successive seasons, and you will have no trouble with scab. Uncle Ad Robbins, who is ninety-three years old, says that by following the above your potato scab will not injure your crop, as he has been testing this for over 40 years.

While a dry New Year seems inauspicious to some people, they are perhaps able to start in the next day without having to ask the boss to make an advance on the week's pay.

POSTS ARE BEING FILLED

Number of Important Appointments Announced By Warehouse Director. All Growers But One.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 3.—Appointments to a number of important posts of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association Organization were announced Tuesday by Ralph M. Barker, director of warehouses of the association.

John L. Buckley of Lexington was appointed assistant to the director of warehouse manager for the Central District; C. L. Walters of Shelbyville, warehouse manager for the Western District; James W. Fitzgerald of Maysville, warehouse manager for Ohio and Mason county, and John R. Crockett of Sharpburg, warehouse manager for the rest of the Eastern District.

Robert E. Beatty of Lexington, was named warehouse manager for the Lexington leaf department, and Charles L. Latham of Lexington, supervisor of warehouses for the entire district. Mr. Latham's duties will consist of looking after the physical condition of the properties taken over by the association, and keeping them in first class condition.

All But One Are Growers.

All of the appointees selected by Mr. Barker took an active part in the campaign for the organization of the association. With the exception of Mr. Latham, all are tobacco growers, and Mr. Latham is an experienced warehouseman, architect and contractor.

Mr. Barker expressed gratification at his ability to enlist the services of these men and said he hoped to find men of like character for the places he will fill the coming week.

Progress was made the last week toward the point where the association can receive tobacco and make advances on the crops. James C. Stone, president and general manager of the organization, said today. He was not able, however, to say when the tobacco warehouses taken over by the association would be open to receive the pooled crops.

"We have made considerable progress," said Mr. Stone, "and we are pleased with the patience manifested by the growers, which we asked for and which has been given us during the preliminary period of organization until we could select the men to have charge of the various departments of the association's business and of the property turned over to us by the owners of the warehouses."

"A splendid spirit of co-operation has been shown, not only by the growers who have signed their crops over to the association, but by the warehousemen, business men and bankers, who have carried out their part of the program outlined some months ago to such a degree as to make certain the success of the organization and the proper merchandising of the 1921 crop."

Pleased With Selections.

"Ralph M. Barker, director of warehouses, has been very fortunate in his selection of men to fill posts in his department and we expect that every man appointed to a position in the personnel of the organization will be the best man obtainable for the particular post that he is to fill. We want the growers to feel that their business is in competent hands and for that reason can have been taken in the making of all appointments so far made."

"We are doing the best we can to have the warehouses opened for the receipt of the crops at the earliest possible moment."

MONEY AND MARKETS.

Business in 1922.

Conditions in the United States today indicate that the year 1922 as a whole will be more satisfactory to business than the year just ended. The forecast is that profits will depend more on economy of operation than on expansion of volume. With the many favorable factors now operating, business men should not fear to make plans for the new year, but they should plan with care and conservatism, and with constant effort toward reduction of costs.

Financial improvement continues. Progress has been made in reduction of excess stocks of manufactured goods. Accumulations of raw materials have been reduced. The rate of production in the major industries has shown little change during the closing weeks of the year. Losses in some lines have been offset by gains in others, the net result being that the gains over the low level of the earlier months of 1921 have been held. Retail trade during the last three months has been better than was justified by agricultural and industrial conditions, even though it has been disapproved to those who are yet to have failed to recognize that the public has little inclination for maintaining, under present conditions, the various profits between original production and sale to the consumer.

POULTRY PROBLEMS SLATED FOR TENTH FARM CONCLAVE.

Lexington, Ky.—Poultry housing, feeding and management will be among the subjects to receive special attention at the tenth annual Farm and Home Convention to be held at the College of Agriculture Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2 and 3, according to the tentative program being arranged for the event. As in former years, a part of the general program has been set aside for farmers and their wives who are especially interested in farm poultry problems.

Included among the speakers who have been scheduled to address the poultrymen are C. L. Manwaring, a commercial poultryman of Mead, Ind., who has made a consistent yearly profit from his flock; J. T. Wilson, Corydon, whose flock has been one of the leading ones among the 47 being conducted as demonstrations in the State; J. H. Martin, in charge of poultry work at the college and J. B. Smyth, extension poultryman of the college.

ELECTING THE OFFICERS.

January is a time when many organizations hold annual meetings, and elect their officers for the coming year. As a rule the officers of organizations are called upon to do much real work and take some risks without any pay. But they have the satisfaction of serving the public, and they make warm friends by willingness to give time and effort.

There are some folks who balk the moment it is proposed to put them into office in any organization. The mere thought of carrying responsibility seems impossible to them. Yet people who in spite of their reluctance take hold and do public work, find it comes easier than they think.

They may believe they have no spare moments. Yet as they take up the duties of their work one by one, they find they can get it in somehow. Odd hours in a time previously wasted unproductively, become available to render this service. Their lives grow richer for mingling with the current of community progress and they find themselves abundantly rewarded.

PROMOTING INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

The most obvious method to promote the growth of a city, is to secure new industries. Innumerable business organizations have worked on that proposition, and have had a good many disappointments. After a new industry has been secured by special favors or by stock subscriptions, it does not always prove permanent. But in spite of all adverse possibilities, many business organizations have succeeded in locating new industries in a permanent way and in helping existing ones to do more business. The thing can be done, if handled right.

The United States Chamber of Commerce recently issued literature giving practical suggestions as to how industrial growth can be promoted.

RELEASED ON BOND.

The case of the Commonwealth of Kentucky against Roy Sorrell, 18, arrested by Maude Hays, 13, with a serious case was on trial before the County Judge last Saturday and the defendant waived examination of the charge and was bound over to the grand jury, and was released on bond.

In Europe they are suffering from hunger and in this country they suffer from thirst.

NEEDLESS WORRY.

There is always more or less worry connected with money. Those of us who do not have it, worry about getting it; and those of us who have it, are often put to a great deal of worry in hanging on to it. In addition to this no little worry is brought on by the desire to make a jittney grow where only penny grew before.

It seems as if poets and philosophers had conspired to bring money into disrepute, so anxious are they to tell us that the mere possession of it is a great burden. Thoughts like the one to be found in all the world's great literature.

In more recent times there has come to us the warning that money carries germs. Even an innocent looking little 10-cent piece, we were told, could be the harbinger of enough germs to infect a whole family if they were careless in the handling of it. In the spreading wings of the eagle on the dollar whole colonies of insidious germs might find lodging, all the more securely hidden because of the trusting message inscribed between the wing tips.

German experts went so far as to say that a bank clerk's occupation was particularly hazardous because he handles so much money. Paper money is considered by germ experts even more dangerous than coin, particularly bills of smaller denomination. For obvious reasons germs do not care for the $50 bill; not so many people get their hands on them as on bills of smaller denomination. One could almost feel sorry for bank clerks engaged all day in the hazardous undertaking of counting money.

But now this dread has been dispelled. After exhaustive investigation on the subject of money as germ carriers two Illinois University experts assure us that this danger has been greatly exaggerated. It seems that the metals from which these coins are made act as destroyers of bacteria. Germs find money even less helpful for the prolongation of life than man does. They simply can not live on it.

So we may now load our pockets with silver and nickel and copper without fear of death. We may pass coins over the counter and take other coins in change without wondering how many germs we have thus set into motion. These experts tell us not to carry money in our mouth; but that place has never appealed to many people as suitable for pocketbook purposes.

This relieves us of the worry connected with the handling of money. The next thing, for some expert to tell us to tell us how we may be relieved of our worries in trying to get hold of it.—Ex.

HOW WE TRUST EACH OTHER.

(Kansas City Star.)

How we Americans do love each other! You get into ordinary conversation. All of us are convinced we are being robbed by somebody else. Our next door neighbor is a good fellow personally. But as a business man we know he is a pirate.

The salaried man is suspicious of his employer. He knows his grocer is a swindler. As for the Street downtown where his wife trades, he calls it the daylight robbery. So, too, the dealer in notions looks darkly on the clothier. Both the clothier and the notion man blame the jobber and the farmer. The farmer is convinced he is the victim of the boards of trade. The Wall Street broker is certain the country is being held up in the price of eggs and meat.

With all this brotherly love so wide-spread, isn't it a good deal of a miracle that the country is able to rock along and not fly to pieces? A

LAST OFFICIAL ACT.

County Clerk W. R. Roger's last official act before retiring from office, was to send his check for $6,308.88, Frankfort. This was the amount he had collected from the sale of automobile licenses for the last week he was in office.

A CALL MEETING.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Evans returned home from Latonia last Friday after several days visit with their son, John Evans. Their daughter, Mrs. Charles Kloppe, of Burksville, Indiana, accompanied them to their home.

After several years illness from a stroke of paralysis, and contracting a case of pneumonia, Rev. Leslie N. Early departed this life on Friday, the 6th of January, 1922, at eight o'clock p. m. The funeral was held at the Christian church at 11 a. m., Sunday. Interment in this cemetery. Bro. E. C. Royle preached the funeral. C. Scott Chambers undertaker.

One day last week a youth about 16 or 18 years of age called at our house dressed in a grey suit, wearing a black cap. He seemed very reticent, did not say where he was from or where he was going, but from his actions I taken him to be a detective.

BIG BONE.

It is with the deepest sorrow and regret that I write these few lines of the death of our friend and neighbor, Robert Hamilton, son of J. P. Hamilton and Eliza Hamilton, who was born Dec. 15th, 1892, at Jan. 2, 1922, age 29 years and 17 days, while shoveling gravel for Geo. Baker at East Bend, the gravel bank gave way and covered him up. Lennie Hubbard and Henry Black were with him, and it took fifty minutes to get him out. He leaves a mother, father one sister and one-half brother, to mourn his death. Robert was a good, kind boy, and every one liked him, he was willing and able to lend a helping hand where ever needed. It is sad that one so young in life should be taken, but his earthly career is ended and he is at home in Heaven. No more shall he answer to the roll call at his home but will respond to the roll call at his Heavenly home. Weep not dear ones as those that have no hope, he has gone from us but we have that blessed assurance of meeting again on that bright shore where there are no more partings and heartaches. Funeral services were held at the Hughes Chapel Wednesday at 11 a. m., by Rev. Baker, who rendered a beautiful and touching tribute to the memory of the dead, after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery there to await the resurrection morn. The floral pieces were beautiful and expressed the sympathy and love of his friends.

The hours will longer be no doubt. The days may run for years, But do not extend the time with grief.

Don't lend your eyes to tears. Shut out the morning sun. But think of me as coming home. When all my work is done.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baker.

Card of Thanks.—We desire to express our sincere thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and sympathy extended toward us and our bereavement in the loss of our dear son and brother Robert Hamilton. We want to thank the undertaker Mr. Chambers. We appreciated every kindness in this dark hour of sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hamilton and family.

Just how busy can a man be? I believe my friend Robert E. Berkshire holds the record in Boone county for being the busiest "bird" to the contrary notwithstanding. Note the line up please: Circuit clerk, Boone County, Ky., master commissioner Boone county, Treasurer of Boone county jury fund, owns and operates a commercial truck running between Petersburg and Cincinnati, owns and operates the school bus that hauls the children to school from the Petersburg school, a master politician as his election indicates, owner of one of the largest mercantile buildings in this county, owner of real estate, Democrat, member Christian church, being assistant supt. of the Sunday school, deacon in the church, teacher in the S. S. singer in the choir, and a silver-toned baritone singer, clerk of the church, solicitor for his trucks, art critic and connoisseur, employer of several workmen, dealer and expert line, having attended the graduation from the Aurora High School, and Transylvania, is an able lawyer, a famous athlete, holding medals for standing high jump, running broad jump, flatfooted high leap, pole vaulting, speed runs, swimming, shooting, skating and bowling. His base ball record is in the 300 class, having led Boone county players in the batting the past year, a former semi-pro, foot ball player, a former garage, is an expert auto mechanic, a second class electrician, smokes a pipe that you can detect three blocks away, and is married to one of the finest little ladies in Kentucky, and the daddy of three sweet little girls. Bob can make good in everything but raising a mustache, and at this he is a dismal failure. His hobby is moving pictures and he owns and operates the Petersburg Movie Show, every Wednesday and Saturday night, and his get up there and get, is appreciated by the townspeople.

PT. PLEASANT.

(Too Late for Last Week.)

Mrs. Carder is recovering from a severe cold.

Misses Gladys Jergens and Edith Carder, were the guests of Rev. and Mrs. Omer, last Wednesday evening, and attended the Box Social at Bullittsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Keene Souther were Sunday guests of relatives in Saylor Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Dolwick entertained several of their children with a bountiful dinner on New Year's day.

Mrs. H. A. Jergens and daughters called on Mrs. Emmet Riddell, Friday afternoon.

One of the most brilliant events of the holiday season was a "Watch Party" on New Year's eve at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Souther. The rooms were tastefully decorated. A delightful lunch was served at midnight of which quite a number of reatives and friends partook.

One of the greatest successes in entertainments was given Christmas eve by the young people and children of the Pt. Pleasant Sunday school. The children had recitations and dialogues, which were given and equally well received by the audience. The young people presented the play "Mrs. Bailey's Boarders". Each part was well taken and really shows the talent that these young people have. After the last song was sung Santa Claus made his appearance. He was received with a warm welcome by the children and even some of the grown-ups. Much credit is due the leaders for the successful way in which the entertainment was given.

INVESTIGATING THE RETAILERS.

The consumer who is struggling to make rather scanty ends meet, is pleased to have the sympathy of Attorney General Daugherty who has ordered an investigation to be made of the prices of foods, fuel, shoes and clothing. These costs of these staples have been cussed and discussed, investigated and interrogated and inquired into. The consumer has about reached the point where he feels that these efforts add to the costs of government which he has to pay, without accomplishing anything.

Meanwhile the National Association of Retail Clerks has issued a statement denying that retail dealers are making big profits. There is no field where it is so difficult to raise prices by combination as retail trade, since there are always so many people trying to break into the retail game and selling a little below the market in order to get a foothold.

The efforts of the government to reduce prices by law have not been very successful to date. A few small profiteers have felt the heavy hand of the law, which has been useful so far as it went. It has exposed the public demand for lower costs of living, and has helped convince many business men that it pays to conduct trade on the narrowest possible margin.

In the long run prices can not be pushed down by outside pressure, but must be regulated by competition and by efficient methods of doing business. If people charge too high prices, the public should do business with those whose ideas are more reasonable.

In some lines combinations exist among producers that tend to hold prices. The business community ought not to permit these abuses to continue. If certain men insist on combining to hold up prices, chambers of commerce and other business organizations ought to start competitive projects to serve the public at fair rates.

HOW FOGS ARE FORMED.

What is fog? The average person would say it is low clouds resting on the earth's surface. This is quite true, but the question is usually dropped at this point and little thought is given to why these clouds form so much nearer the ground at some times than at others.

As the Weather Bureau explains it both fog and clouds are formed when condensation of moisture takes place in the atmosphere. Fog is composed of minute particles of visible vapor. They were once believed to be hollow spheres, but science now declares that each individual drop is a solid body of water enclosed in a particle of dust in the air and supported by the upward tendency of air currents and the resistance of atmosphere to the falling of minute spherical particles. The diameter of the smallest visible particles of fog has been estimated to be 1,180 of an inch.

Fogs are seldom more than 1,500 feet in depth, and sometimes they only extend twenty or thirty feet above the ground. They have been known to form in a stratum to only the height of a man.

In accordance with the conditions under which fogs develop they are divided into two general classes, "radiation fogs" and "advection fogs." The former kind, which may also be designated as "land fogs" and "summer fogs" are likely to occur along streams and rivers and in mountain valleys during any clear, still night in summer and fall. In such regions during a warm, calm day considerable water becomes evaporated into the lower atmosphere, where, if the weather remains calm, a large portion of it is retained in the air. This moist air, together with the heat from the earth at night is cooled rapidly by radiation into the clear sky, and they often cool to a degree below the dew point, which condenses the moisture into a visible vapor known as fog. Like dew, "radiation fogs" will not form on cloudy or windy nights. Such fogs may continue well after daybreak, but will vanish when the sun's heat induces evaporation and a discontinuance of radiation.

CHILD POWER.

The children of any community form a tremendous reserve of energy, that can be utilized. For instance, the Martinez, California, Chamber of Commerce recently made large use of child enthusiasm, in a movement to clean up the town and rid of fences. The city was divided into blocks, with three children to each district, consisting of a man, a woman and a Boy Scout. The children selected two captains for each district, one a boy and one a girl. Each of the block captains distributed literature to everyone in their respective districts, urging them to trim shrubbery, burn the grass on vacant lots, clean up rubbish, tear down or whitewash old fences, etc.

motion picture theater party was given to 800 children, the tickets being given only to those who had cleaned up their homes. This campaign showed how much can be done when the children are organized and set to work on civic projects.

A NUMBER CONDEMNED.

The State Veterinary condemned a number of cattle in this neighborhood last week, that upon a test were found to be affected with tuberculosis.

OVERTHROWING THE GOVERNMENT.

A movement called the "Workers' Party of America" held a convention at New York the other day, and formed a new political organization. It was announced that the new association is dedicated to the "overthrow of the present government." Some people might consider that the meeting was sedition. But no one will bother to interfere with these noisy shouters.

This organization announces that it proposes to establish the "American workers' republic." But the present government is a workers' republic. Every worker can have his own voice in the management thereof. Most Americans are workers anyway, and the principal permanent leisure class is the one that loaf on park benches and hops freight cars.

If any section of the workers feel that their interests are not fully protected by the present government, they have opportunity to redress their grievances. Their votes count just as much as those of any other citizen. The American people as a whole are keenly sympathetic with the "under dog." If it can be shown that any element have not had a fair chance under the present system our people will go the limit to give them a better opportunity.

In so far as the present government fails to provide comfortable conditions for everybody, the trouble is not with the government, but with the voters who elect public officials. There is a tendency for the people to elect smooth talkers and "mixers," but who are not capable of giving efficient business administration. When such a man get into power, many things go wrong.

But changing the form of government would not help that tendency at all. It would exist even more in the kind of government these agitators wish to establish.

Government will not be perfect until human nature is all wise and all good, but American principles have done more for human happiness than any other system on earth.

AN EXAMPLE OF SELF RESTRAINT.

An opposition party in Congress is always under peculiar temptations. It is easy and natural for it to take an attitude of obstruction. It knows that it will get little credit for good legislation that may be passed. Hence opposition parties frequently adopt an attitude of extreme criticism and unwillingness to co-operate.

The Democrats in Congress have had a powerful temptation to follow along that line, particularly since the armistice conference met. They remember only too well the factious and bitter opposition encountered by President Wilson when he undertook to negotiate a treaty of peace. They saw the tendency to quibble over trifling issues which wrecked over settlement that proved satisfactory to all the other powers at Versailles.

It would have been human nature for the Democrats to have turned around and pursued a similar course when the responsibility came on a Republican president. When it comes to ratifying the new treaties, the same spirit of refusing to co-operate with the rest of the world, would lead to opposition to the Harding agreements.

The Democrats, however, have been far sighted enough to see that this would be poor politics, not to speak of its being a low order of patriotism. They will not use the same methods of partisan opposition that the Republicans resorted to in 1919. They have not thrown a single obstacle in the way of the Washington conference, and most of them will vote to ratify the treaties negotiated by their opponents.

For the time being they may seem to gain nothing as a party from this course. But the people at large will not overlook their patriotic and high minded course at this juncture and will be grateful for their ability to sink partisan differences for the common sense cause of peace.

SETTING IDLE MEN TO WORK.

Among the communities that did especially fine service in starting public works to provide employment for idle men, was Gardiner, Massachusetts. This city of 17,000 felt keenly last summer the distress of about 500 men who were without jobs. It was decided to be good policy to take up needed public works, and put them along and give these men a chance to earn something.

These unemployed men, cleared and graded and built the foundation for a new town hall, they constructed a fine concrete road, they developed a ball park and a cemetery. Altogether the town laid out $300,000 and provided means of support for men who otherwise would have had to ask help of the town to keep going.

They have completed needed improvements, which would have probably cost them more if they had waited, and they have given workmen the impression that their home town cares for the welfare of its citizens.

Many people on the verge of despair have taken Tan-lac and recovered. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

GOOD ROADS*BUILDING OF BETTER ROADS

Highway Educational Work Extending Its Scope in Various Sections of the Country.

The extent to which the people of the United States are committing themselves to a definite policy of highway development is shown by reports reaching the federal highway council from all sections of the country.

In the face of high cost for both materials and labor, and the fact that in some states construction programs must be altered somewhat to meet existing labor and material conditions, there is no tendency upon the part of the people to slow down in their plans to place the nation's highways upon a higher plane in the country's transportation system. Trenchly stated, "they are sold to the hilt" on the proposition to construct highways that will relieve rather than restrict traffic, and they are dismissing labor and material problems with curt instructions to their official servants that it is up to them to deliver the roads.

A curious fact in connection with construction problems at the present moment is that the building of roads is seriously hindered by the same evil which they are designed to remove—namely, transportation. According to authoritative information, production is halted to a greater degree by inadequate transportation facilities than by labor shortage. At least this is true, it is claimed, in the production of materials for road building.

Highway officials—state and county as well as national—are facing their duties with patience and tact, and out of a maze of trying situations construction is going ahead at a fairly satisfactory rate. But as Paul D. Sargent, state highway engineer of Maine and president of the American Association of Highway Officials, pointed out in a meeting at Philadelphia recently, when the people finally decide to authorize the development of any particular road project, they are prone to expect the work done almost overnight.

WHAT GOOD HIGHWAYS MEAN

Enable Farmers to Get Their Different Crops to Market at Least Possible Expense.

"Farmers are business men and in order to conduct their farms in a businesslike way and cope with other business men in the state they must devise ways and means of reducing the expenses of operation," said L. E. Birdsall in submitting a resolution to the Illinois Agricultural association. He added: "In no way can the expense of farming be reduced as completely as by securing good roads running by the farms which will enable the delivery of crops to market with the least possible expense."

That is good sound sense and coming from a practical farmer it shows that farmers are keenly alive to the need and value of improved roads. Mr. Birdsall lays further emphasis on the need of selecting the most competent men for highway officials so that the best talent may be available for road building and repairing.

ROAD DRAINING AND GRADING

Highways Out of Commission but Few Days in Year When Cared for by Good Patrolman.

The first step in road improvement is to grade and drain the dirt roads thoroughly. It is surprising, after driving over some of our neglected rural roads, to find that a splendid road can be made by draining and grading alone, and how few days during the year it is out of commission when cared for by a good patrolman.

All Demand Better Roads.

The business man, the farmer, the truck driver, the pleasure seeker, are all asking and demanding better roads.

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA.

Written By a Boone County Boy "Who Has Seen The Trail of Lonesome Pines"

Coeburn, Va.
Jan. 2nd, 1922.

Mr. N. E. Riddell,
Burlington, Ky.

Dear Editor:—I am taking this opportunity to tell you how I appreciate the weekly visits of the dear old "Boone County Recorder" which makes me so happy every time it comes. Though I have been busy all the time that I have been here, each Friday when the Recorder gets here, I always have time to see what is going on in my home county. Somehow the Recorder looks different to me from any newspaper. I suppose it is because on its pages, I see so many names of people, and among which I am so familiar with, Flickertown, for instance, the place where I had my first experience as a preacher, of course, when I think of my experience there, I think of Charles Hensley, Henry Smith and all those good people there, that I would like to see again. Then just a few days ago I saw the name of Cousin Mary, it causes me to think of those days that I spent with him climbing the Gunpowder hills looking for a fresh track of a skunk or a coon, and some times we succeeded in bringing in his felt. Now just a few words to a few of the people there, whom I shall never forget. Often I think of you all and would be so glad to see you, especially my dear old mother and father and also Cousin Jim and Viola Kyle. When we review the past years, my wife and I are very thankful for the sweet fellowship of the Kyle home and we both thank them because we know that it was to a great extent, through their help and self-sacrifice that we were able to receive our diplomas from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and the Womans Missionary Union Training School last May.

Well it has been nearly five months now since we took our last look at Kentucky, but every day since we came here we have been so happy and our work has been a real joy to us. We have great people here to work with, and they do every thing possible to make us feel at home. Just a few nights after we moved into the parsonage, I went over to the church for prayer meeting and everybody was late. Finally someone called me and I went to the house, and to our surprise the crowd was standing in the yard and I unlocked the door and they nearly filled the hall and the cellar with good things to eat, and I suppose that accounts for my training. 11 pounds since we came to Virginia.

Now just a few words about the country here. This is a very beautiful country, for town is built around the base of three mountains, in what is known as Clinch Valley. This country is the richest county in Virginia. This is because of the vast amount of coal here. Beginning at the top of the mountains, there are four or five veins of coal, one right under the other, and so far the greatest amount and biggest veins have not been reached. There is one mine near here called the Toms Creek mine, and when the company is doing full work, it employs thirty or hundred men, at which time about ninety cars loads of coal are sent out a day, besides the coke that is burned at this one mine.

This is practically a new country and is not fully developed. We have now about eleven thousand people living within a two mile radius and people still moving in, and many new buildings going up. We have one railroad here and the second one nearly completed. It is very safe traveling here because the railroads are so crooked that one can be seated in the coach and watch the engine most of the time, as it winds around between the mountains. However they get the most of the same with thousands of tons of coal. Now a few words about the Baptists here. I am certain that my people will want to know something about them. They are real genuine Baptists, some of them born and reared here, many others from North Carolina, South Carolina and the other Southern States. We have only two denomination here. Baptist and Methodist. There was a time when Baptists were not allowed here and what few happened to stay were forced to march at the orders of others but now Baptists are very numerous, and are at the head of most of the business places of this town, so now they are ready to call us dear brethren.

The church here is very much alive an enthusiastic. The building and equipment is splendid and we are very proud of our well organized and graded Sunday school, with all our corps of fine teachers and officers in the various departments. We have all five organizations which make up the graded W. M. L. and we have three B. Y. U.'s Junior, Intermediate and Senior. We have a number of very capable leaders in the work and others are training themselves for the work. Our people are cultured and good, but outside the church, there are so many lost and living in degradation and sin. Moonshine flows freely and all its effects are seen.

Now the surrounding community is not all similar to the church here or the town. There is so much ignorance and the ill effects of "Holy Rollerism" and "Russellism" are present. We are trying more and more to reach out into the out of town sections and help those people.

WHAT EVERYONE KNOWS

One of the things that every woman knows is the adaptability of the separate skirt of plain black satin. With one of these and with blouses for dress or semi-dress affairs, to be worn with it, the average woman can look the coming winter in the face with a mind at rest. The skirt pictured is adorned with a long row of small satin-covered buttons and loops.

Just a few words about our travels here in the mountains. Mrs. Smith has gone to a number of places to speak to the ladies and the house is almost always crowded with women and girls eager to learn. I have gone to a number of mountain points to preach and have always been welcomed by a large crowd of mountain people who are anxious to know more about Jesus. It makes me feel sad sometimes to hear the strange noises that they make, sometimes they can be heard for a mile or more. Then sometimes my heart is filled with joy because the Lord has led me to a people who are so eager to learn and to those who are so appreciative of what we try to do for them.

I made a trip to High Knob one day, which is about twelve miles from our town. We started up the mountain about six o'clock in the morning and about nine o'clock we reached the top, there was no road, just a winding trail between the rocks and jagged Chestnut trees. When we reached the top, all the rest of the country seemed to me, as we looked out over it, to be small sweet potato hills, just as far as we could see. We could see Cumberland Gap and the vine clad hills of old Kentucky. Then we could see smoke rising in nearly every direction from the mining camps, and as far as I know some smoke might have been from moonshine stills as they are very numerous in some sections here, but it seems that in a short time they will not be so plentiful, for every few days our good and daring officers bring them in and chop them up. From the top of the high mountain our party told me that we could see seven states, but to me they all looked alike.

I have made several trips around the mountain roads in a car, but I was not at the wheel and I do not expect to be because it takes an expert here. I made one trip to Big Stone Gap, which I enjoyed very much, the scenery was perfectly beautiful. We passed over part of the road where John Fox, Jr., got the setting for his famous story "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." About six o'clock in the morning we reached the top of a mountain overlooking beautiful Powells Valley, which is the most picturesque sight of nature that I ever looked upon. Big Stone Gap is a beautiful mountain town surrounded by mountains. It is the Virginia home of John Fox, Jr. I visited his home, which is a very picturesque place, a low flat house, partly covered with vines, and surrounded by pine and other trees. As we were returning to Coeburn in the afternoon, I said to myself, no wonder John Fox, Jr., could write a story. Then again I said to myself that perhaps another Kentuckian, some time will attempt to write a story and get the setting from the beautiful mountains of Kentucky or Virginia.

Wishing all well in Boone county. I will continue every week to look for the news through the Boone County Recorder.

Yours Very Truly,
G. N. Smith.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By English Class)

Boone County High School is now an accredited high school on the A. No. 1 list, endorsement having been made this past week by State High School Inspector R. P. Green.

All of the three teachers of the High School are College Graduates with A. B. degrees. The library equipment, the science laboratory equipment, and the equipment for the other departments more than fulfill the requirements and all the other conditions necessary to place the school on the accredited list have been met. Among the other advantages resulting will be the admission of the high school graduates to College without the usual entrance examinations.

IDEAL LOAF IS ATTRACTIVE

Any Woman Who Desires to Establish Reputation as Good Cook Will Wish Particularly to Excel in Bread Making.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

No other single article of food is as frequently placed on the table or takes as prominent a place in the average diet as bread. In some form or other it is served at practically every meal, and many times is the chief article. Properly balanced with milk, butter, fruits, vegetables, eggs, cheese or a little meat, bread may well form a considerable part of our daily food. Bread and other cereal products are also among the least expensive of our foods.

As it occupies so prominent a place in the diet, bread ought certainly to be well made, well baked, and properly cared for. Moreover, any girl or woman who desires to be known as a really good cook, will wish to excel particularly in bread making. An ideal loaf of bread is attractive in appearance; crust smooth, tender, and golden brown in color; the loaf itself light and well-rounded on top; the crumb spongy and tender; and the whole delicious in flavor.

Methods for Making Bread.

There are two general methods for making bread, one known as the straight-dough process, and the other as the sponge process.

In the straight-dough process all the ingredients are mixed at one time and the dough is made of the proper consistency before rising. Either compressed or liquid yeast may be used for this.

In the sponge process only half the total amount of flour is used at first, with all or nearly all the liquid, the yeast, and frequently the salt and the sugar. Compressed, dry, or liquid yeast may be used for this. This mixture is similar to a soft batter, and after the first rising the remainder of the flour, the shortening, and any other desired ingredients are added. It is then kneaded until of the proper consistency and smoothness.

Decreasing Time of Process.

The sponge process usually requires less yeast than the straight-dough method, because of the softer consistency of the mixture which favors the growth of the yeast, and also because it is generally given more time. However, by using larger or smaller amounts of yeast one may shorten or lengthen the time required for rising. In a similar way the straight-dough process may be shortened or lengthened by increasing or decreasing the amount of yeast used. Great care should be taken with a sponge or dough which stands a long time—the overnight sponge—to keep it much cooler than when the quicker methods are used, since the former have a greater chance of becoming sour.

The following bread recipes are given by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Short Process, or Straight Dough.

4 cups (1 quart) lukewarm liquid.
4 teaspoonsful of salt.
2 tablespoonsful of sugar.
2 tablespoonsful of shortening (if desired).
or 3 cakes of compressed yeast, or half to 1 cupful of liquid yeast.
3 to 4 quarts of sifted flour.

If milk is used it should be scalded and cooled until lukewarm before using. When liquid yeast is used its volume must be deducted from the other liquid called for. This makes four loaves.

Soften the yeast with a small amount of the lukewarm liquid. To the rest of the liquid add the salt, sugar and shortening. Add the yeast and mix all together. Measure the sifted flour into a bowl and blend with this liquid. If too soft to knead, add more flour until of the proper consistency. Knead for five to ten minutes, or until smooth, elastic and no longer sticky. Cover with a lid or white cloth place where it will be free from drafts and at a uniform temperature of 80 to 88 degrees F. Let rise until about double its original bulk or until a slight touch of the finger leaves an impression. This should happen within one to two hours if the yeast is in good condition and the temperature right. Knead and set aside again in the same warm place until it doubles its bulk. Then knead and shape into loaves; let rise again until double in bulk and bake.

Overnight Sponge Method.
4 cups (1 quart) of lukewarm liquid (half cupful less if potato is used).
4 teaspoonsful of salt.
2 tablespoonsful of sugar.
2 tablespoonsful of shortening (if desired).
1 cake of yeast (dry or compressed), or half cupful of liquid yeast.
1 cupful mashed potato (if desired).
3 to 4 quarts of sifted flour.

If dry yeast is used, soak it for 20 minutes to one hour before mixing the sponge and mix the sponge earlier than if compressed or liquid yeast is used. When liquid yeast is used, its volume must be deducted from the other liquid called for.

Blend the yeast with a little of the lukewarm liquid. If potato is used add to it the salt, then the yeast mixture, the remainder of the liquid, and finally one-half of the flour. Beat until smooth, cover, and set to rise where it will be at 80 to 70 degrees F.

In the morning, break up the sponge, add sugar, the melted shortening (if used), and enough flour to make a dough of the proper consistency. Knead until the dough is smooth, elastic and no longer sticky to the bowl or fingers. Cover and set to rise until at least double in bulk. Knead down, mold into loaves, let rise again until double in bulk and bake.

FERMENTED CORN IS HANDY FOR CHOWDER

Recipe Recommended by Household Specialists Given.

It Will Be Found Most Satisfactory to Remove All Acid Flavor—Rinse Thoroughly and Soak for Four or Five Hours.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some fermented and salted vegetables like cucumbers, are eaten raw; others, like cabbage (sauerkraut), are usually cooked. In general the fermented and salted products may be prepared for the table in much the same manner as the fresh vegetables, except that before being cooked they should be soaked in fresh water for several hours or longer, if necessary, to remove the salt, the water being changed several times. In some cases it may be necessary also to change the water once or twice during the boiling of the salted vegetables. In this one should be guided by taste.

To prepare the fermented or salted corn for the table, rinse it thoroughly and soak for four or five hours, changing the water frequently. In general it will be found more satisfactory to remove practically all the acid flavor from the fermented corn. After soaking, place the corn in cold water and bring to boil, pour off the water, add fresh cold water, bring to boil again, and cook until tender. The cooked salted or fermented corn may be used in many ways. The following recipe for corn chowder is recommended by household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Corn Chowder.

1/2 pound cold beef, or 1 cupful tomatoes.
1/2 pound salt pork or 3 tablespoonsful of bacon.
2 potatoes.
1 onion.
1 green pepper.
1/2 cupfuls cooked corn, or more.
1 cupful milk or cream.
1/2 teaspoonful salt.
1/2 teaspoonful pepper.

Cut the beef or pork into cubes; cover well with water. Add the tomato and cook slowly for about two hours. Then add the potato, onion, pepper, corn, seasonings. Mix the flour with a little cold water, add to the other ingredients, and cook slowly for five or ten minutes. Add the milk or cream. Serve hot.

HEM IN WORSTED MATERIALS

Almost Invaluable Hem Easy to Press Can Be Made in Heavy Cloth by Means of Cat-Stitch.

A secure, flat hem, almost invisible and easy to press, can be made in heavy worsted materials by means of cat-stitch. Do not turn the edge of the hem, but press hem flat and cat-stitch over the raw edge and into the skirt, taking up but one thread in each stitch. Double silk thread is used for the work.

Make two or three darts at one time and save time, labor and fuel. Beaded metalions can be sewed across the worn toes of satin slippers. Odds and ends of old bread made into a well-seasoned dressing is a great addition to any roast. Threads drawn from old Brussels carpet can be used for mending rugs. Wool, of course, should be used for mending a wooden rug.

City Planning Worth While.

City planning of the right kind is strictly a business proposition. Its function is to aid in facilitating business and maintaining property values. Its activity means a better looking city, a better city for business and a better city for homes. Furthermore, city planning is not a matter of concern to the few. It will work to the interest of the large and the small property owner, and to the interest of any person who expects to make the place his home.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Whatever else may be thought of the new revenue act, it will not be acclaimed for its simplicity. Instead, the increased complexity of the methods provided for determining taxable net income will add to the criticism of the law which its disapproving rate schedules have called forth. Although these refinements were no doubt made in the interest of justice, the intricate computations necessary in applying the involved language of the act leave open the question of the wisdom of many of the presumptive impositions.

Changes of rates of the individual income tax are almost negligible. Upon income of the year just closed there is no change, while upon income of succeeding years the change in rates is insignificant until income exceeds $100,000. However, a personal exemption of $2,500 is granted to married persons or heads of families having incomes not over $5,000, and the exemption for each dependent is increased to $400 in all cases.

The good, tight little city of Marion, Ohio, does not seem to be at all overcome by the fact that it is the home of the Republican President. In addition to electing a Democratic Mayor by a good round majority in November it has just pulled off a Jackson Day banquet which, according to all accounts, was a hummer. Chairman Rouse of the Democratic Congressional Committee had a call for a good speaker from the House to add lustre to the occasion and the selected Judge Barkley of Ky. who is not only one of the best of after-dinner speakers, but is a power in debate in Congress, where he is serving his fifth term and is the ranking Democrat on the highly important Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, than which no committee has grown faster in importance. If the expected Democratic Congress is elected next November, Judge Barkley will head that Committee.

According to reports tax payers of Kentucky paid in 1921 to the State $2,180,209.77 more than they did in 1917. They paid to the counties $4,304,541.59 more, and the county taxes do not include county school taxes. The school taxes probably will make the increase in county taxes since 1917 at least three times as great as the increase in State taxes. The increase in State revenue in Boone county was $15,746.38, while the increase in county revenue was $39,264.59.

Kentucky grew in 1919, when war prices inspired the planter, 821,500,000 bushels of corn. In 1921, despite deflation and depression of spirits, Kentucky farmers planted, plowed and harvested 82,150,000 bushels of corn. Kentucky corn sold for more than three times as much in 1919 as it was worth when the 1921 crop was made. And everyone foresaw the difference between the market value in 1921 and in 1919.

There is complaint, on good grounds, from the Commissioner of Agriculture, that there are too many untitled acres and ungrazed pastures in Kentucky. Notwithstanding the fact Kentucky's $18,000,000 in 1900 has expanded to $50,000,000 in 1921, and the further and material expansion of the money value of the State's crop is as certain as any event of the future can be.

Tobacco, worth $50,000,000 in 1921, will, under co-operative marketing, return to the high figures of 1919 by reason of a stabilized market which will increase production. Should it retain its present pre-eminence, as the first crop of the State in market value, it would do so without curtailing to any great extent the acreage of other crops.

The striking figures in the Federal Government's report of Kentucky crops is that in 1921 Kentucky produced almost as much corn as was produced in 1919. Evidently corn growers in this State are not shutting down their agricultural plants to the extent that the corn plant is not coming up over areas as wide as formerly.

The new silver dollar called the "Peace dollar" made its appearance in Burlington, last week. The eagle which spreads its wings on the first "dollar of the thirties" has been driven off by the bearing of an olive branch. Beneath the new bird is the word "Peace." The new dollar is dated 1921.

STATE NEWS.

CABBAGE SNAKE AGAIN.

(Hodgenville Herald.)
Walter Ewing brought a piece of cabbage in a bottle to our office and in the cabbage is three small snakes or worms nearly the same color as the cabbage. A few years ago the cabbage snake attracted country-wide attention. Whether or not they are poison we do not know, but not being especially fond of any kind of snakes as a diet, we will not sample them.

OPEN WINTER ASSURED.

(Nicholasville News.)
According to some of the old-time weather prognosticators, the winter of 1921-1922 will be a bright, warm one. Here is the way they hand out their dope: The first three days of December, before winter, predicts the weather for the next three months. If you noticed, the weather during the first three days of December was warm and pretty—therefore, an open winter.

TREMENDOUS PORKERS.

(Lebanon Falcon.)
J. L. Powell, one of Marion county's best farmers, butchered three fine hogs. The porkers tipped the scales in order of weight, at 422, 539 and 714 pounds. All three of them were pure-bred stock, the largest having been a spotted Poland China, the smallest a black Poland China, and the other a Duroc. This tends to show the superior advantages in the raising of pure-bred animals. The "middlings" from the large hog weighed 107 and 105 lbs., respectively, and the hams 65 lbs., each.

VALUABLE CANINE.

(Stanford Interior Journal.)
Sith Noe has a Llewellyn setter that is making him some nice money just now when furs are at their most scarce as he's teeth. This week he sold to a Madison county party two eight-months old pups at $50 each. Only a few days ago he sold five that were only 3 months old at $25. He has sold $375 worth of pups from the female canine so far this year, and the end is not yet in sight.

AUTO JUNK HAS HIM.

(Springfield Sun.)
Riley League, of Danville, had a close call for his life. The steering gear broke and the truck jumped off the pike and turned turtle with Mr. League beneath it. He was rescued from the wreck, the truck placed back upon the road, the steering rod replaced and the trip was completed. Three weeks ago Mr. League was riding with a friend to Perryville. The engine went dead and he got out and attempted to crank the car. His right arm was broken. Last week Mr. League was in Lincoln county riding on a truck when the machine turned over. He received only slight injuries.

PIPE WAS COMFORTER.

(Frankfort Journal.)
Mrs. Polly Williams, of Perryco., came down to plead with the Governor for a pardon for her daughter, who was confined in the reformatory. She was a plain, unassuming old lady, unused to the ways of the world. She said she was not raised to read, but to work, and had done a deal of hard labor. She brought along her old clay pipe, and, while waiting her turn to go into the Governor's office, would fill it up with long green tobacco, light it and take a quiet smoke to while away the time. She was a gentle-spoken, motherly old soul who bore the tedium of several hours without complaint and went away as quietly as the flitting of a shadow.

VALUABLE PRODUCTION.

(New Orleans States.)
A Kentucky man claims to have produced a breed of corn with red, white and blue grains. We are glad to hear it, because if the grain is shelled and turned into good corn liquor it may prove to be the only decoction that will enable the average American to sing "The Star Spangled Banner" from the beginning to end without warbling harsh, har-loo-hoo-too-har-hoo-har-rs, and always warbling it at the wrong place in the music.

Ministerial associations all over the country have taken up a fight to obtain a better standard of morals among the young folks. This will do some good, but until father takes the matter into his hands with a club, and mother wields a good switch the situation will go on from bad to worse. Conditions have reached the jumping off place, when strictly moral young folks are ostracized from many innocent pleasures because they will not go the limit.—Falmouth Outlook.

True Detective Stories
FOURTH DEGREE

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THERE was but little doubt in the mind of Thomas Byrnes, superintendent of police in New York city, that Louis Hanter had been murdered for the sake of the money that he was carrying with him at the time. The little Frenchman had been the proprietor of a saloon, and, having a fear of the banks of America, had the habit of carrying hundreds of dollars in his wallet until the opportunity presented itself of purchasing an international money order.

One morning he was found dead in the vestibule of his home, a .38 caliber bullet through his heart, and his pocketbook missing.

That was all Byrnes had to work upon, for there were no indications whatever of the persons who had committed the crime. The dispatch with which the matter had been handled, appeared to point to a professional criminal, so Byrnes gave orders that all the pawnshops in New York were to be closely watched, and reports made to him of the pawning of any .38 caliber revolver.

Investigation of the dozen or more .38's pawned during the week which followed the Hanter shooting, showed that all but one of them had been pledged by persons who very evidently had no connection with the murder. The single exception was one Michael McGloin, whom the pawnbroker in question identified by means of his photograph in the Rouges gallery. McGloin's gun had been pawned on the morning after the murder, and, while the police had little difficulty in locating the man himself, there was not a shred of evidence to connect him with the Hanter case, beyond the fact that he had been absent from home on the night of the shooting in the company of four of his boon companions.

Quietly, and without allowing a word of his intentions to leak out, Byrnes rounded up the quintet one by one, none of them knowing that the others were being arrested. Each of them was lodged in a cell by himself and questioned closely as to his actions and his whereabouts at the time of the murder. In spite of the fact that Byrnes had definite information that the five men had been together, each of them told a different story, and on each side of the case alone, at a considerable distance from the Hanter house.

"It's no use, inspector," said one of the policemen who had been working on the case about a week after the five men had been picked up, "you can't get a thing out of 'em. They know, at right, but you can't convict any of 'em without a confession—and we've tried everything, including the 'third degree.'"

"Very well," said Byrnes quietly, "we'll have to try the fourth degree."

"Fourth degree? What's that?"

"Just a little way of getting at the truth when a man wants to hold out on you," was Byrnes' answer. "You think there's no doubt that McGloin's the man? Have him brought to this office tomorrow morning, promptly at ten o'clock."

At the time specified, McGloin, sultry and resentful at what he claimed was an illegal detention, walked into the inspector's office, alone. Had he been interested in such details, he might have noted that Byrnes was seated so that he could watch the window of his office which looked out upon a corridor, and also keep an eye upon the occupant of the only chair in the room, bolted to the floor in front of the desk. But McGloin wasn't worrying about such trifles. He was there to demand his release, and he told the inspector so in no measured terms.

"That's all right, McGloin," replied Byrnes. "Sit down a minute. I've several things to attend to," and he motioned to the chair, placed so that it commanded a view of the corridor window. A moment later the office door opened and a man came in. Byrnes, watching the gunman closely, saw that he was barely able to suppress a start—for the visitor was the pawnbroker with whom McGloin had pledged his revolver. Without saying a word, the pawnbroker crossed the room, laid McGloin's gun on the inspector's desk and walked out.

"That little boy," remarked Byrnes, picking up the revolver. "Ever see it before?"

"Never," growled McGloin.

"It thought not," was the reply. "It's the gun that Hanter, the Frenchman, was shot with. We've finally got a line on that case, after working on it for over a month. Found a man who was a witness of the shooting."

At this moment, by a prearranged signal, one of McGloin's partners was marched past the corridor window. "Yes," continued Byrnes, appearing not to notice the gunman's agitation, "and we've also found a man who was present"—at which the second of the quintet was ushered past the window—"and two others who have confessed their part in the robbery but who claim that the man who fired the shot was"

"Stop it, for God's sake, chief!" cried the half-conscious man in his chair, his nerves shattered by the solitary confinement and the marshalling of evidence under his very eyes. "Stop it! I didn't mean to do it, but I shot him!"

"Here one for the 'fourth degree,'" mused Byrnes.

MORE GOOD THINGS.

The following will be useful in preparing a week's menus as there is something which each member of the family will enjoy:

Squash Dish.—Place one-half pound of thinly sliced strips of bacon in a hot frying pan and cook until the bacon is crisp and brown, occasionally pouring off the fat and turning frequently to keep the bacon from burning. Drain from the fat, leaving four tablespoons of fat in the pan; add one-half cupful of hot milk and one cupful of corn; cook until soft; if cooked corn is used it will not need as long cooking. Season with salt, pepper and paprika and serve on a hot platter around the bacon.

Prune Pudding.—Take one cupful of ground uncooked prunes, one-half cupful of sugar and when well mixed add four tablespoons of fat in the pan; add one-half cupful of hot milk and one cupful of corn; cook until soft; if cooked corn is used it will not need as long cooking. Season with salt, pepper and paprika and serve on a hot platter around the bacon.

Peaches Eggs With Cheese Sauce.—The thrifty housewife who has packed her eggs when the price was at its lowest will now be able to have egg dishes and not feel that she is extravagant. For three eggs and three slices of toast make one cupful of cream sauce, using two tablespoons of butter, the same of flour and one cupful of milk with seasoning to taste. Add one-half cupful of grated cheese and stir until the cheese is melted. Break the eggs into salted water and poach them until of the desired consistency. Dip the edges of well toasted bread into hot sauce, arrange on individual plates, butter and pour over the sauce, then place the well-drained eggs on each. If preferred the egg may be placed first and the sauce poured over it.

Tasty Sandwich Filling.—Add two tablespoons of cold water gradually to three tablespoons of peanut butter to make it smooth enough to spread. Beat until creamy and add two tablespoons of tomato catsup. Mix thoroughly and spread on thin slices of bread.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

The committee appointed by the Farmers Bureau to select a site for a warehouse, met at Florence last Saturday, and after looking over the ground, made a deal with Mr. G. W. Marksherry for a lot in Florence adjoining the Florence Deposit Bank. It is the intention of the Bureau to erect a warehouse upon the lot for the purpose of storing feed, fertilizer and seeds. Being located on the Dixie Highway it will be convenient for trucks to deliver produce to members of the Farmers Bureau from all parts of the county.

It is now clear to every farmer who uses his thinking tank that he must organize to be on an equal footing with the other fellow. If every farmer who is not a member of the Farmers Bureau, could realize what the bureau has saved its members the two years of its existence, every farmer in the county would soon be a full-fledged member.

During the year 1921 the Farmers Bureau, under the management of Mr. Geo. Penn, with a capital of about $1,500, bought and delivered to the members of the Bureau fertilizer, feed and grass seeds to the amount of $40,000—at a saving of several thousand dollars, and at the end of the year all had been paid for with a balance in the treasurer's of $600.00.

To convince the farmers that organization is their only salvation, we cite them to the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co., which has been in operation for nearly a half a century, and which is one of the best insurance companies in the State, through which its policy holders have saved thousands of dollars. The Farmers Bureau can be made the same, by a hearty co-operation on the part of the farmers—sticking together, pulling together and staying together.

Rev. L. N. Early Dead

Rev. L. N. Early died at his home in Petersburg Jan. 12, 1922. Mr. Early had been in poor physical condition and had suffered two strokes of paralysis. He contracted pneumonia a few days since, and on account of his weakened condition the end soon came. Mr. Early was one of Boone county's most educated men. He was a minister and also engaged in educational work. No one stood higher for honesty, morality and fair dealing among men. He believed in doing in all things. He believed in dealing with his fellow man fairly and openly. Mr. Early was a few months over seventy-three years of age. He is survived by his widow, a brother John Early, of Aurora, Indiana, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Walton, Mrs. W. T. Stott and Miss Gorda Early, of Petersburg, and a number of other relatives and friends who have the sympathy of all. The remains were laid to rest in the Petersburg cemetery after services conducted by Rev. Edgar C. Riley. C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, was the undertaker in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Blanch Shinkle visited her brother Fritz Shinkle, Saturday and Sunday, and brother George Sunday night.

The State Road Department is wanting the citizens of Boone county to subscribe the $20,000 needed to complete the financing of the project of reconstructing the Lexington pike with concrete. There must be no delay as the fund must be raised at once. To prevent a proposition of this kind to fail would be such a set back to road building or improvement in Boone county there would be no further attempt to improve roads.

This proposition means that if a fund of $20,000 is raised that a road will be built in Boone county that will cost $300,000 and that road will be maintained by the National and State Government. Every one who resides along that road should subscribe to the fund and subscribe liberally, and we believe that the citizens each and every one will do their part. Get busy and raise this fund so that work on this road may start in the early spring.

CONSTANCE.

Mrs. Haberle and Mrs. Robinson, of Ludlow, were calling in Constance, last Friday.

We hope the year 1922 will be one of prosperity and happiness to all the Recorder family.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kottmyer, Jr., entertained with a family dinner New Year's day. Some of the guests were Mrs. Wm. Wischmeyer, of Mt. Auburn, great grandmother of little Ruth Inez Kottmyer, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kottmyer, Sr., grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Zimmer, maternal grandparents of little Ruth.

All enjoyed the day.

Mrs. Amy Meagley, aged 32 yrs. wife of Wm. Meagley, one of Constance's merchants, died Dec. 21, 1921. She was called home in the early part of her life, leaving to mourn her loss her devoted husband and two little children, a little girl nearly three years old and a baby boy about three weeks old. She has left the sorrows and trials of earth to rest in her heavenly home. Her husband and children have the sympathy of this community. The burial was in Highland cemetery.

LEGION NOTES

Jim ("Sailor") White, the strong man of the Navy, is in the habit of pulling loaded freight cars with his teeth and cracking railroad spikes between his thumb and forefinger.

When he entered State headquarters of the American Legion, he offered to lift desks and things with one hand, he wanted to tear up radials by their roots, he wanted to bash in the front of iron safes. He was out of a job, and his energy, with no outlet, was becoming terrific. The Legion succeeded in placing him—opening and closing doors in a club.

A national archives building in which would be assembled all the records of the World War is the aim of the American Legion's committee on memorials. A bronze tablet erected to a comrade who gives his life "in line of duty," upholding law and order, is a further recommendation of the committee.

Government nurses will not rank with "scrub maids" if a protest to the Senate made by John Thomas Taylor, of the legislative committee of the American Legion, bears fruit.

Taylor objects strenuously to the section of the pending reclassification bill which he says "will tend to lower the nursing profession in the eyes of the public."

Loans, without security and at a low rate of interest, will be provided for sick and wounded ex-service men by a big rotating fund, plans for which are being worked out at the national headquarters of the American Legion. Ex-Soldiers who do not need the ready cash from Government compensation would contribute their bonus to the fund.

English and civics will be taught at American Legion posts in Greater New York, at the request of the Board of Education. This furthers the Americanization campaign already under way.

A thousand dollars, farm experience, and an agreeable wife are the requisites of an applicant for a tract on the state soldier land settlement project. The applicant's wife must signify her willingness to take up rustic pursuits, according to an announcement from American Legion headquarters. This is designed to preclude unsuccessful experiments.

"Army discipline" is not imposed upon sick and wounded ex-soldiers under Government treatment, C. R. Forbes, director of the Veterans' Bureau, has informed the American Legion. A disabled soldier is not A. W. O. L. merely because he leaves a Government hospital without consent if physicians. His only penalty is that he must foot his own transportation bill if he wishes to return.

To aid in combatting the "dope" evil which has invaded a number of ex-service hospitals in California, the American Legion is working with the Narcotic Control Association. James A. Johnston, warden of the California state prison, is president of the organization.

Rah-rah's have supplanted dough-battle cries with 100 former soldiers who have enrolled as students in colleges and universities of Wisconsin. The service men are going to school again under the provisions of a state bonus which allows them $30 a month for four years along with their education.

President Harding has received the first consignment of cherries from Argentina to arrive in the U. S. They were brought from Rio de Janeiro by the steamship American Legion, which broke all records between that port and New York by a 10 day run.

PLANS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

The early days of January are a time when people look ahead and plan for the coming year. Business men lay out new campaigns and start selling projects. It is a period of hope, and forward looking folks always entertain the feeling that the coming months will be better than those just passed.

While some people are always counting chickens before they are hatched, yet the successes of life are all won by planning. Those that look ahead, that foresee difficulties and study how to meet them, that have confidence to make new decisions are the ones that win out. Those who consider life and business too uncertain to make any plans and merely cherish the hope of continuing along in the same old rut, will stay right where they are, and in many cases will fail to hold their present conditions.

In its New Year wishes to the people of Boone county the Recorder hopes that they are planning big and better things for our cherished county during the coming year. People need to form just as carefully thought out plans for community development as for individual success.

The people of Boone county should remember that the principle holds good in the life of a community. The places where public spirited workers are carefully planning for civic advance are sure to go ahead, while others remain stationary or decline.

MAXIMS GOOD AT ALL TIMES.

(Rochester Herald.)

"If a man does the right thing, he will have the help and approval of those who know him, and if he does not do the right thing, he does not deserve such help and approval."

"The world never turns against a man until he has turned against the world."

"A man owes society, his country and the world more than they owe him and more than he can ever pay."

"If one has self-respect, he cannot go far wrong."

"If one respects others, he will do them no injury either in person or property."

"In this country one man has the same freedom and the same right as another."

"Every man owes the same degree of loyalty to his country and the same obligation to society."

These seven maxims, which are worthy of thoughtful consideration of every American, are a part of a collection made by the Attorney General of the United States since he went into office. They are the best part of the advice he has been getting from many sources and he gives them to the people as his holiday contribution. They are good not only during the holidays, but at all seasons of the year. All Americans can safely take them as a guide.

HIS ELECTION EXPENSES.

This is the story of the election expenses of a Georgia man who was defeated for county commissioner.

"Lost 1,394 hours of sleep thinking about the election. Lost two front teeth and a whole lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to a county barbecue. Gave away two pairs of suspenders, four calico dresses, five dollars in cash and thirteen baby rattles. Kissed 126 babies. Killed 14 kitchen fies. Put up 4 stoves. Walked 4,076 miles. Shook hands with 9,508 persons. Told 10,101 lies, and talked enough to make in print, 1,000 volumes. Attended 16 revival meetings, and was baptized 4 different times by immersion, and twice some other way. Contributed $50 to foreign missions, and made love to nine grand widows. Hugged 49 old mads. Got dog bit 39 times—and was defeated."

The people of Boone county are glad to know that the J. R. Watkins Co., has secured a man who will make regular trips with a full line of the well known Watkins remedies, extracts, stock and poultry tonic, etc.

KEEPING YOUNG.

(Indianapolis News.)

John Henry Patterson, head of a great corporation was 77 years old December 13. The message he sent to the company's 10,000 employees in all parts of the world was this: Keep young by associating with young things. The newspapers are youngest—born every day.

A wealth of philosophy is to be found in these two sentences. There was a time when the accumulation of years meant the adoption of certain customs. If a man was old in years he must act the part. His clothing spoke his age. He grew whiskers, bought square-toed shoes and cultivated dignity. His habits of life were changed to such an extent that little remained for him to do, except potter around. Age conquered him without a struggle because it was the custom to refrain from struggling. The habit of growing old affected women the same as men. Neither men nor women took the Patterson advice and associated with young things except such association as they had with little children. The children loved him for their cookies or their stories.

The present generation of elderly men and women has found that age comes slowly in reality if the heart and mind are kept young. The fire-side may not be so picturesque as once it was with grandmother poking the coals and drawing a shawl over her shoulders, but the fire-side's loss has been society's gain because grandmother is gadding around some where, keeping young and defying rheumatism to do its worst. Grandfather's slippers are neglected in the closet, while he plays golf and thinks no more of naps than he does of the bunker at the seventh hole. Keeping young is a matter of associating with youth. It is not necessary for the elders to hurry from one cabaret to another and patronize the beauty shops. They can stay at home and still be young as long as they remain abreast of the times. As Mr. Patterson says, the newspapers are born every day. They reflect the tremendous activity of a world in the making. It is easy enough to neglect the present and live in the past, but it is equally easy to keep step with the present by joining the procession. Youth offers a hand clasp that will endure as long as age is willing to return the hearty greeting.

The new so-called "Workers Party" claim they are going to overturn the government. What they need is to go out in the country next spring and overturn some sod in somebody's corn field.

You can't shut up a socialist by putting him in jail, but you may paralyze his organs of speech by confronting him with a few facts.

CHANGES IN FEDERAL TAXES.

Changes in the Federal taxes voted by Congress last month went into effect the first of the year. Here is how some of the changes will effect you:

When you ride on a railroad train or an inland or coastwise steamer you no longer will have to pay to the Government 8 per cent of the amount of your fare and 8 per cent of the cost of your seat, berth or stateroom.

When you ship freight you will not be assessed an extra 3 per cent of the cost. Likewise you can send packages by express or parcel post without having to give up a "war tax."

When you visit the corner drug-store for a bottle of proprietary medicine, a tube of tooth paste, a toilet preparation or the like you will escape the vexatious stamp taxes.

When you go to a soda fountain you no longer will find Uncle Sam holding out his hand for a penny on each 10 cents or fraction that you pay the clerk for a drink or a plate of ice-cream.

If you wish to sport a pair of shoes costing more than $10 or a shirt costing more than $3 you will not have to lay out a tax. These and all the other so-called luxury taxes on clothing, as well as those on umbrellas, parasols, sun shades, picture frames, trunks, valises, pocketbooks, etc., go into the discard.

If you live in a place that still can boast of a ten-cent movie show or other place of amusement you will not be assessed a penny tax. If the charge exceeds 10 cents, however, you will continue to pay a war levy at the present rates of a cent for each 10 cents or fraction.

All heads of families with dependents will get a slight reduction in their income tax during the new year, the extent being $8 for each dependent as a result of the increase from $200 to $400 in the exemption on account of dependents.

If you are married and your net income in 1921 was $5,000 or less, however, you will get a still further reduction in taxes, as the normal exemption for married men in this class has been increased from $2,000 to $2,500. Single men receive no additional exemption and can deduct only $1,000 from their income.

Daylight saving was first adopted in America in Cleveland, in the spring of 1914.

The shortest reign of an English monarch was that of Lady Jane Grey in 1553. She was Queen for nine days.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT?

With a cupful of leftover cooked ham one may have a most appetizing dish of Ham Timbales.—Take two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth of a cupful of stale bread crumbs, two-thirds of a cupful of milk, one cupful of cooked ham, one-half tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two eggs and salt and pepper. Melt the butter, add the bread crumbs and milk, and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the ham, parsley and eggs, slightly beaten. Season with salt and pepper, turn into buttered individual molds, have the mold two-thirds full, and set in a pan of hot water and bake 20 minutes. Serve with bechamel sauce.

Bechamel Sauce.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of liquor in which the ham was cooked, one slice of onion, one slice of carrot, a bit of bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, six pepper corns, one-fourth of a cupful of butter, the same of flour, one cupful of scalded milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper. Cook the stock and seasonings together 20 minutes, then strain. Melt the fat, add the flour, and when well blended add the hot seasoned stock and scalded milk. Cook until thick.

Carrot Salad.—Take eight carrots, one egg, a pinch of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, eight tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, one-half cupful of whipped cream and a bunch of parsley. Wash the carrots, put them in a saucepan, cover with salted water and cook until tender. Drain, remove the skins and serve covered with dressing and garnish with parsley. Beat the eggs in the upper part of the double boiler, add soda and oil slowly, beating constantly until the egg thickens. Add salt, vinegar, paprika, and cook over hot water until thick, adding the vinegar and paprika. Remove from the heat and set aside to cool. Serve with cream at serving time.

Oatmeal with Dates.—Cook oatmeal as usual, add a cupful of quartered dates and mold in small cups. Serve with top milk as a dessert or supper dish for children.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

An Appeal of The Farm Bureau to The Farmers of Boone County.

We have passed through dark times, just a little while ago we were bounding with prosperity, a little later, over expansion of prices and credits forced our prosperity to give way to depression and stagnation of business, but, fortunately, we see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Depression naturally breeds business revival, but it is a slow, tedious process. One very important cause for the slow revival of business has been the crippled financial condition of the farmer, and consequently of the country banks. But let each of us remember as our names are enrolled on the book of the Farm Bureau, that we are not only members of our Local Bureau, but members which consists of one million, five hundred thousand members, and covers our great United States from East to West, from North to South, represented by the most competent man of our day.

Through our co-operating together, we have made as wonderful a growth as any. The Bean Stalk, who said: "By golly, we are sure growing fast." But, while we are remembering all these things, let us also remember, we are as one big wheel, each individual member a spoke, and if any one of us fail in our responsibilities, or our part, or try to shift our part on the other fellow, we cripple our organization and cause it to break down. Just as far as we stand as that individual spoke in this great wheel, which, to do its best must have every spoke in place and in the best of condition, each bearing his part and giving of himself the best that is in him.

Another great factor I want to call to your remembrance is, this Great American Farm Bureau Federation is not being built for one day or for one year. We will derive great benefits from it, but it is bound to grow and be one of the great blessings given from God to our children. We will see our mistakes and remedy them, and this great Federation has adopted the scientific method of arriving at conclusions by appointing the best trained men to investigate the big political and economic problems carefully before taking a stand. As a result, the Federation now has a tariff research department, a transportation Bureau, a Financial Department, various marketing committees and several other research Bureaus devoted to gathering data on various subjects.

It has brought Agriculture forward as the biggest business in America, so vividly to the attention of the general public that its supreme importance is now recognized. The farmer is now sitting across the table consulting with the banker, the financier, the railways, the city chambers of commerce and all the rest. And we find this all brought about through co-operation, and can truly say "Together we stick; Divided we're stuck."

We find co-operation is nothing new. It is a great thing and an old thing, but has been neglected by the farmers in agriculture. Take our Mutual Insurance Companies in the state of Michigan alone, they have saved the farmers some two million dollars annually. We have some two thousand Mutual Insurance Companies in the W. S. that cost insurance at thirty cents per hundred, against seventy cents to one dollar, charged by Stock Co.

For every man to feel his need of Co-operative effort, must know that sticking together is their salvation, and then when cooperation improves the quality or renders a real service in distribution, bringing with it a fair portion of the consumers dollar, it becomes a vital force. We might ask what co-operative buying has for its purpose. Getting supplies for less money through purchasing in larger lots, and eliminating some expense by doing without certain services, or having the farmer take care of them himself.

Co-operative buying of this kind is worth while to the farmer. By making proper financial arrangements so that bad debts are eliminated and to some extent by obtaining profits of dealers.

My farmer brother, each of us must come to realize to make all these things possible and an assured thing. We must unite our interests and feel our individual responsibility to this Great American Farm Bureau Federation, through our own Local Farm Bureaus. None of us, in the call to our country would like to have been called a shirker, now no man who is a farmer, can afford to be a shirker.

We will get out of our Farm Bureau just what we put into it. If we want to derive these benefits we must give our support financially, with our presence and opinions and hearty co-operation to the work. Your manager and directors cannot anticipate your wants, cannot know your minds.

They are willing and glad to do for you all they can, but as a man who is proud of his manhood, of his individuality, which God has given to each of us, we know that if you would stop to think, I have my place to fill, my responsibility to bear, a part no one else can assume, and to make my Farm Bureau a success, I must give my presence, my interest, and the best that is in me to it. Let us all ask ourselves this: If every member of our Farm Bureau was just like me what kind of a Farm Bureau would my Farm Bureau be? Do you know that measured in terms of purchasing powers, the farmers dollar in 1920 was worth eighty-seven cents. In May of 1921 it was 77 cents. During the past three months it has been worth 38 cents less than in any preceding three months in thirty years? We are told by Secretary of Agriculture, Henry C. Wallace, that in the past two years we have built up one of the greatest organizations in numbers in money raised, and in systematic organization, it is the strongest the country has ever seen. Our task now is to keep it and make a change in what the farmers dollar is worth, and make it grow by holding to the old motto, Honesty is the Best Policy. Be honest with ourselves, be true men, not only is it the best policy, but as a principle it is the first necessity for success. Man's word is God in man.

Economics is but a study of human relationship. The acme of economics was reached in a statement made upon a mountain top by a great teacher, when he said: "I can do no more than I say to you, that whatever our occupation or whatever our calling that of the old Golden Rule of human relationship is just as sound economically and just as necessary morally today as when first enunciated. I am convinced the greatest epoch of our country is just ahead. May its sunrise find us with our morning work done, and ready to go to the field. It is the duty of every member of the Farm Bureau, and of every farmer in Boone county to come forward at once and pay his dues for this year, so as to give our directors an idea of how many members and how much finance they have back of them. As you all know we are preparing to build a warehouse that will be in practical connection with every farmer in Boone county, so as to give them better service. It is also your duty to come and plan with your directors on ways and means to finance the things we are expecting to do this year. Don't wait for some one to see you and ask you to be a member, or send in your dues. Remember this is your business, and yours alone.

GEO. PENN, Manager.

THE DIARY KEEPERS.

Multitudes of people formerly used to begin in January to keep diaries. While many of them used to quit in a few months, yet others kept it faithfully, and have today extensive family and personal histories. It was a useful and interesting habit.

People are supposed to be too busy in these times to fuss with such occupations. While they do not work as hard as their ancestors did, yet they have all kinds of diversions to keep them occupied.

Also the old contemplative and reflective habits are gone. People do not sit down and meditate and wonderances out of the past as they used to. Diary keeping largely grew out of these habits as people enjoyed going over again the old details of their lives and dreaming over the past.

Nowadays people would rather tangle around the country in an automobile than reflect over the musty past. Modern conditions make them more restless and has contented, but on the other hand, people are less contented and are more alert minded. On the whole it is better to look at the future than at the past.

DEVELOPING TERRITORY

Formerly business men of most cities and towns thought but little about the prosperity of the outlying country, and never formulated any special plans to develop it. No community of interest was created. The business realize that their prosperity is dependent upon the industrial development of the outlying country.

Hence they go in with farmers and business men of near by communities to plan for joint measures that shall increase agricultural and manufacturing production through the entire district.

Our people should work for business and civic welfare in all surrounding towns and villages, so that the people all through this section should look to this community for leadership all along the line of progress. This closer relation will not merely make business friends, but it will also promote the advancement of the whole section that all industries will be more profitable and property more valuable.

One good thing about this poison booklet stuff is that it makes a quicker end of a lot of fools than old fashioned booze ever did.

NEWS FROM FRANKFORT.

The Legislature is an old fashioned one. It doesn't care for the new-fangled stuff in laws. It desires either to stand pat or return to the good old days when things weren't legislated against so much. It's so old-fashioned that it's perfectly accurate in being run by old-timers, "good fellows" who may not be the leaders of advanced thought, but at least know the ropes and short cuts. Being agricultural in the majority, conservatism is written all over it. That's why there's a strong sentiment to let well enough alone. This condition makes it unlikely that anti-race track legislation will be successful, regardless of the agitation for it. That's the spirit which is opposing the enactment of the minimum wage law and seeks to repeal the law enacted in 1920, which makes the County School Superintendent appointive at the hands of the County School Board, instead of being elected by the public.

The temper of the state is typified correctly by the personnel of the law-making bodies. This makes it almost certain that the law-making tendencies of Schools will be elected by the public in the future. This is the wish of the Republican and Democratic legislators alike. They feel that if the 1920 legislation on this point was progressive, it was ahead of the present capabilities of the people, who are demanding that the conduct of the schools be given back to them.

"Old Ring" Has Friends

"Old Ring" has a number of friends in this session who are determined to set him free. Every would be emancipator is of the opinion that at least one dog to each family should be tax exempt, and more than one legislator has prepared a bill to this effect. There does not seem to be any disposition to change the dog in any other particular, but if those interested in the sheep industry or otherwise hostile to "Ring" do not give the matter some attention, the head of the family will certainly go free of taxes.

From Page to Legislator.

Twenty years ago Senator S. W. Tolin, representing the counties of Boone, Galatin and Owen, brought his son, Garnett W., to Frankfort to the present site of the State governing scenes of those times suited the temper of the boy, page, and Garnett W. Tolin, a man wanted to come to Frankfort again. Boone county gratified his wish and sent him to the present session as its representative.

Another Boone County Boy.

A member of the present House was in the legislature in 1904 and cast the first vote for the million dollar appropriation to build the new Capitol. Representative Samuel W. Adams, of Kenton county, was a member at that time and recalls that he walked through mud to look at the present site of the State government. Mr. Adams is still pleased with that day's work and believes the building is a fit memorial of that session.

THE RACE TRACK BILL.

The race track bill, or Senate Bill No. 18, was introduced by the Rev. John A. Lee, Senator from Gallatin county, and it was referred to the Judiciary committee, consisting of Senators White, the boy, page, B. T. Davis, R. C. Simmons, Frank E. Daugherty and William Wallace. The Baptist minister's bill is headed "an act to amend 1961 and 3914 B. Kentucky Statutes, and also to amend an act approved March 11th, 1921, entitled an act prohibiting betting or wagering on horse races or other races, and to amend the act in inclosures during regular meetings wherein running, trotting, or pacing races are being conducted by associations regularly organized for that purpose and providing a penalty therefor."

In contrast to Rev. Mr. Lee is Rev. C. D. McCaw, who represents Paducah in the House. He proposes to support the pari-mutuels.

"It's foolish," he said, "to think you can legislate a man into the Kingdom of God. I have been a minister 27 years and I believe in common sense and you can't fool me with all this bunk about betting. I had rather see a man go to the race track and put up his bet than to have the state run over with 'bucket shops.' Besides, the state is receiving revenue this way and it wouldn't be in any way."

Open Season On Rabbits.

An open season on rabbits the year round would result if a measure drawn by Representative Beryl Boyd, of Graves county, should be enacted into law. Representative Boyd stated that the only purpose of a closed season on rabbits is to protect birds, and that the results did not compensate for the damage done to fruit trees by the increasing number of rabbits. He declared the condition was without precedent and that whole orchards in his section were ruined in a few nights through the devastations of the rabbits.

Hon. Garnett W. Tolin has introduced a bill providing for the care of juries in felony cases. The law now provides that the jury be kept together at all times by the Sheriff and in the bill introduced by Representative Tolin provision is made that if there should be a mixed jury when the women on the jury are to be kept together by a woman deputy sheriff. This is one of the few laws that has been introduced that should pass and the necessity for this law is because of other laws making women eligible for jury service.

If the Legislature submits to the people of the State the question of issuing $500,000 in bonds the proceeds to be used for road building, the RECORDER will make the guess that Boone county would vote against the proposition.

The Legislature will pass a bill so amending the present school laws that a tax of $1.00 on the hundred may be levied for school purposes. Boone county now levies 35 cents as each $100 of taxable property. It has not been so many years ago that there was no local school tax and a number of folks are of the opinion that our schools were as good as they now are, and that the additional money for school purposes has not produced the proper results. Our people are now complaining of the amount of taxes they are now paying, and it is hoped that the Legislature will pass no law that will require an additional tax levy to carry it into effect. Cut out all of the unnecessary Government expense.

WASHINGTON LETTER

From the Tribune's Own Correspondent.

Washington.—The legislative record of the Republican party for 1921 was a legislative tragedy. It is a story of huge appropriations and extravagant expenditures; of promises unfulfilled or willfully broken; of legislation delayed or so badly constructed that it satisfies nobody; of agricultural interests deceived and business interests betrayed; of a party frustrated attempt to serve only special privilege; of a leaderless majority groping in the dark and playing at every uncertain step its lack of understanding of the problems confronting it and its inability to solve them.

The administrative record of the Republican party for 1921, except for the calling of the disarmament conference, upon the unfinished work of which it would be premature and unfair to pass judgment, and where the party has followed in the footsteps of the previous Democratic administration in foreign affairs, has been an administrative failure, marked by bad appointments in its foreign service, re-thronement of special privilege, nullification of the principle of the civil service law and a general recrudescence of reactionaryism.

The end of 1921 finds the liberal and progressive element of the party in revolt against the reactionary spirit and policy which dominates both the legislative and administrative branches, and there is nothing to indicate that the party intends to do any better or wishes to do any better in 1922.

The Democratic party on the other hand has a record for 1921 of trying to be helpful. It has given substantial help in the way of constructive amendments in specific time of legislation which was bad as a whole. Essentially a party of economy, it has sought to check Republican extravagance and to aid the Republicans generally by its example of prudence. It has been successful chiefly in preventing some forms of the aid of Progressive Republicans from some western states. The Democratic party offered a complete reconstruction program in 1919, that was rejected. As a minority party in Congress it can only point to previous Democratic prosperity when it was in full power and cite the progressive legislation which made that great prosperity possible. It can face the new year secure in the past, happy in the present and hopeful of the future.

In the circumstances it would be mockery to bid the reactionary Republican majority a "Happy New Year."—New Jersey Tribune.

Oldham county farmers will give more attention to the keeping of farm records during the coming year, according to a report from County Agent Gordon E. Boone. Eleven already have been enrolled to keep books on their farm business.

Farm boys and girls of Knox county are taking an active interest in the new agricultural club work, a report from County Agent Earl May, says. At the present time more than 700 youngsters are enrolled in various clubs in the county.

BOONE COUNTY POULTRY

Surprise to Judge Who Makes Awards—List of Winners.

The poultry show that was held in the High School building was a success in every particular, and the officers of the Association are to be complimented for their efforts. They worked hard to make this their first show a success.

Twenty-eight exhibitors had entries in the different classes, and the competition in some of the classes was so keen that the judge had his troubles in awarding the premiums. One of the best judges on chickens in the state, Mr. J. R. Smith, of the State College, was the judge, and his awards were satisfactory to all exhibitors. The premiums were awarded as follows:

Buff Rocks.
1st premium cock, Mrs. O. C. Hafer; 2nd premium Benj. Padack; 1st on hen Mrs. O. C. Hafer, 2nd Benj. Padack; 1st on cockerel Mrs. O. C. Hafer, 2nd Benj. Padack; 3rd Benj. Padack; 1st on pullet Benj. Padack, 2nd Mrs. O. C. Hafer, 3rd Benj. Padack.

Pekin Ducks.
1st premium on pair Cecil Tanner.

SAVINGS CERTIFICATES.

Postmaster at Burlington states that he has received an announcement from the United States Treasury Department that that part of Northern Kentucky, comprising the Lexington area of the Fourth Federal Reserve District, which includes this community, hereafter will function in the sale of Government Savings Securities thru the Fourth Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, O., instead of the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, Missouri. This means that Northern Kentucky is to be joined with Ohio in the sale of Government Savings Securities, and as the Buckeye state has continuously led all other states in the sale of these securities ever since they were first put on sale, during the war, the sale in Kentucky must be materially increased to keep pace with the Ohioans.

The new 1922 Treasury Savings Certificates are now available in denominations of $100, $10 and $25, at cost prices of $80, $80 and $20 respectively. These certificates pay 4 1/2 per cent interest compounded semi-annually if held until maturity, 5 years from date of issue. They can, however, be redeemed any time prior to maturity, in which event interest is paid at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent compounded semi-annually. They are free from all state and local taxes, and any individual, corporation or partnership can own up to $5,000 worth of this issue.

Only are issued in registrable form only, insuring the owner against all loss, and are always worth more than they cost, as they are not subject to any market fluctuation. The Postmaster at Burlington is now ready to receive applications for the purchase of these certificates, and any additional information form also be secured from the Savings Division, Fourth Federal Reserve District, Columbus, Ohio.

WOULD BE A CALAMITY.
Twenty thousand dollars is the sum that is necessary to be raised by unpopular subscription in order that the Lexington pike may be concreted from Florence to Walton. If this sum is not subscribed within a very short time then the fund set aside for the construction of this road will be transferred to another road and this is just what the Automobile Clubs desire and the Dixie Highway commission would rejoice. If this sum is not raised then the Lexington pike can not be improved, and it will go from bad to worse, and in a very short time will become impassable. It will take twenty-five per cent of the entire road fund of Boone county to keep this road in passable condition, and that amount of the fund can not be expended on that road. Not to exceed $2,000 of the road fund could be expended on the Lexington pike, and this sum is not sufficient to properly maintain the drainage. It would be a calamity on Boone county citizens to let this proposition fail. The land owners along this road should subscribe this fund without a murmur. The County, State and Government have gone their limit and it is up to our citizens.

The Death Angel has visited our community again and taken from our midst Uncle Leonard Tanner whose death occurred last Saturday at his home near Florence, at the advanced age of 89 years. He had been in poor health for several years but was able to be up and did some light work the most of the time during his illness, and was not thought to be seriously ill when the summons came. One son, L. E. Tanner and wife and two grandsons Kenneth and Russell and one brother B. C. Tanner, of Florence, survive to mourn his departure. A brief funeral service was conducted by Rev. Roy C. at the grave last Monday, after which the remains were buried by those of his wife, who preceded him to the grave about 20 years. The interment was at Hopeful cemetery and his popularity was demonstrated by the large crowd who gathered to pay their "last trip" respect to him. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Most of the mid-term examinations are over to the delight of the students.

Dr. Trinchler, the humorous lecturer, visited our school on Friday, December 23. He delivered an address pertaining to opportunities of school children after they leave school.

The school cafeteria has a new pump and is now in working order.

The Ciceronian Literary Society met December 23, at 1:30 p. m. There were few visitors present to enjoy the program which was very interesting and worthy of the students' efforts. A meeting was called for the first week in January to elect new officers.

The Lyceum number was given Dec. 22, at the M. E. church by Dr. Trinchler, the humorous lecturer and was enjoyed by every one present. Owing to the weather very few were able to attend.

A program was given Friday morning before dismissing for the Christmas holidays which included a sketch from "Brid's Christmas Carol" given by some of the pupils under Miss Turner's training. The Seniors were presented with Christmas presents by the Juniors, which were very appropriate, such as "Easy Lessons in Spelling" for Elmer.

School opened Monday, Jan. 2nd, after a week's vacation. Mr. Kiskey was not able to get back until Monday at noon, which was a sure sign of too much vacation. A number of the pupils did not return until Tuesday.

A special meeting was called by the president of the Ciceronian Literary Society Wednesday morning, January 11th, 1922, and the following officers were elected:
President—George Kirkpatrick.
V-President—Edwin Crigler.
Secretary—John Birkle.

Elmer Gifford was absent from school last Thursday on account of illness.

Miss Kreylich entertained Miss Grow last Thursday night.

Mr. Owen Acra spent the weekend with Mr. Wm. Graves, of Hebron.

Gladys Wilson was absent from school last Friday on account of a severe cold.

The High School and grades are preparing to give a program every Friday morning from 8:30 until 9 o'clock.

LEGION NOTES

States which pay adjusted compensation to their ex-service men now includes, Minnesota, Maine, Michigan, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Wisconsin and Washington, according to John Thomas Taylor, vice-chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee.

Gun play between the chamber of commerce and the American Legion post at Akron, Colorado, resulted in the death of 936 rabbits, which were distributed to needy families in Denver. The shooting match benefited farmers, who have been greatly troubled with rabbits.

Legionnaires throughout the country have been invited to join the second annual ascent of Mount Hood by the American Legion post at Hood River, Oregon. The eleven thousand foot climb will be made by the party during the summer, in continuance of a custom started by last year's expedition.

Twenty hospitals in three years is the record of one disabled fighter discovered by the American Legion. Physicians at Fort Lyon, Colorado, where this patient is now being treated, say that he at least will never suffer from getting in a rut.

To lay proper emphasis on the five optional provisions of the pending adjusted compensation, the American Legion will present its case before every chamber of commerce in the country. The hue and cry raised against the "cash bonus" clause in the bill has befogged the issue, Handford MacNider, national commander, charges. Appointment of Senator McCumber, author of the bill, as chairman of the Finance Committee, is expected to speed up Congressional action on the measure.

Because he had not his commitment papers, Wallis D. Willis, a disabled soldier, was turned away from Government hospital to wander in the streets of Washington until overcome by exposure. Roused by Willis' treatment, the American Legion is starting a vigorous investigation of red tape evils.

The 43,262 good deeds to unfortunate buddies performed by American Legion posts of Minnesota in 1921, cost $75,000. This does not include 21,000 cases wherein hospital treatment, back pay, vocational training, compensation were secured for disabled men.

Ex-soldiers who have lost their discharge papers will be able to obtain duplicates from the Secretary of War under a bill introduced into Congress at the request of the American Legion.

Slackers and draft dodgers will not escape punishment through the operation of the statute of limitations if the House passes a bill to continue the military status of deserters. The American Legion, supporting the measure, urges unrelenting Federal warfare against slackers.

SOLDIERS BONUS BILL
Should the Soldiers Bonus Bill now become a law it would require over $10,000,000 to pay the bonus, and as Kentucky is now heavily in debt and its property is bound to decrease in value, one can not figure from what source the amount can be procured. If bonds are issued then the same question, that of payment, presents itself. Legislators should not pass bills that provide for the expenditure of money unless they can, at the same time provide the funds for that purpose.

BURLINGTON TO HAVE MOVIE.
R. E. Berkshire expects to start a moving picture show in the Universalist church on OVER THE HILL will be one of the first pictures shown.

KENTUCKY'S THOROUGHBRED CONTRIBUTION TO THE NATION

Under the Pari-Mutual System the Kentucky Jockey Club Has Lifted Racing to the Highest Plane—An Example to the Whole Country—$3,479,675.00 Distributed In Three Years

(From the New York Rider and Driver)

Whenever the thoroughbred is mentioned, Kentucky, the home of Man o' War, and for a hundred years the center of the breeding industry in this country, always comes to mind. It is not possible to conceive of racing in America without the yearly contribution of thoroughbreds from the Bluegrass State. There are great breeding farms in New York, Virginia, California and elsewhere, but the very life blood of the thoroughbred cause pours from Kentucky's ever-flowing fountain. In this favored State, with its fertile fields deep in bluegrass throughout the winter, the horse reaches his perfection.

The Rider and Driver does not know of any greater calamity that could happen to the horse industry than for Kentucky to turn against the thoroughbred, and destroy the great breeding industry, which has not only made the State world-famous, but has aided every farmer in America by improving the breed of horses. The War Department has repeatedly gone on record in favor of the thoroughbred, without which the Army would not have suitable remounts.

The Remount Service, in charge of United States Army officers, has established breeding farms with thoroughbred stallions at their head, horses that have had their speed, courage and endurance tried in contests on the turf. These great nurseries will provide the type of cavalry horse that the Army needs, and every farmer in this country cannot only aid the cause by sending his mares to thoroughbred studs, but can be assured of reaping a substantial profit, as the War Department is constantly in the market for horses of this character.

Racing in Kentucky under the direction of the Kentucky Jockey Club is not only a credit to the State, but with the pari-mutual system perfected, it has set an example to the world in point of high class contests, clean racing generous stakes and purses. Under the old order, the meetings were dragged out to an interminable length, in one year one hundred and fifty-five days, and in another year one hundred and seventy-four.

Under the State Racing Commission, created by an Act of the Legislature, the number of days on which racing is permitted has been cut to one hundred and eight. There is strict supervision of all turf matters, with the result that beginning with the Kentucky Derby, with $50,000 added, which has been run at Churchill Downs for forty-seven years, the quality of racing in Kentucky sets the standard for the whole country.

Formerly turfmen raced for $400 purses, and the amount distributed yearly ran from $300,000 to $600,000. Since the organization of the Kentucky Jockey Club, three years ago, the amount distributed daily in stakes and purses averaged over $11,600, and the yearly total was as follows:

1921	1,281,655.00

Total ..... $3,479,675.00

The Kentucky Jockey Club pays over $270,000 each year into the State Treasury in license fees and pays $40,000 additional in State, City and County taxes.

With millions of dollars invested in farm lands devoted exclusively to the breeding of thoroughbreds, and other millions invested in horses that have no superior in the world, The Rider and Driver believes that the Kentucky Legislature, made up of level headed farmers and business men, will refuse to destroy this valuable industry which it has heretofore sanctioned and encouraged.

TINKERING THE TAX LAWS

There is the usual talk about tinkering the tax laws heard every time the Legislature is about to meet and as nearly everybody thinks they are unjustly taxed, the agitation of the question seems to meet the general approval of the discontented.

It was "taxation without representation" that induced the American Colonies to throw off the yoke of bondage and this seems to have been succeeded by "taxation without representation" in those latter days, judging from the character of the complaints heard.

After years of unsatisfactory experience with the very worst tax laws ever conceived in any State, a new system was introduced and the present tax laws in Kentucky have been pronounced to be as good as any and far better than most of the other States, and yet there are some very good people who are opposed to them.

The objections to the present laws indicate a lack of information as to the purpose and results of the Classification System of Taxation and some of the complaints are rather curious in fact. The actual facts and figures shown in the Reports of the State Auditor, State Tax Commission and State Examiner which have recently been published.

It is complained, for instance, that farming property is unfairly discriminated against, but the reports show that this is not true.

The State had to have more revenue as everybody knows and the income from State taxes has increased about $2,500,000 since 1917, but the Report of the State Examiner shows that the taxes on Real Estate and Live Stock have increased only 10 per cent, while the taxes on Personal Property have increased 350 per cent.

As Real Estate includes Town and City Lots and Improvements as well as Farming and Mineral Property, the figures may be segregated differently and it will be seen that in 1917 all Farming and Mineral Lands and Improvements, Live Stock and Agricultural Implements, generally described as Country Property, because they are not subject to city taxes, paid in State taxes $2,475,219 and for 1921 will pay $3,074,424.

Town Lots and Improvements, Tangible and Intangible Personal Property, listed mostly in towns and cities, paid $2,610,682 in 1917 and will pay $4,454,674 in 1921.

The increase in taxes as shown in this general way is as follows:

Increase in Taxes on Country Property.....$599,205

Increase in Taxes on City and Town Property.....1,843,992

As there are 270,000 farms in the State, the average increase in State taxes has been about $2 per farm without deducting other than farming property, which would lessen the increase to about $1.75 per farm.

Town Lots have always been assessed higher in proportion than other land, but farming land has been assessed higher in proportion than mineral lands and it is this lack of uniformity in assessments that arouses so much complaint.

Assessments are provided for by an old Constitutional law and attention is called to the fact that this law has heretofore been applied to Bonds, Stocks, Mortgages, Notes and Money, which are assessed at the full value, while Land has been generally assessed at from 40 to 70 per cent of the fair cash value except perhaps, in some extreme cases.

That Farming Property is not discriminated against is shown by (a) The exemption from all taxation of products grown within the year and still in the hands of the producer; (b) agricultural products when taxable are favored by local tax rates, which are limited to 15 cents in counties and towns; (c) agricultural implements and machinery are exempt from local taxes; (d) live stock is taxed at only 10 cents for State purposes and over one-third is exempted from all taxation.

It is argued that farming lands have to pay county as well as State taxes and it is also true that town and city lots and a large amount of other property must pay and city taxes as well as State and county taxes, but when it is considered that lands and lots are valuable according to their location and utility and that more than one-half of the money paid in taxes is expended on schools, roads and public improvements, and which enhance their value, the taxes on such property are in effect an investment which returns to the owners in increased value.

But even the increased value of land is often a cause of complaint which is impossible to overcome when the owner says he does not want to sell and "don't want the value to increase as it means more taxes." ("Uneared increment" means more to this class of objectors than the "Rough Dimension") and it is this element that is retarding the growth of the State.

Many of the complaints are from small taxpayers who have little except land to tax and who cannot understand why they have to pay both State and county taxes on their land while the owners of Bonds and Stocks only pay State taxes on this class of property.

It has been shown that taxes enhance the value of land because of

REVEALING NEW IDEAS

Many new ideas appear in this formal tailored frock for the coming fall and winter in which the vogue for embroidery and that for fringes have been so artfully and beautifully united. It takes the place of a formal tailored suit, and is perhaps even more adaptable to many occasions than the former. The pleure tells its story; but note the shape of the neck and sleeves, the narrow lace vestee and strap belt, the ingenious placing of embroidery—they are all important.

The expenditure of the better part of the money received from taxes on the things which add to its value, but no sensible person will contend that taxes benefit bonds and stocks, which are worth no more in one locality than another and the taxes really diminish their value by curtailing the small fixed income. Moreover, the property on which they are issued is also taxed and the taxes on the securities are in addition to the other taxes.

Now all owners of Bonds and Stocks, Notes and Money on deposit in banks are taxed the same way, no matter where they reside and it would be foolish for any person who does not happen to own such property to complain because others own and pay taxes on it. Can it not be seen that every dollar received from taxes helps to keep down the taxes on all other property and lessens the burden on all?

The man who owns property in a city or town and pays city and town taxes might as well complain because his country neighbor pays no city taxes as for any one to complain because some one else has other kinds of taxable property than himself.

It is property and not people that is taxed and although the law does not presume to dictate in what class of property any one must invest his money, it merely assumes to tax all property of the same class alike, no matter by whom it is owned or where the owner resides, and this is the essence of uniformity.

Taxes have been increased and doubtless will continue to increase as there seems to be no limit to governmental expenditures and the advocates of education, good roads and the managers of all the institutions maintained by the State, counties and towns are continually clamoring for more money.

The State revenue from taxes has increased from $5,000,000 to $7,500,000 in the last four years and including all other sources from about $9,250,000 to probably $14,000,000 but the cry is always for more money regardless of where it is to come from.

It is much easier to increase assessments and tax rates than to discover more property to tax and this plan has been followed too long in Kentucky, where too much attention has been directed to raising revenue by the taxing authorities than by tax payers in investigating how it is spent.

In an adjoining State the taxpayers came to the conclusion that it was wrong to permit the spenders of the people's money to have the authority to levy the taxes and they were restricted by the fixing of a maximum rate for all state, county and city purposes. The spenders were not sufficiently restricted, however, and in some instances exceeded the revenue and the plan has not been altogether satisfactory, but it had one good effect as it resulted in a great improvement in the assessment of all property at the fair cash value and this is more needed in solving the tax question in Kentucky than anything else.

Classification and Assessments are controlled by altogether different laws and they should not be confused. The classes of property supposed by some to be benefitted by classification are generally assessed at the full value in complete compliance with the law, but other property is irregularly assessed and a great deal seems to escape the assessors or is so inadequately valued as to be farcical.

Jackson county farmers are making a systematic effort to rid the county of scrub hogs with the result that the last one is expected to be disposed of in the near future, a report from County Agent W. H. Reynolds states. As a part of the movement, 114 purebred pigs have been distributed among junior agricultural club members of the county.

SQUARE TYPE IS ALWAYS POPULAR

Has Many Advantages That Appeal to Home Builder.

CUTS COST OF CONSTRUCTION

Design Shown Here Is Built of Concrete Blocks, but Will Work Out Equally Well in Frame, Brick, Hollow Tile and Stucco.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

While many people prefer the one room, so called condensed apartment of the large apartment buildings in the cities, and others like the small, unique and original bungalow brought from the West Coast a few years ago, a great many still hold a profound regard for the familiar and ever-popular square lined, hipped roof home of many rooms, the home that always gives the impression of business, comfort, and substantial security. This home is found in the large and small cities, suburbs, small towns, villages and on the farms. It has its supporters everywhere and will continue to be built for many years to come.

That is why we are showing a picture of an excellent example of this type. In this case the house is built of concrete blocks, although the same design may be constructed of frame.

brick, hollow tile and stucco. There are no freakish corners, expensive innovations that tend to increase costs which are high enough as it is. In fact, the contractor can build this kind of home as reasonably as any. Concrete block is growing in favor because of its attractive exterior appearance and insulating features. The hollow air space prevents extreme cold from penetrating the walls in the winter and likewise stops excessive heat from getting in during the warm months. Moreover it is easily laid and quickly. This block is smooth-finished. The foundation is poured concrete.

One of the appealing features of this home, one that indicates its comfortable arrangement is the expansive roomy porch, part of which has been glazed to form a sun parlor. In the summer time this glass can be changed for screens and a very comfortable sun porch built. The front door opens into a small reception hall which contains a clothes closet and which opens on one side into the living room and leads to the stairway going to the second floor. The living room is a large spacious and cheerful room, 14 by 16 feet 6 inches, with a great open brick fireplace, easily one of the most attractive comforts that can be installed in the home. On either side of this fireplace are two small windows providing additional light and ventilation.

First Floor Plan.

Directly in the rear of the living room and joining it by a large open doorway is the dining room, slightly smaller in size, 13 by 15 feet 6 inches, looking out into the rear through a large triple window. Another large double hung window on the side provides additional light. The dining room is connected with the kitchen by a small door on one side. In the construction of modern homes the kitchen is considered one of the most important rooms because of its importance to the wife. Unless arranged efficiently it will cause her a whole lot of unnecessary work and make her home life decidedly more difficult and slavish.

On the upper floor are the four bedrooms, small cheerful well-lighted rooms of about equal size and each containing exceptionally large closets. These bedrooms are grouped about a central hall. The bathroom is also located on this floor.

There are many features in this substantial home that will appeal to the man of family who wants plenty of breathing space. Moreover this type of house is very economical in cost. This is due to the absence of frills of any kind which add expense, extra expense. In these days of high costs if people planning on homes would overlook many of the whims which they may want to incorporate in their new home they would find it quite profitable. For every added feature means special labor, millwork, and a whole lot of extra expense.

Last year there were 100,000 marriages, and only 40,000 homes were built. It is estimated that today there are 121 families for every 100 homes. If this be true the situation is very acute. There must be home building, and work must be started soon or there will be an actual home famine.

TRACES ORIGIN OF HAWAIIANS

New York Scientist Finds Them Cousins to Apatite and to United States Indians.

Whence came the ancient Hawaiians and others of the Polynesian race is a query which has long interested the members of the pan-Pacific scientific congress when, it was in session at Honolulu last August, and which is answered in part by Louis B. Sullivan of the American Museum of Natural History.

Since the close of the congress, the spirit of economy caused by the high prices in Paris is leading people to eat animals only valued hitherto for their skins, writes the London Daily Telegraph correspondent.

It is now possible to buy at some shops near the central markets joints of foxes and polecats, and by way of variety the flesh of squirrels and badgers is offered. It seems that these novelties are prepared for the table with varied sauces.

The prefect of police is disturbed at the idea of people eating the flesh of foxes and polecats, and he has found it necessary to issue a circular, in which he points out that they run a grave danger, since some of the animals may have been destroyed by poison. After this, it is not expected that there will be a big trade in the new game.

Natural Inquiry.

There is a certain congressman who, it appears, is unable to talk for five minutes, even on an ordinary subject without falling into a funeral tone. Now this states exceedingly upon the sensibilities of a colleague. One day while the first mentioned statesman was holding forth in his usual mourning cadence the second member's attention was caught by the melancholy tones. Turning to him, the second member asked in a drawing but solemn voice:

"Judge, were you acquainted with the deceased?"—Philadelphia. Public Ledger.

Perfect Identification.
The French have hit on a new idea for the making of fingerprints. Instead of rubbing the finger-ends with ink and making impressions on paper, the X-ray is used. The finger is first dusted with a fine powder of blamish, and then an X-ray picture is taken of it. The picture shows not only the ridged foundations of the skin texture, but also the terminal bones of the digit. These bones are not exactly alike in any two human beings, and this identification is made much easier.

PULLETS HATCHED EARLY BOOST THE EGG PROFITS.

Kentucky farmers can increase the profits from their poultry flocks by having their pullets hatch early this spring in order for them to start laying next fall and winter when eggs are high priced, according to suggestions made by members of the College of Agriculture poultry department. The first hatch should be out by March 1 and the last one not later than May 1 in order for farmers to take advantage of the opportunity to have winter eggs, the poultrymen say.

Fresh eggs are highest in the late fall and winter because hens stop laying then to molt and grow a new crop of feathers, the poultrymen have pointed out in these suggestions. As a general rule, the supply of eggs continues to slump during that period of the year until the pullets begin to lay. By having the pullets hatch early in the spring, they will begin to lay when the hens are molting.

Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds begin to lay when about seven months old. Leghorns, Minoras and hens of the lighter breeds begin when about six months old.

Another advantage of early hatching pointed out by the poultrymen is the fact that surplus cockerels from early hatches sell for high prices as broilers.

Farmers who wish to hatch chicks early have been advised by the college poultrymen to start their plans now. In cases where hens do not set in time for early hatching, the poultrymen have suggested that farmers get broody hens from their neighbors or use an incubator.

Hon. Garnett W. Tolin, Representative from Boone and Grant counties received the best committee assignments better than is usually assigned to members who are serving their first terms in the Legislature. One assignment, that of Chairman of Code of Practice, is one of the most important committees in the House. Mr. Tolin is one of the youngest men in the Legislature and it is a credit to him to be appointed as Chairman of that Committee.

We clipped the following from the court news column in last Friday's Enquirer:

Attorney Joel C. Clure, who also is Postmaster of Cincinnati, is seeking to be relieved of $1,300 he has in his charge, but there are two claimants to it, and so he filed a petition in Common Pleas Court yesterday, in which he seeks authority to pay the money into Court and let the law determine to whom it belongs.

On August 10, 1914, A. B. Whitlock sold his farm in Boone county, Kentucky, and entrusted $1,500 of the money to Mr. Clure to be invested. In order to protect Mr. Whitlock Attorney Clure gave him his note for the amount. Later Mr. Whitlock withdrew $200 of the money, which was credited on the note.

Mr. Whitlock made his home with the Matson family at Cleves, and after his death May 13, 1921, it was found that his will had left all his property to Miss Fanny Matson. Miss Matson also produced the note, which she said Mr. Whitlock had given to her during his life time, and she sought the fund from Atty. Clure. Robert M. Whitlock, an executor of the estate of A. B. Whitlock, also claimed the note, claiming it to be part of the estate and subject to the debts of the estate.

THE PRESENT TREND.

Sudden changes of popular feeling are one of the most marked features of recent politics. This tendency has both good and bad features. It will lead to mistakes, the result of impulse and ill considered action. But it is likely to prevent long standing wrongs from becoming entrenched.

The people will not get so tied hand and foot by a network of traditions and fixed habits, that it will be almost impossible to get necessary changes accomplished.

The overwhelming vote for the Republican candidate in 1920 was one of those sudden changes. It was decisive and unmistakable. The people wanted a change in political management and they got it.

But present signs are indicating a different trend of popular sentiment, a feeling that the decision of 1920 was a mistake. Nearly all the cities and several states that voted this fall, showed Democratic tendencies, as already noted in these columns. What does it mean.

Some people say it is an uprising of the proletariat, of the mass of the people against the "business interests." There may be something in that. It is a sign that the mass of the people feel that the prominent men of business who exercise a leading position in the Republican party, are not sufficiently thoughtful of the common people. They make their plans to assure prosperity and welfare for the business corporations and large employers.

But what are they doing for prosperity of the mass of the people? Have they earnestly striven to benefit all the people, even the most struggling ones, who need watchful care more than anyone else?

It is the feeling of the popular masses, that the ruling powers do not sufficiently consider the common people. The next election may be as swift and sudden a protest as that which settled the election of 1920.

WINTER AND SPRING BEST TIME TO PRUNE

Farmers may prune their fruit trees safely during any part of the dormant season, except freezing weather, giving preference to late winter and early spring, according to recommendations made by orchard specialists at the College of Agriculture to Kentucky farmers who have inquired as to the best time to do this work. Young trees which were planted in the fall, can be pruned best in the spring, the specialists say.

"When old apple trees need thinning and heading back, it is advisable to thin one year and head back the next," H. R. Niswonger, orchard specialist at the college, said. "All dead and diseased branches should be removed and burned the first year. In removing laterals, it is best to cut close to the main branch in order to eliminate stubs. It is a good practice to cover all large cuts with grafting wax to prevent entrance of disease."

The pruning of trees of this kind should consist in correcting crowded conditions of the lower part by removing small branches, especially those that contain old, worn out fruit spurs. Heavy pruning by cutting out large limbs encourages wood growth near the cut and reduces production the second year. The removal of large limbs on the lower part and in the center of the tree opens large holes which admit too much sunlight.

"Heading back the main limbs by cutting to a side branch which points down and out will tend to lower the tree top, and make spraying and harvesting of the fruit easier. Heading back by completely removing large upright branches is to be condemned because this treatment opens the top of the tree.

"It is difficult to rejuvenate old neglected peach trees satisfactorily, but those which are healthy and vigorous should be treated by rather severe cutting back. The tall branches should be cut back to laterals, and as much as three or four years of growth removed if necessary. Crowded lateral branches may be thinned and the central ones cut back to encourage renewal of the bearing wood."

WATER SUPPLY.

(By F. C. Dugan)

State Sanitary Engineer

Water is necessary to life. Water free from disease producing agents is necessary to health. The characteristics of good water are that it must be clear, colorless, and cool, that it must be free from objectionable odor or taste, that it must not be hard, and that it must be free from disease-producing agents.

It is remarkable in this day and age how many people on the farm and in the city are using water which is injurious to their health and yet are unwilling to take the necessary steps to secure good water.

The cost of water-borne disease in this State alone reaches into millions of dollars annually, to say nothing about the depletion of the remaining power of the sufferers to other diseases.

In discussing the water supply on a farm it is well to divide the subject into four sections, as farm water of ordinary is obtained from some one of four sources. They are: First, cisterns; second, dug wells; third, deep wells, fourth, springs. In subsequent articles of this series each one of these four sources of water supply will be discussed in turn. Watch for next week's article.

From many there is a sigh of relief that 1922 soon will be the date on our calendar rather than 1921. We are on the eve of an new year. While conditions continue much as they have been during the past few months with the murkiness slowly but surely disappearing, there are, however, the inevitable uncertainties still cropping out in unexpected times and places. Nineteen twenty-two is being entered with decks cleared for action. Even though further adjustments must be completed, conditions today are in happy contrast to those that faced us a year ago.

Ups-and-downs and hard knocks are sometimes a means of growth. It is earnestly to be hoped that business has profited by the obstacles encountered in the past, and that the lessons will be utilized. Business can no longer be frightened by a sudden jar or shock. This means progress.

Then, too, we are getting back to a saner method of living and thinking. Speculation in fly-by-night schemes has lost much of its old popularity and in its place is a desire to invest in good securities. Level-headedness is being shown in a truer appreciation of a dollar's value. And of even greater importance is the fact that we have at last reached the place where we are beginning to realize that no artificial machinery can be invented for avoiding the consequences of over trading and unwise business policies; that there is no detour on the rough and even painful road of re-adjustment that we have been following.

But this is no place to stop. A vital need at present is to aid business in every way possible. We are faced by a peculiar situation just now. With the exception of the Holiday trade and a few other lines of industry, this is naturally the lull period of the year, and many people have made up their minds that nothing is to be expected until later. This is a poor way to get anywhere for it is logically follows that if this "lull" time fails to bring the expected developments, then this same policy will be continued. It is easy to give advice and sometimes difficult to know just where to start to shove but with this in mind we believe that the thing business needs now is intelligent and constructive push-aheadness.

It very frequently happens that the most effective way to accomplish something is to take advantage of the little things even though they may appear indirect. The lay of "seasons" has passed and into its shoes has stepped a new competition for business. To meet this competition the so-called "little things" must be watched. Advantage must be taken of every opportunity as it presents itself, and not only that, but we must go after business. It is true, business is poor and results are hard to get, but it certainly can do no harm to get organizations back into the old-time methods of good hard sale efforts. The success of companies and individuals will be measured by their determination and a real honest desire to serve the public.

Thrift is one of the master keys that will open the way to better business. Thrift and economy are old fashioned virtues but coupled with present day intelligence, a combination is formed that is hard to beat. As time goes on people are appreciating more and more the necessity for thrift, and it is gradually gaining a larger significance than it has held for several years.

There is need of confidence in present day business, and thrift as a confidence builder stands in the front rank. From the depositor with his "nest egg" for a rainy day, to the large corporation that largely through thrift has adjusted itself to present conditions, it has no substitute.

By thrift is not meant denying ourselves the necessities of life, or carrying it to the extent of miserliness. We did, however, give "rotten" spending a fair trial. We would that this period of artificial prosperity could only be temporary, and what we have passed through in 1921 was the relapse that followed.

As we face 1922 nothing will help more to carry us through the remainder of the re-adjustment period, nothing will help more toward good staple business and a real prosperity, than a foundation of individual corporate, municipal and national thrift.—Business Review.

SLOW BUT SURE.

Texarkana, Texas,
Jan. 7, 1922.

Recorder, Burlington, Ky.
Dear Sir:—Enclosed find draft for $1.50 to pay my subscription to the RECORDER for another year. I am a little slow about it, but Frank Hall will tell you that I was always more or less slow. I sent a half dozen or more Christmas cards to old friends in Boone, but none of them has paid any attention to me, except my old friend Col. John R. Whitson, the old war horse, now of Erlanger. The rest of them I suppose, have forgotten me and had no idea where or from whom the cards came, for I left old Boone in 1884 and have only been back twice—in 1889 and 1908.

I have been subscribing to the RECORDER since my old friend, William H. Riddell first started it, and expect to read it for a while yet, although but few people are mentioned in it are personally known to me.

Regards to Frank Hall and any others in Boone county who still remember me.

Yours Very Truly,
J. DUDLEY GAINES.

CONVENTION TO DEAL WITH DAIRY PROBLEMS.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 16.—As in former years, dairying in all its important phases is to have a prominent place on the program of the tenth annual Farm and Home Convention to be held Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2 and 3, according to plans being made for the event. Exhibits of fine dairy cattle, meetings of various dairy organizations and discussions relative to the management of the herd will take up a large part of the program.

Among the organizations which will hold meetings in connection with this part of the convention program are the Kentucky Jersey Cattle Club, Kentucky Holstein Cattle Club and Kentucky Manufacturers of Dairy Products.

A number of prominent dairy authorities already have been engaged to address the farmers and their wives who are interested in dairying, according to the announcement. These will include W. W. Fitzpatrick, secretary of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, C. G. Vahlkamp, Paducah, president of the Kentucky Dairy Cattle Club; J. C. McDowell, senior dairyman from the United States Department of Agriculture; Harry Hartke, Covington; W. E. Skinner, secretary of the National Dairy Show; C. Oscar Ewing, Louisville; J. M. Howie, Anchorage, Clarence Smith, LaGrange and Mrs. S. T. Henning, Shelbyville. J. J. Hooper, head of the college dairy department also will take part in the program.

AMERICAN LEGION'S GOOD WORK.

Few people realize how much good community work is being done by the American Legion. For instance, the Moberly, Mo., post has been backing a good roads campaign. Kalamazoo, Michigan, post promoted a movement for a $150,000 community memorial building. The Dublin, Ga., post has helped establish a playground for the children. Ten posts in Oklahoma have worked to establish community libraries.

The employment committees of these posts have done a world of good in finding work for service men. Of several hundred community centers established since the war, many have been financed entirely by legion men. At Chinook, Montana, a legion men gravelled the main street of the town. At Fayette, Mo., they cleaned up the streets. Similar stories come from all over the country, set a fine example of civility. The people should do everything possible to foster the growth of so useful an organization.

Tobacco Poolers.

Be very careful in stripping your tobacco, keeping each grade to itself, both in regard to color, length and texture, for on the grading depends, to a very great extent, the price.

Be sure that you have each grade on separate sticks. Don't mix the grades on the stick, as the tobacco will be "stuck graded" and the lowest grade on the stick will be given the grade.

The same thing applies to the haul. Do not mix grades in the hand.

Do not hang your sticks too full. Eighteen to twenty hands keeps your tobacco straight when you bulk it.

When you get through stripping a crop you are ready to deliver, and not before.

The whole crop must be delivered the same day, or all of each grade. That is, if you can not haul of your crop, you must deliver all of each grade when you start delivery.

There are always two "grades" in each grade, for instance, "trash 1st and 2nd" leaf, lugs and all grades have first and second, so keep them separate.

Warehouse will not be open on Sunday to receive tobacco.

W. P. KERNS, manager Farmers Warehouse.

J. W. SLEET, Manager of Walton Loose Leaf House.

VERONA.

The stockholders of Verona Bank met Jan. 6th and re-elected the old board of directors.

Joseph Florence has been quite ill with a cold and asthma the past week.

The two children of F. F. Ratcliff of this place have pneumonia. We wish them a speedy recovery.

Levi Myers, who operates a truck for his father, has been laid up with a severe cold.

We learn one of Mr. Upton's boys near town, has pneumonia.

The farmers are almost thru stripping tobacco and will be ready for the opening of the pool.

Joe Estrage has purchased the Elmer Griffith farm containing thirty acres near Verona, and will erect a barn on this land in the near future.

We learn E. C. Showers has sold his large farm to a Mr. Hughes for twenty thousand dollars, and will take possession the first of March.

The Y. P. Union rendered services at Walton Baptist church last Sunday night.

J. M. Powers has been quite poorly the past week, but we are glad to report him improving.

THE NEWS PRINT TARIFF.

Manufacturers of news print paper are asking Congress to place a tariff duty on their product. Their plea would have been heard with more tolerance if the prices of paper had not been boosted so high during the time of war inflation.

There are some industries that need more competition. The producer of an article often thinks he is getting it out as cheaply as he can, and he will claim that his profit is only fair, when the public is convinced that his charges are too high.

When an industry has been running on that basis, it needs more competition. The industrial system is built on the theory of the rivalry of different interests to please the people. It works satisfactorily only when this rivalry is active and persistent. The man who is charging high prices may think he could not survive, if he had to get along with less. But if some good competitors come into the field his ideas undergo a change. He finds he can trim corners, and that his business can maintain reasonable prosperity on smaller margins of profit. This may be the case with the paper business.

During the past year there has been a sharp fall in news print prices, and to be due in part to the competition of foreign producers. American manufacturers claim their industry has been seriously injured. Importers of paper, however, say that the foreign article has tended to sell for about the level prevailing in this country, so apparently the competition has merely helped to keep prices reasonable.

The public has been warned of the reckless waste of American forest resources for production of news

THE SENATE'S DEGRADATION.

When the Supreme Court of the United States, on a technicality, reversed by a decision of five to four the lower court which had sentenced Truman H. Newberry to the penitentiary for his corrupt candidacy for a seat in the Senate, it reminded the Senate that that body had the authority to do what the courts, under a defective law, could not do.

As the judge of the qualifications of its own members, said the Supreme Court, "the National Government is not without power to protect itself against corruption, fraud or other malign influences."

The Senate, to whom the Supreme Court thus passed the Newberry case, has now disposed of it. And instead of protecting the National Government against corruption it has condoned corruption.

And in doing so it presents the unprecedented, the pusillanimous spectacle of pretending to condemn corruption, yet "vindicating" the man who profits by corruption.

Conceding that too much money was expended to elect Newberry and declaring formally that "the expenditure of such excessive sums in behalf of a candidate, either with or without his knowledge and consent, being contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of a free Government, such excessive expenditures are hereby severely condemned and disapproved," the Senate thereupon seats the man who profits by his crime against "sound public policy," against "the honor and dignity of the Senate" and against "the perpetuity of a free Government!"

Whereupon Newberry issues a public plea of gratitude for this "vindication" and "exoneration" of himself and "all concerned" the same being his family and friends who put up the money to buy his seat, he claims, without his knowledge.

The Senate, by the terms of its own resolution, has vindicated and exonerated nobody. It has condemned Newberry's crime but approved Newberry the criminal.

It has not vindicated and exonerated Newberry, but has prostituted itself to Newberry's own level. Or, rather, it has prostituted itself to deeper depths of degradation than that of Newberry; for it is likely that this poor creature himself is capable of conceiving so preposterous a scheme of degradation as that to which the Senate of the United States in the disposition of his case—

Allow me to express my appreciation of the high moral tone of your publications.

I hope you will live long to keep the Recorder a beacon upon the Watch Tower to guide, to instruct and lead your people in paths of morality and right living.

More especially do I hope for this when our country has been so long under the misleading and sinister influence of the Cincinnati papers and propaganda.

Sincerely Yours

Mrs. Jos. H. Conley.

Some Aspects of the Farmers' Problems

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Reprinted from Atlantic Monthly)

The whole rural world is in a ferment of unrest, and there is an unparalleled volume and intensity of determined, if not angry, protest, and an ominous warning of occupational conferences, interest groupings, political movements and propaganda. Such a turmoil cannot but arrest our attention. Indeed, it demands our careful study and examination. It is not likely that six million aloof and rugged independent men have come together and banded themselves into active unions, societies, farm bureaus, and so forth, for no sufficient cause.

Investigation of the subject conclusively proves that, while there is much overstatement of grievances and misconception of remedies, the farmers are right in complaining of wrongs long endured, and right in holding that it is feasible to relieve their ills with benefit to the rest of the community. This being the case of an industry that contributes, in the raw material form alone, about one-third of the national annual wealth production and is the means of livelihood of about 49 per cent of the population, it is obvious that the subject is one of grave concern.

Not only do the farmers make up one-half of the nation, but the well-being of the other half depends upon them. So long as we have nations, a wise political economy will aim at a large degree of national self-sufficiency and self-containment. Rome fell when the food supply was too far removed from the belly. Like her, we shall destroy our own agriculture and extend our sources of food distant and precariously, if we do not see to it that our farmers are well and fairly paid for their services. The farm gives the nation men as well as food. Cities derive their vitality and are forever renewed from the country, but an impoverished countryside exports intelligence and retains unintelligence. Only the lower grades of mentality and character will remain on, or seek, the farm, unless agriculture is capable of being pursued with contentment and adequate compensation. Hence, to embitter and impoverish the farmer is to dry up and contaminate the vital sources of the nation.

The war showed convincingly how dependent the nation is on the full productivity of the farms. Despite herculean efforts, agricultural production kept only a few weeks or months ahead of consumption, and that only by increasing the acreage and certain staple crops at the cost of reducing that of others. We ought not to forget that lesson when we ponder on the farmer's problems. They are truly common problems, and there should be no attempt to deal with them as if they were purely selfish demands of a clear-cut group, antagonistic to the rest of the community. Rather should we consider agriculture in the light of broad national policy, just as we consider oil, coal, steel, dynamite, and so forth, as sources of national strength. Our growing population and a higher standard of living demand increasing food supplies, and more wool, cotton, hides, and the rest. With the disappearance of free or cheap fertile land, additional acreage and increased yields can come only from costly effort. This we need not expect from an impoverished or unhappy rural population.

It will not do to take a narrow view of the rural discontent, or to appraise it from the standpoint of yesterday. This is peculiarly an age of flux and change and new deals. Because a thing always has been so no longer means that it is righteous, or always shall be so. More, perhaps, than ever before, there is a widespread feeling that all human relations can be improved by taking thought, and that it is not becoming for the reasoning animal to leave his destiny largely to chance and natural incidence.

Prudent and orderly adjustment of production and distribution in accordance with consumption is recognized as a wise management in every business but that of farming. Yet, I venture to say, there is no other industry in which it is so important to the public—to the city-dweller—that production be at once. Because of lack of storage facilities and of financial support, the farmer cannot carry his goods through the winter months of their season as they are currently being. In the great majority of cases, farmers have to entrust storage—in warehouses and elevators—and the financial carrying of their products to others.

Form products are generally marketed at a time when there is a combination of both transportation and finance—when cars and money are scarce. The outcome, in many instances, is that the farmers not only sell under pressure, and therefore at a disadvantage, but are compelled to take further losses in net returns, in order to meet the charges for the service of storing, transporting, financing, and ultimate marketing—which charges they claim, are often excessive, have heavily on both consumer and producer and are under the control of those who are not concerned with the risk of a changing market by selling at once, but they are only of their inability to meet mortgages or to pay current bills, and how, seeking relief from their ills, they are planning to form pools, inaugurate farming strikes, and demand legislation abolishing grain exchanges, private cattle markets, and the like, we ought not hastily to brand them as economic heretics and highwaymen, and hurl at them the charge of being seekers of special privileges. Rather, we should ask if their trouble is not ours, and what can be done to improve the situation. Purely from self-interest, if for no higher motive, we should help them. All of us want to get back permanently to "normalcy," but is it reasonable to hope for that condition unless our greatest and most basic industry can be put on a sound and solid permanent foundation? The farmers are not entitled to special privileges; but are they not right in demanding that they be placed on an equal footing with the buyers of their products and with other industries?

Let us, then, consider some of the farmer's grievances, and see how far they are real. In doing so, we should remember that, while there have been, and still are, instances of purposeful abuse, the subject should not be approached with any general imputation to existing distributive agencies of deliberately intentional oppression, but rather with the conception that the marketing of farm products has not been modernized.

An ancient evil, and a persistent one, is the undergrading of farm products, with the result that what the farmers sell as of one quality is resold as of a higher. That this sort of chicanery should persist on any important scale in these days of business integrity would seem almost incredible, but there is much evidence that it does so persist. Even as I write, the newspapers announce the suspension of several firms from the New York Produce Exchange for exporting to Germany as No. 2 wheat a whole shipload of grossly inferior wheat mixed with oats, chaff and the like.

Another evil is that of inaccurate weighing of farm products, which, it is charged, is sometimes a matter of dishonest intention and sometimes of protective policy on the part of the local buyer, who fears that he may "weigh out" more than he "weighs in."

A greater grievance is that at present the field farmer has little or no control over the time and conditions of marketing his products, with the result that he is often underpaid for his products and usually overcharged for marketing service. The difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays often exceeds all possibility of justification. To cite a single illustration. Last year, according to figures attested by the railways and the growers, Georgia watermelon-raisers received on the average 7.5 cents for a melon, the railroads got 12.7 cents for carrying it to Baltimore and the consumer paid one dollar, leaving 79.8 cents for the service of marketing and its risks, as against 20.2 cents for growing and transporting. The hard annals of farm-life are replete with such commentaries on the crudeness of present practices.

Nature prescribes that the farmer's "goods" must be finished within two or three months of the year, while financial and storage limitations generally compel him to sell them at the same time. As a rule, other industries are in a continuous process of finishing goods for the market; they distribute as they produce, and they can curtail production without too great injury to themselves or the community; but if the farmer restricts his output, it is with disastrous consequences, both to himself and to the community.

The average farmer is busy with the production for the major part of the year, and has nothing to sell. The bulk of his output comes on the market at once. Because of lack of storage facilities and of financial support, the farmer cannot carry his goods through the winter months of their season as they are currently being. In the great majority of cases, farmers have to entrust storage—in warehouses and elevators—and the financial carrying of their products to others.

Form products are generally marketed at a time when there is a combination of both transportation and finance—when cars and money are scarce. The outcome, in many instances, is that the farmers not only sell under pressure, and therefore at a disadvantage, but are compelled to take further losses in net returns, in order to meet the charges for the service of storing, transporting, financing, and ultimate marketing—which charges they claim, are often excessive, have heavily on both consumer and producer and are under the control of those who are not concerned with the risk of a changing market by selling at once, but they are only

DON'T BE LAGGRDS

Put Your Shoulders to the Wheel and Push This Good Thing Over.

Some folks in discussing the question of subscribing the $20,000 necessary for the contract for the reconstruction of the Covington and Lexington pike say that if that sum is raised and the road reconstructed then the property owners, who live along the road will pay their tax into the county road fund and that it will be used on other roads in the county. This is true, but that is no reason for a failure to subscribe. If this money is not raised by subscription then that road will go from bad to worse, and those living along the road will have a road over which they will be compelled to travel that for a part of the year will be practically impassable as the road fund that can be expended on that road will not keep it in passable condition. The County, State and Federal Governments propose to spend on that road $300,000, and of this sum the people are asked to subscribe $20,000, and by doing this a permanent road will be built, and it would require all of the road tax that can be raised in the county for the next eight years to build this at the expense of the county, and if it was to be built at the expense of the persons who own land along the road, with the present road tax it could not be paid for within the next 100 years but the legislature might pass a law requiring the land owners along a road to pay the entire expense and if this should be done then the land owners would pay not only $20,000, but the entire $300,000, and that is what they plan to build streets and side walks in towns, the property owners in towns can be compelled to pay the entire cost of building the streets and sidewalks. The proposition as now presented to the people, is one that it is hard for a person, who would give the question thought and consideration, to not exert his best efforts to raise the fund required.

In all road building you are bound to help some one else when you help yourself, and if you prefer to ride on a road that will be practically impassable, because your subscription to that project may help some one else, rather than have a concrete paved road over which you may ride in comfort, you may do so by refusing to raise this fund, and your fiscal court will then be forced to say to the State and Federal Government that our people do not want the Lexington pike paved with concrete, and the $225,000 you have for that purpose is now released, and you are at liberty to spend that fund on some other road project. Do the people want the Fiscal Court of Boone county to be put in a position where this will have to be done? It should not be done under any conditions, this $225,000 set apart to be used on this road should be spent on no other road, and the project should not fail when we are within $20,000 of the goal.

Our Fiscal Court will meet February 6th, let every one do his best so that on that day a committee of citizens who are now giving subscriptions, can come before the court with, and present subscriptions that amount to $20,000 and the court can certify to the State and Federal authorities that we are no laggrds, but have the fund necessary for the construction of this road. Do not delay.

TRUCK AND AUTO COLIDE

Lester Gulley and C. H. Youell ran their machines together on the Burlington and Florence pike last Friday evening about 5:30. Mr. Youell was driving his Dodge auto east and Mr. Gulley was driving west, and just this side of the first bridge out of town Mr. Youell's machine struck Mr. Gulley's truck, and came near pushing it over the fill at the bridge. The front wheel of Mr. Youell's machine was broken and the front fender torn off, and but little damage was done to Mr. Gulley's truck. The drivers of both machines escaped injury.

NEW ENTERPRISES

Exemption From Taxation For One, Means Exemption For All New Ones.

Some years ago it was common for business men's associations to give a new industry starting in their town some form of bonus. Sometimes it was a cash subscription to a stock. Frequently it would take the form of an exemption from taxation. But the results of this method have proved unsatisfactory in so many cases, that such scheme for attracting new concerns have to large extent been given up. It was too much tendency to get hold of drifters and floaters, who would run a shop as long as they got some special favors. When these expired, they might move elsewhere.

If you give exemption from taxation to one concern, you have to give it to all new ones. New enterprises which would have started even if no inducements were offered, will demand this privilege and the city or county will lose revenue.

It is more common to offer new industries start on their own merits. If they have good prospects, they should be able to secure financing through the banks. If chambers of commerce promote stock subscriptions to float a new company, and if the concern goes to pieces, a bad feeling is left that injures community development for many years.

STICK, BROTHER, STICK!

The middleman has always said and is still saying that the farmer would never successfully organize. They have advanced several reasons for this assertion, one of which is jealousy among themselves. The Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association has been organized, and the management from top to bottom is in the hands of direct farmers, and so far nothing but smooth sailing has been encountered. This baby association has the earmarks of becoming a life-size man. The eyes of the whole nation are now turned toward it. It's success means much to the tobacco grower and his future welfare. The men placed in charge are honest and have the success of the association at heart. They are entitled to the loyal support of every business man and farmer not only in Pendleton county but in the whole State. The men placed in charge of the warehouses are only human, and therefore subject to mistakes. Let every one—farmers and all—put their hummers in cold storage and become a booster for this association. Much depends upon the start that is made, and public opinion will either make this association or break it. If you have any vitriol in your mouth, wash it out with concentrated joy and let's show the world that the dirt farmer is equal in brains and business ability to any other set of men who breathe fresh air. If the farmer has the brains to feed the world he should have the brains to manage his own business. Stick, Brother, Stick!—Falmouth Outlook.

Ex-Circuit Court Clerk Charles Maurer and Jesse Kirkpatrick have been busy the past few days on their farm down on Ganpowder, grubbing and getting ready it is supposed, for a bumper crop the coming season.

BACK TO THE FARM

Where The Sun Shines Brighter, Grass Grows Greener and Birds Sing Sweeter

Tired of city life, the glare of electric lights, the noise of motor vehicles and factory whistles, Clint Weaver, after a year's sojourn in Burlington, moved back to his farm on Gunpowder creek, last Monday. No inducements, on the part of the citizens could persuade him to remain among them longer.

At a meeting of the members of the "Quit-cher-kickin' Club" last Saturday night, where he had spent many enjoyable evenings, he said, with tears in his eyes: "I am going back to the farm. away from the hustle and bustle, and cements walks of town, to the hills and valleys of Gunpowder, where all the variegated colors of the rainbow commingle in a wealth of luxuriant beauty, where the fragrance of the wild flowers and the tube rose, the lily of the valley and the sweet pea, the golden-rod and the blue-bells, the daisy and the evening shade, melt and mingle and give a combined sweetness to the winds from the four corners of the earth—where nature dips her brush in sunshine and moistens it with rain and spreads upon earth's canvass every shade of delicate coloring, from the pinkish sheen of the rose, to the deepest red of the magenta, the ruby—to the red which supplies the table with all the splendid vegetables that ripen under Dixie's sun."

"Back to the banks of Gunpowder creek, where the noise of the rippling water, wending its way to the beautiful Ohio, is sweet music to my ear, where the sunshines brighter, the grass grows greener and the birds sing sweeter; and at evening after Old Sol has disappeared behind the hills in the west, casting a shadow of darkness over the earth, and I can sit by the fireside and sing—

Away from the noise and crowds,
And the glare of the electric light;
Back to the hills of Old Gunpowder,
Where Hoot-Owls "hoot" at night."

FARMERS IN BAD SHAPE.

In his address before the Kentucky Legislature, last Thursday, William Jennings Bryan said:

"There can be no turn of prosperity until the farmer's conditions are improved. You cannot expect prosperity so long as the farmer must sell his product at pre-war prices."

"In all my experience I have never known the farmer to be in so bad a shape," he said. "The farmer was the first person picked on. He was a poor fellow. He was selling wheat in Illinois last year at a price as low as it was sold forty years ago."

This Congress, he said, referring to the national legislature, is not better nor worse than the preceding Congress, but it is worse scared by farmers. He said the pressure brought by the farmers for the passage of the bill regulating packing.

The Federal Reserve Board, he said, is the most important board in the country and yet three great groups are not represented on it. He declared that there should be a farmer, a laborer and a non-banker business man on it.

An amendment to a bill making this possible has passed the Senate. "We have to deal with the profiteer," he said. "We regulate banks and make them keep within certain rates of interest, but the merchant is not regulated and many charge as much as 100 per cent." He urged plain marking of wholesale and retail prices of goods.

A state trade commission, with power to inquire into all charges of extortion and to authorize all cities to do the same," he said. "If you create the machinery then it is the fault of the people if they do not use it."

He said that machinery must be had before anything can be done, for machinery is necessary in anything.

YAWNING—WONDERING

A visit to the temple of justice last Saturday afternoon we found our old bachelor friend, ex-County Clerk W. R. Rogers, sitting idle and yawning and wondering what's the matter, and other county officers vested with authority to celebrate connubial rites looking out their windows in vain for the coming of couples seeking matrimonial bliss. While the love-lorn swain hantes to wait with his only "ten-spot" when he fears financial conditions of the immediate future, and with commendable discretion decides to leave his intended a while longer with her daddy, who years ago learned the lesson well of how to make a living.

F. H. House bought a nice bunch of pigs of Mr. Martin, near town, last week. It will only be a short time before Mr. House will have them ready for market, as he is one of the best hog raisers in the county.

STATE NEWS.

ROTTEN CORN KILLS HORSE.

(Bowling Green News.)
Roy Ware, a farmer residing at Woodburn, lost a valuable horse Monday. The animal died from eating some rotten corn. Other farmers report that some of their horses have been sick from the same cause.

MOONSHINE PRICE LOWER.

(Georgetown Times.)
There was one load of Owen county whiskey which has never been put on the local market, which it is said, has recently dropped from $8 to $4 a quart. The load was in the custody of J. B. Towles, who was held to the grand jury on $200 bond.

DESPERATE SITUATION.

(M. E. Small in Carrollton News.)
Of all the afflictions that ever befall the human family it certainly is that old infernal county truck. It makes enough noise to wake up a dead man in Indiana. The city authorities have asked the county officials to stop it, and have been told that it could not be run any other way. Well, for goodness sake, junk it, run it in the river, drive a corn cob in the capunker—do some thing with it for its a disgrace to the county. Besides, it vices the State law. We all are expected to be law-abiding citizens, and why should that cursed old dog house be allowed to run around and disturb the peace of the good people? I have been eating a good many rabbits of late, and I am nervous anyway; every time I hear a dog bark I look for a sink hole to jump into, and right on top of all that I have to listen to the roar of that old truck.

HEART TROUBLE

Everett L. Helms Dies Suddenly at His Home in Petersburg.

One of the saddest deaths that has occurred in the county for some time was that of Everett L. Helms, who passed suddenly away at his home in Petersburg Thursday, Jan. 18, 1922, at 8:45 o'clock, from an affection of the heart, which he had had been a sufferer for many years. Although he was known to be in a serious condition, his death came as a severe shock to his family, relatives and friends.

Everett Lafayette Helms was born in Petersburg Sept. 7th, 1876, hence he was 46 years, 4 months and 14 days old. He was a son of Lafayette and Mary Helms, who preceded him to the grave several years ago. He was married to Nellie Josephine Krutz, April 18, 1877. This union was blessed with three children, who with the bereaved wife survive. The children are Elvin Earl, Edward Forrest and Frank Berkshire Helms, all at home. Besides his wife and children he leaves three sisters, Mrs. R. W. Clark, of Indiana, Mrs. Charles Ruth and Mrs. Everett Hensley, of Petersburg.

Everett Helms had been a citizen of Petersburg all of his life, where he had operated a barber shop since reaching manhood and was also in the real estate and insurance business. He was one of the most efficient young men the town of Petersburg ever had. All through his life he had been an industrious, hard worker, and was ever ready to lend his assistance to those in need, and he was held in the highest esteem by his neighbors, business associates and friends. His taking away just at this time is particularly sad, and the wife and three children have the sincere sympathy of every one.

The funeral services were held at the Christian church at Petersburg, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. E. C. Riley, after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at that place, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends. He was a member of the K. of P. and Odd Fellows lodges.

TOO SLICK FOR THE BOYS

Saturday there was so much ice on the roads that travel was dangerous. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers drove his horse from Walton to Burlington for the funeral of Mr. R. E. Clout, he left Walton at 6 a. m., and reached Burlington about 11 a. m. Mr. Charles Craig, with his bus from Rabbit Run, could go no further than Limburg where he turned around and took his passengers back. At one time the Limburg bus was blocked on account of automobiles and trucks having skidded into the ditch. Mr. Craig was nearly two hours late in making his trip with the mail.

RICHARD EDWARD CLOUD

Another Good Citizen Gone To His Reward.

Richard Edward Cloud died Jan. 18th, 1922, from an illness from which he had been suffering for several years. Mr. Cloud was born in Boone county June 15, 1857, and has resided in the county all of his life. He was one who was very quiet and unassuming, and one of our most respected citizens. He had been a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge for a number of years, and a regular attendant at its meetings, until his health began to fail, and he could no longer attend and associate with the members, which he so much enjoyed.

He is survived by his mother, one brother John W. Cloud and one sister, Mrs. Nora Walton, and a number of other relatives and friends to mourn his death. His remains were put in the vault in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Burlington last Saturday morning at 11 o'clock after a short service. C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

"One by one they pass down the valley."

Hold Your Nose

The making of "hootch" from raisins, prunes, potato parings, etc., is said to be nothing new in these parts. In fact, stories are rife as to how rotted sauer kraut has been responsible for a few healthy speers in "little old Ohio county."

But it remained for an inventive genius down in the southwest corner of the state to spring a new one—the horse manure cocktail, if you please. He had been suspected for some time of operating a still, and when it was finally discovered the "still" proved to be a big pile of horse manure anchored on a large draining board and set upon a sunny slope near the man's barn. The drippings from the pile ran down the board and into a large receptacle—the plan being the same as was used by your grandmother in extracting grease from wood ashes. The receptacle for the drippings was an old bath tub that had been discarded at a nearby county infirmary last fall. And, of course, the thoughts of that bath tub would not be pleasant to those who had quaffed of the drippings it had caught.

The man, so it is said, "fessed up" when his "still" was discovered, claiming that he had used manure from the stalls of healthy and healthy horses only and that the manure extract was but one of four ingredients used in the manufacture of his product.

Several men and boys in the neighborhood after learning of the manure story, were unable, it is said, to hold anything, except mustard plasters, on their stomachs for several days. It is claimed that some of them cannot yet look an old gray mare in the face without "throwing up."

Seriously, this is no joking matter and it looks as if the relentless (?) fight (?) of prohibition agents and other officials can only count for so much as long as the gay and festive bootlegger is near enough to a cow stable to be able to furnish his customers with a Holstein-Friesian frappe or a Polled-Angus fizz early enough in the morning to give them an appetite for breakfast.—Ohio County (Ind.) News.

KENTUCKY ANNUAL CROP SUMMARY, 1921.

A decrease of approximately $90,000, or about 40 per cent is shown in the value of Kentucky farmers' principal crops in 1921 compared to 1920, in the annual summary of acreage, production and farm value of crops, issued by the U. S. Bureau of Markets & Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. The total farm value of the chief crops, including apples, peaches and pears, was $137,596,000 in 1921 compared to $226,000,000 in 1920, although the acreage of fourteen principal field crops, not including orchards, was 5,791,000 acres in 1921, 4 per cent less than the 6,034,000 acres of those crops in 1920. Tobacco was the state's most valuable crop in 1921, being worth $50,485,000 compared to $71,000,000 in 1920. The state's total tobacco acreage in 1921 was 385,000 acres, which produced 325,710,000 pounds, of which about 221,000 acres, (190,171,000 pounds) was burley. In 1920 the state's tobacco acreage was about 500,000 acres, which produced 476,000,000 pounds, of which about 298,000 acres was burley which produced approximately 265,181 pounds.

NOTICE.

The members of the Florence Local of the Queen City Milk Producers Association will hold a meeting in I. O. O. F. Hall, Florence, Saturday January 28, 1922, at 7:30 P. M. on account of importance.

CLEM KENDALL, Secretary.

NEW SCHOOL BILL.

A bill has been introduced in the lower house to allow renewal of teacher certificates on certain conditions. There is only one condition on which a certificate should be granted and that on proper examination.

One of the main causes of the present poor conditions of the schools of Kentucky has been the granting of certificates to those who were not qualified.

We need more midnight oil used in preparing for lessons and examinations. As long as certificates can be renewed the cause for study does not exist.

We want to grant certificates on merit only. In the above mentioned bill is a clause that says provided the teacher attended a Normal School.

Sooner or later the Normal Schools will insist upon having the whole school system of the State as well as the entire school revenue turned over to them for allotment. They maintain a strong lobby before every session of the Legislature and expenses paid by the dear people.

These school heads are employed by the State to superintend their schools and not to look after the State Legislature, yet they can be found present at Frankfort every week of the session.—Owen County Democrat.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to express our gratitude and appreciation to one and all for the kindnesses and assistance rendered during the sickness and death of Richard Edward Cloud. Words fail us when we attempt to thank those who were so kind to us in our hour of sorrow.

THE FAMILY.
THE FAMILY.

HEALTH EXPOSITION

To Be Held at Louisville, February 1st to 9th.

Health, so long neglected as a vital domestic problem to be dealt with at the innermost councils of the family circle, is to be brought forcefully before every man, woman and child in the vast crowds who are expected to visit the National Health Exposition in Louisville February 1 to 9th.

There will be the live exhibits, the clinics, the free examinations; all so attractive to the public that none can pass without learning some little part of health conservation or sanitation that will prove so useful long after the move is unloading. Health, who the blessing light of the Exposition, have been housed and the busy hammers of the workmen have obliterated all sign of this wonderful array of exhibits. It is the purpose of those great health organizations, headed by the United States Public Health Service and the State Board of Health, who are conducting the Exposition, to promote better health in every home, to eliminate the tremendous yearly toll from preventable diseases and to instill into the minds and hearts of the laymen the need for right living, right eating and right exercise. The move is unloading and to which the medical profession has given unstinted service. None can say the present generation will receive but little reward for the care of the mind the body and the general health. All will benefit, and estimates as only estimates can be given, place the benefits in cold calculating figures at one added year to the average of each of those who attend the exposition.

The medical profession, surgery, chemistry, and all the allied sciences, have made such wonderful strides in the past decade that the time now ripe that this progress should be visualized to the public in such a manner as to be readily understood by the most unlearned layman as well as the most skillful surgeon or physician.

More than 5,000 persons will participate in the program, displays and demonstrations which will be carried out as the result of elaborate planning.

THE LONG WINTER EVENINGS.

In former days an enormous amount of cultural work was done as a result of long winter evenings. Country people used to spend an hour or two every night in reading. You could not fool them often on a political issue or a question of general intelligence. In these times when electric light systems turn night into day, and when there is much social life, the long winter evening has less significance.

Even in these hustling times, you find a lot of people in their quiet homes, digging into the problems of the day, or trying to make themselves more intelligent about their own calling.

The good old summer time brings to the people much in the way of automobile riding and sports and other pleasures of out door life. But winter with its chills and early darkness encourages seclusion and mental application. Ambitious people come through with broader intelligence and better informed minds.

MORE THAN 65,000 HUNTING LICENSES ISSUED

According to the executive agent of the Kentucky Game and Fish Commission more than 65,000 hunting licenses were issued to Kentucky gunners in 1921. The proceeds derived from hunting licenses, which cost $1 each, more than $65,000 was collected from the people for the pleasure of hunting and fishing. Besides the increase as shown in the number of hunting licenses, as stated by the executive agent, more game and more fish in 1921 were distributed in every district of Kentucky than any previous year. This is one of the laws that should be repealed by the Legislature.

Some of the congressmen are said not to attend the sessions regularly, but anyway they have to go to Washington to get jobs for their friends.

St. Louis is 19 miles long and 6 miles wide. The average city block is 400 feet long.

Here are eight well-known milk making feeds. You can buy them ready-mixed as Ce-re-a-lia Sweets. Or you can mix them yourself. Home mixing means tying up lots of money. You have to buy in immense quantities to get these good feeds cheaply. Even then—

Would you know just what proportion of each ingredient to use to get most milk and keep your cows in good physical shape? Could you be sure of a thorough mix? Could you add palatable cane molasses without making your feed lumpy—hard to handle? No.

But it can be done, is done with Ce-re-a-lia Sweets. We're so sure that Ce-re-a-lia will increase milk production that we offer:

Lloyd Weaver and Robert Popham delivered their crop of 2035 pounds of tobacco to "Pep" Smith, at Bellevue, last Thursday. Price 25 cents around.

Kentucky farmers and their wives who attend the tenth annual farm and home convention to be held at Lexington, January 31 and February 1, 2 and 3, will have an opportunity to hear some of the nation's foremost agricultural and home economics authorities according to Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture.

The "Old Kentucky House" will be built at the State fair grounds in Louisville this summer as a result of a gift of $25,000 by the Kentucky Jockey Club to be applied to the cost of the building. This became known when the office of W. C. Hanna, Commissioner of Agriculture, announced that the jockey club had contributed $25,000 toward the building.

A whale ran around in shallow water inside the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal and was killed by machine gun fire by canal employees, who undertook to salvage it for oil and bone. The whale was too heavy for the 75-ton railroad crane to handle, and a tug attached a line to the carcass and towed it to a point 12 miles outside the breakwater where a naval airplane dropped two bombs weighing 160 pounds each from a height of 1,000 feet and destroyed it.

On top of all the other troubles, the Republican party left a very bad taste in the country's mouth by seating Newberry. This man was indicted and convicted on a felonious charge and escaped because the Supreme Court found that the law specified "election" while the bribery charged was committed in a "primary election." He escaped by the saving grace of one word! What a splendid vindication! His family should adopt a coat of arms bearing a ten dollar bill rampant, standing triumphant over the remains of a tin Lizzie passant, with the motto in letters of gold: "By one word."

J. C. Stone, President of the Burley Co-operative Tobacco Association called a meeting of the Bankers in the Burley District at Lexington, last Saturday to discuss the question of financing the pooled tobacco until the $10,000,000 to be loaned by the United States government was available. About 200 banks were represented and they all agreed to loan on the warehouse receipts, or notes of the company the limit that could be loaned by law which is 20 per cent of their capital and surplus. A number of banks in the District not represented telegraphed President Stone their willingness to join in making the loan. The Burley Tobacco Society will deposit in the banks making the loan, their fund in proportion to the amount loaned, so that the funds will be kept as much as possible in the district in which it was loaned. Judge R. W. Hingham was present and said that he would loan the company, from his own personal fund $1,000,000. The Fifth Third National Bank of Cincinnati, pledged $500,000 as did the National Bank of Kentucky. Boone county was represented by A. B. Pensker, C. H. Youell, W. M. Whitson and C. C. Greene.

LEGION NOTES

Vigorous objection to the admission into the United States of Gregorie Semionoff, self-styled ataman (head-man) of the Russian Cossacks, has been made by the American Legion, appearing before the Secretary of Labor Davis. The Legion claims he is an undesirable alien. He has been granted permission to stay in the country for six months.

How much war trophies are actually worth depends on whose neck was risked to get them. John G. James' room in an Omaha, Nebraska, boarding house was rifled of all his A. E. F. souvenirs from a medal-laden belt captured from a German major, iron crosses picked from the battle-fields, the gas mask he had used in many battles, Red Cross bags containing shrapnel extracted from his wounds, a silver cigarette case taken from a German prisoner, to his American button. He told the court they worth $10,000. But the law only compelled the landlord to pay $50, because the trophies were in a suitcase at the time they were stolen.

Thousands of disabled soldiers who should be in hospitals are forced to work and support their families because their compensation claims have not been allowed, according to the American Legion. Harford MacNider, commander, has called upon the Veterans' Bureau to effect the prompt adjustment.

Every town of 500 or more persons in Minnesota has an American Legion post, Gopher state records show. Five hundred and thirteen posts and 275 Auxiliary units have been organized since July 1919.

Beaten up by a gang of railway thieves, Detective J. C. Rodlinski of Salamanca, N. Y., was spared from death when one of the thugs spied a Marine service button in his lapel and recognized the detective as a former buddy in France.

Among the New Year greetings received by Sanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion, was a beautifully engraved card which read: "Happy New Year. May you, if you get in jail through sentence affirmed by the United States Supreme Court, receive from Harding, as did Debs, a pardon and a reception in the White House."

The proper care of disabled and unemployed ex-soldiers should come before the erection of expensive war memorials, according to the American Legion's legislative committee, which has condemned the plan of the George Washington Memorial Association to gain state support in erecting a Victory building in Washington, D. C. President Harding is reported as having endorsed the project and written to governors of the states recommending aid.

The act of a Toledo judge in refusing citizenship to two foreign-born residents who avoided war service because of "conscientious objections" has been commended by the Tony Wroblewski post, American Legion, composed entirely of foreign-born Americans and sons of foreign-born residents.

Formation of a new political organization, to be known as the Soldiers' Party, advocated by Wm. B. Grimes, in a letter to an American Legion newspaper of Toledo, Ohio. Grimes was a lieutenant in the A. E. F.

With forest logs hewn and hauled by their own hands, American Legion men at Stigler, Okla., have erected an "overgrown cabin" for a clubhouse, where, before two roaring fires, they can gather on wintry nights to fight the war over again in comfort.

Special police patrols to stem the existing crime wave have been organized by posts of the American Legion in Nebraska and Georgia, many unemployed ex-service men obtaining a livelihood by guarding large residential districts.

Prisoners in the Los Angeles county jail have been borrowing American Legion buttons to obtain sympathy in the courts on the ground of "war record." Investigation has shown that one button and one war record has served for a whole handful of prisoners.

By floating a $25,000 bond issue, El Paso, Texas, has become the first city in America to attempt to finance a permanent American Legion home by municipal bonds.

Mrs. Claude Stephenson, Dead.
Myrtle Clore Stephenson, wife of Claude Stephenson, after an extended illness of tuberculosis, died at her home near Hebron Jan. 21, 1922. She was 29 years, 3 months and 29 days old at the time of her death. She leaves a husband and three children and a host of friends to mourn her loss. Her remains were interred in Hebron cemetery. C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral.

POOL WAREHOUSES OPEN TO RECEIVE CROPS JANUARY 30

Lexington Plants Begin Business
Four Days Earlier Than in Other Parts of District—Louisville Banks Notify Bing-ham Loan Is Ready When Called For

Suspense of tobacco growers who are members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association in regard to the time the association would open the warehouses to receive the pooled crops was ended Tuesday, when the board of directors authorized Director of Warehouses Ralph M. Barker to open the warehouses in Lexington Thursday, January 26, and the warehouses in all other towns in the burley district, on the following Monday, January 30.

The directors also adopted the report of the committee on insurance, composed of Bush W. Allin, Harrodsburg, and John R. Versailles, which awarded all the insurance on the 117 warehouses and their equipment to the local agents of the district, to be placed directly by them; gave to Reutlinger and Company, Louisville, the insurance on tobacco throughout the district, in warehouses or in transit, in connection with the local agents and on a general cover form; placed the bond business with J. Morton Morris, Louisville, in association with local agents, and the employers' liability part of the association's business with Thomas S. Dugan, Louisville, in connection with the local agents.

The executive committee of the association will keep in touch with the insurance generally and the concerns other than local agents, placing the business will be allowed agency expenses before dividing their commissions with the local agents.

Large Sum Involved.

The insurance on the tobacco will run into large figures, it was said Tuesday, but most of it is likely to be so-called "short-term" insurance, that is, running for but a few months of the year, while the insurance on the real property and equipment, which goes to local agents, of course, permanent.

Bush W. Allin, second vice-president of the association, and John L. Buckley, assistant director of warehouses, are in Washington to present the petition of the association for a loan of $10,000,000 from the War Finance Corporation, to be used to refund to banks which advance money to the association to pay growers on the delivery of their crops.

With the last of the difficulties attending the start of the association ironed out, assurances already given of the aid of the War Finance Corporation and the support of the banks which advised their depositors to join the association and promised in advance all the help possible, President James C. Stone and his associates were optimistic over the outlook for the resumption of business in the tobacco district and a general improvement in business in the tobacco district and a general improvement in business of all kinds as a result.

$115,000 Placed in Kentucky

In a letter to the association Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill reported that the War Finance Corporation had loaned during the week ending January 7, or made arrangement to loan to farmers and live stock growers, a total of $8,875,000. Of this amount, Mr. Cantrill said, $115,000, had been advanced to agricultural organizations in Kentucky.

The banks of Louisville have notified Judge Bingham, director-at-large of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association and founder of the organization, that the proposed loan of $1,500,000 asked by the association and previously agreed upon is ready for the association on the call of its officials. All the commercial banks of Louisville participate in the loan. The amount is the limit they can advance at one time under the law.

HIRING AND FIRING.

It costs $100 to make a change in an office clerk or similar worker, according to the figures of the National Employment Board. The losses caused by inexperience and errors of a new employe, and the time it takes to give instruction, are equivalent to that expenditure.

People who do poor work should not thereby be encouraged in carelessness, thinking that their employers will put up with their mistakes rather than make a change. The tendency of employers is in the opposite direction. They get so disgusted with poor work that they "fire" employes with little thought that the ones who take their places may be no better, and will require even more coaching. But it pays to show patience with any worker who manifests willingness. Sometimes those who learn the slowest, are the most dependable when their working habits are well established.

Harry Ackmyer, who resided for a number of years near Bullittsville, has been in the county a few days the past week representing a nursery.

DOINGS AT FRANKFORT

A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives at Frankfort to compel land owners along the public highways to maintain and keep open the regular ditches and drains. All persons owning land abutting or bordering the public highways are required to observe the provisions of the law, and its enforcement is left to the county road engineers. Upon continued failure of the land owner to make proper ditches the county engineer may have the work done and force the property owner to pay by use of the courts of the Commonwealth.

A bill has been introduced in the State Senate to provide for an appropriation of $30,000 to complete the monument of Jefferson Davis at Fairview, Todd county, Kentucky.

Representative E. A. Gullion of Henry county today introduced in the House a bill to give Quarterly and Magistrate's Courts jurisdiction in cases of violation of the State prohibition laws. The bill is sponsored by the prohibition forces which believe that by trying cases in lower courts they will be able to get more convictions than are possible before Circuit Court juries, who often get a case five or six months after the arrest.

Prisoners sentenced for life for capital offenses would be paroled at the end of ten years, those sentenced for life for other offenses at the end of twelve years, and all others, when half the sentences had expired, under a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Ira D. Smith of Hopkinsville. The present law is eight years for life and half of the sentence for all others.

A bill providing for a bonus of $10 a month for every Kentuckian who was in the World War, for each month he was in, not to exceed 25 months, was introduced in the House of Representatives by S. W. Adams, of Kenton county.

The measure provides for a bond issue of $10,000,000 for payment of the bonus. The bond issue will be voted on at the election in November, 1922.

It also provides for a property tax of 5 cents on the $100 to retire the bonds and creates a commission composed of the governor, adjutant general, auditor and secretary of state, to be known as the Soldiers' Compensation Board of Kentucky. The board is granted $15,000 for expenses.

Indigent blind persons in Kentucky will receive pensions of not to exceed $200 a year from the charities of the state if a bill which received its first reading in the House, and which will be reported favorably in the Senate, is passed.

The bill, fathered by Representative C. B. Truesdell, of Campbell county, has as its aim, it is said, the stopping of blind persons begging on the streets. The Senate Committee on Public Institutions today voted to report the bill favorably.

The soldier bonus bill, carrying with it a provision for a $10,000,000 bond issue and a five-cent tax to provide a sinking fund, will come up for hearing before the House Committee on Appropriations.

An influenza epidemic is reported in London, and the medical authorities of the country fear that it will spread over the country. It is due, they say, primarily to the unprecedentedly warm winter that has prevailed in England. Fortunately this influenza germ is of a very mild character.

Debs seems to be a hero—at least he is in Terre Haute, where the socialist mayor kissed him twice. Most folks who have seen 'Gene would decline to kiss him more than once. By the way, what is happening to his party? In the recent election in New York City it almost disappeared—but that is the common history of new parties; if they can not win in the second or third attempt, they fade away. They can not live on hope alone.

Senator Boise Penrose, of Pennsylvania, died recently leaving an estate of several million dollars. He also left a stock of whiskies, wines and brandies in his cellar valued at $250,000. It will be remembered that Senator Penrose warned all his friends that prohibition was coming and he laid in a supply before the fall of John Barleycorn. The executors of his estate will not have any trouble finding relatives who will claim their share of these co-web goods.

Motor company figures show that there were produced in this country during the calendar year of 1921, 1-635,000 passenger automobiles, 1-145,000 trucks, as against 1,883,158 passenger cars and 322,000 trucks in the calendar year 1920. The decline, although considerable in trucks, was not nearly so large in passenger cars as might have been supposed. In 1918 the production was 1,657,000 passenger cars and 316,000 trucks. So recently as 1911 the passenger car production was only 199,319 and the truck production 10, 56.

STATE'S CORN YIELD CUT BY UNFIT SOILS.

Kentucky farmers are using much poor soil for corn production which if seeded to grass instead of corn would return them a greater profit and make their farms more productive, soils and crops specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Use of this poor land for corn production is one of the principal reasons for the low average corn yield of the State, they declare.

In 1919, the average corn yield for the State was only 22 bushels an acre. Over a ten-year period, it is slightly higher, being about 28 bushels an acre. The average yield in the poorer counties is less than 15 bushels an acre, this yield being too low to be profitable, according to the specialists. On the other hand the better corn counties of the State produce an average of about 40 bushels of the grain an acre, a yield high enough to be profitable.

The labor expended in plowing, preparing the seed bed and cultivating land that produces 15 bushels of corn an acre is practically the same as that required by land that produces 50 bushels of corn an acre.
R. E. Stephenson, a member of the department said, "The poor land will not pay tillage costs and when tilled is made still poorer because the tillage encourages leaching and erosion losses.

"On the other hand, if the poor land is seeded to grass there are no tillage costs after the stand is secured. If the weeds are controlled and some attention given to fertilization, grass land usually becomes better while producing a pasture return. The same poor soil if cropped continuously will produce low yields and grow poorer.

"Japan clover and red top are the two pasture crops adapted to poor land. If treated with acid phosphate, there is no soil in the State too poor to grow either of these crops. The red top will supply May and June pasture while the Japan clover will afford good pasture during July, August, September and October. Five pounds of resealed red top and 10 pounds of Japan clover are about the proper amounts to seed.

SAVING CHILLED LAMBS
PREVENTS HEAVY LOSSES

Chilling of a new-born lamb, which is responsible for a heavy loss suffered each year by Kentucky sheep raisers, may be avoided by taking the chilled animals to the fire and gradually warming them either by placing them in warm water or by covering them with bran or cloths, sheep specialists say. Chilling is one of the most important points for sheep men to guard against during lambing season.

"A day or two before the lamb is due, the ewe should be placed by herself so that there will be no danger of injury from crowding," L. J.
Hoscher, sheep specialist at the College of Agriculture has emphasized in suggestions to farmers. "The grain ration should be reduced and nothing but good, clean, bright hay, clover or alfalfa, should be fed.

"If the ewes have plenty of exercise during the winter and are in a healthy, vigorous condition, they will require little attention and may lamb in the open with safety as long as the weather continues to be mild. However, if the ewes are sluggish and over-fat, the lamb may be weak when born and for this reason, it is necessary that it be assisted in nursing as soon as possible.

"In cases where the ewe refuses to own her lamb, the difficulty may be overcome by drawing some of the mother's milk on it. In extreme cases it may be necessary to tie the mother so that she cannot get away.
After the young animals have nursed a few times, they should be able to take care of themselves.

"For the first two or three days after lambing, the ewe should receive little or no grain, but should be given all the hay she will eat. A heavy grain ration may cause an excess of milk which results in milk fever. About three days after the lamb is born, a small amount of grain made up of equal parts of oats and bran may be fed with good results. This should be increased gradually until at the end of two weeks the ewe is receiving about one pound of grain a day."

PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

In former years courses of lectures were exceedingly popular. Too few towns have of this kind now. But probably more places would have lecture courses, if they knew people who would give interesting addresses without too high charges.

What is wanted is not too flashy oratory or funny stories, but a thorough survey of some live topic, giving new conceptions of some pending problem, enlivened by personal observations to the subject under discussion.

The Findlay, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce has performed a notable service, by organizing a speaker's bureau through which organizations desiring speakers could secure them.
The suggests the idea that there should be as a part of the educational system of Kentucky some central bureau where competent speakers could be registered, and where organizations could be sure of finding lecturers who would please and instruct their audiences.

The slippery condition of the streets, last Saturday and Sunday, caused pedestrians to walk around like they were "stewed up" on moonshine.

WILL CHANGE SCHOOL LAW

The new school law in Kentucky has become so unpopular and takes the school management so far away from the hands of the patrons of the rural districts that there seems to be a determined move upon the part of the members of the Legislature, to give the people such a change as will place the election of the County Superintendents again in the hands of the people and give the trustee in each and every district the right to employ the teacher.

The present system makes no one responsible for the failure of the County Superintendents to fully discharge their duties.

There seems to be a class of people in Kentucky who feel that the masses are not qualified to govern themselves, but would judgment the more power placed in the hands of this special class the higher taxes go and the smaller the returns to the taxpayers.

The election of officials by the popular vote of the people keeps the officers directly responsible to them for their stewardship while drawing the public fund. This is the Democratic form of government and there is no better. The man or set of men who think they can improve upon it are wrong.—Owen County Democrat.

UNHATCHED CHICKENS.

The Republican leaders are putting out claims showing that they are going to reduce the expenditures of the government for the year ending in 1923, by $2,000,000,000. That is much like counting chickens before they are hatched. It is one thing to
going to cost, and another thing to run the government on any such amount.

The general sentiment of public officials will be against making these reductions. Every department will be disposed to feel that cutting down its funds work against its efficiency and prevent it taking up needed lines of work. So there will be powerful pressure brought to bear on Congress by department officials, not to reduce the appropriations as suggested.

All kinds of political appeals and roll calling pulls will be worked to persuade the congressmen to keep the total up. The members will have their private schemes and projects for the benefit of their own localities. When they get through with all these pork barrel plans, the reduced budget is likely to look very sick.

A great deal more must be done for the disabled soldiers. A policy of economy that denies justice to the men who gave up their health for their country will be a policy of shame. Public sentiment seems likely to demand adjusted compensation for the service men. The fellows who worked for $1.00 a day in the trench and camps, while others were making money handsomely at home, can not be left without further help in these hard times.

When all these claims are taken care of, the prospective economies may have all disappeared into thin air. The administration should be given credit for whatever readjustment it works, but it is not entitled to credit for any that are just future pipe dreams. And often an apparent saving is not real, because a deficit has been incurred that the next congress has to make up.

LEGUMES GOOD TONIC
FOR WORN OUT SOILS.

Large areas of poor soils in Kentucky such as clover could be improved for crop production if more legumes, such as clover, cowpeas and soy beans were grown on them, specialists at the College of Agriculture say.
At the present time, the State has only about one acre of legumes, not including Japan clover, to every 30 acres of improved land or about one and one-half acres to each farm, an amount which is much too small to maintain soil fertility, the specialists say. Legumes, which have been a neglected crop in the State up to the present time, are of more value than any other class of crops when the fertility of the soil is considered, according to the specialists.

Red clover is to the principal legume grown at the present time with soybeans second and cowpeas third.
Japan clover grows wild extensively in the State and is sometimes seeded. Alfalfa is grown largely in two counties while several others have small areas. Sweet and alsike clover complete the legumes used by farmers in the State.

The chief advantage of legumes is the fact that they replenish the nitrogen supply of poor soils, the specialists say. As soon as the nitrogen supply has been furnished, the soils respond to treatment with phosphate fertilizers, thus making it possible for the farmer to rebuild them to a point where they produce larger crop yields.

The State should have at least 1-500,000 acres of clover alone for hay and soil improvement on cultivated land, according to the specialists.
Most of the pasture land of the State also should be seeded with a mixture containing a legume. In cases where the soil requires liming before legumes can be made a success, the specialists have recommended that annual legumes be grown. Crops of this kind such as cowpeas, need to be followed by a fall cover crop, such as rye, to prevent erosion losses, which, in some cases, are greater than the gain from growing legumes.

Trade Where They All Trade

These Better Feeds Bring Better Results

Yes—better results than the ration you are now using, no matter what the latter is—that's what Pratt's Laying Mash will do. This is a strong statement but we know it—have proved it—absolutely guarantee it, thus:
"Your Money Back If YOU Are Not Satisfied."

Pratt's Laying Mash With Buttermilk

Is the greatest egg-making feed ever used. Its remarkable superiority has been strikingly shown by extended comparative tests at the big, Pratt's Poultry Experiment Farm and other poultry plants. Make a similar test at our risk. Your layers will make bigger egg-records—will produce eggs at lower feed cost—will increase your income.
If not, ask for and get your money back.
Start now when the extra eggs will bring you real money.

Pratt's Scratch Feed is a good working-partner with Pratt's Laying Mash. But surely use the Mash—it contains the right percentage of quality buttermilk to help get what you want—more eggs.

The Enquirer in commenting on an address made by Senator A. O. Stanley, on the subject "The Constitution" says in part:

Aroused into action by the vivid consciousness of the fact that the tendency toward centralization of government, is threatening the abolition of the autonomy of the state, which can only mean the destruction of the liberty of the citizen and the ending of the life of the republic, United States Senator Augustus O. Stanley, of Kentucky, recently before a gathering of 500 members of the business community of Chicago, delivered what well may be described as one of the master arguments in support of the Federal Constitution. As an historical and legal analysis of American Government, it ranks as a classic, and as a review of the origin and growth of Anglo-Saxon law in concise and succinct terms it easily deserves the title of a final authority. Viewed as a prophecy of conditions to come unless the old charted course of the fathers, is steered, it is alarming because of the conviction it carries.

In the main it is a philippic against the invasion of personal rights, the home dwelling and the affairs of business in general by clouds of spies, armed officials and prying inspectors, and the taking upon itself by the Federal Government of the regulation, restriction and supervision of almost every walk of life. With Edmund Burke, the Kentucky statesman believes that "all innovation is not progress," and he hurls his matchless mind and eloquent voice against the despots of today, who, ghoul-like, seek to exhumate the "dead and buried despotisms of the past."

The address smells very strongly of liquor and the effort to enforce the Volstead law.

TOBACCO POOLERS

Be very careful in stripping you tobacco, keeping each grade to itself, both in regard to color, length and texture, for on the grading depends, to a very great extent, the price.

Be sure that you have each grade on separate sticks. Don't mix the grades on the sticks, as tobacco will be "stick graded" and the lowest grade on the stick will govern the grade.

The same thing applies to the hand. Do not mix grades in the hand.

Do not hang your sticks too full. Eighteen to twenty hands keeps your tobacco straight when you bulk it.

When you get through stripping a crop you are ready to deliver and not before.

The whole crop must be delivered the same day, or all of each grade. That is, if you cannot haul all of your crop, you must deliver all of each grade when you start delivery.

There are always two "grades" in each grade, for instance; "Trash 1st and 2nd." Leaf, lugs and all grades have first and second, so keep them separate.

PETERSBURG.

Our local shoe repairer is kept close to his bench most of the time.
Mrs. E. A. Stott and son Gaines, are visiting her mother in Indianapolis, this week.
Born to Hugh McMullen and wife, twins, a son Ralph Hubert and a daughter Grace.
Mrs. Josephine Baker was visiting Lewis Rector and family, Saturday night and Sunday.
Mrs. Lullie Gordon spent several days last week in Burlington on business and visiting relatives.
The attendance at E. L. Helms funeral was the largest that we have witnessed here for many years.
We are glad to report the sick improving except Fleet Huffman, who does not improve as rapidly as we would like.
Mr. and Mrs. Mason, of Buffalo, New York, the latter being Mr. Bradburn's daughter, are guests here for a couple of weeks.
Mrs. E. L. Grant shipped 40 hens on E. A. Stott's truck to the city one day last week which brought her $22.60 per dozen. Who can beat that. Let us hear from you.
The sudden death of E. L. Helms last Thursday at 8 o'clock a. m. came as a shock to the citizens of the town. The day before he seemed much better, after only a few days of illness, but took suddenly worse that morning and only survived a few hours. The cause of his death was a hemorrhage on the brain. He leaves to mourn his demise a wife, three sons Evan Earl, Eddie and Frank, a mother, five sisters, an aunt and many other relatives and friends. After funeral services at the church conducted by Bro. E. C. Riley, his remains were placed in the vault by C. Scott Chambers, the undertaker until interment. The family have the sympathy of the community.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON*Heavy Snow Causes Roof Of Theatre To Collapse—Over 300 Killed and Injured.

Washington, D. C.—Official police records early placed the known dead at 107.

The list of injured stood at 134, with 14 listed as "seriously injured." The official list, according to authorities, contained the names of all those whose bodies had been recovered up to midnight.

The volunteer workers, including police, firemen, marines and cavalry from Ft. Myer, virtually had concluded their search of the wreckage at midnight, the only portion of what had been the orchestra remaining to be searched being a far corner, in which it was not expected additional bodies would be found.

All of the eastern states were covered with a blanket of snow two feet deep, and the weight of the snow on the roof of the theater caused it to collapse.

Under Angel's Wing

Sleeping peacefully beneath the debris in the wrecked Knickerbocker Theater, two girls, approximately 4 and 6 years, were found by rescuers, ten hours after the playhouse roof had fallen. Apparently, neither of the children was hurt severely. They were taken to a hospital without identification.

Four hours earlier a five-year-old girl was seated between the bodies of two women. Her life evidently had been saved by falling between the seats and the protection given to her by the bodies of two women, who were killed beside her.

The last person to be taken from the ruins was Dr. Scott Montgomery of Washington, who was rescued 12 hours after the roof collapsed. He was pinned by his legs underneath a beam, which killed a young woman whom he had escorted to the theater.

The beam was part of the structure of the balcony and literally was a key log in the jam above him. It took hours to assemble the hydraulic jacks from the navy yard, which were the only things adequate to lift the heavy weight the necessary distance to free him.

Physicians plied him with restoratives during the night, but he died soon after he was taken from the building.

Representative J. H. Johnson, Republican representative from Breathitt and Lee counties, was unseated and Bryce Cundiff, Democrat seated in his stead, by a strictly party vote of 62 to 30. The evidence showed that the election was so corrupt that the Republicans wanted the House of Representatives to declare that no election had been held and that a special election be called, and a successor be elected to Mr. Johnson.

The state Senate refused to unseat William Wallace, Republican, of Richmond, notwithstanding the fact that the contest was instituted by a Democrat, R. C. Oldham, of Richmond. The contest was based entirely on technical grounds. In this the Senate was right, a Senator should not lose his seat in a contest when there has been a fair election, although there may have been technical errors, so long as the vote there has been no fraud. It can not be said that, in these two counties, the members of the General Assembly acted for purely political purposes, if so, Senator Wallace would have been unseated, as the Senate is so close that the Democrats would be in a better position, politically, if a Democrat had been seated in place of Senator Wallace. In the Johnson-Cundiff contest, if reports are true, the frauds perpetrated in that election could only be compared with the frauds perpetrated in an election held in Louisville not so many years ago.

PLANT SUPPLY BIG FACTOR IN TOBACCO CROP SUCCESS.

Success in growing a good crop of tobacco depends largely upon having plenty of healthy, sticky plants to set the crop at the most favorable time, specialists in the crop say. Included among the requirements for such plants are an application of commercial fertilizer for the plant bed, a bed composed of rich, fresh soil, thorough sterilization of the bed, and early seeding, according to E. J. Kinney, tobacco specialist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

"Two pounds for 30 feet of bed nine feet wide or two pounds for each square foot of the bed of a fertilizer containing about three per cent nitrogen, eight per cent phosphoric acid and three per cent potash makes a satisfactory application," Mr. Kinney said. "The fertilizer may be applied after the bed is burned and should be raked into the soil thoroughly. In case the plants do not seem to be growing well, it has been found that an additional fertilization with nitrate of soda produces satisfactory results. Ten lbs. of the nitrate should be dissolved in a barrel of water and about five gallons of this mixture applied to each 200 square feet of the bed. It is a good plan to follow the application of the nitrate with clear water as the small plants may be injured by the solution sticking to the leaves."

"In sections of Western Kentucky, the favorite place for making the bed is in a small clearing in the woodland. An old fence row frequently is used or a good piece of heavy sod land where no new land is available. In the White Burley section of the State, most beds are made on old blue grass and land."

"Thorough sterilization of the plant bed to kill weed seeds is an important step in securing strong plants. A better method of sterilizing than burning and one which does not require the use of wood is steam sterilization. This is practiced quite extensively in parts of Western Kentucky and is gaining favor in the Burley section. Sterilization of the beds is best done in the spring."

"The beds should be seeded just as early in the spring as the ground can be worked. In many seasons, it is possible to sow the seed in February. A level teaspoonful for each 100 square feet of bed will give a thick stand and insure strong, and healthy plants."

Farmers who wish detailed information concerning the experiences of the station in managing tobacco plant beds may secure it by writing the station at Lexington.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Kreylich entertained a number of her friends last Saturday evening and all had a very enjoyable time.

ooo

The county examination was held at the High School building, last Friday and Saturday. A large number of students were present, twelve of which were from this school.

The high school enjoyed an interesting program last Friday morning, given by the grades. A recitation "Mandy's Wedding," was given by Miss Mattie Kreylich.

The Scot tragedy, "Macbeth," received an impressive interpretation at the hands of Walter Hampden and his associate players at the Shubert Theater last Thursday. As the over-ambitious Macbeth, spurred on to higher titles than the one bestowed upon him by King Duncan for his valorous conduct on the field of battle, Walter Hampden is the acme of histrionic perfection, reading beautiful Shakespearean lines with clear diction and portraying the character of the conscience-stricken monarch with remarkable conviction.

Mary Hall was superb in the role of Lady Macbeth, who urges her husband to deeds of treachery in order that her ambition to become Queen may be satisfied. Her artistic acting in the scene in which she induces Macbeth to slay the sleeping King, who is spending the night at their castle, commanded respect and won the high approval of a discriminating audience.

Much might be said about the staging of the play, which was up to the usual Hampden standard of excellence. The lighting effects, especially in the scenes between Macbeth and the three witches, were particularly effective.

A number of High School pupils attended the performance. All of the faculty, Prof. Kiskey, Misses Grow, Kreylich, Clore and Turner, were with the pupils.

ATTENTION! CHESTER WHITE BREEDERS.

All breeders and every member of the Boone County Chester White Breeders Association are urged to be present at the annual meeting Monday Feb. 6th at 1 p. m. Election of officers and important reports are on the program.

"PAY ROLL BANDITS."

The alarming increase of robberies often accompanied by murder, of men conveying pay roll cash from banks to factories, indicates that particularly desperate and daring thieves have specialized in this field. Less picturesque than the banditry that once flourished in the mountain fastness of Italy and Spain and which is at this day languishing as a trade even in Mexico, these American brigands execute their well-planned plundering expeditions with a thoroughness and ruthlessness that make the old-time highwaymen seem like bungling and soft-hearted amateurs.

If crimes of this sort are allowed to continue—and continue increasing in frequency and fatality—our industrial communities will witness a veritable reign of terror. That such robberies should be possible is a reflection on our civilization and on our financial integrity. Why should not the contents of the pay envelope have the same advantages of security and convenience in transfer that all other payments have in this day and age? Is there any good reason why wages, as well as salaries and payments for material and supplies, should not be made by check?

The totting of thousands of dollars (through the streets in cash is an actual temptation to crime. It was to prevent the loss of money in transit that checks and drafts were invented about 500 years ago. As everybody knows from everyday experience, it is not "money" but credit that is really transferred in the payment of wages, as in the payment of all other debts. Why should we remain 500 years behind the times in this matter? Is it part of the pernicious perpetuation of the money myth?

CISTERN WATER

(By F. C. Dugan.)

State Sanitary Engineer.

The necessary size of the cistern will depend on the amount of water used by the family, the annual rainfall in the locality and the size of the contributing roof area. Generally speaking, in this State a cistern should hold about two months' supply of water.

The cistern may be built of concrete or cemented brick, but in either case it must be water-tight, not only to prevent the loss of the stored water, but to prevent the entrance of ground water. If the cistern is built of concrete and the surrounding soil is loose and exerts a decided pressure on the walls, the latter should be reinforced close to the surface.

Roofs, particularly shingle roofs, collect much dust and dirt from the roads, and gutters and eave troughs are often filled with leaves, dirt and bird droppings. It is extremely important that a switch and bypass be provided on the rain water pipe, so that, at the beginning of rains, the filth from the roof may be drained to the outside before any rain water is admitted to the cistern.

In addition to keeping out the first washings from the roof, it is advisable to construct a small filter. This filter is placed outside the cistern and is a brick or concrete box containing gravel, sand and charcoal, the water passing through it before entering the cistern.

To protect further the users of the water, hypochlorite of lime—one ounce to 5,000 gallons of water—should be put in the cistern at frequent intervals.

PIPES FOR WOMEN.

(Indianapolis News.)

Many persons who are raising their voices in protest against the use of tobacco by women had grandmothers who smoked. The grandmothers did not smoke to be fashionable or sporty. They used a clay pipe with a reed stem and the tobacco was long green. After it had been cured by hanging in the barn or the smoke house, it was ready for use. If there were objections to tobacco smoke in the sitting room, grandmother went to the kitchen where she lit her pipe with a live coal. She smoked solely because she liked it.

There came a time when women shunned tobacco, but now some of the stores are showing pipes for women. They come in little velvet lined cases and have push bits so they can be unjointed and packed away in a small space. A dispatch from New York says that women are smoking long slim cigars. Tobacco is tobacco, regardless of the form in which it is used. It may be wrapped in tobacco and called a cigar, or it may have a paper wrapper and be known as a cigarette. It can be smoked in a pipe or chewed, and years ago it was pulverized and popularized in the form of snuff. Perhaps some of the young women who are learning to smoke, not because they like it, but because they think that it is smart, are reverting to the days of their grandmothers.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

LET'S GO.

"The Banker attends the bankers convention, the merchant attends the merchants convention, the Doctor attends the Doctor's convention. Then why isn't it profitable for the farmer to attend all Farm Bureau Conventions and all other conventions every farmer should be interested in?"

Let our membership motto for the year 1922, be, "I will not criticize or condemn the Boone County Farm Bureau for failure to get results I desire accomplished, unless I, myself, have personally given time, thought and effort to help get results therefore."

You are supposed to pay your dues to the Farm Bureau before asking benefits of it, as your dues are the only finance we have.

There never was a time when there was greater need for the Farm Bureau people to stand shoulder to shoulder, than there is today. It is an organization to help us help ourselves in an organized way, and the individual member must feel that he has a duty to perform in helping pull himself out of this terrible condition, in which agriculture now finds itself. It is hard to tell just when the condition is going to get better. Oft times it is darkest, just before the dawn. This responsibility is upon each one of us. During the next year we must solidify the Farm Bureau Organization and present a united phalanx of loyal members, ready to move forward wherever the armor of justice leads them. Every member of the Farm Bureau must find his own particular work to do and do it. That is the chief responsibility of more than a million farmers in this nation, who make up the Farm Bureau Federation.

Practically every Farm Bureau member is talking co-operative buying and selling these days, and especially, should we stress the latter, when we take into consideration the almost ruinous prices farm products are bringing. Unquestionably we can secure a better market for the things we labor so hard to produce, if we act as a body, and not as an individual.

Ask your neighbors to join the Farm Bureau. We are asking each of our members to invite their neighbors and friends to join the Boone County Farm Bureau. We feel it is the duty of every member to give his neighbor and friends this opportunity and privilege of becoming affiliated with our organization. Certainly every man is interested in the development of his community. This can only be accomplished through organization and close co-operation with your neighbor. It can best be done by becoming a member of the Farm Bureau.

Let every member be a booster of the Farm Bureau and add four hundred new members by July 1, 1922. Let this be our Spring Campaign Slogan.

Mr. Farmer, if you are not already a member, why not join now and help to pull this program over the top? Why stay in a rut, when the Farm Bureau will help you out if you give it a chance? A rut is only a grave, with both ends kicked out. Join with us and help to secure for Agriculture, those things that are fair and just. We do not ask for more, and we will not be satisfied with less.

There are many things that we have done in Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-one.

There are many things we hope to do in Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-two.

We shall not fail, it is plain to see, if we have co-operation from you and me.

We had problems to solve, but we worked to win.

If you were not a member you should have been.

So a new resolution to you we suggest, join the Farm Bureau and help yourself.

In so doing you will help to win the fight for the things that are just and fair and right.

Don't sit on the side lines and boast and knock, while we grow as strong as Gibraltar Rock.

But instead, be a booster and pull with your might, it will encourage the cause and help a sight.

Remember the motto of our State so grand, "Divided we fall, United we stand."

So the thing to do is to make a vow to come in—AND DO IT NOW.

CARD OF THANKS.

In this manner we wish to express our appreciation for the kindness shown us by our many friends and neighbors in the death of our husband and father, Everett L. Helms, and especially to Bro. E. C. Riley for the kind words of condolence, to the choir and different Lodges, also floral offerings, and to Mr. C. Scott Chambers for the efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral. Mother and Children.

TWO SPOTS.

People make fun of the old fashioned country motto, "God bless our home," but it's better than the usual city apartment sign, "No children allowed."

RUSH PRELIMINARY WORK ON NATION-WIDE HIGHWAY SYSTEM.

Highway construction will not be delayed by the requirements of the new Federal highway act. The Federal highway system will consist of roads not exceeding 7 per cent of the total in any State, designated by the State and approved by the Secretary of Agriculture. Work is being rushed by all the highway departments on the preparation of maps of the proposed system, but naturally such an important matter will take some little time and consideration. The Government authorities will insist that important through routes meet at State lines which will require conferences between authorities of different States.

In order that work will not be delayed pending the approval of each State system the Secretary of Agriculture has amended the Rules and Regulations for Federal Aid to permit the immediate construction of such roads as it may reasonably be anticipated will become part of the system.

State highway officials are being advised that the anticipated route of which the road to be built is a part should be as long as practicable, preferably entirely across the State. A map must be submitted showing the route, other possible routes and connecting routes. If this is found satisfactory the project will be approved for immediate construction. The State of Washington submitted on December 27 the first complete State system, and others are expected in a short time.

DAIRY COWS BREW NOW RETURN MORE PROFITS.

Of 13,148 cows tested in various parts of the United States, those that freshened in September, October and November produced 14 per cent more milk and butterfat and 7.7 per cent more net profit above feed costs than those that freshened in the spring, according to co-testing associations results cited by dairy men at the College of Agriculture in pointing out to Kentucky farmers the advantages of having cows to freshen in the winter. Animals bred in January and February will freshen in October and November respectively.

The cow that freshens in the fall or winter is stimulated in production even though she is fed on dry feed because it is the beginning of her lactation period, W. S. Anderson, one of the college dairymen said. Her production will decrease gradually as the winter goes on but when turned on pasture she will be stimulated to greater production because of the beneficial effects of the green food. In this way the production of new cow that freshens in the fall or winter is stimulated twice each year.

Other advantages of having some of the cows freshen in the fall and winter months which the specialists have pointed out follow:

The greatest yield of milk and butterfat is obtained during the fall and winter when dairy products are highest and in greatest demand.

The cows are dry during the hot, late, summer season when flies are bad and dairy products are cheap.

More time is available for caring for the cows and calves during the winter than in the spring and summer.

EARLY HATCHED PULLETS ARE RECORD EGG LAYERS.

Practically every hen raised on the College of Agriculture farm that has produced 200 or more eggs in a year has been hatched before April 20, poultrymen at the institution are pointing out to Kentucky farmers in emphasizing the importance of early hatching. Farmers who keep general hatch fowls should set eggs to hatch early and get out as many chicks as possible before April 15, the poultrymen say.

The importance of early hatching is further emphasized by results of an experiment with early and late hatched pullets. A group of Leghorn pullets hatched April 20 started laying the first of November and were maintaining a 40 per cent production by Christmas, whereas those hatched June 13 did not start laying until after Christmas and were not up to a 40 per cent production until the first of February. Forty per cent production is equal to a production of 40 eggs a day from 100 hens.

KENTUCKY POULTRYMEN CONTINUE TO ORGANIZE.

Organization of Kentucky poultrymen into county associations is going forward rapidly in line with recent developments of the poultry industry in the State, according to J. R. Smyth, extension poultryman at the College of Agriculture. Taylor and Todd counties are the two most recent ones in which organizations have been formed. The State now has 31 county associations organized to promote the industry.

DON'T WAIT TO BE TOLD.

Do what should be done without being told. That is initiative. It takes initiative to think as well as to act. The college student who thinks without being told or made to think will be amazed to find how much there is to think about.

But don't forget this. A man with initiative, or push can get there, but it takes the man with character also to stay there after he arrives.

FARMERS SHOULD RAISE MORE GOOD UTILITY HORSES

Federal Authorities State That Horses Are More Economical on Farms Than Motorized Tractors or Trucks—An Infusion of Thoroughbred Blood Gives Spirit, Vigor And Endurance To All Breeds

There is now a recognized "horse zone" where short hauls and frequent stops are necessary in both city and country into which the truck and tractor cannot enter and compete with the horse without loss to the merchant and the farmer. After a costly experiment the horse is coming into his own, displacing the motorized truck and tractor, particularly on the farm, where it has been conclusively demonstrated that there is economy in breeding a suitable type of horse for a varied agricultural service.

At a recent meeting in Chicago of the Horse Association of America, H. C. Taylor, Chief of the Federal Bureau of Farm Markets, presented some interesting figures, the result of official investigations, proving that horses are more economical in every field of operation on farms than the motorized tractor or truck.

Computed on 1921 feed prices, the cost of power per acre, according to the U. S. Department findings, is $1.37 for plowing with horses as compared with $1.72 with tractors; disking, 34c with horses and 55c with tractors; disking in combination, 82c with horses as against 50c with tractors; harrowing 18c with horses as against 30c with tractors; drawing hay load, 52c with horses and 91c with tractors, and drawing grain binder, 81c with horses, 55c with tractors.

The value of mechanical motive power is clearly recognized by the Horse Association of America, but after a thorough nation-wide inquiry, it has been shown that the enforced displacement of the horse in farm work has been expensive to the farmer and has increased the cost of living to every family in America.

The various State Agricultural Colleges, particularly in the central west, are stressing the point that horses should be bred for the definite qualities which stand the test of long, hard service, an infusion of thoroughbred blood giving spirit, vigor and endurance to the colder breeds.

George Lane, head of a $1,000,000 live-stock ranch in Canada, in a recent letter to Wayne Dinwiddie, Secretary of the Horse Association of America, said:

"I have crossed Thoroughbred sires on broncho mares; on high grade Clydesdale mares; on mares sired by Percheron stallions out of broncho dams; on mares that were 3/4 Percheron; and whenever I had a pure bred Percheron mare that would not settle to a Percheron sire, I bred her to a Thoroughbred sire, and usually got such mares in foal, the result being a crossbred thoroughbred Percheron. We have bred the female produce resulting from these various crosses to both thoroughbred and Percheron sires, so that we have horses carrying various degrees of thoroughbred blood—from 1/4 to 3/4 bred from mares of various types and blood strains. From long experience in the use of such horses, and our actual breeding operations, I know that the thoroughbred cross on any draft mare increases quality, endurance, and length of life."

The manufacture of mechanical motive power already has caused an enormous drain upon our available labor resources, so that every time a mechanical power unit which he does not absolutely need, he is simply bleeding up the labor market against himself. Nor can the market for coarse grains be left out of consideration. The displacement of horses occurring in the years 1910 to 1920, destroyed an annual market for over 113 million bushels of oats, 70 million bushels of corn and 4 1/2 million tons of hay—more than the average total export per year on these items. The curtailment of city demand cuts off not only the outlet for surplus farm horses, but this great market for staple farm products.

Every citizen who aspires to law and order, should feel it an individual duty to aid officers of the law in the discharge of their duties. To suppress reporting crime committed of which you have knowledge, is indirectly a violation of the law. If lawlessness in all its forms, is to be suppressed, then our law-abiding citizens must aid and uphold the officers of the law, rather than suppress any information that would cause the arrest and punishment of those guilty of crime. Kentucky is by no means worse than other states in point of crime, but enough lawlessness prevails within its bounds to cause no little alarm to peace-loving and law-abiding citizens. Be true to yourself, your family and your State, by reporting all infractions of the law that come within your notice.

It is unfair to the government and to the people for a few critics to say that the government is not doing what it should for disabled soldiers. The sum of money that is being spent in pensions, medical treatment, dental work, and vocational training is staggering to say the least. This government has always taken better care of her ex-soldiers than any other country under the sun, and is doing more for the 'World War' veterans than she did for all veterans of past wars. We venture the assertion that there is not a veteran who has a just kick coming. If he has, the government is looking for him to adjust the matter.—Falmouth Outlook.

An Arctic adventurer recently sailed into Nome from the frozen north, and, not knowing that the war was over, tried to enlist in the American Army to fight in France. He had been three years getting to Nome from the Coronation Gulf country. He left the gulf in October, 1918, on hearing that the United States had entered the war. The small schooner on which he journeyed was wrecked in the ice and he was forced to walk 27 days before discovering an Eskimo village. He lived on roots and small game during that time.

The "peace dollar" is the name of the new silver dollar now being coined in the Philadelphia mint. On the back of the new coin is the figure of an eagle, standing on a mountain top. An olive branch, which is symbolic of the Washington conference, lies near the eagle. Back of the mountain shines the rays of the sun of a new era. A new head of the Goddess of Liberty, with the word "Liberty" and "In God We Trust" is found on the front of the coin.

Two ships, the Minneapolis and the Marlow, which helped to make new Spanish-American War, during the war, were recently sold for junk in Oakland, California. The shipyard dismantled at the ship yard there. During that war, the Marlowhead, in the company with another ship, entered the harbor of Cienfuegos, Cuba, and cut a cable of the Spanish guns.

Soon tobacco growers will be able to judge of the new scheme of the new tobacco organization. Let us hope that the new plan will be to the growers' profit, and permanent organization for the benefit of the farmer will be the result of the present "try-out" of the new system inaugurated by the Tobacco Marketing Association.

A community corncrib, large enough to hold all the corn that can be offered, will be erected in Neligh, Nebraska, if the plans of business men of that city carry. This crib will be made available for the use of any corn grower who desires to use it, and the grower will be paid in cash the market price of his product on the day of delivery.

The high prices asked for coal by American operators and dealers, together with the high freight rates, has resulted in British soft coal being bought in large quantities for general consumption in New York and Boston and the West Indies. The markets of the West Indies have been in the hands of American exporters for 40 years.

A steepjack in Chicago was maneuvered atop a 150-foot chimney in a cold wind for three hours recently. While putting the finishing touches on the chimney, the hoisting rope broke and left him without any means to descend. Life guards finally shot him a hoisting rope which he grasped. He was almost frozen when he descended.

Silence is golden, especially when the gas meter is around.

THE REASON FOR HARD TIMES.

When the Republicans carried the election of 1920, they had a great deal to say about the difficult business conditions of that year, and were making optimistic predictions about the improvement that would at once occur if that party was put in power. They have now been in power nearly a year.

It may be admitted that things are on the up-grade, but they would have been just the same if the Democrats had stayed in power. The conditions causing depression at the time of the last election were world wide, and no political party would remove them at once.

One of the biggest causes for such depression was the failure of the League of Nations. If the Republican party had shown a little more willingness to compromise, some reservations would have been accepted to the league covenant, and the reconstruction of the world could have proceeded from that date.

But the isolation of this country ties up world recovery three years. With the economic conference about to be called to unite Europe on some plan for economic advance, the world is about where it would have been in 1919 if the league covenant had been ratified. With America out, those powers could not solve their difficulties alone. It was not so much that they needed the military and financial help of this country, as that they needed the sound advice of our statesmen. Our people were outside the bitter racial disputes of Europe, and could have meditated between all these warring rivalries and would have enabled these hostile countries to settle down for a combined pull.

With America out of the league the European nations have been just running around in circles, and they get nowhere. It all reacts on this country. Fortunately our people are beginning to see how our failure to co-operate has hurt, and the administration is reported as ready to send delegates to the new conference. It is now doing what should have been done in 1919.

The following is from the Kelate correspondent of the Falmouth Outlook:

We've all along been a great admirer of Clarence Lebus, but must now confess our disappointment. In opening his warehouse he arrayed himself against the farm organization and placed himself up to the side of the trusts. We have great faith in the pool and believe it should be tried out to the fullest extent possible. Unless his farmers get together, and stay together, they had as well quit business. Taxes are increasing yearly on property while farm products decrease. The tenant is also having a tough time of it, and no steps taken to protect him.

Financially Pendleton county is in a hole with no avenue of escape for a time at least. Harrison county is in the same fix, only deeper, at the same time taxes are more than doubled, and the end is not in sight. There is but one remedy—the pruning knife. Too many offices being created through the State drawing big salaries. Double up and stop the expense.

FARM MEET TO STRESS PRODUCTION OF SHEEP.

In an effort to point out the advantages of mutton and wool production open to Kentucky farmers a special program covering many points of successful flock management is being prepared for sheep breeders and raisers who attend the tenth annual Farm and Home Convention to be held Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2 and 3 at the College of Agriculture, according to an announcement by those in charge of the program. This phase of farming has never been utilized to the greatest advantage by farmers of the State, specialists at the college say.

A series of lectures covering the problems of wool and mutton production in detail, demonstrations on the carcasses of various classes of livestock, a special mutton lunch at noon for sheep men, a meeting of the Kentucky Sheep Breeders' Association and a little international livestock exposition to be given in the evening by students in the college constitute the main part of the day's program which will be held on the first day of the convention.

IN AMERICAN CITIES.

Chicago produces more band and musical instruments than any other city in the Union.

San Francisco is the most extravagant of cities in this country. The city government is $35.06 a person.

Iowa, with a population of 3,000,000, has 108 service men, all of whom are in the American Legion.

New York has 4,700 miles of streets. A street longer than a walk grad would be made through all the city.

Cleveland is the most expensive city in the world. It has a new municipal auditorium costing $6,300,000.

Moosheart, an hour's ride out of Chicago, claims the distinction of being the only town in the world governed by children. A 1,000-acre children's republic of orphans of members of the Order of Moose.

Philadelphia has a technical library which specializes in fraudulent advertising.

STYLES FOR YOUTH

Designers have taken much thought for the school or college girl this fall, and have provided for her such enviable things as the one-piece frock pictured here. It is made of a dark-colored suiting, and smartly trimmed with puffs of moire ribbon to match. Straps of the material at the sides support the ribbon belt. If one wishes to remodel a last year's frock, ribbon used in this way will give it an entirely new aspect.

WOODLAND PASTURES OFFER CHECK ON TIMBER SHORTAGE.

With the timber shortage situation growing more serious each year, owners of much cheap land in Kentucky are finding the wood pasture a promising method of developing their property, according to Ralph Kenney, an agronomist at the College of Agriculture who is developing this project among farmers of the State. Development of woodland pastures on newly cleared land laid out to rest should prove profitable since soil of this type is usually too poor or not suited for a cultivated crop, according to Mr. Kenney.

Kentucky already is dotted with many woodland pastures, some of which have been developed during past 30 years, while others have been in existence for two generations or more. The central bluegrass region of the State originally was developed as an immense woodland pasture while Christian county at the present time was walnut pastures of from 10 to 30 acres with 40 to 50 trees, 25 to 35 years old, to the acre, according to Mr. Kenney.

Many farms in all limestone sections of the State have small patches of three to five acres of locust trees usually grown on rocky spots of the farm. In many cases the development of the trees has made the rocky spots among the most valuable on the farm.

In other sections of the State, groves of white oak trees two or three feet in diameter may be found. Poor soils of other counties are being utilized for the growing of solid beech groves, according to Mr. Kenney.

Rough land, which is usually cleared of all trees, seeded to a cultivated crop and then seeded to grass and laid out to rest indefinitely as a last resort to make it productive, can be developed rapidly into woodland pastures worth $50 an acre, and, in a few years timber worth much more. Goats and sheep can be used in the clearing work necessary so that little man labor will be necessary to cut undesirable trees. Grass and clover seed scattered on the unbroken soil will sprout although it may be necessary to burn leaves if the carpet of them is thick enough to prevent the seeds from reaching the soil.

THE QUALITY OF ADVERTISING.

The success of a town in enlarging its trade depends to a large extent on both the amount and quality of advertising done.

Even ads written in a perfunctory way do good, as they convey an impression that a merchant is awake and enterprising. But they can be much more effective, if written in a way to interest the public and seem like a news story.

The advertisement writer should consider what the people need at the particular time and in his locality. Then he will consider his stock and his values, and decide in his own mind what he has that is most likely to be attractive at that time. He will talk about those goods, and tell the prices. If he says a few words explaining market conditions and describing goods, it is still more effective and interesting. Advertisements written in that style will be a tremendous pulling power in enlarging the trade territory of any merchant.

WINDOW DISPLAYS.

Every time a merchant improves his store frontage by new plate glass or wood finish, and whenever he takes pains to arrange an attractive window display, he not merely gives a more favorable impression of his stock, but he helps tone up the appearance of the city.

The first requisite in a good window exhibit is absolute cleanliness and neatness, with frequently washed windows and paint freshly renewed. The next essential is unity of design in the goods displayed. Too many different things, or too many articles, given a window a much cluttered look, like a catch-all for a cross roads store. A few objects conspicuously displayed are better than a miscellaneous hodge-podge.

Thackeray and Dickens.

It has often been observed that persons who care greatly for the writings of Dickens seldom care greatly for the writings of Thackeray, while those who care greatly for the writings of Thackeray seldom care greatly for the writings of Dickens. The reason is plain. Dickens deals with the masses, Thackeray with the classes in the one we find democracy, in the other aristocracy.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

In making out his income tax return for 1921, the average taxpayer will find a considerable saving in comparison with the amount of tax paid on the same income for 1920.

The exemptions provided by the revenue act of 1921 are $1,000 for single persons (the term including widows, widowers, divorcees, and persons separated from husband and wife by mutual agreement) $2,500 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or more. Under the revenue act of 1918 the personal exemption allowed a married person was $2,000, regardless of the amount of net income. The personal exemption allowed a married person applies also to the head of a family, man or woman who supports in one household one or more relatives by blood, marriage or adoption. The exemptions for dependents, a person who receives his chief support from the taxpayer and who is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective—is increased from $200 to $400.

The act requires that a return be filed by every single person whose net income for 1921 was $1,000 or more, every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more, and by every person—single or married—whose gross income was $1,000 or more.

The requirement to file a return of gross income of $5,000 or more regardless of net income is a new provision. Net income is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, etc., which are fully explained on the forms.

Returns must be filed by married couples whose combined net income for 1921, including that of dependent minor children, equaled or exceeded $2,000, or if the combined gross income equaled or exceeded $5,000.

The period for filing returns is from January 1 to March 15, 1922. Heavy penalties are provided for failure or "willful refusal" to file a return on time.

Forms 1040A for incomes of $5,000 and less and 1040 may be obtained from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

There is a proposition before the Legislature of Kentucky to pass a law taxing the racing interest, tracks and admissions, for the purpose of paying a Soldiers Bonus. First we had a proposition to permit wine and beer to be manufactured and sold and the tax arising from that business was to be paid to the soldiers as their bonus. Is it right to tax any particular business in order to raise a fund to pay a bonus? The bonus should be paid by the people of the State as a whole and not by any particular interest. Some people would object to the money being raised by permitting light wine and beer to be manufactured and sold with a tax attached, while others think that a tax levied on the race track, which they term a gambling institution, is just as bad. If the bonus is to be paid let the fund be raised by a tax on all the people and not on any particular business, especially on wines, beer or the race track. Let the fund that is raised to pay the bonus be pure and undefiled.

Kicked By a Mule.
J. M. Eddins while at work in his barn, about a mile from town, on the Burlington and Union road, Tuesday afternoon, stooped over to examine a mule's leg when the animal kicked him in the face, breaking his nose, cutting a gash in each cheek and over one of his eyes. After getting to his feet Mr. Eddins mounted a horse and rode home when Dr. Yelton was called and dressed the wounds.

IGNORES MORROWS VETO.

Governor Is Overriden First Time In Memory of Oldest Assembly Member.

Frankfort—Adoption of an extra-help resolution over Gov. Edwin P. Morrow's veto by a vote of 29 to 6 and apparent determination on the part of a large majority to pass a bill which would put a stop to paroling prisoners convicted of certain crimes marked today's Senate session.

It was the first time in the memory of the oldest Senator here that a measure was passed over a Governor's veto.

The message from the Governor was to the effect that he disapproved what he considered the resolution which would allow the employment of assistant stenographers, pages and doorkeepers on the grounds that such action would be unconstitutional.

Daughter Starts Action.

Senator Frank Daugherty started action on the resolution, moving that the resolution be reconsidered and placed on its passage despite the gubernatorial veto. The motion to reconsider the resolution having passed the resolution itself came up for passage.

In voting for the resolution over the Governor's veto, several of the Republican Senators felt called on to explain their action. Mr. Baker was the first. He said he felt it would be all right to vote for the resolution considering the fact that the Governor was merely performing his duty in pointing out the unconstitutionality of the measure.

"I do not consider a vote for the resolution a reflection on the Governor," Senator Hiram Brock, Republican leader of the Senate, said when his name was called. "The Constitution was written 20 years ago and everyone knows that certain sections of it should be changed to meet with modern conditions. I vote 'nay.'"

Others Explain Votes.

Senator William A. Kinne of McCreary county, Thomas B. Watts of Louisville and Brig H. Harris, of Boyd county were others who explained their votes. Mr. Kinne voted against the resolution, however, saying that he agreed with the Governor about the Constitution.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Joseph H. Scoopmire was born May 23, 1842; departed this life Jan. 8, 1922, age 79 years, 7 months, 15 days.

At the age of two years he came with his parents to the United States where they settled in Switzerland county, Indiana. He was a soldier in the Civil War, having enlisted in the 6th Ind. Volunteers, Company H. at Madison, Ind. While in service he was wounded three times, and at the close of the war, received an honorable discharge. He was married Oct. 7th, 1868, to Miss Virginia Aylor, who survives him. To this union were born eight children, seven of whom survive. One daughter, Mrs. J. G. Cox, having departed this life October 9th, 1900. The surviving children are: Mr. W. B. Scoopmire, Gallup, N. Mex.; Mrs. Kennedy F. Rheas, Washington, D. C.; Mr. Everett Scoopmire, Dillsboro, Ind.; Mrs. Joe Smith, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. C. B. Lewis, Louisville, Ky.; Messrs. Oscar and Reed Scoopmire, of Holton, Indiana.

Mr. Scoopmire was a member of the Christian church for many years. He was also a member of the G. A. R., three fraternal orders—the F. & A. M., I. O. O. F. and K. of P.

He was a kind husband and father, a good and honest citizen, having served his county in an official way.

It is needless to say his presence will be sadly missed in the home and community where he has lived for fifty years. The bereaved wife and children have the loving sympathy of the entire church and community.

May you find comfort in Christ, and grant that you may live with him in everlasting life.

"Lead Kindly Light," amid encircling gloom, Lead Thou me on; the night is dark and I am far from Home—"Lead Thou me on."

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to the Waterloo and Burlington telephone line for the 1914-1922 assessment please settle at once with W. H. Marshall, Secretary and Treasurer, as we are in need of money to repair line.

OVER THE HILL

-AT-

Burlington, Ky.

Friday Night,

February 10

Petersburg, Ky.

Saturday Night,

February 11

"OVER THE HILL" tells a story as old as life itself and as new as the present moment. It is a story of mother-love, divine-of beauty sacrifice suffered uncomplainingly, and finally rewarded.

During the year nearly a million New Yorkers flocked delightedly to see it, constituting in several instances a trade problem of no small proportions. The crowds that gathered twice daily in the theatre lobby before it constituted, too, a veritable Vanity Fair, inasmuch as it drew to its doors people from every walk of life, the young, the old, the rich and poor. The universality of its appeal makes "Over the Hill" at once the picture for everybody. There is no type or class of theatregoer extant "Over the Hill" cannot amuse and entertain.

Show Starts at 7 P. M.

ADMISSION:

Children under 15, 25c.

Adults, 50c, War Tax Included.

LEGION NOTES

A man who said he was Warren Gamaliel Harding president of the United States, was recently picked up on the streets of New York, the butt of promiscuous jokes. American Legion men took him aside and found him to be Lawrence Leedy, ex-soldier, suffering from mental disorders apparently due to injuries received in service. They placed him under observation at Bellevue hospital.

"Down with the stars and stripes" yelled C. E. Swazey at a meeting of the American Legion post at Marion, Ohio. Just as President Harding's fellow citizens were rolling up their sleeves they learned he was only mimicking the mating call of the Bolshevik.

A light wines and beer bill "solely" to provide revenue for the payment of a soldiers' bonus is opposed by a Syracuse, N. Y., post of the American Legion.

Far-seeing friends presented rolling pins to two brides of American Legion men at initiation exercises of the Vinton Ia., unit of the Auxiliary.

Kings and tinkers and makers of books—all are out of a job. In one week three American Legion post adjutants applied for work at the Municipal Employment Bureau in New York City.

The right of the Navy department to make notation on a sailor's official record two years after his discharge has been denied by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt on appeal of the American Legion of New York.

"Move the house and you can have it." With this injunction, the Carbonado, Pa., post of the American Legion rolled up its sleeves and became possessed of a large, commodious mansion for its club house.

It took 50 American Legion ex-soldiers just 24 hours to build a 4-room-and-bath house in Los Angeles for a disabled buddy whose home was destroyed by fire.

Exception to the statement of Gen. Amos A. Fries, Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, that poison gas is "humane" is taken by William F. Deegan, head of the American Legion of New York. He cites X-ray proof to show that 50 per cent of the state's tubercular war veterans are victims of gas.

Atlantic City, N. J., as the site for the 1923 national convention of the American Legion is being urged by members of the Legion post there.

OBITUARY.

Francis Marion Hodges died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Katie Riggs, of Aurora, Indiana, Jan. 25, 1922, aged 64 years, 9 months and 12 days. He had been sick for several months of a lingering illness.

Mr. Hodges was born in East Bend April 13, 1857, and has always lived in and about that immediate neighborhood. In early manhood he was married to Laura Hodges, who departed this life June 6th, 1920. One son Owen was born to bless the home but was called early in life to his home in heaven. Mr. Hodges was the oldest son of John and Susan Hodges of a family of seven children, all of whom survive but one. All through life he has been an honest, industrious citizen, a good neighbor, a devoted husband and an indulgent father.

He will be missed by his old friends in and about Rabbit Hash, where he has made his home for many years.

Besides his sister and brothers he leaves a host of near relatives and many friends to mourn his taking away.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend to one and all our thanks and appreciation for the assistance rendered during the sickness and death of our brother F. M. Hodges. Especially do we thank Mr. D. T. Riggs and wife for their kindness and words of sympathy in our sorrow.

THE FAMILY.

Senator Norris has carefully studied the attitude of the Administration on the subject of placing a farmer on the Federal Reserve Board.

Don't forget that he is a Republican. He says "The farmer is being fooled again." Note that word "again."

In the old pagan days of Greece they held periodical festivals, for which a white ox was carried, brushed, be-ribboned and garlanded with flowers.

He headed the gay procession that marched to the grove outside the city; beside him walked the priests, who knelt and caressed him, but before the celebration was over, Mr. Ox was killed, barbecued and eaten, and his bones thrown to the dogs.

The Republican leaders are having the same old procession with the same old victim. It would look like it is about time for the ox to get next to the game and take a few of the Republican high priests into the ditch.

In examining the agricultural situation with a view to its improvement we shall be most helpful if we maintain a detached and judicial viewpoint remembering that existing wrongs may be chiefly an accident of mismanagement and economic growth instead of a creation of malevolent design and conspiracy. We Americans are prone, as Professor David Friday well says in a admirable book, "Profits, Wages and Prices," to ascribe a "criminal intent" behind every difficult and undesirable economic situation. ## MONEY AND MARKETS.

Necessary Buying and The Business Outlook.

The real basis for confidence in the course of business in 1922 is now clear. Notwithstanding the severe depression during the past year, purchases by the American people in terms of physical volume were sufficient to absorb to a large extent accumulated stocks so that a gradual increase in output of many classes of manufacturers may be expected. Future needs must be supplied primarily from current production. This means greater business activity and explains the expansion in manufactures which has taken place in recent weeks.

The general tone of business during the first two weeks of January has been encouraging. The total physical volume of retail trade is good. Sales in agricultural districts continue slower than in cities with trade in the East and Northeast and in southern California cities better than in the remainder of the country. Necessities are selling much better than are luxuries, and this is characteristic of the Christmas trade. Although it is generally recognized that buyers in all lines will wisely continue to be cautious as to future commitments, it seems probable that there will be a moderately well-sustained distribution of goods into wholesale as into retail channels.

Unemployment is unquestionably widespread, but probably its extent has been somewhat over-estimated. Special measures undertaken to lessen it, particularly public works, are doing much to alleviate its worst features. The major part of the productive energy of the country is absorbed in clothing, feeding and sheltering the population. Farmers certainly will not buy heavily, but they must have such foodstuffs as are not produced on farms, as well as necessary clothing. They must buy some farm implements, for even with the more careful repairing which is increasingly practiced, certain proportion of farm machinery steadily becomes unusable. They will buy more fertilizer, and they will buy articles of convenience and even of luxury to some extent.

Railroads have made notable gains in economy of operation, and improved credit conditions have definitely bettered their outlook, although traffic is at present disappointing in volume. The heavy decline in tonnage, serious as it has been, has primarily been the result of lessened shipments of coal, iron ore and similar heavy commodities. Reasonable buying of rails, cars, locomotives and other equipment may be expected during the current year.

Building And Construction.
The year opens with promise of active building construction. With gradually declining yields on all classes of investments it may be expected that funds heretofore unavailable to the mortgage market will be turned into construction projects.

Labor has not been liquidated and building costs therefore are still far above prewar levels, and are out of line with prices generally. This condition operates especially against building and construction for production of income, but not so heavily against individual enterprises for personal occupancy, or public buildings, and public works.

Consequently the field of residence building and public construction offers the greatest promise. The housing shortage has not yet been met. The entire country needs highway construction, and there is widespread necessity for essential public buildings. It is recognized as good public policy to carry on construction of these classes at times when industrial activity is at a relatively low level. Hence money is making this construction possible. This is unmistakably shown by the volume of state, county and municipal bond issues in the United States in 1921. The total for the entire country is unavailable, but offerings are known to have exceeded $1,000,000,000.

St. Valentine's Day.

Next Tuesday, Feb. 14th, is St. Valentine's day. St. Valentine is said to have been a bishop who suffered martyrdom under the Roman emperor, Claudius, or else under Aurelian in 271.

Like many another semi-Christian custom, the day set apart to the memory of St. Valentine in the Christian calendar is an old pagan festival upon which our ancestors believed that the birds chose their mates for the coming year. This, at least, is the commonly received version of our modern custom of choosing a valentine "on the 14th of February" and sending a billet-doux or a fancy valentine through the mail to some favored one.

What has become of you old way time When you sent your girl A valentine.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The boys of B. H. S. purchased a set of boxing gloves, last week, and the result is that several now have black eyes.

Miss Grow has turned the Senior Civics class over to Prof. Kiskey, and she has taken up the tutorage of the Freshmen Biology Class.

The school board is having some of the partitions in the stable removed to make a garage for those who drive machines.

HIGH SCHOOL HONOR ROLL

(Grade of A in every subject and both present and on time every day of the month.)

Isabelle Duncan.
Georgie Kirkpatrick.
Franklin Huey.
Mary Mcullen.

The Literary Program was nicely carried out by the scholars, Friday afternoon. Everyone had his or her part perfect. These programs are just what the pupils need. When they get up before large audiences they will know how to conduct themselves, speaking with ease and confidence, and they will have the necessary background to need just such training to enable them to express themselves properly before large audiences.

A DAY OFF FOR THINKING

How many are starting the year 1922 after having made a well defined plan for the year's work? To those who have not, we would earnestly advise that they proceed immediately to take a day, or a week if necessary, off and do so.

The success of mankind is attained by putting into execution well laid plans. Well laid plans are not produced by careless thinking but by the result of many calculations of facts and figures due probably to long days of observation and investigation.

Those who have never taken a day off to study their business do not and cannot know with what force of power the thinker resumes his labor after one of these days of deep study and thinking. Many a knot may be unraveled and many an adverse condition changed.

Self analysis may be the cause of discovery of secret power possessed that has been laying dormant. It may change an eight hour system to a twelve and thus change the balance to the right side of the ledger and be the difference between success and failure.

Too often we let the routine of work carry us into a rut that prevents any shift of gear when we strike the hill, which, lets the crash come unawares.

If you are employed do not let the boss do all the thinking for the good of the institution, he does not need you if you are not a producer, you will never go higher if there is no development in you, and there will be none unless you learn to be a thinker.

WELL PLEASED.

Seymour Wilson, of the Francisville neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington; last Thursday, while in town calling on the RECORDER office, Mr. Wilson said he delivered his crop of tobacco to the Burley pool at Walton the first of the week, and was perfectly satisfied with the way the tobacco was handled. He had 5643 pounds and was paid more as an advance on his crop than he received for his entire crop last year. He reported that the new machinery of the pool worked smoothly and the growers seemed well satisfied.

CREATIVE SALESMANSHIP

"Do you simply wait on customers," asked a merchant of a clerk the other day, "or do you practice creative salesmanship?"

This is a question which every seller of goods may well ask himself. Some may say that creative salesmanship is persuading people to buy things they never wanted before. Some business men have won success in that way. Still it has its disadvantages, since people are over persuaded into buying an article, they usually regret it afterward.

The best kind of creative salesmanship is to become so thoroughly informed about goods that people like to do business with you, because they feel that you help them get the most values for their money. One who does that is constantly building up new business for his firm, and is the finest type of a creative salesman. That is the kind of salesmanship the stores are working for.

CAPTURES PREMIUMS.

Ben Paddock, of Hebron, took four premiums at the Aurora poultry show last week in exhibition class and seven in the utility class, and possibly the silver cup will be awarded Mr. Paddock. Mr. Paddock is a breeder of Buff Rocks.

Small crowd in town last Monday county court day.

NEWS FROM FRANKFORT.

Bill to Abolish Premiums Passed By Wide Margin Following Debate.

Frankfort, Ky.—Trading stamps received a jolt in the House of Representatives when the anti-stamp bill was passed by a vote of 59 to 26 after a short debate.

Representatives C. D. McCaw, its author; Harry Miller, of Lexington and Mrs. Mary Elliott Flanery spoke for the measure and Representatives D. A. O'Donovan of Covington and C. A. Nelson of Hardin county, opposed it.

The bill says whoever goes on the streets of an unincorporated village with no police protection and in a bathing suit is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to a fine of from $10 to $50.

The clarion call for morality rang in the House of Representatives when the anti-bathing suit bill of Representative Charles A. Nelson of White Mills, Hardin county, was passed by a vote of 66 to 20.

The bonus bill, providing the submission of a $10,000,000 bond issue to pay a bonus to men and women who served in the World War was given its first reading when it was reported without expression of opinion by the Committee on Appropriations. When it was reported several days ago it was recommended after a debate.

A first reading was also given to Representative R. M. Ames' bill to allow co-operative marketing organizations to form co-operative banks. It was reported without expression by the Committee on Agriculture and a motion to table it was voted down.

The Committee on Fish and Game voted to report favorably on Representative G. C. Waggoner's bill to make it illegal to kill a deer, fox or bloodhound while in the chase, even though the animal is crossing a field. Mr. Waggoner's measure is to bring about a better understanding between hunters and sheep-raisers who have had some difficulties resulting from the killing of hunting dogs.

Forces for and against the teaching in the public schools of the State of any theory of "evolution" that derives man from the brute met in a bitter clash at a Senate hearing of Senator J. B. Rask's bill prohibiting the teaching of such theories.

Opponents of the bill termed such legislation "ridiculous in the eyes of the world," while the friendly forces contended that such theories "were undermining the faith in God of the young men and women of the grand old Commonwealth."

Gov. Edwin P. Morrow plans to take a hand in the fight being made by Senator Hiram M. Brock of Highland, Republican floor leader of the Senate, to repudiate the administration's policy in the management of the penal and charitable institutions.

One of the Brock bills would impose qualifications of State Senators on the members of the State Board of Charities and Corrections and Commissioner of Public Institutions, the qualifications of Representatives on the heads of institutions and of Kentucky citizenship on employees.

See Reaction Among Politicians.
The contest between the Governor and the minority floor leader will determine how strong the administration is with the Republican Legislature after two years. The administration forces regarded the "anti" movement as a reaction among politicians against the removal of some 600 positions from the political patronage list.

Senator Brock's second bill, bearing a preamble about the unsatisfactory experience of working convicts on the public roads, ties the hands of the Board of Charities and Correction in dealing with prison labor and requires it to hire the labor of all able bodied convicts within the walls of the prisons to contractors.

THE CHURCH SUPPERS.

About now used to be the high tide of the year for church suppers, but these delectable events are not so common as they used to be. The high cost of foods has forced people to look at this enterprise in a business light. It is not a money making proposition to take 50 cents worth of foods and put 50 cents worth of labor on them, and sell the product for a quarter.

Most of the churches now secure funds by a business like canvass, rather than trying to cajole them out of people's pockets without their knowing it. However the old church suppers used to have pleasant features. Many people who could not get acquainted in years by attending socials, would become intimate friends in a couple of evenings while waiting on tables. Suppers may well be a permanent feature of church life, but the people should expect to pay what they are worth in material and labor.

Another thing this country needs is not quite so many people behind the automobile wheel, but more pushing on the wheelbarrow wheel.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

Changes in the revenue law are of material benefit to the average family man. Under the revenue act of 1921 a married person, living with wife or husband whose net income for 1921 was $5,000 or less, is allowed a personal exemption of $2,500. Under the revenue act of 1918 the exemption allowed a married person was $2,000, regardless of the amount of net income.

The normal tax rate is the same, 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. Given his personal exemption of $2,500, plus $400 for each dependent, a married man with three children—the average American family—will pay this year on a net income of $4,000 a tax of $12. On the same income for 1921 he would have paid a tax of $56.

Every citizen and resident of the United States must determine for himself whether his income for 1921 was sufficient to require that a return be filed. Full instructions for making out a return are contained on the forms, a copy of which will be sent to taxpayers who filed a return last year. Failure to receive a return, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file a return on time, on or before March 15, 1922. Forms may be obtained from collectors of internal revenue and branch offices.

A DIRTY BUSINESS.

The difference between a gossip and a rattlesnake is very apparent, but the advantage of the snake over the gossip is a big one and lies in the fact that you do not have to listen to the rattles of the snake. The snake's bite is generally fatal, but the gossip's sting never kills.

The lips that touch liquor are not nearly so dangerous as the lips that tattle. That bible-babble, glib-gabble woman—the tongue-running characterizing man, the highly developed jaw-lapper is a greater menace than the tobacco habit.

Sweetening your tea with scandal or creaming your coffee with gossip is more dangerous and harmful than blowing cigarette smoke into the face of a baby. Repeating scandal is just as bad as tarring it. Loosing your ear to gossip is sufficient proof that you want to spread it.

Gossip is a dirty, low business—an outward evidence that you are inwardly mean and vile. Gossip is a chronic disease that takes best in the brain of the malicious.

The fawning dog will waggle his tail to win your coaxing—the foolish man hopes to win by wagging the tongue.

Gossip destroys business, demoralizes society and will stall the success of a store.

Gossip wears a mask to hide its dirty face. It would be infinitely better for the gossip to wear a gag.

BIG HEARTS AND LITTLE.

Out in the country the other day, a party of children, evidently just freed from school, and books, were trudging along the road.

A large touring car with a single occupant, a man, came up behind them, honking its warning and demanding right of way. As the driver slowed down to lessen the jar, the road being rather rough at this point, the children shouted, "Give us a ride, won't you mister?" Looking neither to right nor to left, he gave a couple honks, stepped on the gas, and soon was lost to view.

Disappointed, the children went on, and forgot it.

"Sudden," they heard a rattle and a roar behind them, and upon turning to look, they beheld a stiver approaching. One of the boys waved his hand and yelled, "Give us a ride, mister." There was a sudden squeak and a grind, and a sudden stop. With a smile, the driver opened the doors and seven happy kiddies climbed in—and said they went.

It wasn't so much a think about, but we realized that it isn't the size of the car that counts, but the size of the heart of the driver.

HAVE SOLD OUT.

Schanker & Son, of Erlanger, have sold their stock of merchandise to L. G. Gutzman. Schanker & Son conducted their business in a way and manner that they gained the confidence of their customers, and Mr. Gutzman will continue the business on the same high plan established by Schanker & Son.

DR. E. GUSTAV ZINKE.

Dr. E. Gustav Zinke, Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics, Medical College, University of Cincinnati, was found dead in his winter home at Palm Beach, Fla., on morning last week. Dr. Zinke, who was one of Cincinnati's most noted physicians and surgeons, never fully recovered from the shock due to the death of Mrs. Zinke last December. He suffered a nervous breakdown and departed for Florida January 16.

A large number of legal cases from Boone county had been referred to Dr. Zinke. His body was cremated and the ashes buried in Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati.

LANDLORDS MUST CONTROL CROPS

Land Owners, Members of Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative, Should Insist On Tenants Joining, Says Chief Of Field Service, In Order To Avoid Difficulty.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding as to the meaning of the statement made recently that landlords would be presumed to control the crops grown on their land in 1922 and thereafter," said Chief of the Field Service Division Joseph Passonneau Saturday, when asked in regard to just what effect the application of that clause of the market-rent law would have on control of tobacco grown for the next five years on the lands of members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association.

"Tenants who belong to the Association, of course," he said, "should be in the same position in the future as they are this year, insofar as their relationship to the Association is concerned. Nothing should be done to change the interests of loyal tenant members in the organization. But landlords belonging to the Association cannot legally rent land to non-members upon a crop sharing basis.

"I believe it would be a good policy for landlords to refuse to rent land to tenants who are unwilling to sign the Association contract, but in the event that this cannot be avoided, it will be legally necessary for them to make such contracts with their tenants as to provide for the control and sale of the tobacco remaining absolutely in the hands of the landlord.

"To avoid any possible difficulty, however, it will be more preferable for landlords to insist upon having all their tenants join the Association. In short, so far as the Association is concerned, its relationship with tenant members will always be on a par to its relationship with landlord members, but in the future landlords should guard against making contracts with their tenants which in any way can be construed as being in opposition to their contract with the Association, which provides that all of the tobacco they control, directly or indirectly, must move through Association channels."

WORK ABOUT COMPLETED

Democrats to Recoup In November Congressional Elections.

Arthur B. Rouse, of Kentucky, Chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, is proceeding energetically with preparations for the vigorous campaign which the Democrats expect to make this year to elect a controlling majority in Congress.

In response to a question as to the progress that is being made in reorganizing the congressional committee he said:

"We have about completed our organization in each state. Our committee includes in its membership a representative in congress from every state in the union that has Democratic representation in the National Law-making body. There are now twenty-three states that are without democratic representation in congress. In all except five of these states I have appointed a prominent democrat to represent the state on the committee and he organization will be completed within the next week. The committee will also have a woman representative in each state and about half of these appointments have been made."

"Are you receiving any reports on the political situation out in the states?"

"Yes, a great many of them and they are of the most favorable character. The reports that are coming from the eastern seaboard through the northern states and clear out to the Pacific coast indicate that the people are not satisfied with the present administration and are especially displeased with Congress because there has been a complete failure to redeem the promises of relief that were made during the campaign. Business conditions throughout the country are rotten, even worse than three months ago. The Emergency Taxing Law which was passed last summer, ostensibly to help the farmers, has been an absolute failure as is shown by the fact that wheat is selling at a lower price today than it did when the bill was approved by the president. The reports we have are that farmers in the corn and wheat growing section of the country are using corn for fuel, which is bad commentary on their condition."

Asked where he expects the Democrats to make gains this year in the Congressional Elections he replied: "We will make gains in every state in the north, east and west and will regain the districts we lost in the last election in Tennessee and Texas."

Show Your Appreciation.

The Burlington Moving Picture Theatre was opened last Friday night at the Universalist church. The attraction was "Bettie Blythe" in a "Tenant-Husband" and a Comedy. The pictures were clear and distinct and the crowd that filled the building to capacity enjoyed the evening program. Senator S. W. 10-lin introduced Mr. R. E. Berkshire, the owner and manager of this enterprise, and Mr. Berkshire responded. In his response he stated that he expected to show only the best films—films that had passed the censors. Mr. Berkshire has gone to quite an expense in order that the pictures projected on the screen are as near perfect as is possible with a moving picture machine. The people of this community should show their appreciation by patronizing the shows. Next Friday night the program will be "OVER THE HILL," one of the best films now being presented. The admission for this show will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. The show will start promptly at seven o'clock on account of the length of the program. Unless specially announced to the contrary all other shows will begin at 7:30 p. m. You are requested to be in your seat at the advertised time, as the show will start promptly.

PART OF CROP REPORTED SOLD

President Stone Admits Fact And Says The Price Is Satisfactory But Withholds Details Of The Transaction.

Lexington, Ky.—A large portion of the approximately 200,000,000 pounds of burley tobacco controlled by the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association has been sold "at very satisfactory prices," according to prospects are bright for the early sale of the remainder, Jas. C. Stone, vice-president and general manager, announced Saturday.

Mr. Stone declined to state how much of the crop has been sold or at what price, saying that he was "not able to make an intelligent report" at that time on the quantity, prices, or buyers.

The leaf thus far sold has been to several buyers, Mr. Stone said, and much of it was in winter order. "We are very optimistic over prospects for the sale of the entire crop soon, with most of it in winter order," Mr. Stone said. Winter order is tobacco in loose leaf form. Sale in winter order means that the redrying process is in the hands of the buyer.

LIGGETT & MYERS A BUYER

Twenty million pounds of the pool tobacco has been sold for an average of between 20 and 30 cents to the Liggett & Myers Co., according to well founded reports Saturday.

W. M. Barker, director of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, said Saturday that the Liggett & Myers Co., was one of the purchasers, but declined to state the amount bought or the figure paid.

NOTICE.

Boone County Wool Growers:
There will be a meeting of wool growers at Burlington April court day for the purpose of organizing for the pooling of this year's wool crop.

Each precinct should be represented at this meeting in order to select some one to represent their precinct in the pool.

The prospects now are that we will have a strong and active wool market in the spring, and we do not anticipate any trouble in selling the wool early in the season at a good price.

PT. PLEASANT.

Mrs. Flora Delwick does not improve.

Miss Eleanor Walton spent last week with Mrs. R. H. Tanner.

Mrs. Albert Willis and son Morris Earl, of Bullittsville, are visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Aylor.

Mrs. Mary Aylor received her diploma on French Dressmaking and Designing after completing the course. Her general average was 100 per cent.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Darby entertained at dinner last Sunday the following guests: Mr. John Darby and wife, of Saylor Park; Mrs. Kittie Darby and four children.

The Ladies Aid met at Mrs. Mary Aylor's last Wednesday and finished a quilt and comfort. The next meeting place for the regular monthly meeting will be announced soon.

Mrs. Kittie Darby wishes to thank all those who so kindly helped at the woodsawing last Monday afternoon. A nice lot of wood was sawed. The men surely enjoyed the hot coffee and lunch after the woodsawing.

On the night of Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, the ladies of the Pt. Pleasant church will give a Pie and Box Social including a bazaar and sale of home-made candy. An interesting program is being arranged in keeping with the day to be given upstairs after lunch. Everybody is cordially invited to come and enjoy a jolly evening.

(Too Late for Last Week.)

Mr. Frank Schuller is building a new barn.

The death angel has visited our community again and taken from our midst Mr. John H. Aylor, of the Gunpowder neighborhood, whose death occurred Friday night, Feb. 3, at 9 o'clock, aged 77 years. He was born in Boone county and was one of six children, and was the son of Louis and Susan Aylor. He was first married to Miss Utz, and one child Mr. Ira Aylor, was born to this union. After the death of his first wife he married Miss Gertrude Yeager. To this union three children were born. He united with the Christian church forty years ago. He was well liked by all who knew him. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at two o'clock from the Florence Christian church, Rev. Runyan, of Latonia, officiating. Interment was in Hebron cemetery. His popularity was demonstrated by the large crowd that gathered to pay the last tribute of respect. The family has the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

LEGION NOTES

Chinese ex-soldiers of the American Legion in New York City are to be employed in rounding up 60 slackers of their race, supposed to be in hiding in Chinatown. The men qualified on their knowledge of the quarter's many literal "ins and outs."

Five million questionnaires will be used by the American Legion in its service and compensation drive, to be undertaken by states. Each man who served during the world war will be advised of government benefits, urged to carry government insurance, and asked to designate the nature of adjusted compensation he wishes.

On a hill in Eden Park, in Cincinnati, overlooking a bend in the Ohio River, a bronze memorial will be erected to the memory of F. W. Galbraith, late commander of the American Legion, who was killed in an automobile accident last June.

The oldest and the youngest veteran of the World War are members of the same American Legion post in Washington, D. C.--W. N. Williams who saw active duty at 80, and S. F. Tillman who enlisted at 14.

An organization to cooperate closely with the U. S. Veterans Bureau in all parts of the country in obtaining adequate care for disabled ex-soldiers will be formed by the American Legion.

The American Federation of Labor favors the adjusted compensation bill for ex-soldiers. Daniel J. Tobin, treasurer of the Federation, has informed the American Legion. But it does not favor a sales tax as a means of raising the money.

Questionnaires sent out by Kansas posts of the American Legion show that but 35 per cent of the state's ex-service men would elect the cash payment provision of the five-option adjusted compensation (bonus) bill. More than 43 per cent declared for paid up insurance, with farm and home aid a second bet.

E. C. Sheppard, wounded ex-soldier, began his honeymoon in New York City. He awoke while wandering the streets of Rochester, N. Y., unable to recall his name or where he had left his bride. He is now in a hospital where the American Legion is caring for him. His lapse of memory is believed due to war injuries.

Four hundred business men of South Bend, Ind., voted unanimous support of the adjusted compensation bill, following a speech by Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion.

There is not one jobless ex-soldier in Louisiana, the American Legion employment bureau in that state reports.

The American Legion has set October 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 as the dates for its fourth national convention to be held in New Orleans. The city will raise $150,000 for entertainment.

If the time ever was that newspapers of the country were called upon to denounce lawlessness and crime, that time is now. Business houses, banking institutions, private homes and individuals are suffering loss, and in many instances, death at the hands of bandits. Law has no check, it seems, upon the lawless element, and the public stand in desperate, frantic anxiety to know when it may feel safe from the bandit's attack. Whatever may be said of the causes leading up to the present deplorable conditions, certainly there's no time in the history of this country when crime was more prevalent over the entire land. People must arise as determined private citizens and with one mighty sweep clear our country of all classes of people of questionable character, and men who have no visible means of support should be placed upon the public works of the State.—Pendleton Reformer.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that on July 9, 1918, George W. Sleet, Jr., of Walton, Kentucky, was found, and adjudged by the County Court, of Boone County, Kentucky, to be incompetent to manage his business and was appointed and am still acting as his committee. All persons transacting business with him do so at their own risk. Neither I nor his estate will be responsible.

MANAGER WANTED.

The Farm Bureau will receive bids for a manager at the Farm Bureau Building in Burlington, Feb. 15th, at 12:30 p. m. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved. All directors must be present at this meeting.

J. COLIN KELLY,
Secretary.

In the year ending November 30, 1921, the gross income from a flock of 140 hens was $1,494.57. This is no more than most any farmer can do with chickens if he cared to and practiced some of the simple principles of poultry management.—J. T. Wilson, successful farm poultryman, Corydon, Ky.

From the way some people work, they are apparently trying to avoid the evils of over production.

When a woman marries for money she gets what is coming to her—but not always in cash.

FLORENCE.

J. P. Tanner entertained several at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. Walter Arnold spent Sunday with relatives here.

J. R. Whitson was the guest of Mr. Mike Cahill Tuesday.

Mrs. Will Goodridge spent Monday in the city shopping.

Mrs. Dora Cole has gone to Columbus, Ohio, for a few days.

Miss Fannie Schybold entertained Miss Bernadette Conrad, Sunday.

Mrs. Morris Judge, of Erlanger, was calling on friends here Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Dunson spent last Thursday night with relatives in the city.

Miss Helen Marshall, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with Miss Shirley Ryle.

Joe Graves, of Erlanger, was calling on friends here one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtney were the guests of Mrs. Martha Bradford, last Wednesday.

Mrs. Will Hedges, of Burlington, was the guest of Mrs. Lora Lail one day last week.

Mrs. Corey Lail spent last Friday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Callen, at Erlanger.

Albert Lucas and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Sydnor Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Charley Hollinsworth, of Covington, was the guest of Mrs. Nettie Corbin, one day last week.

Miss Carrie Clark was the guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, several days last week.

Harry Brown of Erlanger, and Cliff Norman, of Covington, were calling on friends here Sunday afternoon.

Misses Eva and Christine Renaker entertained Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Carpenter and J. G. Renaker and wife for supper last Thursday night.

The many friends of Mrs. Cam Kennedy will regret to learn she has been seriously sick at her home in Latonia. The Kennedys moved from Florence to Latonia in the fall, and left many warm friends here who sorrow over this news.

Mr. John Aylor's funeral which was held here at the Christian church Sunday afternoon, was attended by a large crowd. Mr. Aylor was a man who was well known and liked by every one. His remains were laid to rest in Hopeful cemetery.

FRANCESVILLE.

Emmet Kilgour is building a stock barn on his farm here.

R. S. Wilson delivered his tobacco at Walton one day last week.

Mrs. Carl Hunzicker and daughter, Lorraine Sue, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Will Reithann.

Mr. Charles Muntz of Waterloo, visited his brother, Andy Muntz, and his sister, Mrs. John Cave, Sr., several days last week.

There was a dance and pie social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Kruse last Saturday night for the benefit of the Taylorsport base ball team.

T. B. Eggleston and family have moved to James Bullock's farm near Hebron, and Lee Craddock of near Grange Hall, has moved to the house vacated by Mr. Eggleston.

Rev. B. F. Swindler preached a fine sermon on "Love" at the church here Sunday morning. This is the beginning of his third year with us, and all of the members should give him their hearty support during the coming year.

FARMERS URGED TO BUY SEED SPUD STOCK EARLY.

Lexington, Ky.—In view of the small quantity of certified and carefully selected potato seed that is available each year, specialists on the crop at the College of Agriculture are urging Kentucky farmers to get their supply of seed as early as possible. The small amount of good seed that is placed on the market each year is soon taken up by large potato growers with the result that farmers who fail to order early are compelled to plant the common seed which is available in large quantities later in the season, the specialists say. Good seed that has been selected from certified stock is one of the best means of insuring a big crop, the specialists are pointing out to farmers.

Kentucky will have a limited amount of certified seed for sale during the coming season while Maine, New York, Vermont, Minnesota and several other states will have their usual quantity, according to the potato men.

All authorities now agree that the vital trouble with agriculture is an ancient and unintelligent system of marketing which must be completely discarded and that farmers must adopt a method of marketing their products involving the same principles of merchandising that all other industries of this country have followed for more than two generations.—Aaron Sapiro, California marketing expert.

Y. W. A. ENTERTAINED.

The Y. W. A. of the Baptist church was entertained by Earl Smith and wife at their beautiful country home on the Petersburg pike last Wednesday evening. A bountiful supper was served and those present enjoyed games and other amusements until a late hour.

Elmer Kirkpatrick was confined to the house a couple of days last week.

Quite a lot of tobacco has been moving to the Walton warehouses the past few days.

Barbers of spring—the blue birds and robins, have been seen in this locality the past week.

Kirtley Cropper spent Saturday night and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cropper.

Thos. Stephens who lives near town, shipped 17 fat hogs to the Cincinn market last Wednesday.

Farmers are all about through stripping tobacco and ready to deliver their crop when notified.

M. G. Martin, wife and Misses Sallie and Elizabeth Rogers, spent Sunday with Mrs. Martha Roberts and family at Walton.

The girls whose mothers used to sit in the parlor doing tatting, are now bumping their heads into each other on the basket ball floor.

Raymond Beeson, son of Alonzo Beeson, who lives near Florence, on the Burlington and Florence pike, had a young horse to drop dead while driving one day last week.

William Borders, of the Pleasant Valley neighborhood, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Friday.
He called at the Recorder office and renewed his father's subscription for another year.

If reports are true there will be two or three new residences erected in "Park Addition," this year. Mr.
Walker's new five-room bungalow is nearing completion and will be ready to occupy in a few weeks.

The rural children of Kentucky are not getting a square deal.—The consolidated school is the only solution to the rural problem. There the pupils can be better qualified and grade teaching can be more effectively distributed and supervised.—
Mrs. M. L. Hall, superintendent of Shelby county schools.

The groundhog emerged from its winter quarters last Thursday, caught a glimpse of the sun and, intentionally, his own shadow, and went back convinced that winter is not over. Our devil says:

Yes, the groundhog came out.

And looked all around;

He got a whiff of "moonshine"

And went back into the ground.

From reports received from those who delivered their tobacco to the pool at Walton, last week, the success of the Tobacco Co-operative movement seems to be assured. Even the advance of only one-half of the amount due to the grower, 'tis said, amounted to as much as the whole crop brought last year. This should be encouraging to tobacco growers and they should "stick to the ship that brought them over."

Chas. Quinn, of Toledo, O., Secretary of the National Grain Dealers' Association, testified before a Senate committee, one day last week, investigating charges that the organization had raised $250,000 to oppose the plans of the United States Grain Growers, that the Association spent $72,657 in six months last year in combating the Farmers' Co-operative Marketing movement. And yet, some of the members will claim there is nothing to be gained in cooperation.

The Boone County Bankers Association held a meeting at the court house in Burlington, last Thursday.
All the banks in the county were represented in person or by proxy.
Those present were J. L. Frazier, Joe B. Cloud, C. T. Davis, J. G. Rencher, C. H. Youell, J. C. Gordon,
Owen Blankenbaker, C. E. McNeely,
J. C. Hankins, J. L. Kite, O. S. Watts,
Henry Clure, R. S. Cowen, W. D.
Cropper, A. B. Renaker and N. E.
Riddell.

It was the opinion of the members that no interest should be paid on daily balances.

February, the short month, contains two holidays of the greatest national significance, devoted to the observance of the birthdays of the two principal figures in American history. The greater our country becomes, the more revered are these two figures—Washington who made the republic and established its most enduring principles, Lincoln who preserved and gave it a greater destiny.
Considering the patriotic relations of these observances and their effects upon citizenship, small wonder that each succeeding year sees them more widely celebrated. We look back a few years to the time when February 12th, and February 22nd, were given no slight consideration as holidays; today there is hardly a community in the country which is not disposed to give them full honor. This tendency will be more marked in 1922 than in 1921 and succeeding years will see these holidays rising to an importance as great as any we celebrate, with the possible exception of Christmas.

A FEW BORROWED THOUGHTS

How To Secure The Money To Build
The Dixie Highway.

The first thought I have for you
I have borrowed from the War Centenary and educational drive. Appoint a committee and let them allot an amount to each precinct according to the benefits derived, and select a committee in each precinct to obtain their quota. Have some meetings and get some good speakers in order to arouse more enthusiasm among those already interested, so they will go after the TIGHT WADS that will never come out to any meetings where they feel they will be called upon to take some active part. Every one in the county will be benefited by the building of this road as it will relieve the county of the upkeep. It will take a large part of $19,000 right now to put this road in any kind of repair by spring. And a large amount every year to keep it in repair. New by a little extra effort at this time we may get rid of this burden. "Are we going to do it?" or one wait for another and let time pass, get busy with the spring work and lose the greatest opportunity of a lifetime of doing something worth while?

The next thought I have for you is not to limit this to the $19,000 needed for the Dixie but get subscribed as much as possible. If one wants to give say five hundred dollars for road purposes, and hasn't the money now, make it in the form of a note payable one to five years, one hundred dollars per year or any other amount he may so desire. The amount of these notes taken care of by the banks of our county. The court setting aside an amount each year for five years as a sinking fund to secure the banks for this loan, and after paying the $19,000 for the Dixie Highway the balance to be returned to the roads of each precinct in proportion to amounts signed and paid. Now this or any other plan can be worked out in the committee meetings. The thing for us to do is to get busy, appoint the committees, have a county meeting at Burlington for this purpose, and let each precinct send a representative to help formulate some feasible plan that will be just to all. So when you subscribe to this road fund and the Dixie Highway is completed you can take an active part and enjoy a justification, at the old fair grounds and have your name inscribed on the honor roll. I suggest to have a chart hung in the court room with every name enrolled who has given to this worthy cause, as an incentive to the young of our county to greater deeds of service, that they may learn to love our county more. The more we invest in time and money in anything, the greater is our love for that thing. How much better for the fathers to invest some of their money in public improvements, teach their sons and daughters their responsibility as citizens of the county, than to leave a large sum of money to invest in shoe-shines, moonshines, highshines and all other kind of shines that so may of the young engage in today.

The next thought I have for you is to formulate some plan to utilize the large amount of muscle that is going to waste, lounging around the streets and stores of our villages, boys from 18 years and up. They use the roads and do not pay any tax to help keep them up. Boys, both white and colored can get out on the roads in their flivvers and knock more dust and rock off the roads from Saturday noon until Monday morning than a good old study farmer would in a month, and as these boys, together with a large number of men both white and colored, who do not pay any road tax "yet use the roads" ought not to be denied the privilege of donating to this good cause. If we would show them we were expecting something of them, possibly there would not be so many crossleggers, blackleggers, bootleggers, leaners and laggards in the world. Let us try to inspire them, and get them to see the dignity of service. A boy who can run a flivver can run a road truck and be of great service to his community. So I believe that every able bodied man from 18 to 60 years of age should have the privilege of working on the roads. I suggested in my first article that farmers should work the roads in front of their farms as cheaply as possible and I still think that a good suggestion, but others use the roads, the men in these villages need good roads as well as the farmers, for the trucks to haul in their merchandise and for pleasure riding in their autos &c. So come on boys, and when I say boys I mean from 18 up to 60 years, let us stand shoulder to shoulder as the boys in the army and not fall heavy on any of us and we will soon have good roads. I am just as anxious that our cross roads be kept in repair as I am for the building of the Dixie Highway, and I am ready to donate work for that purpose, but on these roads what we finish next, but not so with the Dixie, if we fail to secure it now this opportunity will forever be lost. This article is growing too long Mr. Editor, I beg pardon for taking up so much space in your valuable paper, please pardon mistakes and only remember my earnestness for I do pledged with all the earnestness of my soul that we will have the money needed. There surely is enough enough in the men of Boone county to raise the $19,000 to secure a per-

WELL CLAD FOR PLAY

There are coats and coats for little ladies, but the best of them all for play or school in cool autumn days are those knitted ones that fit her snugly and allow her so much freedom. Here is one in which she may romp as she will.

FAMILY LIFE IN THE COUNTRY.

A writer who recently made a survey of rural conditions for the Iowa agricultural college, remarked on the high moral standards prevailing. He believed that the principal reason was the intimate comradeship existing between parents and children in country towns. The children seemed to have a deep regard for their parents, and the parents controlled the children without severe discipline. For years no school pupil had been expelled for misconduct.

HOGS HEAD LEAF TRADE.

Offerings of 708 hogshead on the tobacco breaks last week included 343 old burley, 360 new burley, 1 dark tobacco. There were 561 hogsheads put up on the original inspection, while 147 were offered for review.

The summary of sales followed:
Louisville Warehouse sold 70 hogsheads of new burley tobacco at a range of $3 to $42 a hundred lbs., and 60 old burley $2.50 to $39.50.
Turner Warehouse, 27 new burley, $7.30 to $23; 23 old burley, at $2.40 to $24.

Kentucky Warehouse, 61 new burley, $5 to $43.50; 89 old burley $6 to $25.50; 5 new dark, $4.50 to $19.25.

An old apple tree, the oldest on

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL

How Come This Awful Boner?

HEBRON.

Eliza Poston and family, of Burlington, are spending several days here with their parents.

Earl Garnett and family, of Ludlow, were the guests of his mother several days last week.

Miss Martha Warner and Arthur Snow, of near Idlewild, were married in Covington, last Wednesday.

Howard McGlasson, of Lexington college, came home last Friday night to spend a few days with his mother.

A miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Rouse last Friday night for Albert Getker and bride.

The friends here of Clifford Reinhart, are sorry to hear of his being ill, also of the death of his mother, who passed away last Sunday night at her home near Bromley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Garnett, Mrs. Currie Mannin, Mrs. Amanda Lodge and daughter, Miss Nannie, spent Sunday with Ed. Baker and family.

The family wishes to extend to one and all their thanks and appreciation for the assistance rendered during the sickness and death of their niece, Mrs. Myrtle Cloro Stephenson.

A bill repealing the Anti-pass law was defeated in the Legislature a few days ago. The anti-pass bill should be modified and changes made in its provisions, which could be done and the State of Kentucky saved from $50,000 to $100,000 annually and no change would have to be made either in passenger or freight rates. Changes could be made in the anti-pass law that would benefit the carriers and also the state and the Legislature should not hesitate to do so.

124 acres of land on Gunpowder creek sold at the court house door last Monday to J. G. Jones, for $1,645. Another tract of 78 acres on Garrison creek sold for $1,815, and a house and lot in Petersburg sold for $490.

Mrs. Lorena B. Cropper's sale which was advertised for the 1st inst., was postponed until Friday, Feb. 10th. In addition there will be a lot of household furniture sold. Don't forget the date—Feb. 10th.

Mrs. Monette Revill, of Erlanger, spent Monday with Mrs. Babe Riddell.

Mrs. R. H. Crisler, of North Bend, was the guest of Miss Mary Thompson, Monday.

Fiscal Court.

The fiscal court was in session last Tuesday. All of the members were present.

F. H. Rouse was employed as superintendent of the county infirmary, his term to expire April 1, 1922.

A number of road claims were allowed and there will be the smallest amount of money available for road work for the year 1922, than for a number of years, because there was spent on the roads in 1921 close to $100,000 and the road fund is practically exhausted at the beginning of the year. The court can not make any appropriation for the improvement of the county roads. The court fixed the amount that will be paid for road work in 1922 as follows:

Day Labor $1.60.
Two-horse team and driver $4.00.
Four-horse team and driver $5.50.
Breaking Rock 60 cents a yard.

All road bonds maturing in 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926 will be paid on presenting.

If the $20,000 is not subscribed by the citizens of Boone county for the purpose of building the Dixie Highway, then we will lose the road, and the State and Federal aid appropriated to that work will be given to some other road, one on which the citizens show that they desire the improvement by subscribing. $20,000 subscribed in order to secure a road improvement that will cost $300,000, and kept in repair thereafter, without further expense to us, is a proposition that should not be rejected by our people.

Mrs. Julia Utzinger, of Bullittsburg neighborhood, died Tuesday night. She had been in bad health for many years. She was a daughter of the late Mota Green. The husband has the sympathy of all in the loss of a life time companion. Funeral arrangements had not been made when we went to press.

R. A. Brady, who was quite sick last week, is much better.

Burlington, Ky.

Friday Night,

February 10

Petersburg, Ky.

Saturday Night,

February 11

"OVER THE HILL" tells a story as old as life itself and as new as the present moment. It is a story of mother-love, divine—of beauty sacrifice suffered uncomplainingly, and finally rewarded.

During the year nearly a million New Yorkers flocked delightedly to see it, constituting in several instances a traffic problem of no small proportions. The crowds that gathered twice daily in the theatre lobby before it constituted, too, a veritable Vanity Fair, inasmuch as it drew to its doors people from every walk of life, the young, the old, the rich and poor. The universality of its appeal makes "Over the Hill" at once the picture for everybody. There is no type or class of theatregoer extant "Over the Hill" cannot amuse and entertain.

Show Starts at 7 P. M.

ADMISSION:

Children under 15, 25c.

Adults, 50c, War Tax included.

BIG INCREASE EXPECTED IN ACREAGE OF PASTURES

Lexington, Ky.—As a result of the low prices of farm products, the acreage of grasses and clover seeded in Kentucky this spring is expected to be increased approximately 100 per cent over that of 1920, say specialists at the College of Agriculture say. This is in line with the increase reported for 1921. About 80 per cent of the increased acreage will be seeded in that section of the State which normally seeds red top or herd fescue for pastures, according to specialists. Good stands and numbers in growing the increased acreage will depend upon proper preparation of the seed bed and the use of sufficient seed, the specialists have pointed out to farmers.

"Grasses of all kinds catch best on seed beds that are compact beneath and only loose enough on top to cover the seed," Ralph Kenney, one of the specialists said. Land growing a cover crop of rye that is being grazed rather heavily is an ideal place to sow red top since the tramping brings the seed in close contact with the main crop, and enables it to take roots. If the soil is loose on fields without a cover crop, it is frequently best to roll the land immediately after the grass has been sown.

"In spite of the fact that farmers in many localities of Kentucky sow only three pounds of seed per acre, not less than five pounds should be used and 10 pounds is not too much. The amount of labor and trouble necessary to obtain a thick stand can be reduced if sufficient quantities of the seed are used in the first seeding.

"In seeding red top, it is best to use a peck of Japan clover to the acre at the same time. This mixture increases the grazing furnished by the red top alone and in addition the clover, which is a legume, adds to the fertility of the soil.

"Early seedings, if not killed by freezing, usually make the largest crop by mid summer and also usually come through the summer in better shape. Many farmers sow their seed one-third at a time at ten day intervals to insure a stand."

AN EXAMPLE OF HUMAN SYMPATHY.

The death of Pope Benedict will be mourned not merely by millions of people who were grateful for his unrelenting efforts on behalf of peace, but by multitudes of struggling folks to whom he had been the means of bringing some practical assistance.

The pope was born from those aristocratic origins that make some people indifferent to sufferings of the masses. But back when he was a priest, he came to give much money to relieve poverty that he had scarcely enough for his own needs. When he became cardinal he gave away so much that he could hardly meet the expenses of his high office, and his life as pope was similarly marked by plain living. Through his great collections were made to relieve the war sufferers.

Too often, when people reach positions of power, they forget the difficulties of the common people. Pope Benedict's memory will be cherished as a personal friend by multitudes that were helped by his beneficence.

Practical Rural Progress.

Farmers and other people often feel that it is very easy for newspaper writers to sit down in their comfortable offices and tell the folks who are up against the actual problems of rural work, what they ought to do to improve things. Particularly at the present time, when the farmers are encountering exceptional difficulties owing to low food prices.

Yet anyone who has watched the advances that many country towns have made in the past 10 years, must have been impressed with the results that can be accomplished by a small group of men, or even by single individuals, who are determined to improve their product or service.

Such people may or may not have any education. Usually such men have had some advantages, for good local training greatly improves a person's chances in life. But even they are men who have had but little schooling, and they may be rather illiterate.

Yet people of this type are constantly working for superior attainment. If they are stock growers, they are constantly improving their herds. If they raise crops, they get the best seed and are the most industrious and watchful in cultivation. They set an example of superiority that has its influence over a whole town, and the level of excellence they maintain, encourages others to strive for abetter product.

Men of this kind have been prominent in movements to secure better marketing conditions for farmers, and to secure for the producer more of the profit that has been absorbed by the middlemen. While such people are always busy and they work long hours with untiring energy yet they always seem to find time to plan for better methods of marketing and more advantages for their home town. A town that has men of this type is sure to go ahead.

Mrs. Lorena B. Cropper's sale which was advertised for the 1st inst., was postponed until Friday, Feb. 10th. In addition there will be a lot of household furniture sold. Don't forget the date—Feb. 10th.

COMMISSION URGES ADULT PROBATION LAW.

One of the seven legislative proposals made by the Kentucky Children's Code Commission to the Governor and General Assembly calls for the enactment of an adult probation law such as is now in effect in all but thirteen of the American states.

"We have probation in the juvenile courts, and a slight approach to it in the adult courts," said Miss Frances Ingram, of Louisville, chairman of the Commission, in commenting on the recommendation. "But we still lack a real probation system, for adults as well as children, and probation officers duly qualified are the very heart and soul of such a system. The proposed act provides for the appointment of probation officers in any court in the discretion of the judges and prescribes their powers and duties. Many judges in Kentucky have expressed themselves as being handicapped in their work by not having at their disposal the services of probation officers."

"There is much misunderstanding as to the meaning of probation," Miss Ingram continued. "Probation is the method by which the community, through its courts, seeks to supervise, discipline, and reform offenders without imprisoning them. It is used especially for young or first offenders and others not hardened in vice or in need of the care, protection or discipline of the state, after investigation by the probation officer, conditionally given their liberty, usually under supervision of sentence, and are placed under the authoritative, helpful oversight of a man or woman attached to the court in the capacity of probation officer."

"The greatest need of the juvenile courts in Kentucky is more and better qualified probation officers. Salaries are entirely inadequate. Adult probation when properly used, is safe and successful and has become as important and valuable a part of the correctional system in states like New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, as have the state reformatories. Judges can safely be entrusted with the power conferred by the proposed adult probation law of Kentucky. The appointment of probation officers would be in the discretion of the judges, salaries to be determined by the city or county boards. Their appointment in courts handling family cases, such as non-support, desertion and divorce, would secure the most important feature of the so-called domestic relations courts."

BANK CLEARINGS AND BANKRUPTCIES.

Prominent among the instruments by which the business world measures commercial conditions, are the figures of bank clearings and bankruptcies. Bank clearings might be called the thermometer of business, registering its periods of warm enthusiasm, also as some might say, its times of cold feet. And bankruptcies are the barometer, a storm signal recording the presence of industrial and economic tempests.

Bank clearings for 1921 were 25 per cent below those of 1920. But no such decline in business occurred, since the prices of merchandise and raw materials must have averaged at least 20 per cent lower in 1921 than in 1920. It would see, as if the actual volume of business done could not have fallen more than five per cent.

Furthermore, it is noticed that bank clearings do not usually record business changes until after they happen since so many of the payments for goods are not made until a considerable time after the goods are completed. Consequently the large revival in business occurring in the latter half of 1921 has not fully shown itself in these figures.

Bankruptcies for 1921 were not as large as in 1915, though exceeding all other years. The total liabilities for 1921 were a little more than twice those of 1915. But since transactions during 1921 were measured in greatly increased prices, this increase in total liabilities is not remarkable. 1915 was a year above the average, as the country was getting a lot of war business from Europe then.

The business world has cause for satisfaction that no worse results followed the price decline of 1920 and 1921. If the extent of foreclosures that had fallen had been foreseen twice as many business catastrophes would have been predicted. The fact that the country has got along as well as it has in the face of this shock, shows that conditions are essentially sound, and gives reason to expect a large measure of prosperity in 1922.

SUPERIOR PRODUCTS

Stock growers have for some years realized the gains that come from developing thoroughbred animals. Some communities have forged ahead by specializing on some one type of farm animal and gaining a reputation for superiority in that line. Fruit growers that take more pains with their products are the ones who acquire the widest and most dependable reputation, and they get enhanced prices. The same tendencies exist in all lines of production.

Buyers of food products are getting more discriminating every year, and they like to buy in localities that have a reputation for turning out a superior quality of stuff. Old time agriculture was a machine grinding out a mass of products without much effort in any locality for superiority. But today it has become a sharply competitive race between different sections, to see which shall turn out the best stuff. Most rural sections would gain if they would make some one specialty prominent enough to get a reputation on that one line. While dependence on one crop is not desirable, some line of production ought to be developed to such a prominence and excellence that a locality would have its own special reputation.

If such a line is determined upon, the best scientific information regarding that form of husbandry should be secured. Young men should be encouraged to take courses in agricultural colleges in that line. Lectures and demonstrations on that industry should be held, so that every farmer shall have a chance to familiarize himself with the best methods in that specialty. An association should be formed to standardize the product, so that nothing shall be sent out on that line that is not up to the grade claimed for it. In that way in a few years, a county or other locality can get a wide reputation for its product, so that it will bring superior prices, and that means a new era of prosperity.

THIS IS THE MONTH.

To plan.
To invest—ice.
To toast your toes.
To breed for fall calves.
To set a high standard for 1922.
To make up breeding pens in the poultry yard.
To start a practical system of keeping accounts and records.
To watch the price of eggs go up, and wish the hens would start laying.
To salt the stock. Remember winter salt is needed now as well as in the summer.
To lay out the garden on paper and figure on the seeds needed. The early order receives the best attention.
To put on the extra blankets. And don't forget to provide warm bedding for all the farm animals as well.
To dry and blanket the horses after any strenuous work that raises the sweat. Carelessness may bring on colds and pneumonia.

Dawson Springs, Ky., Feb. 7th.—Wednesday, February 22, has been designated by the U. S. Treasury Department, as the date for the dedication of the mammoth war veterans' sanatorium which has just been completed here.

This dedication will be one of statewide importance and will mark the turning over of Uncle Sam's best hospital to the ex-service men. On this day the keys to the gigantic institution will be handed to Lieut. Col. H. E. Whitledge of the United States Public Health Service Department, commanding officer of the sanatorium, who is a former Kentuckian.

The Sanatorium which has just been completed is composed of a unit of twenty-two buildings and is located in a 6,000-acre tract of land donated to the government by the citizens of Dawson Springs, Hopkinsville, Madisonville and other Kentucky people. The 5,000-acre government reservation is located in the counties of Hopkins, Christian and Caldwell.

The commercial organization of Madisonville and Hopkinsville are aiding the Dawson Springs Commercial Club in making arrangements for the dedication, at which it is estimated there will be some fifteen thousand people in attendance. The dedication address will be delivered by Gov. E. P. Morrow, and National Officers yet to be selected, and the occasion will be attended by some of the most prominent people in the United States, including the American Legion and War Veterans Bureau.

The United States Government, as well as the citizens of this place, desire to extend an invitation to every person in Kentucky to be present on this day and view what the Treasury Department says in the best hospital unit in the world.

A QUESTIONED ANSWERED

How much money does it require to furnish the people of the United States with telephone service?

During the year 1920, the Bell System spent $147,882,100 for new plant additions, extensions and improvements, a figure never before approached in the history of the industry.

For the past year new plant expenditures will top $150,000,000. Ten years ago, $50,000,000 was about the average.

And the pressure for new service continues undiminished with unfilled orders still above normal.

THE LEGISLATURE.

When the Anti-lynching Act comes up in the Senate, it would be like Pat Harrison to move to amend the title so that it will read: "An Act constituting an assault on the Constitution of the United States."

Rogers, Massachusetts Republican, stated in the house on January 30th that he believed that the disabled soldiers were getting poorer service through the Veterans' Bureau than they were getting six months ago, and that he also thought that the service of six months ago was not so good as it had been six months before that time. In other words, he admitted that the service is poorer since Harding became President than under Wilson, and that it is growing worse.

The name of Harold D. Wilson will go down in history as the man who broke up the big Republican State banquet at the Quincy House in Boston by confiscating the liquor. "Here's to the Grand Old Party, boys—drink 'er down." No man was ever more viciously attacked than has been this same Wilson by the Republicans of Massachusetts, for simply doing his sworn duty under the law and his oath of office unless it was another Wilson who got his mail at No. 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D. C. for eight years of unexampled prosperity. And, by the way, a Farm Bloc in the Senate was not needed in those days to protect the farmer in his rights.

Representative Rouse of Kentucky though opposed by Mr. Welsh, of Massachusetts, succeeded in getting into the Record of January 30th a copy of a letter from Raymond A. Lasance, National Adjutant of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, enclosing a copy of a memorial which he had sent to the President on January 11, but which had received no publicity. Among other things, this Memorial showed that 4,000 or one-half of the insane veterans, were farmed-out, to "contract" asylums, while the Memorial declared are not hospitals at all, but "lock-ups." It showed that when all the facilities are completed for which appropriations has been made, there will still be about 4,000 insane soldiers unprovided for. Probably the most horrible and inexcusable abuse shown in the Memorial is in Ohio, the home of the President of the United States, where he and his party are in absolute and complete control. The State of Ohio is shown to be profiting off these poor unfortunate. At Longview Asylum, in that county, 240 of the inmates sleep on the floor like cats, and the tubercular patients have not been separated from the others. There are hundreds of curable cases of insanity there that receive no treatment for their mental disorder. And all the while the State of Ohio is making heavy profit off each soldier from the money paid by the Federal Government for the care of these men and boys—the boys who went marching off to war, who crossed the seas to fight the battles of civilization, singing on the road—your neighbor's son among them, perhaps. Dr. E. North, superintendent of Longview admitted in a statement that these things are true.

A profit was made in 1921 by the State of Ohio on each insane soldier that amounted close to $300.

Frankfort, Ky.—The first real political recital of the 1922 session was waged in the Kentucky State House. Democrats lined up solidly behind Senator W. A. Perry's bill relating to the removal of party emblems from ballots in cities of the first class.

The Republican members called into play all parliamentary tactics in an effort to delay consideration, but a solid Democrat vote swept aside every attempt of the minority. The final vote was 19 to 15 for the bill.

The so-called party emblem bill affects only the city of Louisville and, according to Republicans, is intended to disfranchise many negro voters. A similar measure has been introduced in the House, and party leaders there predict that it will be passed.

Measures intended to make more stringent the present prohibition laws were passed in the Senate today. The first offered by Senator J. R. Rash, extends to Quarterly and Police Courts and to Justices of the Peace concurrent jurisdiction with Circuit Judges in trials for violations of the 1920 prohibition laws.

The second bill, introduced by Senator B. T. Davis, satisfies certain constitutional requirements pertaining to the Rash bill.

Under the provisions of the bill lower courts may try cases for violations of the law to prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation or other disposition of spirituous liquors, and assess fines up to $300. Lower courts also may issue search warrants upon the affidavit of one reputable citizen. Other provisions call for the forfeiture of property and make more stringent the prison sentences.

Objection to features of the bill were made by Senator R. C. Slimmons, Covington. He objected to the provisions granting search warrants and opposed the prison sentence and property forfeiture clauses.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERK

Arrested on a Serious Charge—Released on Bond.

Mail Regenbogen, of Constance, was arrested by Sheriff Hume, and Deputy Snyder, last Friday morning, under a warrant charging Mr. Regenbogen with a statutory offense. Mr. Regenbogen was released by the County Judge after he had executed a bond for his appearance for an examining trial to be held Saturday, Feb. 18th, 1922. Mr. Regenbogen denies the charge and says that he will show by witnesses, that this charge is without merit.

Mr. Regenbogen is employed in the United States mail service with headquarters in Cincinnati, and he is now a clerk on a Cincinnati-Chattanooga mail train. He is married and lives with his family in Constance.

THE MODERN VALENTINE DAY.

The old fashioned valentine was a very lovely device affair. It was a sugary display of sentiment, purchased and sent by young people at the period of puppy love, when they felt intoxicated by mushy sentiment.

Young fellows would dream for weeks of Valentine's day, as a time when they could perhaps dare to express their emotion to their object of adoration. They would tentatively purchase the most sentimental one they could find and live in anxiety for the subsequent days to see how she took it. Usually she took it all right, as girls like to be adored. Only the popular girl had so many missives of this kind, that she was embarrassed in her dealings with the various suitors.

At the other extreme of sentiment was the old time comic valentine, consisting of coarse and insulting pictures and verses, sometimes obscene, that were sent to anyone for whom a person conceived dislike. The demand for that kind of thing was a proof of the bad manners of those days.

The modern valentine has improved over those days. It is more an affair of friendship than love, and usually it pays pretty and graceful compliments without meaning anything serious. The makers of these missives show the improving taste of the times. Whereas old time valentines were crude combinations of lace paper and highly colored pictures, many of the modern ones show good design in color and drawings.

Perhaps this changed taste in valentines suggests a more intelligent way of looking at love. Young folks who show too much sentiment at an age when marriage is imprudent, make themselves ridiculous nowadays. Instead of arousing sympathy for their lorn condition, they are apt to get laughed at for calf love.

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Schanke's store to be known as the Erlanger Department Store, at Erlanger, has been bought by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gutman, and will continue to be operated on the same high plane, our policy will be "honesty and quality" coupled with courtesy and service.

New goods are arriving daily, and we are eager to meet the old customers and invite both old and new people of this section to call and get acquainted.

For the benefit of the ladies we are going to add a millinery and Ready to Wear Department, and enlarge the dress goods department.

Our endeavor will be to keep prices down to the lowest level commensurate with good business principles.

Come out and get acquainted. ERLANGER DEPARTMENT STORE (Successor to Schanke's)

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gutman in charge.

Independence of Rural Life.

One great advantage of country life, is that men who show ambition and initiative can look forward to living an independent life. Whether as farmers, merchants or professional men, they are masters of their own lives. Even if they work in some rural factory, personal attention is paid to the needs of willing workers.

If these folks live in cities, they are usually cogs in some big industrial machine and their personal needs can not be considered. That is one reason why a multitude of men in cities are always trying to set up some independent business, but they can not usually compete with the big industries. Let them come out in the country, and then they can live their own independent life, which is worth many dollars.

SALE WELL ATTENDED.

The public sale of Ralaback & Cloyd near Harvest Home grounds, on Tuesday of last week, was attended by a large crowd and good prices prevailed. Besides farm produce and implements 45 head of registered hogs were disposed of at good prices. Mr. Cloyd will move to a farm back of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Nothing thing this country needs more base balls and fewer highballs.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

The new requirement of the income tax law that returns shall be made of gross income of $5,000 or more regardless of the amount of net income upon which the tax is assessed, necessitates careful computation on the part of the taxpayer. "Gross income" includes practically every dollar received by the taxpayer during the year 1921 in salaries, wages, commissions, rents, royalties, interest on bank deposits, cash dividends on stock, "or income from any source whatsoever." Net income is gross income less certain deductions provided for by the act, including all business expenses incurred in the conduct of a business, trade, profession, or vocation.

Certain expenditures, however, are not deductible as a business expense when made for the purchase of articles more or less permanent in character, or for permanent improvement of property. For example, a merchant would not be allowed to deduct the amount expended in the erection of a new store, or a farmer the cost of a new tractor or threshing machine, since such investments are held to be capital investments. The law expressly prohibits the deduction of family or living expenses, such as rent for a dwelling, repairs, to a dwelling, cost of food and clothing for the family, education of children, servant's wages, and similar items. Amounts spent during the year 1921 for any of these items are not deductible.

KENTUCKY'S TOM WATSON

Mayor Hermann of Newport, who says State troops are shooting, clubbing and otherwise mistreating citizens, invading homes, insulting women, comes to the Legislature with a tale somewhat like that Tom Watson of Georgia carried to Congress. It is true that the Federal soldiers in Europe confined their crimes of violence to soldiers, and used the gibet, according to Mr. Watson's narrative, whereas the Kentucky militiamen pitch into the civilians with clubs and rifles, if not with fire and sword. But blood lust is the common attribute of the two forces.

Apparently the Governor has done the only thing he could do, by keeping the troops in Newport, under the oath a Governor takes. Apparently the Mayor of Newport was not effective as an executive striving to maintain order and protect life and property. Apparently he is more bent upon proving at Frankfort that the militiamen are malefactors, than that the Governor is a meddler, than upon putting down lawlessness in Newport. But even if appearances are deceiving; even if Mayor Hermann has done all that a Mayor could do to promote peace and quiet, his effort to show that the militiamen are lawless ruffians will provoke smiles rather than cause an outcry of horror.

Even if it could be proved that order might have been restored without the use of troops still an effort to represent militiamen, called from the quiet of civil life to fight uproar in Newport, are wider than Bashi Bazouks and ruder than Tartars would be ludicrous.—Courier-Journal.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Quite an interesting program was rendered in Chapel last Friday morning. The program consisted of orations and recitations in honor of Lincoln. Each room contributed two numbers.

Owen Acra and Wilford Rouse each made a business trip to the city the past week.

Mrs. Lulu Stephens, of Kansas, and Mrs. Geo. Kreylich, visited the school last Monday.

Miss Eugenia Riley spent last Thursday night with Miss Grow.

Garnett Clore was absent from school last Thursday and Friday on account of illness.

Miss Grow spent last week-end in Lexington.

Said a High School student the other evening: Don't tell a girl you sweat. It's vulgar. "Inform her that you are being deprived of the saline and aleaginous fluid of your material substance through the excretions of your pallid cuticle, with a sensible condensation of moisture upon the superficial exterior."

NEW CIRCULAR OUTLINES

BEGINNERS SEWING WORK

"The Beginning Clothing Project" is the title of one of the most recent publications issued by the College of Agriculture for farm girls of the State. It takes up the fundamentals of sewing and outlines several pieces of work to be done by beginning students. The junior agricultural club project. It may be obtained free from the Experiment Station at Lexington.

Folks who send away to big city mail order houses are helping metropolitan centers to grow, but they aren't doing much for their own home towns.

"OVER THE HILL"

Enjoyed By Large Crowd Last Friday Night.

"OVER THE HILL" was enjoyed by more than two hundred and fifty people last Friday evening. The picture, mechanically, was perfect and the scenes were gems of the photographers art. The first reel was shown at seven o'clock and at 10 the last picture was on the screen. Pictures of the class of "OVER THE HILL" got the best in the motion picture field, and our people should not fail to attend when pictures of that kind are shown. This picture had a straight run in New York, Chicago and other cities for months at $2.00 admission. The manager Mr. R. E. Berkshire, is to be commended for his efforts in bringing that picture to Burlington and Petersburg and shows that he wants to exhibit pictures that are worth while. Next Friday evening "THE BRUTE MASTER." The first picture will be on the screen promptly at 7 o'clock. You are requested to be in your seat at that time. Admission 10 and 25 cents.

FARMING VS. "CITYING."

The oldest good story is the one about the boy who left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother, who elected to stick by the farm, telling the joys of city life, in which he said:

"Thursday we auto'd out to the country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach for the week-end."

The brother on the farm wrote back:

"Yesterday we bugied to town and baseballed all the afternoon. Then we went to Ned's and poked out until morning. Today we rode out to the cornfield and gee-hawed until sundown. Then we suppered, and then we piped for a while. After that we staircased up to our room and bedsteaded until the clock five."

FALLING ROOFS.

The frightful disaster at a Washington theater when a roof fell on an audience as the result of a heavy load of snow is an illustration of how it is often the unexpected that creates the disaster. An accident of this kind is almost unheard of, and few people would foresee the necessity of guarding against it.

Such a catastrophe should lead architects and builders everywhere to give the most careful attention to the problems involved by roofs of public buildings. Such roofs usually carry a tremendous weight. Even if well constructed the walls some times spread as the result of the extremely powerful thrust of the roof. In localities having heavy snows, this is a tremendous additional burden at times. Also high winds and hurricanes are a source of strain to be considered in any public resort, and all elements of danger should be provided against before ornamentation is considered.

PRACTICAL RURAL PROGRESS.

The best chance for economic prosperity lies in the attempt to secure for the food producer a bigger share of the price the consumer pays. The manufacturers, for instance, are estimated to get around 70 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. But the farmer has not been averaging 50 per cent of the price paid by the consumer of his products.

In other industries, a large proportion of the product goes direct from the producer to the consumer, and that sells to the consumer. But in farming, most of the product goes through a number of hands, with the labor, expenses and profits mounting at every turn.

The farmer can not of course spend much of his own time doing his own marketing, except in cases where he lives near a city or large town, and finds it pays to drive his own truck or sell to automobile parties. But he can co-operate with other farmers to hire a competent man or men to do marketing for him.

When marketing and distributing are done by middlemen in cities, they are burdened by many heavy expenses. The work is done in costly buildings in crowded city streets, where traffic is so congested that all kinds of work are costly. Land costs so high in those quarters that it would frequently be impossible to secure adequate plants for sorting and distributing products except at tremendous expense.

Where the work of distribution can be done by co-operative associations in country centers, it saves all the tremendous expense caused by high real estate and congested quarters in city distributing points. So this movement for co-operative marketing, now rapidly spreading over the country, and which brings into the country a larger proportion of the consumer's dollar, and produce a new level of prosperity that will make possible all kinds of social, educational progress.

Next Wednesday is Washington's birthday.

Pastor Enforcement Officer.

Chicago.—The Rev. John H. Williamson, pastor of a Methodist Episcopal church, has been appointed law enforcement commissioner of Chicago with supreme powers in caring for the city's moral welfare.

His appointment to the post, especially created by Mayor William Hale Thompson at the request of reform and religious organizations, was announced by the Mayor and Mr. Williamson resigned as pastor of his church and formally accepted the new position.

In announcing his acceptance, the law enforcement commissioner declared his office would be conducted "in accordance with the teachings of Christ."

He appealed to all Christian organizations, regardless of race, color, and creed to join him in a crime drive which would forever rid Chicago of crooks, regardless of what strata of life they occupy.

He was especially enjoined by Mr. Thompson to seek out corrupt officials and was informed that his decisions would be final whether they hit "the highest city officials or the lowest crook on the streets."

"Any who seek a compromise, hinder or thwart the purpose of the law enforcement commissioner will have their actions directed to a motto which will be placed on my desk," said Mr. Williamson in a formal statement. The motto reads: "Respect for the law is of more value than respect for the violator."

FEBRUARY IS THE MONTH

To gather sap.

To order nursery stock.

To watch the wood and coal piles dwindle.

To help the "egg factories" to go full blast.

To start tomatoes and cabbage 'n' not lads or in boxes in the house.

To supply green food for the poultry.

An oat sprouter is ideal; steamed clover is also good.

To keep the houses warm after exertion in the cold. Lack of care may mean a serious loss.

To burn brush. See that all the trash is gathered from the fields and lots.

To keep a record of eggs laid. Such a record many times is most interesting and full of surprises.

To spend some of the long evenings helping the children with their lessons.

To make sure all harness and implements are in shape to go into the field. Next month you will want every minute for plowing.

To spend some of the long evenings helping the children with their lessons.

The Postmaster General has issued the following order:

Section 756, Postal Laws and Regulations, 1913, is amended to read as follows:

In all cases of impassable roads, bad condition of roads, unsafe bridges, dangerous fords, or other obstructions to service on rural routes, the postmasters at distributing offices shall notify the patrons affected and the road supervisors or officials in charge of such matters and request that the necessary repairs be made, using for the purpose Forms 4024 and 4024A. If the repairs are not made within a short time, the postmaster shall report the facts to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Rural Mails, with recommendation for an amendment of the route to withdraw it from impassable or unsuitable roads.

Postmasters shall, in like manner, report every instance where a non-automatic gate is being maintained on any road covered by Rural Delivery Service.

ATTENDED BY LARGE CROWD.

The sale of Big Type Poland China hogs held by Powers & Cleek, at Cleek's farm on the Dixie Highway, near Richmond, last Friday, was attended by a large crowd, and fifty-one head of bred sows and gilts were disposed of at good prices—most of the sales were made to people from adjoining counties and states. This herd is one of the best in the country, and these animal sales are becoming very popular with hog breeders from all parts of the United States.

MILK PRODUCERS NOTICE.

A milk meeting is called by the Florence Local of the Queen City Milk Producers Association for Saturday, Feb. 18th. Come out and help close campaign for 15,000 cows.

CLEM KENDALL, Secy.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our sincere thanks to our neighbors, friends and relatives for their kindness, sympathy and help in our dear husband and father, during his short illness, and especially to Dr. O. E. Senour, Mrs. Stump, the nurse for their prompt and efficient service; also Bro. H. C. Runyan for his consoling words and C. Scott Chambers, undertaker for the handsome manner in which he conducted the funeral.

GET OUT!

Demand Voiced in Resolution Aimed at Lax Public Officers. Churches Sound Calls For Law and Order. Exodus Among Newport Saloons Men Reported. Federal Aid Asked in Removing Officials Who Refuse To Resign. Troops are Praised For Raids.

Resolutions presented last Sunday night for approval to the congregation of virtually all of the Protestant churches of Newport, Ky., so that they may carry with them either the active or tacit support of the thousands of members of these churches, demand the immediate resignation of all public officials who have endeavored within the last few weeks to hamper the military authorities of Kentucky in the vigorous clean-up campaign they have inaugurated in Newport.

The resolutions were drawn by Rev. W. B. Harvey, of the First Baptist church.

Submitted to Congregation.

The full text of the resolutions, similar copies of which were submitted to the congregation in each of the churches, is as follows:

"Whereas, the raids on the saloons and gambling dens of Newport by the Federal Prohibition officers and state troops, hauling away truckloads of truckloads of whisky and beer, much gambling paraphernalia, many moonshine stills, and gathering into their net many of the noted criminals, was the greatest stroke for law enforcement, that this city ever witnessed; and

"Whereas, this intolerable condition and utter disregard for law with all its ramifications has been brought about and reached its huge proportions under the lax administration of our laws by officers, some of whom are still in office; therefore,

"Be it resolved, first, that we express our whole-hearted approval of the clean-up without reservation or equivocation; that we commend the manly and courageous stand of Governor E. P. Morrow and U. S. District Attorney Sawyer Smith; that we beseech the courts to show no leniency, but to inflict the maximum penalty in every case proven guilty, especially do we believe that the jail sentences should be particularly wholesome in this event; that we believe that the hour has come for the law-abiding citizens of Newport to take charge of and manage their own affairs, call upon the business men, every civic organization, every fraternal order and all decent, law-abiding men to take their part and openly and boldly for law and order; that we condemn as undesirable and lawless citizens all who utter adverse criticism of this clean-up movement and recommend that their names be given to the authorities that such persons may be kept under surveillance.

"Second, that we urge the authorities to continue operations until the clean-up is final and complete.

Third, that we respectfully ask our City Commissioners to revoke at once the license of every man found to be violating the law in his place of business and to pass an ordinance forbidding saloons, cafes and soft drink establishments from using blinds, stained or frosted glass, or any other means of obstructing a full view of their premises from the streets at all times.

Fourth, that we condemn the attitude and action of all public officers who have endeavored to embarrass, harass, hinder or interfere with authorities of the state and Federal Government in their efforts to clean up our city; that we ask them to resign at once, and if they refuse to do so willingly, that we beseech both the state and federal authorities to invoke all the power at their command to remove such persons from office.

"Fifth, that we express our confidence in our Sheriff, Mr. Tieman and Safety Commissioner Thomason but that we beg Mr. Thomason to use every means at his command to get rid of all undesirable politicians, particularly those who have sons and grandsons who are the most noted gamblers and law violators of the city and county. It is our firm conviction that if such men are left on the police force and some of our public officers are allowed to remain in office that the clean-up can have no permanent results.

MARKET THIRD OF INDIANA'S WOOL CLIP COOPERATIVELY.

One million three hundred thousand pounds of wool were marketed cooperatively by 62 counties of Indiana during the year 1921. This quantity represents more than one-third of the entire State clip, according to latest estimates of the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture. Extension of this plan of the State says that the cost of handling this wool from the wagon box to the manufacturer was less than 4 1/2 cents a pound.

The people who consume shall do not seem to desire the unvarnished truth.

WHAT SHALL WE DO WHEN HE DIES.

What a wonderful fellow that you is who never makes a mistake. You know him. We all have at least one on our acquaintance list. He cannot conceive that it is human to err, and therefore he permits no one, from the wife down, to doubt anything he says or does. A characteristic of this mighty man is that he insists on personally doing everything that is to be done in his vicinity because there's nobody who can do it right, or anyhow as well as he. We just simply hold our breath in fear of what will happen to the community when he dies. Of course everything will go to smash. Of course!

ADAMS-POOR

Miss Lena Florence Adams, of Fairview, and Miss Gladys Poor, of Doudton, were married on Feb. 8, at the Methodist parsonage, at Williamstown, by Rev. J. R. Noland. They were accompanied by Miss Lavancie Rude and Mr. Oakley Adams. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Adams, and the third young child of the family. The groom is a young farmer, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Poor.—Grant County News.

FIRE AT WILLIAMSTOWN

County Record Office Damaged—Grocery Store Burned Business Section Threatened.

A few days ago the county and circuit clerk's office in Williamstown were destroyed by fire, the records were kept in a vault and but little damage was done the court records. The fire originated in a grocery store adjoining which was destroyed. The fire was discovered about 10:30 p. m., and it took good work to prevent other buildings near the fire from being destroyed. Mrs. A. Carter, mother of Rev. R. H. Carter, of Petersburg, resided on the second floor of the building that was destroyed and was rescued by Kirtley Barnes. The Grant County News says:

AN ACT OF HEROISM

The act of Kirtley Barnes in rescuing Mrs. Carter from the flames is characterized on all sides as an act of heroism which has no parallel here. Mrs. Carter was asleep in her apartment over the grocery and the lower part of the building was a solid mass of flames. The stairway built on the outside of the building was burning rapidly. Mrs. Carter, on the burning stairway, broke into Mrs. Carter's room, wrapped her in the bed clothing while smoke nearly stifled him and flames licked his clothing. By this time the stairway was burning so fiercely it was impossible to descend, and Barnes climbed Mrs. Carter to the front window, kicked it out and stepped on to the roof of the porch, while with gentle hands Mrs. Carter was passed to the ground and received by other men. She suffered no injuries, but was under the care of physicians for several hours due to the shock she received. The floor was burning rapidly when Mr. Barnes rescued Mrs. Carter and fell in only a few moments later.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank my neighbors, friends and K. of P. brothers for the words of sympathy they gave me last Wednesday afternoon. I certainly appreciated it. Such deeds are not forgotten. A friend in need is a friend indeed. Those present were: W. Stephens, Harry Carlyle, L. L. Stephens, Ben Scott, W. B. Stephens, Frank Scott, Solon Stephens, D. C. Pope, R. T. Stephens, R. M. Wilson, Hubert Ryle, R. H. Wilson, Thad Ryle, John Stephens, J. E. Hodges, James Hodges, Howard Loudon, Haze Felthaus, E. M. Hodges, Colin Kelly, B. W. Clore, Wilbur Kelly.

A FREQUENT CAUSE OF FIRES.

Overheated cook stoves and furnaces cause many fires at this time of year. This peril is created not merely by efforts to force a fire for heating purposes on a cold day, but even more by carelessness with the drafts. Many people will open wide air heaters, and then forget all about it and leave the house to go to bed. If a chimney has a good draft, a tremendously strong air current is sweeping through that stove or heater, and a smoke pipe may become red hot. If any hood touches the same, it is likely to catch fire. If people are in the house and awake they usually smell an overheated condition, and take care of it. But if they have left the place, or have gone to sleep, the situation is a perilous one.

JAMES L. RILEY IS DEAD.

Died at His Home in Ludlow After a Few Days Illness With Pneumonia.

The news of the death of James L. Riley, which occurred at his home in Ludlow, Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, came as a shock to his many friends in Boone county, where he was born and raised and where he had spent most of his life, until a few years ago, when he moved to Ludlow. Very few knew that he had been sick, when the announcement of his death came. He had been confined to the house for several days with a severe cold, but had not called a physician until a day or two before his death, when pneumonia had developed, causing his sudden passing away.

He is survived by his widow and a number of nephews and nieces. He was in his 77th year, and was born near Burlington.

He was the owner of a number of houses in Ludlow and also owned a farm in this county, opposite North Bend containing about 700 acres. He formerly was engaged in the mercantile business at Bullittsville.

Since the opening of the Kenton Loose Leaf Warehouse he has been a familiar figure at the "breaks". He also raised large crops of tobacco on his own farms. He had lived in Ludlow 13 years. He was an uncle of Mayor Thomas Balsly, of Ludlow and Rev. Edgar C. Riley, of Lexington.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock by Rev. Joseph W. Hagin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Christian church, Covington. Burial in Highland cemetery.

BORROWED THOUGHTS.

You have heard the boys speak of blue Monday after being out Saturday night and Sunday. Well we the court had a blue Tuesday. Our efficient County Attorney had made an estimate of the amount that could be expended on each road, which seemed small. Then old unpaid contracts kept coming in until we soon found that even these amounts had to be lowered. How could we help from getting blue? Our acres kept getting longer and longer. Not a smile not even a sickly grin, even the exuberant spirit of Squire Bedinger was subdued as he talked of the Dixie Highway and the indifference of so many. Owing to the financial condition of the county the picture must sign liberally if we secure this road, because every dollar of the road money available must be expended on these cross roads. I acknowledge I am still blue. But these borrowed thoughts may help. We are exhorted that a man ought always to pray and not to faint. The darkest hour is just before day. Behind the cloud the sun is still shining. So with these thoughts let us redouble our energies. We are so near the top of the hill, a study pull, a pull altogether, hold on, keep pulling, don't grow faint hearted, remembering the Lord helps those that help themselves. If we get some where near the goal then we may get some of our county officers and others who are acquainted at automobile clubs and in the cities to supplement our subscription, but they will not be able to do anything until the people along the route do all they are able to do and manifest a willingness to do their utmost. Now how are we going to secure this money? The wise man Solomon realized he was not the embodiment of all wisdom. So he said in the multitude of counselors, there is wisdom. So if we can get the multitudes enough interested the multitude will devise some plan. It depends upon the earnestness of all the people, a few can not do it. It will take the co-operation of all. Surely we will not give up so near the shore.

Respectfully,
C. C. SLEET.

DIXIE HIGHWAY MEETING.

There will be a meeting at Richmond next Tuesday Feb. 21, at 2 p. m., to take such action as is necessary to secure the reconstruction of the road. All persons interested be present, as this project must not fail. The citizens must and should support the proposition with liberal subscription. Everybody attend this meeting.

Don't forget Washington's birthday Feb. 22, and plan to be with us at Pt. Pleasant. The entertainment committee will have an interesting program, consisting of Stereopticon views on the Life of Washington, with a lecture, special music and several other entirely new features well worth seeing and hearing. Come and bring your friends. The above is a Top Off for the Pie and Box Social Bazaar and Candy Sale to be held in the basement. Be sure to visit the "Land of the Goodies."

Excitement reigned supreme in the east side of our neighborhood last Saturday morning, when a large balloon hovered near the ground looking for a place to land, a rose was thrown out and the selected spot was Mrs. Annie McGlasson's pasture. Captain Thompson from Dayton, Ohio, was in charge of the balloon and he said he intended to land in Cincinnati but could find no suitable site. Miss Carol White and Mrs. McGlasson gave him a good country dinner and with many thanks he departed for Erlanger where he took a train for Dayton.

Sheriff Hume was called to Constance, last Monday morning by a woman by the name of Blackburn, who stated that Clem Wilson had assaulted her and knocked out several of her teeth. Wilson admitted that he had struck the woman, but stated that he did not think he had hit her so hard. Wilson was brought to Burlington and failing to execute bond, was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 13.—Plans for a state hospital, given over entirely to ex-service men, and named for Frederick W. Galbraith, the late commander of the American Legion who was killed in an automobile accident last spring, have been endorsed by Governor Lake.

The project, formulated by Mrs. Fanny I. Crosby, head of the American Legion auxiliary in Connecticut, calls for subscriptions from the general public, raised through the units of the auxiliary, each of which would endow a room in the hospital and name it for a man who gave his life in the service.

The plans also call for a state appropriation, which the governor has promised to push. No decision as to the location of the personal hospital has been reached.

San Francisco, Calif., Feb. 13.—A nation-wide drift of tubercular ex-soldiers into the Southwest has led the Government to carry through plans for the construction of a large hospital for tuberculars at Livermore, near here. The purchase of 200 acres of land has been completed, and a $2,000,000 edifice will be erected. The U. S. Veterans' Bureau has announced.

Hard jobs are only hard to those who think them hard.

LEGION NOTES

District schools in Moffat County, Colo., had decided to close their doors for a period of weeks, due to insufficient funds. The American Legion succeeded in raising $916 to keep them going, taking the stand that "a shortening of the school term or a curtailment of athletics would be a backward step, depriving children of rightful advantages."

Found wiping his auto with an American flag, a man in Tampa, Fla., was questioned by the American Legion. He was pronounced "simply ignorant," and given instruction in how to treat the colors. Hearing of the incident, the man's employer presented the Legion with a large flag.

A complete French village, with a "Hotel de Ville" accommodating 1,000, will be planted at Medicine Park, Oklahoma, as a recreation center for the American Legion. Fosts will build cottages where members may spend their vacation.

"Nervous" ex-soldiers present a special problem in hospitalization. Neuropsychiatric treatment at Government institutions is under investigation by the American Legion, and a conference of specialists has been called by the Veterans' Bureau.

John J. Payne, released two years ago from a German prison, is being looked for by the American Legion. His mother, at Newburg, N. Y., has not seen him since Christmas, 1920.

Holding aloft a can labeled "For ex-soldiers," a man raised $9,000 in New York streets. The American Legion learned that ex-soldiers got about $50 of it—the man got a jail sentence.

Gathered at the call of radical New York labor leaders, 600 unemployed men threatened a tear-gas attack on Fifth Avenue financiers. The American Legion was condemned as a "tool of capitalism," and ex-soldiers present were told they should have kept their Army guns to "force the Government to give them jobs."

Brooding over his horrors continues to wreck the minds of ex-soldiers. The American Legion at Tampa, Fla., reports twelve cases of ex-service men pronounced "incurably insane" since Thanksgiving.

Good standing in the American Legion will be the only security required to float a loan from the Legion's rotating fund for disabled and needy ex-soldiers.

History as taught in the public schools prejudice children against foreign countries, Alvin Owsley, head of the American Legion's Americanism commission told educational authorities at New York.

"To sail away for a year and a day," New York state delegates plan to charter a steamer to take them to the American Legion convention at New Orleans.

Salespeople as Builders. The success of a business community in building itself up as a trade center, depends to a large extent on the degree to which the salespeople in the stores put enthusiasm and personal interest into their work.

If sales clerks are interested in the success of their business they will be striving for increased trade all the time. They will greet customers with friendly and winning smiles, they will be patient with those who act slowly and deliberately. They will try to inform themselves on the goods that they are selling, so that they can give instructors useful guidance.

Salespeople who manifest such gifts quickly make a store popular, and it makes new friends every day, who spread around the work that that store is a pleasant and helpful place in which to trade.

LAMONA BREED MAKES FIRST PUBLIC APPEARANCE.

The Lamona, the new white-egg-laying general-purpose fowl originated and being developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, made its first appearance at the Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, held in New York from January 25 to 30, where 15 of the birds were shown in the open classes. In addition to the Lamona, and other Government bred fowls of standard breeds, the department put on an extensive exhibit consisting of models of poultry houses, a display of feathers of the standard breeds, appliances such as feed hoppers, brood coops, and a fattening battery. A series of panels, made up of photographs, charts, and placards, showed the more important standard breeds, the feeding of hens for egg production, the preparation of birds for exhibition, the advantages of early hatching, the improvement resulting from the use of a high quality sire, capons and caponizing, culling the farm flock, and the pedigree breeding of poultry.

A number of department representatives took part in the program of the show and gave information to the visitors concerning the educational exhibit. They reported an extraordinary interest on the part of the public in the various poultry breeders in the Lamona breed, many persons desiring to obtain breeding birds. The department believes necessary to perfect them still more as regards certain characteristics, and it is not likely that any will be for sale during the coming year.

1921 ROAD PROJECTS

ENOUGH TO GIRDLE EARTH

Eleven thousand nine hundred and thirty miles of Federal-aid roads were constructed under the joint supervision of the Federal Government and the States during 1921, according to reports of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Federal money amounting to $94,057,083 was allotted to these roads, the total cost of which was $231,963,682. In this mileage there is included 8,595 miles in projects wholly completed and the equivalent of 9,335 miles of work done on projects which are not wholly completed. Every State shared in the benefits of this work.

The projects under way during the year amounted to 31,228 miles, which was about one-half of all the road work carried on in the United States during the year. A fair idea of the magnitude of the road work done under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture last year may be gained when it is understood that the total mileage is considerably more than enough to encircle the earth, that it is equal to more than 10 per cent of all the improved roads previously existing in the United States, and that it is equal to nearly 8 per cent of the entire road system of France. At this rate we would be able to build the equivalent of France's entire road system in 12 years.

A HOME CONVENIENCE MOVEMENT.

A group of country women in Linn county, Missouri, all of whom keep poultry, recently made a unique agreement. They promised each to set one hen on eggs of a breed different from the regular flock, so that the chicks would be distinguishable, and to use the money gained therefrom in buying labor saving conveniences for their own home.

It is already reported that 728 chickens had been raised and sold under this agreement, and the women were spending the proceeds thereof for sinks, pumps, cookers, bread mixers, and all kinds of labor savers. This plan stimulated the enterprise of many women, and has introduced helps that will lighten the labors of all these homes.

STELLA M. SLEAT, Committee. Feb. 9-16

Farm boys and girls of McCreary county are showing an increased interest in junior agricultural club work, according to a report of W. B. Woodward, county agent. More than 150 recently were enrolled in one month to take up some farm or home project for the coming year.

NEWS FROM FRANKFORT.

Frankfort, Ky.—Nine-year old Miss Virginia Strange, daughter of Representative L. Strange of Bowling Green, was made an honorary page of the House by a unanimous vote. She was introduced to the House by Representative C. B. Minnor of Perryville.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Thompson tax bill was passed by the House after more than three hours of debate by a vote of 58 to 21.

With the 1920 assessment as a basis the present bill cuts the state revenue by more than $1,000,000, but it is expected that increased assessment on hitherto unlisted property will make up the loss.

The bill also widens the powers of the State Tax Commission by allowing that body to order increases in assessments.

Several amendments were offered but only one was voted into the bill.
It was by Representative Lucien Drury, giving to the public the right to appeal from assessments.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky
House of Representatives, by a vote of 70 to 10 went on record as being in favor of selecting County School Superintendents by direct vote. It passed a bill introduced by William Boling, of Meade county, doing away with the 1920 law for appointment of the Superintendents, after amending the bill so that it will remain an appointive office until 1925.

The most important bill, besides the school bill, acted upon by the House was that of Harry J. Meyers, of Covington, forbidding the use of daylight saving time by an corporation in Kentucky. This bill forbids time being changed in any part of the state unless the entire state changes.

Frankfort, Ky.—Opponents of the present school law gained a point and lost one in the House when Representative J. B. Wicker succeeded in drawing his bill to re-establish county teachers' certificates from the Committee on Education No. 2, and Representative T. O. Holder, who tried to do the same with his bill, revealing that part of the law which provides for the election of the county board of education and appointment of the superintendent, failed to accomplish it. Mr. Wicker's bill was read into the calendar.

Representative L. J. Jeter of Lincoln county, chairman of the committee, said he was willing to report Mr. Holder's bill, but that it provided no manner of selecting the officers to be substituted for those to be unseated.

Frankfort, Ky.—The new Capital Hotel in Frankfort, to be built on the site of the structure burned in 1917, is assured and the contract was closed a few days since.

Subscriptions totaled $301,000, sufficient to insure construction. At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Committee in charge of the stock campaign today, it was announced that Judge Robert W. Bingham and James B. Brown, of Louisville would subscribe $25,000 if local subscriptions were brought up to $275,000. About $18,000 of this amount was lacking and stockholders increased their subscription that amount.

The building will be colonial in design, facing Main street on the old site. Wings at either side and 200 feet rear will permit of additions.
The lobby will be larger than the famous lobby of the old hotel with a mezzanine and the top floor will contain the ballroom and roof garden.

Committee rooms for legislators will be a feature.

Frankfort, Ky.—The State Senate killed the Lee Anti-racing Bill by a vote of 26 to 10.

The action followed an unfavorable but not unanimous report that the bill should not be passed.

The Rev. John A. Lee, Senator from the Twenty-sixth District, reported that his bill be read into the calendar despite the adverse committee report, and arguments for and against the measure were heard.

The Rev. Mr. Lee, urging that the bill be read into the calendar, said:
"I really believe that the people of Kentucky, as well as the people of the entire country, are sick and tired of gambling at the race tracks."

He added that the principal plank in the platform which elected him to the Senate had been against the authorization of gambling on races.

The advocates of the measure said that he was not trying to abolish racing, merely trying to have passed a bill which would prohibit gambling at race tracks. He told the Senators to vote as their constituencies wanted them to vote, whether for or against his bill.

"We have no right," he declared "to barter the morals and youth of our land because of money. You represent the taxpayers of Kentucky and you are here to legislate for them."

Frankfort, Ky.—Opponents of the school legislation enacted in 1920 scored a decisive victory in the House of Representatives when a bill, restoring the election of the County School Superintendent to the voters and providing for the nomination of teachers by the sub-district trustees was passed by a vote of 70 to 10.

The measure, introduced by Representative W. M. Boling, of Meade County, Chairman of the Committee on Education No. 1, was amended so

CHEERFUL HOUSE FROCKS

House dresses are as important certainly as any others, and they have cheerful charms of their own—more lasting ones than their costlier rivals.
They are usually bought ready-made, come in pleasing colors, are cut on graceful lines and are inexpensive.
More than all, they return from their tumble fresh and crisp. Here is one made of gingham and trimmed with chambray and braid. It is one of many pretty and practical models.

that County Superintendents now holding office would be allowed to retain their positions, the first election being scheduled for 1925. Another amendment provided that the superintendent must approve of the teachers nominated by the trustees.

The bill was passed after an extended debate in which the present law, which has been in operation since January 1, was bitterly assailed by most of the members who spoke, while a few defended it. Several efforts to have the bill recommended were voted down.

"The time has come when it is necessary for the people of Kentucky counties to delegate matters of government to five men," said Mr. Boling.

"The vote was polled against the two Constitutional Amendments submitted at the last election showed that the so-called progressive school legislation is not approved by the people of the State. There are Republicans and Democrats here who made their races on this law. If you can get a better County Superintendent by letting five men select him, why can you not get a better judge or a better Representative?"

"Thomas Jefferson said that the power of a government lie in the consent of the governed and on the battlefield of Gettysburg, Abraham Lincoln declared that government of and by the people must not perish from the earth."

Frankfort, Ky.—Feb 8th was the biennial dog day in the House of Representatives of the Kentucky
General Assembly.

Once more zealous abolitionists mobilized to emancipate from the bondage of taxation "Old Ring," that composite hound, veteran of many a political campaign.

For hours, Kentucky's 100 Representatives wrangled.

Nostrums and panaceas galore were suggested in discussion of the bill introduced by Representative J.
B. Wickers.

The Governor of the State was dragged from his dinner table to give expert advice.

"Old Ring," portrayed by a shepherd dog anchored at the end of a forty-foot rope, kicked in with platitude bars.

Then, late in the afternoon, when all had exhausted their fund of amendments, rallery, humor, exple-tives and stock arguments, the Representatives reached this decision:

The House wants each Kentucky family to have one dog without paying a tax on it, but thinks that any additional dogs should be taxed at the rate of $2 each with the exception of fox hounds. No matter how many of the latter animals one owns he should not pay taxes on more than three, the House believes.

NEW CIRCULAR ENCOURAGES JUNIORS TO RAISE POULTRY.

Lexington, Ky.—In order to help farm boys and girls of the State get started with purebred poultry, the College of Agriculture has issued a new circular, dealing with the hatching and raising of chicks, which is being distributed to interested youngsters. The project for which the circular was designed has proved to be one of the most popular with boys and girls who are enrolled in junior agricultural club work, more than 4,628 of them having been engaged in poultry raising in 1921.

The new publication, which was written by J. R. Smyth, a member of the college poultry department, outlines the selection of raising chicks from the selection and hatching of eggs to the preparation of an exhibit. It contains pointers on the care of the setting hen and ration for chicks as well as a number of other facts of interest to adults as well as Junior poultrymen. It may be obtained free by asking the Experiment Station at Lexington for Circular No. 110.

INCUBATOR NEED SPECIAL CARE TO HATCH EGGS WELL.

The incubator is coming to be a common piece of farm equipment in Kentucky but like the cream separator or the tractor it cannot be expected to give the best results in its work unless it receives a little special attention, experienced poultrymen say. Making sure that the machine is in good running order a reasonable length of time before it is to be used will produce better results in hatching and save both time and money for the farmer, the poultrymen say.

An inventory of the outfit should be taken at this time of the year to make sure that there is a plentiful supply of wicks and other articles that are used in any quantity in turning out the hatch, according to suggestions by poultrymen at the College of Agriculture. Costly delays can be prevented by ordering any needed part immediately.

In order to make sure that the machine can be operated at the proper temperature throughout the period of incubation it should be run two or three days before the eggs are placed in it. Experiments have shown that a temperature of 101 degrees the first week, 102 degrees the second week and 103 degrees the third give best results when a standing thermometer, with the bulb level with the top of the eggs, is used. A temperature of 103 degrees throughout the hatch is best when a hanging thermometer, with the bulb an inch above the eggs, is used.

A well-ventilated cellar has been found to be the best place for the machine but it never should be placed in a damp room or on the second or third floor. Better results will be obtained if the machine is not set in the direct rays of the sunlight. Before the eggs are placed in the incubator, the thermometer may be tested with the ordinary clinical one by placing the two in water at 110 degrees and then observing them to see that the readings correspond, especially between 103 and 101 degrees, as the water cools.

TOBACCO GROWERS TO USE SEED TREATMENT.

Lexington, Ky.—Indications are that many Kentucky tobacco growers will try seed treatment, during the coming season in an effort to control wildfire and angular leaf spot, the two most serious diseases of tobacco, occurring in their fields, according to W. D. Valleau, plant pathologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. A number of Christian county farmers, who recently had almost a bushel of dark tobacco seed treated at a local station, are among the most recent ones to employ the method before planting their seed.

The treatment which gives promise of rendering the seed disease free involves the use of bichloride of mercury which is being recommended in preference to formaldehyde as the latter resulted in some injury last year when the seed was not thoroughly washed, according to Mr. Valleau. The seed is soaked for 15 minutes in a solution made up of one part of bichloride and 1,000 parts of water after which it is washed thoroughly in several changes of clear water. Metal containers cannot be used in the soaking process. After the soaking and washing, the seed is dried quickly by placing it in a cheese cloth bag and swinging it around at arm's length several times to remove the surplus water after which it is spread out in a thin layer.

There is a report in circulation that if the citizens fail to raise the $20,000 necessary to complete the fund for the construction of the Lexington pike, that the fiscal court will then furnish the fund necessary. This might be a good business move on the part of the court but it is something the court can not do because they have no funds that can be appropriated for that purpose. I live on authority to borrow funds to be used to complete the project on the Boone county roads in 1931, and the road fund is practically exhausted and no matter if the fiscal court wanted to appropriate the money they could not do so. If the fund is not raised in a very short time the money set aside for the construction of the Dixie Highway will be apportioned to other roads. If the $20,000 is raised by subscription the road will be built, and when the road will be maintained by the county as best as can be done with the limited means at hand. This means that it will be a long time before the fall and win-

ROAD BUILDING GROWN TO BIG NATIONAL INDUSTRY.

Road building is one of the Nation's largest industries, according to statistics compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, and surpasses such great industries as the manufacture of steel and iron as well as the production, sale, and repair of automobiles. In December, 1929, less than 100,000 men were employed in the steel and iron industry. It is estimated that last year something like 750,000 men were engaged in making, selling and repairing automobiles. As compared with this an army of approximately 1,000,000 men labored last year throughout the road-construction season in building and repairing the country's highways.

Fifty million tons of stone and gravel will be required by the 28,000 miles of Federal-aid roads either completed or under construction in the United States at the end of the present fiscal year, according to the estimates of the Bureau of Public Roads. Some idea of the quantity is given by the fact that it is equal to a million carloads. If the material were piled in one place in the form of a cube it would be approximately 1,000 feet in each direction, or nearly twice as high as the Washington Monument.

Little Change in Assessment.

Assessment of real and personal property in Kentucky will be little changed from that of 1929 by the process of equalizing the 1921 valuation, on which the State Tax Commission will commence hearings on Thursday.

Tentative raises have been made on 105 of the 120 counties, but, even with their raises, 77 of them are below 1929 figures, and a total of $31,940,213, while twenty-eight, including most of the coal counties, were raised a total of $37,340,000 putting the tentative assessments of the 105 counties $5,400,196 above that of 1929.

In these raises, outside the coal counties, Rainey T. Wells, chairman, said, the only aim was to keep land up to what it was last year. A big loss in livestock and personal property brings down the assessment in all the counties.

Mr. Wells also said the assessments this year come nearer conforming to sale prices on the transfer sheets sent in by the County Clerk than they ever did before.

The assessment of Boone county was raised $1,400,000; land $1,250,000, lots $50,000, personally, $100,000. Decrease of $406,157 from last year.

POOL PROTECTED BY CONTRACT AS WELL AS BY LAW.

Ample protection against the sale of the pooled crops by those seeking to "wedge" on their acreage is given not only by the marketing contract signed by the growers, but by the Bingham co-operative marketing act recently made a law by the Kentucky legislature according to a statement given out by Col. Joseph Passonneau, chief of the field service division of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association at Lexington.

Besides the provision of the Bingham law which provides a penalty for warehousemen who may induce growers to breach their contracts by the sale of pooled tobacco over their floors, Col. Passonneau said that there are two or three paragraphs of the Bingham co-operative marketing law which should be of particular interest to the members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association.

Next meeting will be with Miss Eva Smith. All members are requested to be present.

Conditions were bad in Russia under the autocratic rule of the czars. But the people had bread, and enjoyed life, in but little more.

Then they overthrew and murdered the czar and begged the nobility and formed a government of free peasant class. They would be free and independent, and all had dreams of sudden wealth.

Now they have not even bread and are starving by the hundreds of thousands.

America is feeding many of them, as usual, but while engaged in this work of the Samaritan we can not forget that they brought their plight upon themselves.

Mob rule sounds good to the mob only until hunger begins to gnaw.

WHAT ARE DREAMS?

When you retire to your bed at night and the little God morpheus, steals your mind and thoughts and walks them away to His dominions of "Dreamland" and "Land-of-Nod" as it is called, leaving your body inert, unconscious and, as far as you are concerned, lifeless upon your couch, did the above thought ever present itself to you? As common as the subject is, one we all have experienced thousands of times, how many of us can give, or analyze a plain and clear cause or reason for this, that is beyond a doubt? Some of our most learned "Dry goods businessacres" tell us "they are sleeping thoughts caused by exhaustion," others add "of events we have lately passed through" as they recross their legs and emit a stream from their "long green" at a fly on the wall that would do credit to a sixteen inch hose, and consider his simple explanation of so simple a question, settled for all time. But did you ever notice, many of your dreams are events and people we have not thought of for years, and many of the people have passed away, or old and gray, while in our dreams, they are always young, spry and full of life, or as children, no older than they were years ago, and many of the events we change to suit the time and place, we seemed to be in. So does it not look plausible, and compare with the natural laws of nature, that nature provides, and the divine laws of the Bible, of "Perpetual Youth" that, to give the body a chance to rest and recuperate from the awful strain that is placed upon them through the day, our minds live or if you wish to call it, our Souls are set free from our bodies that incarcerates them, invisible and unrestrained to mingle with "kindred spirits"? If so, then the natural law of coercion that nature provides for the protection of Her objects, especially Her subjects that contain life and the Divine law of "Perpetual Youth," supreme happiness and contentment, or the reverse, are fulfilled, as a taste or as a warning of that which is to come. The Bible, is filled with illustrations of "visions" and "going into the spirit" and being carried to such and such a place. The whole of Revelations, are "visions" and "going into the spirit" to witness illustrations of events which were to take place before the final judgment. I remember reading a little story in fiction once, while comic, illustrates the theory: A Jew in New York City had a little clairvoyant shop for those wishing to experience the "Occult." The candidate was seated in a chair, a wand was passed over his head, which released His Spirit from his body, to go where it wished, and where the "spirit" of a very large man came in after being out, and Ly mistake was placed in the body of a very small man. How crowded it was and what a row there was for the "spirit" came in to claim the body. Why then should we scoff at such a theory, as being improbable and impossible, when there are so many wonders in the field of science today, that we cannot comprehend or understand. New gigantic worlds or planets being discovered, millions and millions of miles away, the distance from us, size and revolutions &c., all calculated by the science that nature has placed in the hands of Her Human subjects, the calculations so enormous and the very instruments used in such work, so delicately sensitive and poised for such scientific work, that our insignificant minds cannot grasp, or even enumerate these great problems. All these planets revolving millions of miles per minute, held in place, guided and controlled in their orbits, by the great natural universal law of gravitation.

So then, why should it be thought to be such a great phenomenon for nature, the mother of us all, to look out for Her children, if she does release the "spirit" from the body for a short time for our welfare?
KIRLEY L. RICE.

DOCKING LAMBS RAISES THEIR VALUE ON MARKET.

Failure to dock the lambs and otherwise care for them before sending them to the market, is responsible for large losses suffered every year by Kentucky sheepmen, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the sheep work at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, Lambs which have received this care bring from one to three cents per pound more on the principal markets. Both operations may be performed at once after the lambs are from seven to 14 days old. A bright, clear day is best for the work, according to the specialist.

In addition to the higher price which they bring, docked lambs have a cleaner appearance, are cleaner and less liable to be infested with maggots and contribute toward giving the flock a uniform appearance. Docked lambs fatten more quickly than do others, they have a better quality of meat and are more desirable against on the market, sheep specialists say.

In docking, the tail should be cut about one inch from the body by means of a knife, pruning shears or a pair of pliers. In castrating, the scrotum should be cut off and the testicles attached to the body. The operations are performed after a small amount of ether has been applied.

DOUBLING UP.

At the height of the boom period there was apparently a tremendous shortage of homes. Business organizations in thousands of cities were trying to induce people to build more dwellings. At present this lack of houses is less apparent, and in many cities "To Rent" signs are appearing. Economists say this is partly because many families are doubling up. When the young people get married, they may live on in the house occupied by the old folks or with other friends, instead of setting up in a home of their own.

Social philosophers may say that every young couple should have the chance to establish their own dwellings, where they can take pride in their own environment and proceed to develop it with the energy of youth. Young brides may feel defrauded if they do not have the chance to create an entirely new nest for themselves.

Yet millions of young couples have started in rooms provided in the old family homesteads. Old fashioned families used to double up a great deal more than people do now. The old homesteads were ample, and they seemed planned with the idea that some of the children would marry and continue along under the old roof.

Modern young people would say this plan would lead to family jars yet it saved a good deal of effort, and was one in which the old timers got along or narrow means. Big families would get out of those days around the common dining table. The most important thing for a young couple starting out in life, is to live within their income and secure some savings. They would be far better off to double up with relatives or some other family and save something each week, than to live on the verge of yet run into debt. The people that start in a small way often come out the best after a few years.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Perhaps the Hon. John D. Carroll, whose name appears times without number in the prelude to legislative bills, never dreamed a few years back in what strange ways his statutes would be amended. But remember it is the era when if you order cigarettes or safety razor, it is best to tell the clerk whether the purchase is for Ma or Pa.

House Bill 51 would amend the Criminal Code of Practice so Sec. 244 shall read: "Cases in which jury must be kept together. On the trail of offenses which are or may be punished capitally the jurors after they are accepted, if all of same sex, shall not be permitted to separate, but shall be kept together in charge of the proper officers. But if the jury consists of both male and female, then the sexes of such jury may be permitted to separate during the trial and when necessary after final submission of the case, each sex being kept together in charge of an officer of like sex, as if two separate juries. On the trial of other felonies, the jurors before the case is submitted to them, may be permitted to separate, in the discretion of the court, but after the case is submitted they shall be kept together in charge of officers. On the trial of misdemeanors the jurors may be permitted to separate, but the court may order them to be kept together."

Hon. G. W. Tolin, of Boone county, is the thoughtful one who introduced the bill. The House passed the measure, 84 to 5, and the bill is now with the Senate Committee on Criminal Law. After the House passes the bill, it may be well to urge the Governor to sign it.

Rural Business Conditions. Many favorable factors are working together for better times for the country people. Freight rates have come down some. The costly practices of the war time period are being cut out of railroad operation, which must tend to bring about still further reductions in freight. Enormous amounts of food stuffs are being marketed co-operatively, bringing more money into the country.

The War Finance corporation in providing farmers with needed credit, is business in reviving in the cities, and increasing the purchasing power of the masses. All these conditions are working to help rural industry, and 1922 will be a far better year than 1921.

Some people prefer the stuffy air of city tenements and factories to the free air of the country, but evidently they are not anxious to live long on this earth.

The motto of city life is, "Watch other people do things." The country motto is, "We can do it our selves."

FEARING EDUCATION.

Some country people will not educate their children for fear that school and college life will interest them in pursuits other than farming, and that they will never return to their old homes. This may be the case where the education has no training for country life and rural industries. But any family that wants to keep its young people yet have them thoroughly trained for life, can accomplish both ends by giving them a course in some good agricultural school or college. That will open their eyes to the possibilities of rural industry. If they are given little education they are apt to see no opportunity in country life, then if they have any ambition, they will slip off to the cities when the first chance offers.

SIMPLIFYING OUTPUT.

One way to make production more economical, is to simplify products. The United States Chamber of Commerce tells of a hardware manufacturer who sets a good example by reducing his line from 2752 to 791 articles.

Such a concern may meet at first with some competition from rivals who claim that they make a more varied assortment of goods. But a company that thus concentrates its line into a relatively smaller number of articles, can operate at less expense, and it puts its product on the market for less money. There are too many styles, fashions, patterns and frills in the business world.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Daugherty bill to bring out intangible property was passed in the State Senate after heated debate by a narrow margin of two votes. The roll call showed 17 for and 15 against the measure.

It would require a verified allegation that every debt the subject of court action had been listed for taxation purposes in all proper jurisdictions. Senator B. T. Davis of Fulton county was its chief opponent.

Much turmoil being caused by the effort to substitute the Old Oaken Bucket for the Little Brown Jug.

A BOONE COUNTY BOY.

W. G. Finn Writes in the Interest of Better Educational Institutions in Kentucky.

W. G. Finn, a Boone County boy, is attending Kentucky University, and is very much interested in Education and writes the Recorder as follows:

Lexington, Ky.
Feb. 13, 1922.

My Dear Mr. Riddell:
I have become so much interested in the actions of our present Legislature that I have snatched a few spare moments between classes in an effort to get some of this material before the people of our county. The very roughness and crudeness of the coined phrases will no doubt indicate the hurried conditions under which the short article was written. If you find room in some obscure corner of your good paper to publish the few remarks, you may do so with the utmost of liberty, but if you do not I wish you would render a helping hand in disseminating the small bits of knowledge which I meant for it to contain. In case of publication you may assign any title which you so desire, as I haven't time nor brains enough to think up a suitable one.

You are no doubt familiar with the fact that our State Legislative body is now in session, and because of the fact that the general condition of hard times prevails throughout the commonwealth, undue pressure is brought to bear upon each and every Representative in that body. Various bills have been prepared and still more are to be brought up in the very near future, upon which immediate action is taken.

Citizens as a whole, and of the rural sections especially, do not generally inform themselves of the activities of our law making body. A very unfortunate situation to say the least—but this we might naturally expect. The farmer, who is hard working man, spends his twelve or fifteen hours a day in the field and when night comes he is ready to rest, so he has little time and apparently less patience, to spend with a group of men, who most folks think have nothing to do except wrangle over such petty affairs as were meant only for one-horse, one-jackleg politicians, and sit back and draw their salary and their breath. These are our Representatives, Gentlemen! They are elected by us, and for the purpose of making our laws and performing legislation for us, so why should we not be interested in, and concern ourselves with what they are doing?

Abraham Lincoln once said that ours is "a Government of the people, by the people and for the people." Then if this is true why don't we each of us have a voice in the passing of laws and action on such affairs as directly concern us? Well, most of us know that we have no effect that our own voice has in determining the course which legislation takes is absolutely dependent upon the interest we take in the matter under consideration.

Some weeks ago an article appeared in the columns of the Recorder that was written by Mr. Grant County in which he highly commended the action of our present Representative in writing to some of the men of that county in regard to the way in which they wished him to vote on certain bills. I hope it will not be necessary for him to remind the citizens of Boone County of their duty in this respect, and that they will, of their own accord, write to him and express their own individual views on such questions as are now receiving more or less attention.

As previously stated there are bills and still more bills, to be voted upon by the Legislature within the next few days, but there are a few of these at least in which every good Kentuckian should be most vitally interested. One bill in particular should receive the careful consideration and expression of each and every citizen of the State, and that is the bill which determines the appropriation for Education for the year 1922. As recommended by the committee to which this bill was assigned, the amount of money set aside for our institutions of learning will not only fail to be increased, but will actually be less than it was for the past two years. Think of it! If action, let's get busy and write our Representative tonight, and any other Representative which we might know, and urge them to give for Education as they have never given before, in order that our future generations may receive the training to which they are entitled, and thereby strengthening the foundation of a powerful nation and paving the way for a Greater Kentucky.

W. G. FINN.

PRACTICAL RURAL PROGRESS.

The country town must acquire a sound business basis before it can go ahead. There must be a fair chance to earn a living in a country town, or the younger folks will not stay there.

Yet many other factors of rural progress must be considered. Young people get dull and dissatisfied unless they have pleasant social life. They need competition in athletics, they need a chance to cultivate their talents. There ought to be little groups for practicing singing and orchestral music, there should be debating societies, etc. The country people should have their jolly dances like the city crowd.

The women, too, need their outlet into the larger world. Life seems humdrum in a country home, with the eternal routine of cooking and sweeping and dishwashing, unless there is some glimpse of the big world outside. They need their clubs for discussion and reading, with occasional addresses.

The men, too, need their social life. When they are just grubbing after dollars all the time, life lacks inspiration and joy. They need the chance for pleasant comradeship. They need occasional lectures and "talks" and entertainments to break the monotony of daily toil. Churches and schools must be cultivated, for without them no country town can maintain a soul and a mind, through all the dirt and grime of every day toil.

Man does not live by bread alone. Life will stagnate unless institutions like these are kept up and made vital and interesting. That means that people who have brains and initiative must give some time to them. Such activities attract new residents and keep old ones. With these advantages a town is sure to go ahead, because it draws a superior class of people. Such folks are not content with old ways of doing things, but constantly seek the best in modern life and adapt it to the needs of Practical Rural Progress.

NEW ROAD BILL

Democratic Caucus Decides to Discard Many of Provisions of House Bill.

Frankfort, Ky.—Democratic Senators in caucus are said to have decided to draft an entirely new road bond issue bill to get around provisions in the House bill which they term "sectional."

The Senators named to revise the measure are: W. A. Perry of Louisville, R. C. Simmons of Covington and Frank E. Daugherty of Nelson county.

Submission of the question of a bond issue of $50,000,000 for roads is, of course, the main provision of the new bill, and it is said that the method of providing revenue for payment of the interest on and retirement of the bonds would not be changed.

The main changes, according to information obtained would be: The appointment of a commission of four members, instead of a commission of twelve, to supervise the issuance of the bonds and the expenditure of the money obtained from their sale.

Abolition of the present highway commission.

Submission of the question to the electorate in November, 1924, which would be after the next session of the Legislature, rather than at the 1922 election.

LEADERS AND FOLLOWERS

Many business men are content to follow along old established lines and try to get their share of what trade naturally exists in their community and is already being drawn from in outside. They do useful work, but their business does not grow.

Others are natural leaders, and are all the time doing original thinking. They read trade papers, they talk with salesmen. They try to find what progressive merchants in other places are doing. They study markets, and learn of special opportunities to buy to good advantage. They become keen judges of values and buy low. As a result they are in a position to give superior service and their business grows.

Also they are enterprising in their efforts to spread the reputation of their business. They are good advertisers. They are in favor of community projects for extending the business reputation of their home town.

ASSESSMENT RAISED

Boone County Land and Other Property Increased By State Board.

N. E. Riddell, Judge-Boone County Court, Burlington, Ky., said: Dear Sirs—The State Tax Commission, sitting as the State Board of Equalization, has examined the recapitulation of the county tax commissioner's books from Boone County, and has compared it with other data in the hands of the Commission and in the judgment of the Commission it finds that it will be necessary to make an increase in the assessed value of property of your county in order to make an equalization with the other counties in this Commonwealth.

This commission is contemplating making an increase in the following classes of property, in the following amounts, which in its opinion are improperly assessed, viz:

Lands	$125,000
Town Lots	50,000
Property	100,000

Notice is hereby given you of this action, and we ask you to post this notice in a conspicuous place in your county as a notice to the taxpayers of the county, as required by law.

Should your county, or any taxpayer therein, desire to be heard by this Commission upon this contemplated increase, you may appear and be heard by the State Tax Commission on Monday, February 27, 1922, at our office in the State Capitol at Frankfort.

RAINEY T. WELLS,
Chairman.

EARLY PLANTING.

Many experts on gardening advise people to put in seeds fairly early. They may thus run risk of frosts and losing their labor and seed. But usually they will lose nothing, and if the spring does come early they get a fine start, and are able to take advantage of favorable weather.

The profit in gardening, for those raising to sell, is to get the stuff early when it brings the best price. Young people who are trying little gardens of their own might well remember this. Their time is not so valuable that they will lose a great deal if a little of their stuff is frost-killed. Yet if they do come thru all right as they probably will, they will be well rewarded.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

Farmers, ranchers, herders, dairymen, truck gardeners, vineyard and orchard owners, and other food producers must compute their net and gross incomes for 1921 and ascertain whether an income tax return, or a tax, or both are due. All gains, profits, and income derived from the sale or exchange of farm products, whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold, must be included in gross income. When a farmer exchanges his products for groceries, clothing or other merchandise, the fair market value of such goods must be included. Profit received from the sale of farm land, or rent received for the use thereof, must be included.

In determining income, upon which the tax is assessed, the farmer may deduct from gross income all necessary expenses incurred in the operation of his farm during the year 1921. These include cost of cultivation, harvesting, and marketing of his crops cost of feed and fertilizer used, amount spent in repairs to farm buildings (other than the dwelling) and to farm hands are deductible, but not wages paid to a domestic servant, which is a personal expense.

As an aid to farmers, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has prepared a special form, 1040F, for recording data of live stock, produce, and a summary of which must be attached to the individual return of income and expenses.

An unmarried or widowed farmer or one living apart from his wife must file an individual return for 1921 if his net income for 1921 was $1,000 or more, or if his gross income was $5,000 or more. If married and living with his wife on December 31, 1921, a return must be filed if his net income was $2,000 or more, or if his gross income was $5,000 or more.

MISS MARY CASON, DEAD.

Miss Mary Cason, daughter of the late Alfred Cason, who died at the Central Kentucky Hospital, Feb. 15th, 1922. Her remains were shipped to Walton where Undertaker C. Scott Chambers took charge of them and were brought to Burlington and interred in the I. O. O. F. cemetery. Miss Cason had been in feeble health for a long time, and her death was not unexpected. She is survived by two brothers and two sisters, and a number of nieces and nephews.

SALE WELL ATTENDED

The sale of the personal property of John W. Hill, deceased, at the farm near Hillsville, last Friday, was well attended, and articles sold very well, considering the general financial conditions. W. Lee Cropper is the administrator of the estate.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Seniors have placed their order for invitations. Mr. Fendley, representing a Louisville firm, called at the school house last Thursday and received the order.

Miss Grow spent the week-end at Ft. Mitchell and attended the Symphony Saturday night at Cincinnati.

Five of the B. H. S. girls attended a B. Y. J. U. meeting at Covington, last Tuesday night. They reported a large crowd and a fine program.

The school gave a Washington's birthday program Tuesday morning in preference to Wednesday, which was observed as a legal holiday by the school.

Miss Mattie Kreylich resumed her teaching on Monday of this week after a week's absence. She was absent on account of the death of her uncle, Mr. James L. Riley, of Ludlow, Supt., Gordon took charge of her classes.

Garnett Clore and Marvin Rouse have stopped school to help about the farm work at home. We are sorry to lose these young men from our midst.

Mr. Elmer Gifford was absent from school last Thursday. He attended the funeral of his uncle at Petersburg.

DOOM IS SEALED

Buried in Rules Committee, Its Not Likely to Emerge Again, Is View.

Frankfort, Ky.—The anti-evolution bill is dead, buried in the Rules Committee of the State Senate. Resurrection is possible, but not probable, the lawmakers say. They point to the personnel of the Rules Committee and to the rule which necessitates a vote of twenty Senators to do something that the Rules Committee does not want to do during the last twenty days of the session.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The career of George Washington has splendid lessons for these times. In this period when the community has so many of the facilities for living and working, it is inspiring to look back to the great men of an age when people had to get along with poor and inadequate equipment.

In these days people will often say that a school or a public enterprise can not succeed unless it has the most costly plant and tools. Young people give up discouraged if they are not provided with the advantages which their friends have. But if they would show a little of the spirit that the Father of their Country had, they would take what facilities they had and go ahead and make a success with them. It is the power of personality that wins success.

Our modern people, if placed in the position that Washington occupied in 1775, would have said it was hopeless to try to do anything to win independence. He had a money map which was to serve as an army. It had no morale, only a miscellaneous assortment of weapons and was inadequately clothed and fed. It went through terrible vicissitudes. Their pay was often not forthcoming, and the natural tendency was for the soldiers to give up the seemingly hopeless fight and return to their homes. Yet Washington instead of sitting down and lamenting, did the best he could with poor tools. Instead of repining at his difficulties, he set cheerfully to work to overcome the obstacles, and to create that spirit of heroism in his men that would lead them to minimize their troubles and carry on.

The people who show that spirit can win in any situation. The teachers who talk to their children about the meaning of Washington's birthday might well emphasize this idea, that the best use of the things that circumstances give them and act instead of complaining.

HAS RESIGNED.

Joel C. Clore has tendered his resignation as Postmaster at Cincinnati. Other business interests is given as the reason for his resignation, as soon thereafter as an appointment of a man to take his place can be made. Mr. Clore was appointed by President Woodrow Wilson six years ago to succeed John L. Shuff. He was reappointed by President Wilson two years ago. His term would have expired April 1, 1924. Under the law applicants for the position of Postmaster must pass a civil service examination, must be a resident within the delivery district of the Cincinnati postoffice and must be under 65 years of age.

Pretty hard for folks with new silk stockings to keep their feet on the floor.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Business is Gradually Regaining Its Health—Outlook More Hopeful.

Business has laid aside its finer raiment and is now wearing its plain, everyday working clothes, which are more serviceable and just about as comfortable.

Quite frequently in the past we have stated that business is gradually regaining its health, and that improvement is steady, though slow. In reiterating the assertion, we acknowledge that it is still necessary, however, that a measuring stick with some pretty fine marks is required to determine the improvement in some directions.

The road over which business had to travel in 1921 was not a smooth one. Many of the difficulties have been carried over into the present year, but recently industry is showing a tendency to cease brooding over the past and is finding more courage in considering the present and the future with the purpose of moving ahead. The outlook for 1922 is one of hopefulness for a slow but genuine recovery until the place is reached that we like to call normal.

The eye of the alert public is discovering that business is adjusting to meet present conditions, and, as this same kind of feeling is developed in respect to all business, the time of the readjustment period will be shortened.

Foreign trade as a safety valve for production is absolutely essential for future prosperity and without minimizing the importance of foreign trade as affecting the industrial and financial well-being in this country, there are plenty of opportunities for business and finance in caring for the needs of the 110,000,000 people in this country. Instead, therefore, of assuming that the developments here must wait for developments elsewhere, business men are finding a response, however feeble, to their efforts toward reviving domestic trade.

World business is closely competitive, and to engage in it will require business organizations keyed to compete. Business men intending to engage in foreign trade and in their efforts to stimulate domestic trade that they are in reality fitting their organizations to handle foreign trade in their respective lines.—Business Monthly.

WORTHLESS STOCKS.

A writer in Forbes Financial magazine, says that country people during the recent period of prosperity lost $2,000,000,000 as the result of investment in worthless or doubtful securities. A good deal of money was made in rural communities during that period, but a large part of it was sunk in worthless stocks. Many of these were deliberate fakes, but more of them were just propositions in which investors took big chances of failure and usually lost out.

If people solicit you to buy stocks paying a large rate of interest, ask your banker to look the proposition up for you. If it is any good, he will tell you so honestly. If not, you have saved your money by consulting him.

NEW ROAD BILL.

The Senate will materially change the good roads bill and which will be submitted to the voters of the State the question of issuing $50,000,000 in bonds for road building. The Legislature must pass a bill that is a model, and in which there is no "nigger in the woodpile," if the promoters of that proposition expect the voters to vote for the bond issue by their votes. The plan must be one free from politics, on a plain business basis, and must not increase the taxes now paid, if not it will be defeated by an overwhelming majority.

POOLED TOBACCO.

A large amount of the pooled tobacco was hoisted to the warehouses at Walton from this part of the county, the past week, and the advances made by the organization have been very satisfactory, the growers realizing that the graded price has nothing to do with the selling price and look forward with much enthusiasm to a perfect and final success of the cooperative plan of selling. Reports from the warehouses are that the receipts have been large—about all they could handle.

HENRY CLAY WARFORD, DEAD.

Henry Clay Warford, 67, who suffered a stroke of paralysis, last Sunday week, died at his home near Idlewild, on Tuesday the 14th inst. After a funeral service conducted by Rev. J. W. Campbell, his remains were taken to Petersburg by undertaker C. Scott Chambers and interred in the cemetery at that place.

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS.

Among the successful exhibitors from Boone County at the recent poultry show held at Aurora, Ind., were Mrs. C. K. Witham, of Petersburg, on Buff Orpingtons; Benjamin Paddock and O. C. Hafer, of Harbours, on Buff Rocks.

MRS. M. D. TILSON.

Following an illness of several weeks Mrs. M. D. Tilson, 53, died at the family home, 803 Wood street, at 4:15 p. m., Saturday. She was born in Boone County, Ky., in 1869, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gaines, who came to Texarkana to make their home in 1884. November 6, 1914 she married M. D. Tilson.

Throughout her life time in Texarkana, Mrs. Tilson was active in social religious and club circles. She was one of the founders of the local chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and was honored with a number of the high state offices. She was also a devoted worker in the Daughters of the American Revolution, Lone Star Chapter. During 1919 and 1920 she held the post of first vice president of the Texas division of the U. D. C.

Mrs. Tilson is survived by her husband, her father, J. D. Gaines, a brother Collins Gaines, an uncle, LeGrand Gaines, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Collins, an uncle and aunt. Funeral services were held Sunday at 2:30 p. m., at the First Presbyterian church. The Rev. J. A. Bruner officiated. Interment was made in the new cemetery. Pallbearers were: Judge S. S. Seider, S. M. Ragland, John W. Lee Estes, T. W. Morrison, Judge Wheeler, Dr. A. E. Chambers, W. B. Stuart and Homer Vaughan.

In the passing of Mrs. Tilson, Texarkana has lost one of its sterling women who stood for only the better things. There is hardly an activity in the city that will not miss the advice and counsel they have been accustomed to seek and which was so freely given by Mrs. Tilson. She will be missed in the club life of the city, in the church and many individuals will mourn her loss with the bereaved family and friends in remembrance of the many kindnesses she showered on those less fortunate.

The death of Mrs. Tilson has left a void in the life of Texarkana that will be well nigh impossible to fill.

NO MOONSHINE.

As County Judge N. E. Riddell was coming out of the court house hall, last Sunday evening about 7:30 o'clock, he ran against one of the front doors, striking one of the large panes of glass with his "proboscis," breaking it into smithereens, but escaped with a slight cut across his nose. Now, don't ask any questions, as we do not know the particulars. The rattling of glass on the stone porch was heard all over town. The man confined in the jail just across the street thought that the court house had been destroyed by an explosion. Had there been "moonshine" this would not have happened.

GAINES—CURNEY.

R. C. Gaines and Miss Helen Gurney, of Erlanger, were married at the home of the bride in Erlanger, last Monday morning in the presence of a few of the bride's and groom's relatives and friends. The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for New Orleans on a bridal trip. The happy couple have the best wishes for a long and happy married life. The bride has been the popular postmistress at Erlanger for several years, which position she resigned a month or so ago.

COUNTY ATTORNEY

HIT FOR $10 FINE

County Attorney, L. M. Ackman, was fined $10.00 by Judge Gaines in Circuit Court Saturday afternoon, for contempt of court. Mr. Ackman was representing the defendant in a suit against the town when the nature of his argument offended the court and caused him to assess the fine.—Grant County News.

Mrs. Lottie Marshall and children, of Gunpowder, moved last Thursday to J. O. Carpenter's place. They will take charge of the Postoffice March 1. We are glad to welcome them to our town. Hate to lose Mrs. C. Bradford and mother as postmaster, as they certainly attended to their duty the past four years, and was appreciated by all Boone county people.

Death entered our midst last week and claimed as its victim Harry Robinson, whose death was expected as he had been in bad health some time. His body was brought to Florence by Scott Chambers, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Tomlin, of Covington, after which the remains were interred in the Florence cemetery. He was 67 years old. He leaves one brother Frank Robinson, of Ludlow, and other relatives, as well as a host of friends to mourn his loss.

You, perhaps, have also noticed that it is generally the other fellow who is in the right, because "other fellows" are invariably men who reason things out before they begin to make a noise.

Preparations are being made for the raising of one of the oldest landmarks in the town of Burlington—the old Cowen residence on the corner of Union and Washington streets. Work on this will begin as soon as the weather will permit. The old structure, which has stood the storms of a century or more, will be replaced by a two-story, eight room building of the modern type, and will be quite an improvement to that part of the town.

O. P. Tanner and wife sold to Jno. W. Ryle Monday, seven acres of land on the Burlington and Florence pike, adjoining the lands of Mr. Ryle. Price $400. They also sold to Elijah Stephens 14½ acres fronting on the Florence pike for $800. These two tracts adjoin, and are two miles east of Burlington. The property sold for slightly more than $67.00 per acre. Mr. Stephens expects to erect a dwelling on the land conveyed to him.

The roads in Boone county are in worse condition than they have been for some time, and a number of people are wondering how and where so much money was spent on the roads last year. The Recorder in a few weeks will print the Sheriff's report showing to whom it was paid and the amount each person received.

A meeting was held Tuesday afternoon at Richwood, the object being to proceed to raise the sum sufficient to insure the reconstruction of the Lexington pike from Florence to Walton. An enthusiastic meeting was held and contributions were appointed to solicit the funds necessary. These committees will go to work at once, and hope to have the necessary funds subscribed and be able to report to a meeting to be held in about 10 days. The amount subscribed is $9,600. (Get busy, boys.)

MONEY PAYS THE PENALTY.

It takes a long time for a farmer to drive a loaded wagon to town over a rough muddy road. The time lost on such trips costs him much money, for which he receives nothing in return.

The motorist who drives over such a road consumes an enormous amount of gas, and the strain upon his engine materially shortens its days. Again money pays the penalty of poor roads.

The pedestrian who attempts to walk on such roads toils and flounders instead. He gets to his journey's end if he keeps going until he arrives.

This condition prevails because good roads can not well be made with out cement, and the cement trust is endeavoring to gather in all of the money in the country and then foreclose on the roads.

The remedy is simple. Let the states make their own cement and tell the trust to pave hell when they get there.

Strong arm tactics seldom win out in the end. They may triumph for a time, but sooner or later the one who uses them comes to grief and is promptly hiked to the rear.

You have noticed, of course, that in an argument the strong arm advocate in his own estimation is always right and the other fellow is able ground for him.

EARLY SPRING SPRAYINGS CONTROL SAN JOSE SCALE.

During February and March, just before the buds on fruit trees begin to swell, is a good time to go after the San Jose Scale with the spraying outfit, according to suggestions being made to Kentucky farmers and fruit growers by entomologists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Thorough spraying with lime-sulphur from both sides of the tree at this time of the year is recommended by the specialists as an effective means of controlling the pest that annually causes serious injuries to apple, plum, peach and pear trees.

In preparing homemade lime-sulphur, 20 pounds of lime are slacked in a large kettle to which 14 pounds of sulphur are added slowly and thoroughly stirred in the mixture. Twenty gallons of water are added to this and the entire mixture boiled for an hour after which it is strained through burlap to remove coarse particles. Enough hot water is added to make 40 gallons and the spray is ready for application.

Concentrated lime sulphur purchased on the market is diluted about one part to ten of water for peach, plum and cherry trees and one and one-half parts to ten of water for apple and pear trees.

SEED TEST STILL A FACTOR IN INCREASED CORN YIELDS.

Lexington, Ky. — Although the past winter weather has been favorable for the proper curing of seed corn, a recent test of the seed corn, planted this spring will be as important as in former years in increasing the corn yields of Kentucky, soils and crops specialists of the College of Agriculture are pointing out to farmers. This testing, which can be done during February and March before the spring work begins, makes it possible for the corn grower to discard weak germinating and dead ears and thereby save from three to four dollars for each dead ear eliminated the specialists say.

No matter how well corn has been cured, a general test made by taking one or two kernels from a representative number of the ears to be planted will prove good insurance against thin stands caused by poor seed. If such tests are not practically perfect or do not how a high percentage germination for the entire lot of seed, the specialists are recommending individual ear tests to discover those which have low germinating power or are dead.

Details of the "rag doll" method of testing, which is said to be one of the most simple and practical can be obtained from county agents or by writing the Experiment Station at Lexington.

DRUNKNESS DECREASES.

Hon. Roy A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner in the Dearborn Independent writing on two years of prohibition says in part:

It has been estimated that there are 20,000,000 drinkers of alcoholic beverages in the United States before the country went dry. If there were 20,000,000 drinkers—which is doubtful—when liquor was accessible, one may safely take for granted that today there are 2,000,000 drinkers—a total which is also very doubtful.

The ratio of one drinker today for ten drinkers two years ago, irrespective of grand totals, seems to me a safe one, at least to show what the Eighteenth Amendment has done. It is obvious that upon the estimates above stated, 18,000,000 former drinkers have quit drinking. This is a wonderful record.

Of the remainder, 1,000,000 of 1,500,000, are those who are in lawful possession of liquor acquired for home use before the prohibition law became effective, while the rest belong to that category of old drinkers who imbibe whenever they can get it.

Only 10 per cent, at most, of former drinkers are drinking now, and these are drinking but five per cent of the quantity of liquor that was formerly consumed. The entire drink bill of the nation has decreased $2,000,000,000 a year. Other results include the disappearance of the open saloon, abatement of open drinking in public dining rooms, passing of the treating evil, closing of establishments for the cure of alcoholism, increased savings accounts, decreased drunkenness, prohibitive price of bonded liquor for beverage use, dangerous character of illicit drinking, decreased importation of liquor, and an improvement in the national health, according to insurance companies.

In 59 cities, with a population of more than 30,000, and a combined population of 20,000,000 (including New York, Chicago and Philadelphia) official and estimated figures show a decrease in arrests for drunkenness from 316,842 in 1917 to 103,768, notwithstanding bad booze, temporary individual hard drinking and a zeal to "jug" all intoxicated people.

During the last fiscal year approximately 950,000 gallons of distilled liquor and wines were seized, and property seized (exclusive of property levied on for payment of taxes) was valued at $12,907,698. The miscellaneous seized property included automobiles, boats, wagons, carriages, horses, mules, airplanes, motorcycles, land, and so on.

It is becoming more clear every day that thinking persons favor the Eighteenth Amendment. The "personal liberty" argument is not as popular as it used to be. It is alleged that the Prohibition laws infringe upon personal liberty by restricting one's personal habits. Every law does that in a larger or smaller degree. The narcotic law greatly interferes with the personal habits of the drug addict, and the traffic laws seriously restrict the speed fender, but these restrictions do not seriously limit the man who puts the community good above his self-indulgence, as among the outstanding difficulties that have stood in the way of more rapid progress, is the apathetic citizen and the lethargic public official. Wherever there exists a favorable attitude on the part of courts and public officials charged with the duty of enforcing the law, and this attitude is shown, the Prohibition act is respected and made effective. Happily this condition is rapidly improving with the advent of the splendid pronouncements and co-operation from the Department of Justice.

While it is true that we also have our smuggling problems, we have our brewery problems, our distillery problems, our warehouse problems, our wholesalers' problems, our "moonshine" problems and our home-brew problems, yet in my judgment the most serious task we have right now is to arouse this apathetic citizen and to disillusion a lot of perfectly good people who have been infected with a great mass of popular misconception and misinformation.

Let's face some facts.

The facts show that the total known importation during the last fiscal year was one-half of one per cent of the total consumption of liquor in America the year before Prohibition. The country is told that crimes are increasing and that the Prohibition law is the cause. We point to the world conditions and show that the crime wave in America is but the reflex of a world-wide crime wave. We show that arrests for drunkenness have decreased 60 per cent in America, and that convictions for drunkenness increased in about the same proportion in wet England.

That two conditions exist at the same time does not prove that they are related to each other's cause and effect. It is just as logical to charge that the crime wave is the result of wetness, as to say that it is caused by the adoption of the Prohibition law. We show that the U. S. during the month of October, last, liquor withdrawals were only 50 per cent of the liquor withdrawn in October, 1920. We show that whisky withdrawals by wholesale druggists in New York for the months of September and October just passed totaled less than four per cent of such withdrawals as compared with the preceding months of June and July.

The beginning of the operation of the law came at a time when the United States, in common with the rest of the world, was in the maelstrom of the aftermath of war. Because of the beneficence of this law, no nation in the world was or is so well fortified to stand the test of the strain to which moral fiber, financial and industrial structures, and government systems, have been subjected.

The fact of the matter is that there was never a law adopted so drastic as the Prohibition law, which has been so early and so successfully enforced. One authority announced recently it was estimated that the Prohibition law today was being 64 per cent enforced. If that be true it does not require any prophet to know that in a comparatively short time the law will be as successfully enforced as any other law on the statute books.

How many drunken men does one see walking down the streets of Chicago or New York or any other large city, any morning or any afternoon or any night? I have been in large and small cities frequently the past few months, and I could count the drunken men I have seen on the fingers of one hand.

In the olden days they were to be seen on every street corner. Today it is dangerous to violate the law in the purchase of drink, and secondly, it is especially dangerous to drink the stuff after purchase. It is claimed that recently there is an increasing number of alcoholic cases at the hospitals that still remain open for the treatment of inebriates. That is to be expected. Only two per cent of the vile stuff that is being seized by our agents and analyzed is found to be from the dangerous fusel oil poison, those who buy and drink illicit liquor take long chances.

POULTRY ASS'N. MEETING

Burlington, Friday Feb. 24th, at 1:30 p. m.

Don't miss the regular meeting of the Boone County Poultry Association at Burlington, Friday afternoon. The members will have a full program to wit: Determining price of hatching eggs, arranging committees for culling and inspecting flocks, furnishing eggs, approve and mailing of advertising circular, selecting breeding pens, and securing shipping clerk.

What a benefit this organization will be to the poultry interests of the county. Orders are already rolling in from other sections for hatching eggs and breeding stock. It means a great deal to the average farmer in Boone county to know where he or she can get hatching eggs from inspected pure bred stocks, free from disqualifications and at a reasonable fee.

Every poultry breeder is invited to come to this meeting and enroll in membership.

FLICKERTOWN.

Henry Jump's family are sick with the gripe.

Wm. Hensley and wife visited his parents Sunday.

Ben Hensley hauled his tobacco to Aurora, Wednesday.

Mrs. Foster Hensley has been confined to her bed for some time.

Lewis Sullivan does not improve much. He has been sick for some time.

Mrs. Bluff Wingate and son, visited her mother, Mrs. James Burns, Saturday and Sunday.

Courtney Jarrell and wife and son James, visited Wm. Burns and mother, one day last week.

Wilber Snyder caught a hawk one day last week that measured fifty-one inches from tip to tip.

C. J. Hensley, Ben Hensley and Wm. Burns, were pleasant callers here Saturday and Sunday night.

Miss Laura Smith, Mrs. James Gaines and daughter Miss Mabel, and J. H. Snyder wife and son Carroll, visited J. W. White and family, last Sunday.

Earl Mudman's sale was attended by a fair sized crowd last Saturday. Corn sold for 68c a bushel, horses $29 to $71, cows $50 to $85, and other things brought a fair price. He will move near Walton this week.

William Burns was the first one to see the wild animal that has caused so much excitement here. He describes it as being larger than a big dog, and has a smoky color, with a long white bushy tail, brown head, heavy build and low to the ground.

HARRY ROBINSON, DEAD.

Harry Robinson, died at the Central State Hospital last week. Mr. Robinson had been in feeble health for a number of years. He formerly resided just east of Florence, and was one of the oldest residents of that part of the county. His remains were shipped to Walton, where they were received by C. Scott Chambers, who had charge of the funeral arrangements.

IT MAKES RED BLOOD.

Does your boy like to play ball? Is your girl fond of basket ball? Do they find pleasure in the numerous sports to which children incline?

Let them go to it, and stay with it, and get the full benefit of it. Every hour of healthy sport aids in the development of mind and body, and prepares them for surmounting the obstacles of life.

It would be profitable if a general playground could be arranged in this town, equipped with the various means of exercise and enjoyment that are found in such places. Healthy sport makes red blooded men and women of our children. Caging them up too often produces weaklings and sissies.

THE DEMAND FOR BABIES.

More applications for babies to be adopted are received than can be filled, said an official of the Child Welfare League of America a few days ago.

Prohibition is said to be largely responsible for the fact that fewer children of poor homes are offered for adoption than formerly. A great deal of money that used to go to support the saloon, is now being used to keep families together, and not so many children are being set adrift.

The number of childless homes increases among educated people. A lot of folks finally wake up to the fact that they need young life. Many people face a lonely old age, unless they have the enterprise and initiative to take the bother of bringing up an adopted child, an enterprise that usually brings splendid rewards.

A young man may be the architect of his own fortune, but a rich dad makes a fine builder.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, It has pleased the merciful Father in his infinite wisdom to call our Bro. Jno. H. Aylor, from labor to Eternal Refreshment.

Whereas, Bro. Aylor was an active Mason and contributed much to the success of our Lodge and the order.

Whereas, It is our duty and custom to publicly acknowledge our loss and express our sympathy for the sorrowing family and friends.

Therefore he it Resolved This Lodge mourns the loss of a true and faithful member, and the Masonry a true representative of all the good for which it stands.

Resolved, This Lodge extends its heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and sorrowing friends.

Resolved, The Charter be draped for a period of thirty days and all other prescribed forms of mourning be in effect.

Resolved, A copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy published in the Masonic Home Journal, a copy published in the Boone County Recorder and a copy entered on the Record of this Lodge.

In another column in this issue is the announcement of the death of Mrs. M. D. Tison, a daughter of J. D. Gaines, of Texarkana, Texas, who many years ago was a citizen of Burlington, living in the house now owned and occupied by George M. Penn and family. Mr. Tison, Mr. Gaines states that Mr. Olmstead Collins, a former well known citizen of Burlington, had passed away—just two days before the death of his daughter. Mr. Gaines has the sympathy of many old friends in Boone county, in his great grief and sorrow.

All indications point to the existence of genuine "flu" in some parts of the county, but it does not seem so contagious as it was a few years ago. Still it is infectious and a word of warning seems advisable. If not for your neighbors sake, for your own, you should take care of your colds. Don't think you can wear it out, while some may, but the majority will find their constitution not strong enough to handle it. It is not an ordinary cold.

A story is told of a man in a back pew of a church who was seen from the pulpit with his hat on. The minister beckoned to a deacon, who went to the man and asked if he was aware that his hat was on. "Thank God," said the man. "I thought that would do it. I have attended this church for six months and you are the first one who has spoken to me." The early church had learned love and brotherliness, hence their numbers increased.

There is now a bill pending in the Legislature that would fix the price to peddle patent medicine at $100 per month. This bill if it becomes a law would put an end to the patent medicine vender, and it is doubtful if it would stand the constitutional test, as the amount of the tax would put a stop to the business, as no one could pay that amount and continue in the business.

NEWS FROM FRANKFORT.

ANTI DARWINIANS

If Kentucky's Legislature is capable of passing a bill to rule out Darwin's speculations upon development of the various forms of life, including flowers, through natural selection that will focus attention upon defects of the State's educational system, a product of which our lawmakers are.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, and a revered citizen of the world, included in his "Five Foot Shelf" the whole of Darwin's delightful book of trade and scientific investigation, "The Voyage of the Beagle" and the whole of "The Origin of the Species."

A high compliment from a high source, for Doctor Eliot was striving to bring within the scope of 50 volumes matter which would familiarize the reader with the culture of the world.

Evolution is described by a scientist as merely "development." It means that the present is the child of the past; that the prize butter cow was evolved by selection from stock which did not, throughout the ages, produce prize butter cows; that the Rhode Island Red and the Plymouth Rock chicken were evolved from fowls which laid fewer eggs in a year and were not as heavy at broiling or roasting age.

The theory of development by natural selection up to the point at which, in the case of domestic animals and fowls, and cultivated plants, artificial development was begun by man is in error purely. Darwin is not accurate. He deals with probabilities and possibilities, speculatively.

Darwin does not strive to do anything beyond showing the probability of what he believes, because his belief and the known facts seem to fit. He accepts creation as a beginning into which it is no part of his task, as a dealer with development after the beginning, to inquire.

To select for exclusion from schools and colleges Charles Darwin—who says his theory of evolution by natural selection is not a theory in opposition to religion—would be to step with less than half way measures. Consistency would require completion of the job by excluding all scientific speculation as to the development of animal and vegetable life by natural selection or under the law of the survival of the fittest.

That anyone patient enough to read Darwin's "Origin of the Species" would regard it as an attack upon religion hardly is imaginable. It is far easier to make a speech attacking such a book than to read the book. It constitutes an example of what Doctor Eliot describes in introducing his five-foot shelf, as "not easy reading."

A man may be highly intelligent without being well informed. The fact is exemplified in the great mental capacity of many primitive tribes not only wholly illiterate, but also without access to any written language. The proneness of the ordinarily intelligent human being to turn around that with which he is unfamiliar is everywhere observable.

An intelligent lawmaker might vote to bounce Darwin, but by doing so he would prove his lack of information.—Courier-Journal.

Frankfort, Ky.—The House of Representatives has passed the $50,000,000 road bond issue.

At the end of a two-day battle, in which the opponents of the measure tried in every manner to wear out its friends with numerous amendments, repeated rollcalls and many speeches, the bill developed unexpected strength, and in the last moment was passed at 5 o'clock this afternoon by a vote of 63 to 34.

During the late debate, in which the opponents took up much of the time, Representative F. L. Strange, of Bowling Green, leader of the opposition, and E. L. Frazier, of Anderson county sought to make the measure a party one and appealed to Democrats to vote against the bill for political advantage.

Drury Sees "Corruption Fund."

Representative G. L. Drury of Union county, chief heckler of those favoring the measure during the last two days, made the longest speech in the closing debate, referring to the money to be raised as a "corruption fund," and declaring that the sale of the bonds would work a hardship on the "poor, down-trodden farmers."

Representative Harry Meyers of Covington, who introduced the measure, made the closing argument, which he declared was his valedictory oration as a good roads man, on the occasion of his graduation.

A surprise to many was a speech of Representative C. D. McCaw of Paducah in favor of the bonds. He appealed to the Representatives not to let Kentucky stand in isolation while her sister States advance. Mr. McCaw had voted with the opponents on many amendments and other matters, though saying all along that he favored the bond issue if properly safeguarded.

Spoke for Adams, of Covington, also spoke for the measure.

Several who had apparently sided with the opposition changed their votes when the roll was called.

Representative E. A. Gullion of Henry county was cheered when he voted "aye" for the bill.

But one Republican voted against it. Representative James Park, of Madison county, who was cheered by

SOFT AND ELABORATE

If the fashion reporter were compelled to point out the outstanding style features in new fall hats she would be apt to say "soft" and "wide-brimmed." These representative models in the picture include a wide-brimmed hat, with soft crown, of panne velvet, a small hat of duvetyne adorned with flat rosettes of narrow ribbon, and an off-the-face model of duvetyne embroidered with white beads.

the opposition. Hon. G. W. Tolin voted against the bill.

Frankfort, Ky.—The bill of Representative W. M. Boling of Meade County providing for the election of a County Superintendent by popular vote, and in a succeeding line on the same page, it provides for the present County Superintendents holding office to the end of the term for which they were appointed from last month, when the present law went into effect for one year, some for two some for three and some for four years.

There is no provision in the bill for the filling of the office between 1923 and 1926.

Frankfort, Ky.—Opponents of the Anti-Darwin measure declare they are feeling decidedly better. Proponents lost their first engagement of what is proving to be a long drawn-out battle when the Senate decided to adjourn about 2 o'clock this afternoon by a vote of 17 to 16.

Rev. J. A. Lee offered an apology for his exclamation of "Go it, you monkeys!" He explained that he had not meant it for Mr. Stoll, who had just concluded a speech against the bill, but for persons in the gallery who began to applaud.

Frankfort, Ky.—Amid applause from the gallery crowded with delegates of former service men, including 200 negroes from Lexington, the House of Representatives passed the soldier bonus bill, providing for the submission of a $10,000,000 bond issue in November to pay $10 for each month to former service men and women.

The vote, 64 to 17, was the greatest surprise of the session, as each friend of the measure believed it doomed.

Amid hoots from the galleries, Representative Harry Miller of Lexington waived any bonus that he might be entitled to should the bill go through the Senate.

Should the Senate pass the bill and the Governor sign it, it will be up to the voters to determine at the 1922 election whether the bonds are to be issued. To retire the bonds an ad valorem tax of 5 cents on each $100 worth of property in the State is provided. The bonus to be paid to any individual is to be limited to $250.

48-year-old Soldier Fights Bill.

A feature of the debate was the advocacy of the bill by several former service men among the members who had been opponents of the $50,000,000 road bond bill and who appealed to proponents of that bill to be consistent and vote for this one.

One of the strongest speeches against the measure was made by Representative A. W. Dorsey of Washington county who, at the age of 48, shouldered a rifle and went to France with the American army.

Mr. Dorsey declared that he was barred from voting on the bill by a constitutional provision because he was directly interested in the bonus.

The same attitude was taken by Representative James Park of Madison county.

SOUR CREAM COSTS
KENTUCKY FARMERS
$330,000 ANNUALLY.

Price of Poor Quality Influences Farmers' Profits. Serious Need for Better Care of Cream Station Says.

Lexington, Ky.—Marketing their cream in a sour condition rather than in the clean, sweet condition desired by dairy manufacturers costs Kentucky farmers about $330,000 a year, according to a statement issued today at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station calling attention to the need for better care of the cream before it is sent to market.

A part of the sour cream being sent to the market is the result of an erroneous belief on the part of some farmers that souring raises the richness of cream. There is no foundation for this belief, the station dairy-men say. The remainder of the sour cream is the natural result of poor rare given dairy products on the farm.

As a result of the large amount of sour cream which is sent to dairy manufacturers, the State annually produces about 5,000,000 pounds of butter scoring around 82 points that sells from five to eight cents less a pound than does 92 score butter which can be made from clean, sweet cream, according to the statement. This difference in price between the two grades of butter eventually influences the price which farmers receive for their cream to the extent of more than a $300,000 loss each year, the station dairy-men say.

While some creameries are paying a higher price for sweet, clean cream than they are for sour cream, the production of the desirable product is a problem for the farmer and one that he must work out himself, the statement points out.

Souring not only fails to increase the richness of the cream but also may result in contamination with various germs and ferments that seriously handicap the butter maker in his attempts to produce a high quality product, according to the dairy-men.

HATCHERY BUYS KENTUCKY
EGGS AT PREMIUM PRICES.

Kentucky farmers who are cooperating with the extension division of the College of Agriculture in standardizing their farm flocks on the county plan through the use of a single breed for a given county are beginning to profit from their work, according to an announcement from the college stating that a large commercial hatchery in Massachusetts is contracting for hatching eggs from Kentucky farmers on a six month basis and offering a premium price. The eggs are to be furnished until August.

In making the contracts, the hatchery stated that it preferred Kentucky eggs because of their fertility made possible by the open winter, the more vigorous chicks which resulted from the farm flocks having open range, and the fact that enough eggs of one breed could be obtained in a county to make case lot shipping profitable.

Reports that Wall Street is driving its employees into action against the soldier's compensation bill have reached headquarters of the American Legion. One Stock Exchange firm, the Legion asserts, assembled its workers in groups and gave them notice that each man and woman was expected to prepare four letters expressing disapproval of the bonus bill. Two to be sent to the writer's representative in the Senate, one to the Congressman representing his district, and one to President Harding.

The mandatory order issued by this concern, the report states, included a suggested form to be followed in writing the letters. Ex-soldiers were to state that they were writing as "ex-service men" opposed to the Adjustment compensation bill. An implied penalty for refusing to comply with the order was discharge.

The old fashioned women folks say that what this country needs is fewer boards of directors and more washboards.

The country is sufficiently supplied with dress suits to take care of its needs for some years, but it should have more overalls.

SEED TREATMENT CHECKS SERIOUS LOSSES IN OATS.

It is probable that Kentucky lost from 146,918 to 930,482 bushels of her annual oats crop in 1919 through the ravages of loose and covered smuts which could have been prevented easily by means of seed treatment, according to crop disease specialists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station who are urging farmers to treat their seed this spring as an insurance against further losses. In spite of the ease with which losses may be prevented, the loose and covered smuts of oats probably have been responsible for greater losses year after year, than any other preventable crop disease in the United States, according to the specialists. Spraying the seed with a formaldehyde solution has been recommended as a control.

As the seed is being shoveled from one pile to another, each shovelful is sprayed with a solution consisting of one part of 40 per cent formaldehyde and one part of water. This solution is used at the rate of one quart to 50 bushels of seed. A small quart sprayer is a convenient one to use for the purpose. After the oats are all treated in this way they are piled and covered with blankets, canvas or sacks to confine the vapor. At the end of five hours, they are uncovered and planted. Since the formaldehyde vapor irritates the eyes, nose and throat, the sprayer should be held close to the pile of oats and a circulation of air provided.

SHEEP AUTHORITIES JOIN IN ADVOCATING LAMB CAKE.

Prominent sheep raisers, packers and stock yards officials have joined in advocating that Kentucky farmers dock and unsex their lambs before sending them to the market as a means of realizing greater profits from their flocks and supplying the consumers of mutton with a more desirable product, according to a statement being sent to sheep raisers of the State by the extension division of the College of Agriculture.

Demonstrations to show farmers the proper methods of docking and altering their lambs are constituting the principal work being done by sheep specialists of the division at this time of the year with the result that farmers in many counties have been shown how to do the work. The campaign now in progress is expected to bring about considerable improvement in the quality of Kentucky lambs that go to the market, according to the specialists.

The statement of a prominent Chicago packing concern which is included in the statement being sent to Kentucky farmers follows:

"It may seem a bit irrelevant to the purchaser of the lamb crop whether or not the lambs were docked or castrated previous to slaughter but the fact that it does make a difference is expressed in the price the market will pay for the properly trimmed lamb. The castrated lamb fattens more rapidly and uniformly, the meat is of superior flavor, the udder reaches a higher degree of usefulness and the fat intermingles more intimately with the lean."

THE FARM LOAN BONDS.

It is expected that the $75,000,000 farm loan bonds now being offered by the federal land banks, will be sold to net the holders 4.7 per cent. The demand for his investment indicates that it should be possible to finance the country's farming operations at a very reasonable rate, thus relieving the leading cause of business trouble in the agricultural districts.

The farmers of the country demand better credit facilities, and complain that after mortgaging their real estate, they can't get the loans they need to carry their crops until the same can be marketed to advantage. They ought not to be forced to sell their product all in a lump soon after harvest, when it always brings the lowest prices.

The country needs a nation wide scheme similar to the mortgage plan operated through the land banks, to give the farmers as good credit facilities for carrying their products, as other business men have.

Peter Kraus, of Patriot, Indiana, was transacting business in Burlington, Tuesday.

We can not go back to ten years ago and do the things we should have done then.

If each property owner had planted a profusion of trees, and shrubbery, and roses, various kinds of plant life, ten years ago, our town would now be a bower of beauty, a veritable garden of Eden.

But the majority did not, and we are not enjoying the delights of a beauty spot of nature.

Since time will not wait for us it behooves us to keep up with time.

This spring is the time to begin the cultivation of that beauty which we would all enjoy in the decline of life.

Age comes to us all, but it can be made more attractive by the exercise of forethought and the expenditure of a little energy while we are still enjoying the heritage of comparative youth.

THE THINGS SOME PEOPLE FORGET.

The editor and his family must eat three meals a day, or nature will object.

They must wear the usual amount of clothing, or the public will object. They must pay their own bills promptly, or their creditors will object.

To do these things requires money, but so long as good but thoughtless citizens forget to pay the editor what they owe him it is difficult to understand how he can be expected to meet his own obligations.

Some people—excellent citizens, too—feel just a little offended when we send them a subscription bill. They seem to think that we question their intention to pay, which is not the case at all.

We, however, can not afford to feel peeved when we get a bill for something we owe. We simply scrape around and pay up.

The day of "throwing out hints" and begging subscribers to "come in and pay up" has passed.

A simple statement of fact is all that is required for people who are as good as gold for what they owe us.

This is a statement of fact.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Mr. Harding seems to feel that it is political expedient, if not necessary, to provide a bonus for the soldiers. A week ago he was hot-foot for it. Immediately there appeared on the bulletin boards in the stock-brokers' board rooms in all the cities brief wires from the Wall Street section telling how the great money interests were getting together to prevent it, on the ground that it would necessitate laying an additional burden of taxation or the issuing of more bonds. Then paid advertisements appeared in the Washington papers arguing against the bonus proposition. Immediately thereafter the President came forth with a statement that he would not favor either additional taxes or a bond issue for the purpose, whereupon the metropolitan press expressed the view that this meant an end to the bonus, as there was no other way left to raise the money.

Will Rogers, the gentle comedian whose jokes have no sting, has felt the displeasure of the White House. It is getting to be pretty well understood in Washington, where political gossip is as nectar and ambrosia to the people, that the Hardings are very thin-skinned, but on the other hand they delight to entertain at the White House that Forbes person who has been publishing articles about the home life of the President.

"I think that I am 32 years of age. I am five feet nine, weigh 130 lbs. My eyes are gray and I have blond hair. I believe I was a soldier. If anyone can tell me who I am—or anything about my past, please telephone the police."

This is what a clean-cut young man told attendants in a Los Angeles, Cal., hospital. He wore an American Legion button, and Los Angeles posts of the Legion are helping him find himself.

LEGION NOTES

Wall Street is determined to kill the adjusted compensation bill at any cost, according to a report sent by New York state executives of the American Legion to national headquarters at Indianapolis, Ind. The report states that mandatory orders were issued by at least one large stock exchange house, ordering employees, both men and women, to write their Congressmen urging against the passage of the measure. Suggested forms were handed out, and employees were instructed to deliver their letters in unsealed envelopes to their employers for inspection.

Lined up with Wall Street against the bonus is the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, which, however, is meeting continued opposition from its constituent chambers in widely separate parts of the country. Chambers in Omaha, Neb., in Battle Creek, Mich., and in several cities in Oklahoma and Ohio have now flatly declared in favor of the bonus in the questionnaire sent out by the national body. In Toledo, following a hearing by the American Legion, business men of the local commerce board refused to vote on the matter charging that the issue had not been impartially presented by the U. S. Chamber. They said that it had ignored three of the five options.

Failing in his attempt to commit suicide by freezing in snow-drift at Emporia, Kan., Chester Hagerman, jobless war veteran, is being sought by the American Legion. A woman of Medicine Lodge says her son, born that name, was reported "killed in action," and a body, supposed to have been his, brought from France for burial here.

Lined up patiently for hours in advance, hundreds of tattered ex-soldiers received shoes, overcoats, and children's garments from the American Legion distributing committee in New York.

Possessing all the requisites for a dance except music, American Legion men in Lincoln, Neb., called on an ex-gob for help. He rigged up a radio-phonograph and tuned in on an orchestra 1,000 miles away.

A Spanish bull fight will be staged in Madison Square Garden, N. Y., by an American Legion post. One stipulation is that the bull shall not be hurt.

A married man, who formerly was earning $72.50 a week, applied to the American Legion, wholly destitute. He took a job as a packer at $15 and said he was glad to get it.

Twelve majors, five naval commanders, 27 captains, and nearly 100 lieutenants have applied for jobs at American Legion employment headquarters in New York since September.

A cemetery in Fairmont, W. Va., where Civil War soldiers were buried, had become a thicket of briars. The American Legion cleaned it up to do reverence to the dead soldiers.

A federal appropriation of $16,400,000 for hospitals for wounded ex-soldiers has been asked by the American Legion in New York where continued investigation has revealed inadequate facilities.

Kansas women have organized to put over a state bonus. Mrs. Ida Walker, woman legislator, has told the American Legion she wants nurses included in the compensation.

EVERYBODY HAS A KICK.

Would you like a barrel of fun, and at the same time learn something of the inconsistency of human nature?

The circus is free.

All you have to do is to watch the antics of the various "interests" as congress wrestles with the problem of providing the funds necessary for the financing of the proposed soldier bonus.

Everybody has a kick, and the burden of his wail is "such the other fellow."

The poor man thinks the rich man should bear the burden, while the rich man is not averse to having the poor devil hit often and hard.

The manufacturer is opposed to having the burden saddled onto him, and the retailer can't see where he should pay.

The farmer has already been hit so hard he thinks another whack would be too great an honor for him to even consider.

Transportation companies can't see it at all, while automobile owners claim they have been taxed for everything except the bonus, and that this latest distinction belongs to somebody else.

The laboring man objects to being the goat, while the glided gentleman of leisure has an inherent aversion to anything that would interfere with the pleasures of life.

The ordinary consumer has been squeezed already until he could crawl through a clothes wringer without touching the rollers, and he can't see how he could cough up something he doesn't possess.

Then the Secretary of the treasury is opposed to the bonus entirely but that is probably because he is not a candidate for office or has acquired a dignified growth.

Every way you turn it's a royal sidestep, with everybody stepping in perfect union.

Somebody has to pay the bill, but nobody wants to be somebody.

And still the possibilities have not been entirely exhausted.

We might tax the new babies, because they are not yet born and can't register a kick in time.

Or we might let the soldier pay his own bonus.

RICH SOILS AND GOOD STOCK FOUND TOGETHER.

Lexington, Ky.—Figures showing that the five counties in Kentucky having the highest land values also have the highest livestock values are being used by soil specialists at the College of Agriculture in pointing out to farmers of the State that good soils and good livestock are usually found together.

In the scheme of agricultural progress, soil improvement should go ahead of, or at least along with, the grading up of livestock, according to R. E. Stephenson, one of the specialists. This is true because the quality of livestock is influenced by the quality of pastures and home grown feeds. In general farming, a livestock industry cannot be developed with purchased feeds, the specialists say.

In the five counties where the land values were found to be highest, or an average of $198.45 an acre, the average value of livestock was $75 ahead for beef cattle, $66 a head for dairy cattle, $13.70 a head for sheep and $13.10 for hogs, according to the figures which are taken from the 1920 census.

In the five counties making from sixteenth to twentieth in land values, which was an average of $90.43 an acre, the value of the beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and hogs was respectively two-thirds, five-sixths, five-sevenths and five-eighths of the value for animals of the same classes in the five counties having the highest land values.

In five counties having the lowest land values, which averaged $9.54 an acre, the value of beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and hogs was respectively two-thirds, four-fifths, two-thirds and three-fourths of the value for animals of the same classes in the five counties ranking from sixteenth to twentieth in land values.

KENTUCKY SALUTES A MAN

Colonel Denhardt, Kentucky salutes you! With uncovered head and down cast eyes, with contrite heart and humble spirit, Kentucky admits her shame. And then with head erect and level eyes she makes grateful acknowledgment to you and the men for whom you speak, and gives her pledge to you and those of whom you are a type that no longer shall the lawless and the criminal retain control of a city within her borders.

To her Governor, Kentucky also makes obeisance, with profound gratitude that he has used you, and the organization of which you are the chief, to reveal and to cure the plague that has existed in Newport.

Your simple statement would bring intolerable shame were it not coupled with the promise that the future shall be clean, so Kentucky gives joyous acclaim to your exposition of the facts as they exist, with your pledge of a soldier's honor that no longer shall they endure.

It is a glad day for Kentucky when the cancer that has gnawed at the very vitals of the state is exposed to the curative power of publicity, with assurance that the diseased tissues shall not longer corrupt the body politic.—Lexington Herald.

The vision of $360,000 hidden in a secret pocket of a portmanteau failed to make Jim Beckett, of this city, register any undue emotion. He did not spill any coffee in his haste to get action. If the prisoner in the Spanish debtor's jail had known that Jim Beckett was an ex-Marine, and an ex-sergeant to boot, he would probably have addressed his mysterious message to some less hardboiled person.

Beckett recently showed members of his American Legion post a note from Madrid, Spain, addressed to a deceased uncle. The writer, who signed himself "R. de S." and who explained that he was in jail, purported to be the owner of baggage held by the Registrar of Courts. He stated that two checks, payable to bearer, totalling $360,000, were contained in a secret pocket of his portmanteau and offered to give the recipient of his letter one-third share, or $120,000, if he would pay the court costs. Beckett is asked to cable a friend of the imprisoned man for further information. This he has done, and on receipt of the reply will turn over the papers to the authorities. Meantime the former sergeant is not building any castles in Spain.

A recent despatch from Paris received here warns against the recurrence of an "old Spanish prison swindle," and lays blame on the connivance of corrupt Spanish police officials. What principally interests the imperturbable Beckett is the signature, "R de S," which he says stands for "Roll dem Spheroids."

Much of the future progress of a town depends upon the home life of the community.

If the town is divided into business social, religious and political cliques or groups, with hard and fast lines between each pulling against the others, there is but little opportunity for real progress. The people can not get together on a common plane of understanding and work. No one faction is willing to accept the leadership of another.

But when a town is comparatively free from paralyzing cliques and jealousies there is great opportunity for advancement. Everybody knows everybody else, each feels free to advance suggestions to others, and turn is willing to receive them.

In this way the best points of every proposition are brought to the surface, and the logical leader to carry a work to completion is easily selected.

The closed mind is the heritage of a town divided against itself. It inhibits but few new thoughts, and those few are centered around the particular clique to which the mind belongs.

The open mind gathers in much food for new thought, and that thought is capable of expansion and development in many ways.

The open mind is the one for this town.

DUG WELLS.

(By F. C. Dugan.)

State Sanitary Engineer.

A dug well is a hole in the ground which reaches into a layer of earth that is saturated with water. When a hole is dug into such saturated soil the water runs out of the soil into the hole and fills it to the level at which the water stands in the earth. As the water is dipped or pumped out, the hole again fills to the ground water level.

The location of the well is of the greatest importance. It should be on the slope above the stable and the privy, never less than 200 feet from both, and the farther the better.

The casing of the well must be absolutely watertight from the top of the well to the point where it is intended to admit the water into the well.

The construction of the cover of the well is important in protecting it from pollution. Proper and safe construction is but little more difficult or expensive than the usual unsafe construction. The purpose is to keep all filth from entering the well. A concrete slab is the safest and in the long run the cheapest.

It is very difficult to get a safe water supply with a dug well.

When the disarmament conference first met in Washington it attracted widespread attention, and "care-heads" plastered the first pages of the daily press.

Of late days it has been almost forgotten, important as it is, and generally a half column on an inside page was its recognition.

We have too many murders, and holdups, and bank and mail robberies, and divorce scandals and other attractive forms of light amusement to remember anything of a serious nature for long at a time.

The people of Boone county are glad to know that the J. R. Watkins Co., has secured a man who will make regular trips with a full line of the well known Watkins remedies, extracts, stock and poultry tonics, etc. 18-cent-4¢.

PROLIFIC COW.

(Lebanon Enterprise)

S. W. Raley, well-known farmer residing on the Danville pike about two miles from town, owns a very unusual cow—at least in one respect. The cow has given birth to four calves within less than 13 months and all of them are living. She gave birth to twin calves on December 20, 1920, and again on January 2, 1922. The calves are, according to Mr. Raley, healthy and normal. She is 8 years old.

HOG TAIL WEIGHS 9 POUNDS.

(Bardston Standard)

If a hog's tail weighs 9 pounds, and it takes two men to lift his head how heavy is the hog? That is the mathematical problem presented at the Farm Bureau Office by Hardin Miller of New Hope. Mr. Miller says that he killed an enormous hog for meat but never had the opportunity of getting his weight. When slaughtered, however, he found that the head was so heavy that it required two men to carry it to its destination of a few hundred feet.

Joe Claybrooke immediately pulled out his pencil and paper and started to work. At the conclusion he gave the following enlightening facts. A four hundred pound hog produces a tail weighing not quite 1 pound, therefore a nine pound tail must have been grown on a porker weighing 3,600 pounds. No one else dared tackle the problem declaring it to be a "tale of tail." Mr. Miller, however, swears it to be true.

Cere-alia
SweetsIt Pays
To Please Your Cows

The best feed in the world won't produce milk if your cows turn their nose away from it. Cows munch the last morsel of Cere-alia Sweets, not because of its "high protein" or its "guaranteed analysis", but because it tastes good. We could make up a ration with exactly the same percentages of protein, carbohydrates and fat without such a large pleasing variety of ingredients, without including appetizing unpalatable, but your cows would digest less, tire of its sameness, give less milk. Cere-alia won't lump or cake. Easy to handle. If you're feeding home-grown crops from this year, feed Cere-alia Sweets along with it. Use the usual roughage.

Four Weeks' Trial At Our Risk

Feed one cow 4 weeks on Cere-alia Sweets and make us prove these two points: First, that you will get more milk or better milk. Second, that your actual profit will be greater. If Cere-alia costs more than you're paying now, the improvement in flow or test may more than make it up. Money back if either test fails. Ask us for details.

REYNOLDS BUYER OF TEN MILLION POUNDS OF LEAF

Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Reported To Have Made Another Big Sale Of Its Holdings To One Of Large Manufacturers.

While no definite statement has been given out at the office of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association it is generally known in tobacco circles that the Association has sold 10,000,000 lbs. of its best tobacco to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

What is regarded as equivalent to confirmation of the deal has been the presence in Lexington of W. N. Reynolds, president of the company, and E. T. Kirk, of Mayville, prominent in the company's organization.

It is known that Mr. Kirk was called to Lexington to confer with Mr. Reynolds, and it is said that the deal for the purchase of the 10,000,000 pounds of tobacco was closed then with James C. Stone, president of the association, and that the price paid was above the figures of any of the independent leaf markets open since December 15.

When asked to make a statement in regard to the reported sale, Mr. Stone declined to affirm or deny the report. He said:

"I find some anxiety on the part of the members of the association over not making public just what tobaccos have been sold and what prices have been obtained for them. I want to state clearly that any member of the association can get his information at any time he desires it, but from a business point of view I feel confident that we cannot get the best results by stating in detail to the public just what we are doing.

"No business of any kind is successful when operated in this way, and the only thing I have in view is to give this association the best business management possible.

"Within the last few days we have gotten our field service department in operation, with Joseph Passonneau in charge of it, and one of the main duties in connection with this department is the issuing of a four page bulletin twice a month, to be sent directly to all the members of the association to let them know just what is being done.

"We have had a tremendous organization to whip into line, and it has been no small undertaking to get this big machine working smoothly. We are now in the process of grading tobacco now in 54 different locations and in 94 receiving plants, and they are all running smoothly and to the satisfaction of the growers over the entire territory.

"I want to say to every tobacco grower, large or small, who is a member of this association, that his interest is being fully protected, and that the price we are selling our tobacco for will prove entirely satisfactory to them."

INDOOR ATHLETICS.

Athletic sports started in the open air. But as time went on, the sporting crowd were not satisfied to quit when the base ball or foot ball season ended. They wanted something of the same kind to be played in winter in gymnasiums and halls.

This developed the tendency to promote previously existing indoor games on more of a competitive and athletic basis. Bowling, for instance, which had been enjoyed for many years in a desultory way, became organized in teams and leagues, until in many cities hundreds or thousands of bowlers who are competing in association contests, will keep the air melodious with the falling pins.

Similarly basket ball, originally invented by young men's Christian Association people as a useful gymnasium exercise, has become a prominent sport, exciting keen competitive interest. The growth of these games has been a splendid development for young men, promoting physical development, and giving outlet for youthful energy.

Mr. Everett Hickman and Elmer Kirkpatrick made a trip to Cincinnati, Harrison county, last Saturday and stayed over until Monday. Mr. Light, a relative of Mr. Hickman is moving to the Wash Watts farm near Bullittsville. Mr. Light is a very highly esteemed citizen of that county, he having been superintendent of the county infirmary of that county for a number of years.

There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Stars can now be successfully photographed in daylight. From Mount Blanc at 13,000 feet altitude a French scientist has succeeded in photographing stars up to the seventh magnitude.

THE RAW JOKE BUSINESS

Complaint is made that magazines and joke books are being circulated, the principal purpose of which is to print smutty jokes and pictures. There are always vultures who are trying to sell dirt to the public. They need stiff fines and periods of reflection in jail, to induce them to go into some honest form of earning a living.

Normal minded people of adult years do not buy literature with an obscene taint. But there is an imprisonable time in the history of many young people, when they can be swayed in almost any direction. You can put a permanent dirty tendency into their minds by feeding them unclean stuff. The young folks who get this streak are not apt to amount to much in business or sport.

COMMUNITY BANQUETS.

In some country towns the plan of community banquets is proving popular, the purpose being primarily to welcome newcomers. Strangers in a new place always feel like a cat in a strange garret, as the saying is. They feel outside of existing circles, and think that people are not interested in them.

But if they see that old residents welcome them and want to make life in the community pleasant for them, a feeling of loyalty and satisfaction is developed, and they are likely to become permanent residents. In addition any such general meeting of the people of a town has a wonderful effect to break up social cliques and encourage harmonious community efforts.

Borrowed Thoughts.

We had a very enthusiastic road meeting at Richmond Tuesday, Feb. 21st. We received many helpful thoughts. I was glad to rub up against such a fine lot of citizens. Mr. D. E. Castleman was there, and in his happy characteristic manner he gave us many beautiful and helpful thoughts. One especially I want to mention. When he spoke of the $250,000 offered to us as a free gift, as a cloud of prosperity floating over us, and only needed a $20,000 effort to break it up and spread it out on the Dixie Highway. And as he spoke we could almost see the concrete running out of that cloud, filling up the mud and chuck holes, and see a beautiful concrete road glistening in the sunlight. But we need make that $20,000 rope good and strong, or this cloud of prosperity will float over us and we will still have to pay our automobile license and our taxes to keep it up for the benefit of others with more public spirit. Walton would derive more than $20,000 benefit out of this road and Verona could well afford to pay the $20,000 from the benefits she would derive from it, as she has to travel the full length of this road in order to reach the markets. Beaver could well afford to pay a large per cent of it, as she has to travel over this road. But we altogether are only asked to give $20,000. This $20,000 is offered to us as a price package. If we will only send $20,000 to pay the postage, and it will be delivered at our doors free of charge by Rural Route, if you please. The time has come when we should distinguish between citizens. We should trade and assist those who are public spirited and who give as the Lord has prospered them for the welfare of all. And if there is a man living along this route or adjacent to it that will not give according to his ability, it is time to tie a tin can to him filled with shooting crackers and run him out of our midst. We do not need to support any such cattle who are reaping the benefits of our fair land, and appropriating all to themselves. Whose only prayer is Lord bless me, my wife, my son John and his wife, my four and no more. Mr. Castleman spoke of this kind of citizens as having not evolved very far from the monkey stage. So boys let us tie the tin can and watch them go, yes quit trading with those who are not public spirited, lend your support to those who are helpful and who do not live alone for a selfish purpose. When we build our water bound roads, men with one ton trucks thought if they could make $20 per day. With a three ton truck they could make $40 per day, and they demolished our roads. Now picture those who show a disposition to help repair the damage they have done. "I believe in te adomition." To deal justly and love mercy, and I believe it is just to those who are public spirited to receive our support. I do not know just where borrowed these thoughts, but you know I now let us practice them and let these things wads know what is expected of them as citizens.

Respectfully,
C. C. SLEET.

Five thousand seven hundred miles of railroad have been abandoned in the United States in the last five years, while only 3,500 miles have been built in that period.

BURLEY GROWERS TO HAVE ANOTHER CHANCE TO JOIN.

Opportunity to be given Those Who Remained Out Last Fall Before Five-year Pool Of The New Co-operative Marketing Association Closes.

New contracts pledging the tobacco crop of 1922 and the four years following to the co-operative marketing plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, have been printed and will go out to the county organizations of the Association, Chief of the Field Service Division Joseph Passonneau said. Colonel Passonneau also announced that 88 contracts representing 239,255 acres of tobacco had been received by his office during the past week.

The new contract contains the same provisions as to the handling of the tobacco by the association as are included in the old contract. The new members pay the same membership fee. The grower has the right to stop growing tobacco, if he desires, but if he produces any it must be turned over to the Association to be marketed.

The new blank contains spaces for the reporting of the amount of tobacco grown in 1921, the amount pledged for 1922, and if the grower, at the time of the contract, has any old tobacco on hand he delivers it to the association to be marketed. Chief Passonneau said that every tobacco grower in the district would be given opportunity to sign up his 1922 tobacco, along with his production for the four succeeding years.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Grow and Miss Kreylich were absent from school the latter part of last week on account of illness.

An interesting program was given by Miss Kelly's room Tuesday, Feb. 21. Several visitors were present.

Mr. Wilford Rouse and Miss Marjorie Tanner, motored to Union one night last week to visit his sister.

The program given last Tuesday morning in honor of Washington, was well carried out by the students. We, as well as the faculty, can see the good in these programs given every week.

Next Friday is "Loud Tie Day." All boys of B. H. S. are requested to wear bright, colored ties.

A SAVE EYESIGHT CAMPAIGN.

Defective vision creates a huge annual loss. It is said to cause 11 per cent of serious industrial accidents. It leads to headaches and nerve strain that diminish working efficiency. People whose work requires constant use of the eyes are greatly handicapped by such weaknesses.

The Hoover committee on elimination of waste, has laid emphasis on losses due to this cause. A nation wide movement is to be promoted to take better care of eyesight.

Bad lighting in schools is said to be a leading cause of poor eyesight. Newspapers that use exceptionally small type, have ruined vision for many people. The eyesight of all schoolchildren should be tested and the schools should use their utmost influence to persuade parents to supply spectacles for those needing same.

STORE ARRANGEMENT.

"Is your store arranged according to old customs, or on a plan for selling more goods?" was the question that a traveling salesman asked a merchant the other day. If a merchant simply inherited shelves and drawers and show cases from some previous owner, as they always had been for years previous, he is not doing what he might to build up his own trade and the business of his city.

Careful classification of goods helps sell them. If a man goes into a store to buy a shirt, and he finds the shirt counter all surrounded by articles of women's wear, while other men's stuff is located somewhere else, he will probably just buy his shirt and get out. But if he sees all the men's stuff well classified together, he will probably be reminded that he needs something else, and buy that too. A well arranged store wins business, because it looks so systematic and orderly.

NON-EMBLEM BILL LAID

ON DESK OF GOVERNOR
Frankfort, Ky.—The Senate bill, providing for the removal of party emblems from municipal ballots in Louisville, which was passed by the House, was placed on Gov. Edwin P. Morrow's desk last Tuesday. The Governor, who is ill in the mansion, has ten days in which to act on the bill before it becomes a law by default.

Should he veto it, both House and Senate could pass it over his veto the same day.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

Former soldiers and sailors, in filing an income tax return for 1921, should not include as gross income any amount received under the provisions of the war risk insurance and vocational rehabilitation acts and as pensions from the United States for military or naval service during the war.

The special exemption of $3,500 formerly allowed soldiers and sailors in active service is not continued by the revenue act of 1921. "Persons in active military or naval service of the United States" are allowed only the exemptions granted other individuals, $1,000 if single (or if married and not living with husband or wife); $2,500 if married and the combined net income of husband and wife was $5,000 or less; and $2,000 if married and the combined net income of husband and wife was more than $5,000.

An unmarried soldier, sailor, marine, or ex-service man must file a return if his net income from all sources for 1921 was $1,000 or more or if his gross income was $5,000 or more. If married and living with his wife on December 31, 1921, he must file a return if the net income of himself and wife and dependent minor children was $2,000 or more, or if the combined gross income was $5,000 or more.

MILK AND BUTTER FAT.

Lexington, Ky.,
Feb. 18th, 1922.

Boone County Recorder,
Burlington, Ky.

The nice Jersey cow, Pogie Leoni Gold, owned by O. C. Hafer, Hebron, Ky., has recently completed a very excellent milk and butter fat record. She made during 12 months, February 12, 1921 to February 11, 1922, 10704 pounds of milk and 649 lbs. of butter fat.

This is a very high record and Mr. Hafer is to be congratulated on same; especially in view of the fact that his dairy barn burned down last winter and the cow had to be moved to new quarters and milked by several different men.

Records of this kind are an inspiration to the farmers, as they show what can be done if the cow is properly fed and managed under conditions obtaining in Northern Kentucky. Mr. Hafer states that next year he will test this cow again and hopes that she may even improve her record.

This record is official and will be published in the Register of Merit of the American Jersey Cattle Club in New York City.

Very Truly Yours,
J. H. HOOPER.

Professor of Animal Husbandry
In Charge, Dairying.

TWO BOND ISSUES TO BE VOTED ON WITHIN 30 DAYS

Two important bond issues are to be voted on in the county during the next 30 days. The first applies only to the Williamstown Graded Free School district, where $30,000 is asked for the purpose of building a school house suitable for the needs of the district. The second is the road bond issue amounting to $250,000, and applying to the whole county, for the completion of the Dixie Highway through the county, the construction of two bridges and the improvement of the county roads in general. This election will be held on the 25th of March, while the school election will be held on the 4th of March. There is considerable feeling of opinion about the school bonds, but it looks like a walk over for the county road bonds. The election for road bonds will be held under the general election laws and will be by secret ballot, while the school election will be an open ballot and only white voters will be allowed to vote.—Grant County News.

A FINAL ARGUMENT

A customer of a big New York bank had renewed a note twice, and upon the last occasion had promised the banker positively that he would pay it when the term expired. However, when the day of payment was drawing near, the customer came in and asked that it be renewed again. The banker told him it was impossible to renew his promise to pay. "For how long is it you have been in the banking business?" inquired the borrower.

"I have been a banker for over twenty years," replied the president. "Sure; but before that you was in some other business, yes?"

"I have never been in any other business," said the banker with dignity.

"Well," observed the applicant for a renewal, "if you cannot renew dot note you will be tomorrow morning in red retail clothing business."

Walking through the Canal Zone from ocean to ocean, a distance of approximately 50 miles, in sixteen hours and 36 minutes actual walking time, a 13-year-old girl set a new record for women pedestrians in Panama.

BOONE COUNTY POULTRY ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

With Thirty-Five Charter Members—Officers Elected—
Ready for Business.

About twenty or thirty farmers and poultry raisers and their wives met at the Farm Bureau headquarters in Burlington, last Friday, and effected a permanent organization of the Boone County Poultry Association by electing James W. Huey, of Union, President; Charles Maurer, of Burlington, vice-President, and Mrs. B. E. Aylor, of Burlington, Secretary-Treasurer.

The association is composed of breeders of Barred Rocks, White Rocks, Buff Rocks, White Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, White Leghorns, Buff Leghorns, Anconas, Buff Orpingtons and Black Minorcas. Their motto will be: "There is no advertisement so popular as satisfied customers."

Boone county flocks have already made reputations among poultry breeders in other states and counties, having won first in Standardization, Exhibit in Burrell Rocks, and the Loving Cup for second in Championship in all breeds at the Kentucky State Fair last year.

Individual members of the Association have won blue ribbons, not to mention other ribbons, at the following Poultry Shows in the past few months: Chicago Coseum, Music Hall, Cincinnati, Ky. State Fair and at Aurora, Indiana, the first of February. The birds in competition at these shows ranged from 600 to 6,000. One of the members won the Loving Cup for Utility Display at the Aurora show.

All flocks of members of the association are to be carefully inspected and culled twice a year, by experts under the supervision of the County Agent, which is a guarantee that nothing but first-class eggs for hatching and breeding stock will be furnished by its members.

The association expects to have ready in a few days, a four page pamphlet for distribution among the poultry raisers.

J. R. Smith, Poultry Department Lexington, Ky., with County Agent Sutton and committee, will call flocks of members March 2 and 3rd.

A poultry meeting of interest will be held at Rabbit Hash, Thursday night, March 2nd. Everyone in this section is invited to attend this meeting.

ANOTHER ONE

Of the County's Good Citizens
Has Gone to His Reward.

Lot Pink Rice died at his residence near Idlewild, this county, February 25th, 1922. He was born in the residence now occupied by Ezekiel Rice, near Waterloo, January 17th, 1856.

He married Dora Percival 30 years ago, and to this union one child was born, Wilber. He resided in the residence in which he died for more than fifty years. He was very industrious and actively engaged in farming all of his life. He had been in growing health for more than a year, with an affection of the heart. Saturday morning he ate a rather hearty breakfast and stated that he felt as well as usual, but in a short time he fell from a chair, and in a few moments he had breathed his last. He is survived by his widow, one brother Edward, of Burlington, and a number of friends and relatives. Funeral services were held at the residence Monday, February 27, burial at Belleview. The funeral arrangements were in charge of C. Scott Chambers, of Walton.

CRIMSON RAMBLERS.

The Crimson Ramblers, a mixed glee club of Transylvania College, will present a program at the Peteraburg Christian church, Friday evening March 10th. The club is made up of six male voices and six female voices. The program is composed of club quartets, solos, and male and female quartets numbers and a play entitled "Her Only Fault."

Where ever the club has gone this year it has gained instant recognition, and has sought credit to itself and to the college.

Prof. B. L. Delcamp is director of the club. Mrs. Delcamp is assistant director and her work has meant much to the success of the club.

All seats reserved 50 cents. Tickets on sale at Stott's store.

R. H. CARTER.

We heard a person say the other day, "so far February was the only month during the winter in which there was no thunder heard." If the old saying proves true, that lightning in February was a sign of frost in May, we will have plenty of it this year in May, as lightning was seen on several evenings during the past month.

PRICE LEVELING.

The prices of the foodstuffs that the farmers produce dropped to a point where the farmer got only about 12 per cent more for them than he did in 1914. Some of them have advanced a little since the low records. But the farmer can not get more than 15 to 20 per cent on an average above pre-war prices today.

Meanwhile factory prices, the cost of building and labor, remain at 60 to 100 per cent above pre-war figures. The result is clear. The farmers and all country people whose living depends on farm prosperity, can not buy these factory products as they did formerly. They do buy more than they realize, and there is all the time a fair amount of trade going on. But they can't buy enough to keep the factories running in full time, until prices are leveled. Either factory goods must come down in price, or farm prices must go up.

The movement for co-operative marketing of foodstuffs is helping a lot to this end, by giving the farmers a larger part of the price the consumers pay. Farmers should be urged with the utmost emphasis to help on the movement for co-operative marketing.

Freight rates must be reduced, railroad labor must be willing to work for the same wages that other classes of workers get, factory employees must be willing to work for prices that will permit their products to sell freely, and capitalists must be content with narrow profits.

If the employees in city industries will accept the same deflation that the farmers have had to take, the country can be put on the way to a big prosperity boom in a few weeks. The trend of the times is all in this direction, and the next few months should show many influences working to restore the normal purchasing power of the rural interests.

PERSISTENT YOUNGSTERS.

One of the many hopeful features of country life, is the way the boys and girls are taking hold of the club work. At a meeting of boys and girl prize winners of North Dakota recently, Charles Abercrombie of Walsh county, told how he had overcome obstacles. He started out to raise potatoes, and the first year got only a pal and a half. The next year he got 12 bushels, and the third year he got 15 bushels and then decided to quit.

Last year he tried once more and raised 20 bushels on an eighth of an acre, selling them for $2.00 a bushel.

WHO CAN BEAT IT?

Elmer Goodridge from out on R. D. 1, was a caller at our office Monday morning, and reported the following: "I have a Shorthorn cow that gave birth to twin calves on March 2nd, 1921, and on February 26th, 1922, she gave birth to two more fine calves—liking three days of being one year, in which this cow has produced four calves, and all living. If any one doubts the above all they will have to do is to call at Mr. Goodridge's farm and he will show them."

WATCH YOUR CHICKENS

Every chicken owner in and around town who is permitting his chickens to run at large should make arrangements at once to pen them up. Spring is approaching and your neighbors will soon begin to make garden and flower beds. Chickens and gardens are two things that absolutely will not mix. Neither will neighbors who have chickens and gardens running around loose.

NOTICE.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Boone County Farm Bureau will be held in the office in Burlington, Ky., Monday, March 6th, 1922 10:30 a. m. at the general membership endeavor to attend these monthly meetings.

J. COLIN KELLY, Secy.

AN EPIDEMIC.

An epidemic of colds, grip and flu has the people of the county in its grip. So far there have been no fatalities. Physicians generally agree that the colds are a mild form of the "flu" which was so prevalent here a few years ago.

PUBLIC SALE DATES

SOUNDS GOOD

The hens of Boone county are now making a noise that sounds like music to the good housewives, notwithstanding, eggs have dropped to 20 cents a dozen. The old hen knows how to cut the high-cost of living.

A GOOD YIELD.

L. T. Clore, of near town, one of the county's progressive farmers, has thirty eggs in his flock that have given birth to forty-seven lambs—all living and doing nicely. So far this is the best yield he has heard of.

The news that reached us last Friday morning of the death of Pink Rice, was quite a shock. Known by the writer from childhood, and was held in the highest esteem not by one, but all that knew him. The family has the sympathy of all his friends in their sad bereavement.

HEBRON.

Mrs. Laura Conner is visiting relatives in the Francesville neighborhood.

Mrs. Hubert Rouse who has been sick for several months, does not improve.

Afford Tanner moved to his new bungalow just north of Hebron, last Saturday.

Barney Turner has moved back to Hubert Conner's farm and will work for him this year.

Luther Rouse and wife entertained friends from Covington, last Saturday night and Sunday.

The B. W. W. Society of Bullittsville church will meet at the home of Mrs. Geo. Gordon, Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Chas. Goodridge and son, of Latonia, spent a few hours here last Saturday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garnett.

Ed. Baker and family spent the week-end with his father J. H. Baker, of Limaburg neighborhood, who is seriously ill.

Mrs. Will Graves was with her sister, Miss Ida Stephens, who is very ill at the home of her sister Mrs. Milton Southern, of near Idlewild, last Thursday night.

Mrs. Jeff Cloud received a telegram last week saying her sister, Mrs. Lizzie Scogins (nee Dye) of Denver, Colo., had been operated on and was very ill. Mrs. Cloud and Mrs. Scogins' daughter who had been visiting here a year, left immediately to see her. At last report she was some improved.

ON EDITORS.

"A doctor can use a word a yard long without anyone knowing what it means; but if the editor uses one he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit, but if the editor goes he gets a charge of buckshot. When the doctor gets drunk it's a case of being overworked or heart-trouble; when an editor gets drunk it's a case of too much booze, and if he dies it's the jimjams. If an editor makes a mistake folks say he ought to be hung; if a doctor makes a mistake he buries it and people dassent say nothing because doctors can read and write Latin. When the editor makes a mistake there is law suite and a big fuss, but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and perfect silence. Any college can make a doctor, but an editor has to be born.—Exchange.

DROWNED IN A FISH STORY

A Joscoe contributor to Outdoor Life is the author of the most delightful "fish story" we have read in a long while.

An interesting experiment, he says was tried some time ago with an ordinary salt-water herring. The fish was put into a large bowl of salt water, and every day a small quantity of it was removed and an equal quantity of fresh water substituted until eventually the herring lived and thrived in purely fresh water.

The owner was so much pleased with the success of the experiment that he then began daily to remove a small quantity of water from the bowl until it was empty. The herring seemed to do very well without it, and, since it was so lively in the empty bowl, the owner had to put it into a cage.

There it lived happily, hopping from perch to perch, just like a bird, until one day some sudden noise upset and startled it, and it fell into the water trough and was drowned.

Kentucky farmers are more or less livestock farmers who have, in the main, failed to keep up the productivity of their land because of failure to base their practices on principles essential to productivity.

J. M. Eddins, auctioneer, reports as large crowd at the sale of Arthur Alloway in Waterloo neighborhood, last Saturday, and things sold at good prices. Mr. Alloway has moved to McVine, where he expects to work on the government dam being built across the river at that place, when work is resumed in the summer.

The value of livestock on Kentucky farms Jan. 1, 1922, was approximately $92,738,000 compared to $127,898,000 Jan. 1, 1921, and $96,703,000 Jan. 1, 1920, according to the annual estimates issued today by the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna.

Harold Gaines, after a sojourn of two or three years in Burlington, moved back to his father's farm out on the Petersburg pike, Tuesday. His truck which he has been operating will be in the hands of Herman Wingate. Back to the farm he can watch the little lambs skip over the green, and listen to the birds singing while resting under the shade of the old apple tree.

SPECIAL NEWS CORRESPONDENT.

Washington, D. C. Feb. 25.—It is growing into a settled belief among those who watch and study the mystifying moves of big politics that the President's recent utterances on the bonus constitute a reflection of his desire to defeat the proposition and to let the blame rest on the Farm Bloc, which he looks upon as being the evil genius of his administration. It is believed that he would like to place these men in a hole from which they might never be able to extricate themselves. When he gave it out that he did not favor bonus legislation unless the money could be raised by a sales tax, he knew that the Farm Bloc is on record as strongly opposed to such a tax. Thus Harding "passes the buck" to those gentlemen and at the same time throws a sop to his Wall Street friends who want a sales tax to eventually take the place of taxes and surtaxes on incomes. In the same breath he tells the soldier he would like to see him get a bonus — but throws an obstacle in the way. It is more than suspected that the President would like to see a lot of members of his own party fall outside the brassworks in the coming election fight. There are so many Republicans in the Senate and House that he can't handle them, and if any fall he would prefer that they be members of the Farm Bloc in both House and Senate. Of course it is well known that the Democrats are getting together a most militant organization for the purpose of causing an utter disappearance of this unwieldy coalition. One of the big Republicans told a newspaper man the other day that the leaders of his party were hopeful that the majority of 169 in the House could be reduced to 80 or 40 without starting an avalanche that would wipe out the majority completely. They would like to have a Congress that could be controlled by a few leaders, but it is a dangerous time to try the tactics thought of. As far as impartial observance can see at this time, the slaughter among Republicans of both House and Senate will be great, but that the Farm Bloc will suffer the least. The Democrats say the Republicans are in for the worst trimming they have had in 30 years.

Washington, D. C.—The Bureau bill, which would retire emergency officers of the World War on an equal footing with regular officers, has passed the Senate. In the face of the combined opposition of the War Department and the chairman of the Military Affairs committee, the bill, sponsored by the American Legion, went through by a vote of 60 to 14.

The Legion has been fighting for the passage of the measure ever since its endorsement of it in principle at the first caucus in St. Louis, in May, 1919. Similar retirement privileges already had been granted disabled emergency officers of the Navy and the Marine corps.

The bill provides that all persons other than regular officers, who served as officers of the U. S. army during the World War and who incurred physical disability in line of duty of not less than 30 per cent, shall be retired with three-fourths of his pay of their grade at the time of retirement. If the disability rating is between 10 and 30 per cent, regular compensation as provided in the War Risk act shall be paid in lieu of retirement pay. They receive other benefits, such as hospitalization. The bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator Bursum (New Mexico), and is designed to benefit some 6,000 disabled emergency officers. It has not yet passed the House.

Washington.—Millard F. West, formerly Kentucky Commissioner of accounts, who in July, 1921, materially assisted in the reorganization of the Prohibition unit, and who has been transferred to serve as an Assistant to Commissioner Haynes, is a native of Kentucky, having been born in Lancaster, Ky., March 9th, 1877. Mr. West will have charge of the concentration of distilleries under an Act of Congress passed last week and signed by the President.

UNKNOWN DISEASE KILLS MANY EWES IN KENTUCKY

For the third consecutive season, an unusual condition again is developing among sheep in the State and causing the death of from six to eight per cent of the animals in different flocks, according to a report from the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station where studies are being made to determine the nature of the trouble and the best methods of controlling it. Observations made during February and March and are confined to ewes in advanced pregnancy. It is said to be fatal to practically 100 per cent of the animals that become sick.

Early symptoms of the disease are sluggishness and a tendency to lie down. Infected animals get up with difficulty, walk with a staggering gait and often with the head held to one side. As the disease advances, muscular twitching may set in and the animal stands with its head pressed against some object. Animals showing symptoms of the disease quit their teeth, gradually lose their appetite, become blind and die. Before death, the animals become prostrate and move their feet while lying on their sides.

Hanford MacNider, youngest national commander of the American Legion, was born in Mason City, Iowa, October 2, 1889. He was educated at Milton Academy, Milton, Massachusetts, and at Harvard, graduating in 1911. Five years later he served with the Second Iowa Infantry on the Mexican border. When America came into the World War, Mr. MacNider entered the officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, and on August 15, 1917, was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry. He arrived in France a month later with the Ninth Infantry of the Second Division, took part in five major operations and was promoted successively, captain, major and lieutenant colonel.

National Commander MacNider is a banker, and founded the trust company at Mason City of which he is now president.

As commander of Clausen Worden Post of the Legion of Mason City, Hanford MacNider built up and maintained an active post of 1100 members in a town of 20,000 inhabitants. He served his department one year as vice-commander, and during 1921 was department commander. During his commandship Iowa recorded a clean gain of 7,000 members.

BRODER HOVER IS DOING MOTHER HEN'S WORK BETTER

Artificial brooding of chicks has become so successful and practical that many poultrymen as well as general farmers, who have replaced the old mother hen by this method, rarely lose more than 15 per cent of all the chicks taken from the hen or the incubator, experienced poultrymen say. This plan saves time and labor in caring for a large number of chicks. It makes the control of lice and mites easier, increases the returns in eggs from hens that would otherwise be caring for chicks and reduces the losses in chicks since there are no hens to tramp on them. Poultrymen at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station say that the brooder should supply a roomy and well ventilated hover with an abundance of heat capable of being regulated uniformly. The room or house in which the hover is located should be so arranged and ventilated that the chicks may have a cool place in which to exercise in comfort away from the direct source of heat.

Before the chicks are placed in the brooder, it is best to clean it thoroughly after which it should be disinfected with a three per cent solution of some good coal-tar stock dip. A one-half inch layer of clean fine sand on the brooder house floor covered with a litter of fine cut straw, alfalfa hay or clover is essential. The house should be cleaned frequently, especially under the hover.

FARM BRIEFS.

Farm machinery that is under cover and old will be ready to use next spring.

Thirty years brought a 50 per cent increase in the average number of eggs produced by each hen in New York state. It pays to educate hens.

Profits in poultry are shown by P. W. Wagner, living east of Antlers, Okla. Mr. Wagner raised 1,000 Buff Orpington chickens the past season and sold $1,700 worth of poultry products.

Four hundred and eighty-three pounds at 13 months and nine days of age is the very satisfactory weight reported by Henry Koch, of Edina, Mo., on one of his Poland China brood sows.

An unproductive field pays no wages—it doesn't even pay taxes. Trees will set the idle field to work, if nothing else will.

The new national commander was wounded at St. Mihiel, and was cited three times in general orders. He wears the following decorations: Distinguished Service Cross with oak leaf, Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with palms and one gold and silver star, and Italian War Cross.

Commander MacNider's policy for the upbuilding of the Legion is embodied in the following statement made at his election at Kansas City: "We must build this Legion of ours so big and fine and strong, and keep it so clean and straight and American, that when we ask for certain things for the ex-service man—for the disabled man who must live through the war forever in the homes and hospitals of this country, and for those men who are financially disabled—our communities will say, 'If the Legion is for it, we will be for it.'"

Early planting helps increase crop yields. Possibilities of increased crop yields by means of early planting are being pointed out to Kentucky farmers by soils specialists at the College of Agriculture as one of the greatest advantages of plowing just as soon as the soil is in condition to work. Other advantages which they are citing are the conservation of moisture and the destruction of weeds.

EARLY PLANTING HELPS INCREASE CROP YIELDS.

Early planting, especially in the case of corn, gives larger yields, when other conditions are equal, and a better quality of grain. The difference of one month in the date of planting sometimes makes a difference of 50 per cent in the yield, the specialists say. Soil that is plowed early also loses less moisture by evaporation since the plowed surface acts as a mulch to protect the lower soil. In addition the plowed ground absorbs more rainfall than a hard surface which permits the water to run off rapidly. Early tillage, which is made possible by early plowing, germinates many weed seeds that can be destroyed before the crop is seeded thereby making future cultivations of the crop easier.

The Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association has opened its books for new members, and it now seems that every grower who did not sign last year ought to be convinced without a doubt that it is to his best interest to sign the contract if he intends to raise a crop of tobacco this year. The big tobacco manufacturers will buy every pound of last year's crop, and in the future may deal with the pool exclusively. If this should come to pass, where will the independent grower find a market? It has been proven here and elsewhere in the district that where crops have been divided to men who pooled his hard earned money more than the fellow who sold his half on the independent market.

Small crowd attends sale. The public sale of D. R. Elliott near Burlington, last Friday, was attended by a small crowd. Horses sold from $37.50 to $67 and other things accordingly.

People who stop on the gas should be pleased when later they wake up out of the ether and hear the nurse say they are out of danger.

The sale of overalls is said to be increasing, but many of them do not show any signs of perspiration.

FROM FRANKFORT.

Frankfort—The House of Representatives again holding night sessions Monday, in order to complete the work before that body. Mr. Strange, of the Rules Committee, said "we must get down to work and work fast in order to get the bills passed that are necessary," he said, "and the best way is to work as long as possible."

Frankfort, Ky.—The superiority of the Rules Committee finally was established at the end of a two-hour parliamentary battle which tore down party lines and ultimately carried the Senate, by narrow margins, to override two decisions of Lieutenant Governor Thurston S. Ballard.

The battle was begun when Senator Whitaker, acting for the Rules Committee, called the House Bill requiring separation of male and female jurors. The question was debated for two hours. The bill was passed by a vote of 22 to 13.

Educational institutions fared well at the hands of the House working as a Committee of the Whole on the $12,000,000 budget bills, but the State Board of Health and the State Highway Department received hard knocks.

The Representatives increased the budget appropriation for the Kentucky Normal and Industrial Institute for Negroes from $40,000 to $50,000 and the Kentucky Institution for the Education of the Blind from $74,500 to $83,500.

The proposed appropriation for the State Board of Health was cut from $139,708.84 to $119,798.84. The members refused to consider the proposed appropriation for the State Highway Department until printed reports of the work done during the last two years are placed upon the desks of the Representatives.

Pendleton County.

{Falmouth Outlook.} The Pendleton Fiscal Court was in session all day Tuesday and got along fine considering the fact that there is no money in the treasury. All the money expended for the next seven months will have to be borrowed, and it is the intention of each Magistrate to exercise the most rigid economy all along the line. That $15,000 debt left over from last year is staring the court in the face, and will cut heavily into next year's revenue.

It seems that these American millionaire girls will marry any old thing. The latest is that of Matilda McCormick, daughter of H. H. McCormick and granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, who wants to marry a Swiss "hoss jockey." We have no kick to register about whom this 16-year-old girl selects for a husband, but we do not like to see 300,000,000 American dollars squandered on a two-for-a-nickel foreigner.

The sheep of Pendleton county, to our way of thinking, are worth more than all the dogs in the State. The present membership of the Legislature is made up largely of farmers, and if they vote to repeal the dog law we will have little faith in their judgment. A good dog will keep and feed a sheep much to a farmer, and you never hear the owners of such dogs complain of paying the tax. The present dog law if kept in operation a few years will reduce the number of our dogs owned by people who are not able to feed and pay the taxes on them. This will also have a tendency to encourage farmers to raise more sheep. We are in favor of more sheep and less dogs.

There is a lot of idle labor in Falmouth just now, but the prospect is bright that all will find work after March 1st. The new city school building will be started about that time; the pants factory will begin work some time in March; the new laundry will be built this spring; a number of new residences will be built this spring and summer; N. C. Ridgway has a contract to hang and re-dry 1,000,000 pounds of tobacco for the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association in this city. All this will afford our surplus labor work for several months to come.

MORE ACRES OF RED CLOVER

WOULD HELP REBUILD SOILS

Although red clover is a minor crop in the State at the present time, it should have a more important place in the soil building programs of Kentucky farmers even though its use must be restricted to the best land, according to recommendations being made by soil and crop specialists at the College of Agriculture. It supplies better feed than timothy hay and will produce fully as large a yield in addition to a second extra growth, according to R. E. Stephenson, one of the specialists. It also improves the soil if plowed under or if the mature growth is returned to the land. It may be seeded any time between now and April 1.

Corn will continue king of farm products, it will continue king of feeding grains, but to get the greatest number of meat pounds in return for corn pounds, fed it must be supplemented, not because it is inferior to other grains in protein but because it is low in its mineral content. —Nell B. Jones.

$10,000,000 LOAN TO POOL READY.

Representative Of War Finance Corporation Arrives From Washington and Cash Will Be Available As Co-operative Asks For It.

Casselberry Dunkerson, of Louisville, well known tobacco expert, who was appointed this week as the representative of the War Finance Corporation in the $10,000,000 loan to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, was in Lexington Thursday, and in conference with President James C. Stone and Secretary H. L. Early, of the Association, said the loan would be forthcoming as requested by the Association and as it furnishes collateral as security for it.

Mr. Dunkerson is in connection with the loan will be to look into the grading, see that the papers are properly drawn and the warehouse receipts covering the tobacco in accordance with the requirements of War Finance Corporation. He was one of the members of the Louisville committee of tobacco experts who accompanied Louisville bankers to Lexington at the time the banks fixed the amounts they would loan on each of the grades of leaf held by the Association.

Mr. Dunkerson arrived in Kentucky from Washington Thursday. He will inspect the tobacco at all points in the district which is to be offered as collateral for the finance corporation's loan.

Discussing the attitude of the War Finance Corporation officials toward the tobacco growers, Mr. Dunkerson said he had never seen manifested toward any organization or business concern a more reasonable or friendly attitude than that of the War Finance Corporation toward the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association.

About twenty million pounds of tobacco, according to Dr. S. H. Halley, manager of storage for the Association, has been redried to date and is in position to furnish the basis for warehouse receipts which would be accepted as collateral on such a loan.

SALT AND ITS USES

A test for the purity of salt is to place a tablespoon of salt in a glass of water. If the salt is unadulterated it will sink to the bottom of the glass, leaving the water clear, but if other material has been added to it the water will become cloudy.

A teaspoon of fine table salt added to kerosene lamps, and changed once a month, will prevent the lamps from smelling badly.

The whites of eggs or whipping cream it will help either to stiffen much more quickly.

A teaspoon of salt with one tablespoon of olive oil will remove discolorations on the dining table caused by heat. The mixture should stand on the spots several hours, and then be rubbed off with a fine piece of flannel.

Salt will remove fresh ink stains from a carpet.

Bags of salt baked in the oven are often more soothing to use in illness than a hot-water bottle.

Salt will remove stains from tea-cups.

Nothing will stick to new pans if a handful of salt with cold water is allowed to stand in them several hours and then rinsed out with clear cold water.

A handful of salt put around the roots of carnations about once a month will give fine blossoms.

A sprinkling of salt underneath a baking pan will prevent a roast from burning.

Salt will remove scorch from freshly ironed clothes if placed on scorched place, dampened and the garment hung in the sunshine.

Salt will set the color in cotton clothes, if used the first time they are laundered.

There is reason in all things. Often there is much unreasonableness.

A noted New York preacher denounced the entire movie world because of the exposure of the unclean lives led by some of the too highly paid stars.

We might with equal justice condemn and denounce the entire ministry because of the few black sheep it contains. But we do not.

There are unquestionably many decent and self-respecting film actors and actresses. Then there are many who are so drug-sodden and morally filthy no speed limit is able to curb their ruinous pace.

It is the latter class who are bringing discredit upon the whole movie profession.

There is a law which forbids a person to advocate the boycott, and it is perhaps better so. But we know of no restriction against decency among people making public announcement of the fact that they will no longer patronize a movie theatre in which an actor or actress appears on the film who is known to be of the depraved class so much under condemnation at the present time.

This is about the only effective method of fumigating the movie industry.

Raging in our homes and then showing our money through the ticket window will accomplish nothing

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

Woman's influence in the political field has proven to be elevating. They exert none of that debasing influence which has debauched our political system for so many years past. They are not grafters, or stricters, or hangers-on. They are, as a general thing, eminently fair minded and just.

These are excellent reasons for encouraging the political activity of American womanhood.

It would be well if the women of every community would form an organization for the study of political questions, especially those having a bearing on local conditions or affairs.

Truth and candor compels the admission that the political rule of man has exerted too much of a degrading influence upon the body politic. That scrupulous honor and devotion to duty which we have a right to expect from our public servants in this country is often entirely too often—conspicuous for its utter absence.

Political womanhood has the power to compel its restoration, if political womanhood so desires.

STUDY YOUR NEIGHBOR.

He has many good qualities of which you are not informed, qualities which his good sense prevents him from parading before the public.

A close-up study of his better side will disclose them to you. It will also make you more satisfied with your neighbor, and will make life sweeter and more enjoyable to you.

Give him the once-over, oft repeated.

SIMPLE PRACTICES CITED

AS SPUD YIELD BOOSTERS

By using more care in selecting seed, practicing better methods of planting and cultivating and taking greater precautions to control insects and diseases, Kentucky farmers easily could double the average potato yield of the State, which is now a little more than 62 bushels an acre, according to specialists on the crop at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Planting the seed on a piece of soil that has not grown potatoes for two or three years is the first practice to be considered in increasing the average yield, the specialists say. This will lessen the possibilities of the potatoes becoming scabby. Preparation of the soil as early as it is possible to work it is important.

"The next step is to see that the seed is medium sized and free from scurf and scab," the recommendations point out. "Soaking the seed from one and one-half to two hours before it is cut in a solution made of four ounces of corrosive sublimate and 30 gallons of water mixed in anything but a metal container, is an extra precaution against scab and scurf. Precautions are necessary in handling the solution as corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison."

"After the seed has dried it should be cut in pieces having one or two strong eyes and as much of the potato with them as possible. In planting, it is well to remember that freshly manured soil is apt to encourage the growth of scab on the potatoes."

Temper is one thing that can't be worked to death.

Quite a lot of sickness in Boone this winter.

The spring moving campaign has about closed.

Howard Kelly has been quite sick for several days with flu.

The mud roads have been in bad condition the past few days.

This office has printed a number of sale bills the past few weeks.

O. C. Hafer, of Hebron, was a business visitor to the Hub last Friday.

W. C. Weaver was quite ill at the home of J. M. Barlow, in Burlington, last week.

Good many people feel that the grocer can wait for his pay, but the garage man won't.

Don't forget the combination sale to be held at Florence fair grounds tomorrow (Thursday).

The local trucks have been busy the past few weeks hauling tobacco to Walton warehouses.

The Busy "B" Society met with Miss Mary Furlong and Mrs. Kirk Tanner, last Thursday.

Miss Sheba Roberts, of Walton, spent last Saturday and Sunday with relatives in Burlington.

We believe in Tanlac and so will you if you try it. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Circuit Clerk R. E. Berkshire, after a two weeks siege of flu, is able to be back on duty again.

Those who are not conscious of paying any taxes, are hollering loud for liberal appropriations.

Ed. Hawes, of Covington, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Martha Hawes.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cropper, of Bullittsburg, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cropper.

You get your money's worth when you buy Tanlac, because it produces results. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Many fellows who went to the city for an easy time, are having it, sitting on park benches because they can find no work.

Mrs. Geo. M. Penn returned home last Thursday evening from a two week's visit with relatives at Georgetown, Scott county.

Mrs. Emma Brown is on duty at the postoffice again, after a visit of several days with relatives in the north end of the county.

THE NEWS IN CAPSULES.

Forget it. The other fellow can growl enough for both of you.

Silence is golden when the other fellow has the longest reach.

We agree with the ministry that jazz is immoral. Otherwise it would not be so popular.

The world is full of beautiful women, but it is difficult to get two of them to agree upon any one.

AGRICULTURE.

It isn't too early to get ready for the spring openings in the poultry yard.

Every farmer owes some of his time and energy to fostering the interests of farming.

Uncle Ab says: "Keep young in your mind and it'll take longer for age to creep into your joints."

In farming, as in manufacturing, the man who can convert waste products, or by-products, into cash, is the one who gets ahead.

Only three states outranked New York in value of crops grown in 1921. Who said farming wasn't New York's leading industry?

Much of the fun and some of the profits on the farm come from the smaller things, such as the garden, the home orchard, to farm poultry flock and bees.

There's good authority for the statement that George Washington owned America's first mule. The mule was a present to Washington from the King of Spain, and was named Royal Gift.

POSTAL BREVITIES.

There are more than 300,000 people employed in the United States postal service.

There are 20,000,000 letters sent to the dead letter office every year because incorrectly addressed.

Fourteen billion postage stamps, one ad one fourth billion postal cards and two and three fourths billion stamped envelopes are sold every year.

In every single hour of the twenty four 1,400,000 letters are mailed, in every day of the 365 days 33,000,000 letters are sent.

Sixty-five million mail sacks are in use constantly, and it requires 6,000,000 yards of canvas every year to keep up the supply.

More than 800,000 miles of twine is used every year tying the packages of letters, enough twine to encircle the earth 32 times.

HOME-SPUN YARN.

(Cornell Extension Service.) Sunshine and fresh air are Nature's preventive medicine. Do not stint the doses.

Get the milk habit! Clean milk is one of the best foods we have and the cheapest.

Simple, genuine, substantial clothing, which can be worn inconspicuously, after all in the long run gives the most satisfaction.

Use corn in place of other cereals; the energy value of cereals in an average diet is similar but a comparison of the price of corn with that of other grains shows the saving from its use.

Silks and woollens should not be rubbed in washing. Squeeze them between the hands in lukewarm suds of mild soap until they are clean. See that the rising water is the same temperature as that used in washing.

One of our great railroad systems, notoriously exploited and diamally mismanaged needs many millions of dollars with which to pay of bonded indebtedness soon to become due in foreign markets.

Apparently it is too poor a risk for bankers and other financiers to consider.

Hence the management of the road wants the government to make the loan which shrewd financiers can not "see."

The treasury of the U. S. is the people's bank, and the guardians of those funds are answerable to the people.

If this proposed loan is too risky for financiers who make a business of lending money it certainly is no place for the investment of government funds.

The public eye is watching this proposed deal. The people are not always asleep.

It's no wonder some people invariably say too much. They don't know how to shut up when they have said enough.

AMONG BEADED BLOUSES

Here is a beaded blouse which will compete with any admiring glance wherever it is worn. For the theater, dinner party or any other place where splendor-loving women undertake to look their best, it is sure to triumph. These two rivals in beautiful fabrics—crepe de chine and georgette—have joined forces in this blouse. Imagine it in sapphire blue crepe de chine with beads in sapphire blue and steel and falling fountains on the sleeves made of black georgette attractively beaded.

TOO MUCH EXPENSE.

There is some complaint over the levying of the necessary tax for financing the soldier bonus. This affords an opportunity for the periodical explosions which we require to let off surplus steam.

But our explosions should be turned upon a different subject.

There is too much waste in the public service. This waste is in the form of man power—or perhaps it might be more appropriate to term it barnacle power.

Many government, state and other office holders and employees feel that they are doing nobly by their country if they stalk majestically into their offices at 9 in the morning, loaf around a while, put in a few hours of leisure work, and go home or out among "the boys at 4 or 4:30 in the afternoon."

In the business world the average man gets to work at 8 in the morning, takes an hour for lunch, and considers his day's work over at 5 in the afternoon—and not a minute sooner. And those eight hours are put in at good hard work. The loafer soon finds himself out of a job.

The business man has just as many brains and knows how to use them to just as good advantage as does the public office holder or employee.

Is there any good reason why one should be required to "hit the pace," and the other be permitted to sidestep it?

If our public affairs were managed and conducted with the same degree of executive ability and prudence we display in commercial life we could discharge one-fourth of our public office personnel and still be in better condition than we are today.

The average man hangs onto his own money, but too many of us are ready to "let it fly" when the treasury pays the bills.

Eliminate the official waste and extravagance and financing the bonus will not require the addition of one cent of taxation.

Of course, an army of political barnacles would have to get out and go to work, but that is what the Lord intended they should do.

The boys who fought the war are more entitled to consideration than the barnacles who are now receiving it.

STATE NEWS.

There should be four aims in the program of every country minister. These are: Unity of community life, an educational plan, added prosperity for the community and sympathy or a feeling of fellowship for others.

There are now 444,000 cows having a value of $33,000,000 kept for milk and cream production in Kentucky. In another five years they will be more valuable than our horse stock and then will top the list of values of domestic animals kept on the farm.—J. J. Hooper, College of Agriculture.

While you pause in your hesitation the other fellow gets there by the aid of his determination.

FLORENCE BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL.

(By Miss Minnie Baxter.)

Last fall we set out upon a voyage which proved to be a very enjoyable and instructive one. We set sail Oct. 21st, the Blue ship, upon the steamer ship directed by Captain Craven. As this was to be a race to Europe and return each group did its utmost to win with the result that our Sunday school attendance has increased from 85 to 78, which fact reveals how much we could do if we would.

The Blue ship arrived in Europe first. After feasting on the good things provided in Europe by the unfriendly Reds, the return trip was planned. The day, the time, and place was set. Again the time was clear and cold, but all faces were bright over the anticipation of seeing Florence church and the old neighbors again.

It was not exactly an uneventful voyage. There were several adventures that served to vary the monotony of the regular daily routine. As Captain Cody guided the blue ship near a lonely island they noticed two persons on shore giving a distress signal. They approached and found them to be Mr. Thompson and Mr. Myers, who said that they had been shipwrecked and that for several weary months they had been on this island far away from friends and Sunday school. They, while sobbing from feelings that could not be expressed, remarked that they had not even had a prayer to read, much less the Bible and that they were just crazy, to get back to old Florence Sunday school.

That same day the Red ship picked up four persons struggling in the water, and much to the surprise of the Blues we passed them. The Blues must have been asleep for as we went by not a sound was heard and most all the lights were out. We heard that they had engine trouble which proves to us that it does not pay to go to sleep on the job.

On the following Sunday we found ourselves 420 miles ahead of Captain Cody and safely back home again.

WHEN TO PLANT CORN

There is a right time to plant corn, and usually the better farmers, whether they figure by the calendar, by the size of oak leaves or by the phases of the moon, in every neighborhood, know when that right time comes. It is suggested, however, that more corn is planted too early than too late. Corn is a hot-weather plant. In the central corn belt the seed that is planted in April is usually slow in coming up and less hardy than the seed planted about the middle of May. The distribution of rainfall affects the yield, and this varies from season to season, but the corn experts say, and this theory is verified by common experience, that the best yields and most rapid growth may be expected from the medium planting dates.

A GOD MAN FOR THE JOB

Mr. Everett L. Hickman, has been recommended by the Republican Committee for Temporary Postmaster at Burlington and he will receive his appointment within a few days. Mr. Courtney Kelly whose name had been sent to the Senate by Senator Ernst for Postmaster at Burlington found that he could not accept the position and had the Senator withdraw his name. Mr. Hickman will be the temporary Postmaster until a civil service examination can be held and he will then take the examination and his appointment will be made permanent. Mr. Hickman is one of our best citizens and the patrons of the office will receive courteous and prompt service.

The Recorder was informed by a special message from Frankfort, Tuesday morning, that an attempt was being made to change the Dixie Highway from the Covington and Lexington pike to the road from Lexington via Paris and Falmouth to Covington, and that, as the present Engineer Hon. Joseph Boggs, was in favor of the Lexington pike route, commissioners would be named who would replace Mr. Boggs with some one who was favorable to the Falmouth-Paris route. If this move should prove successful then the Lexington pike through Boone would not receive Federal aid and could not be resurfaced with concrete. A delegation from Boone and Grant counties will be in Frankfort Wednesday morning to enter their protest to this change.

MRS. SARAH A. SMITH, DEAD.

Mrs. Sarah A. Smith, aged 81 years, who passed away at the St. Elizabeth Hospital, last Sunday evening, was taken to the Tallahassee Chapel, Erlanger, where services were held by Rev. Ribble at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Hughes, of Erlanger, besides other relatives at Walton, where she formerly lived. The remains were taken by Undertaker Philip Tallaferrero to Walton for interment.

W. H. Rouse from over on Gunpowder creek, reports that he has 18 ewes that gave birth to twenty-five lambs—23 of which are living and gave nicely. You have to get up and huddle, when you beat "Ous uh."

FARM BRIEFS.

Japan produces only 4.21 pounds of live stock and the U. S. 163.3 pounds to the person.

With corn at present prices there is more profit by marketing it thru hogs.

The total value of farm crops raised in the United States in 1919, excluding nurseries and green-house products, was $17,755,858,407, according to a report of the Bureau of Census.

A good way to help out the most-quick crop next year is to leave an assortment of old cans and bottles strewn over the back yard, by spring they will be well filled with stagnant water, an ideal place to breed.

THE WIRELESS TELEPHONE

People have become so accustomed to scientific marvels that the wireless telephone and its popular use for broadcasting messages, fails to attract the wonder it would have caused years ago. The impossible so frequently becomes the commonplace of daily life, that few persons are surprised at any new development no matter how amazing.

Wireless telephony is only in its infancy, and it is impossible to predict how far it will go. There is one very important service that it will render, and that is to permit people living in country districts to enjoy music and lectures and addresses delivered in city centers. Fine concerts and operas will be made accessible over wide ranges of territory by wireless telephony.

People living in remote homes will sit in their living rooms and hear masterpieces of music played in the big concert halls. Political orators will have messages conveyed over the country through radio instruments.

One more step will be taken to break down the isolation of rural localities, and people who are a long distance from their neighbors will be in close touch with the world of activity in centers of population.

Such methods of communication must be a boon to invalids and shut-ins and elderly people, who are cut off by inability to attend public gatherings. The wireless telephone will bring into their secluded rooms the activity of the outside world, and life will seem less limited. Such folks will enjoy church services without stirring from their homes. Development like this is not merely a scientific marvel, it is will do wonders to keep people in touch with the movements of the times.

Mrs. O. C. Hafer, of Hebron, Ky., breeder of Buff Plymouth Rock chickens, exhibited six birds at the Aurora Poultry Show recently, and won the following premiums: First on cockerel, 1st on pullet, 1st and 5th on Utility hen and 5th on Utility pullet. Mrs. Hafer has been using the best breeding stock obtainable, and by careful selection has developed a flock equal to any in both type and utility.

Lloyd Weaver, who has been quite sick for the past two weeks with "flu" is able to be up and around. His father, W. C. Weaver, who came in to see his son, was stricken with the same disease and could not get up for several days, but is improving. Lloyd's wife, who had been nursing them, assisted by Mrs. W. C. Weaver, was taken down and has been quite poorly. While all of the others were on the road to recovery.

A committee composed of W. M. Whitson, Al Rogers, of Grant, John Clow of Hebron, County Attorney B. H. Riley and County Judge N. E. Riddell appeared before the State Tax Commission at Frankfort last Monday, protesting against the raise in the assessed value of property in Boone county of $1,400,000. After hearing the protest of the committee and the facts as they presented them, the Commission decided to increase the total assessment $900,000, reducing their original raise by $500,000, which will be a saving to the taxpayers of Boone county amounting to $7,000.

Louisville, Ky.—First build up the body and prepare it for the task of absorbing an education, then train the mind. This is the new method of educating the children of the Kentucky Children's Home Society, inaugurated with the removal of the Society from the old home on Baxter Avenue to the 86 acre tract at Lyndon, Ky., where already two units of the cottage village have been built.

The education of the young minds and the scientific play that is expected to build up the bodies of the little waifs, are in the hands of Mrs. A. L. Harris and Mrs. B. U. Seay, educators who obtained their initial training in Louisville public school work.

The great spacious out-door play ground has been equipped with all modern play devices that develop the body and make the child happy. In wet or cold weather the children play in the basement, also equipped with all kinds of play-ground devices.

It is pointed out by George L. Sehon, Superintendent of the Society, that many of the children arrive at the Home in an under-nourished condition, often so emaciated that their lives are jeopardized. The first task is to make their bodies healthy; and yet so often the child of less than twelve, who is brought to the Home, has had no schooling whatsoever, so it is that that schooling and play are linked in and hand. These underfed children, illiterate and underfed are put on special fattening diets; all memories of the terrible hardships they have undergone are effaced from their minds by play and loving treatment, and between these hours of play, Harris and Mrs. Seay of the hold short classes; thus getting the child used to school by gradual degrees. The play periods become shorter as the school periods become longer, until the child having attained normal weight and health, gets down to the real task of learning the foundation of an education that send them from the Home equipped to combat life's battle in the industrial world.

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS

Planting tomato seeds in a small box at this time of the year is the first step in arranging for early tomatos. A box about four inches deep will fill the purpose. The bottom should be covered with a one-half inch layer of cinders or gravel and then the box filled with rich, pulverized dirt. The soil should be dampened thoroughly and then allowed to dry on top after which the resulting crust should be pulverized and the seeds planted. A warm place providing plenty of light is a good one in which to store the box.

Selecting the right kind of pea seed sometimes means the difference between success and failure in having an early supply of this vegetable. There are two kinds, the round, smooth-seeded and the wrinkled seeded. The former type of seeds should be planted first as they are harder and will stand more cold weather than the wrinkled kind.

Those who wish early vegetables can plant leaf lettuce, onions, peas, potatoes radishes and spinach about March 15th.

Plan to leave a place in the garden this year for sweet corn. There is no comparison between this variety and the common field corn for table use.

The use of proven varieties of vegetables means as much to successful gardener as the use of pure bred sires does to the successful livestock man. Ask the Experiment Station at Lexington for Circular No. 67 which gives the best varieties and planting dates for Kentucky.

The girls who wear flapping overshoes, may decide to finish the thing up by wearing their waists unbuttoned.

Some folks who never will make any noise in the world, are wearing very loud clothes.

Millions of pleasure cars being turned out, but the working wagon business seems to be quiet.

ROOT AND SALAD CROPS IN FAVOR

Can Be Cultivated With Hand Tools and Take Up Comparatively Small Space.

FRESH THINGS ALL SUMMER

Specialists Suggest That Planting Be Made a Week or So Apart to Obtain Succession of Various Kinds of Vegetables.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where garden space is limited plant root and salad crops. No garden, large or small, is complete without them, but they are particularly adapted to small back-yard gardens. Among the root crops are radishes, beets, carrots, parsnips, salsify or vegetable oyster, and turnips. Salad crops include lettuce, common or wild cress, dandelion, Coss lettuce or romaine, Chinese cabbage, and others. They require little space, because they can be planted in rows from 10 to 18 inches apart, and cultivated with hand tools. Many gardeners make only one planting of these crops, but the garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture suggest that several plantings of them be made a week or so apart, in order to have a succession of those vegetables.

Radishes are one of the first and best vegetables that come from the garden in spring. They should be planted as early as possible, whether for market or home use. For the home supply small amounts should be planted, and at least two or three plantings made with varieties that mature at different times.

Food Value of Beets.
Beets are one of the most important crops for the home garden. Seed can be planted just as soon as the soil is in condition to work. When the plants crowd one another in the row, thin them out when they are young, and cook them as greens. Later, when they are about an inch in diameter, both leaf stems and young beets can be cooked together. When the beets are larger the leaf-stems become tough and woody. As a rule two plantings should be made, one extremely early and another in about four weeks. Carrots should be planted just a little later than beets, and as soon as the plants are up they should be thinned. A second thinning will leave the plants one and one-half to two inches apart in the row and give a supply of small carrots, known as baby carrots, for use on the table. The tops of the carrots cannot be used for greens.

Salad Plants Can Often Be Grown in a Small Space Where Some Other Crop Has Been Gathered.

Parsnips and salsify are more in the nature of winter crops; that is, they are grown during the summer and kept for winter use. A section of row 20 to 30 feet long generally will produce all the parsnips or salsify that the average family will want.

While it is true that too much lettuce often is planted at one time, not enough attention is given to keeping a continuous supply. Lettuce plants grown in the hotbed or cold frame, or in a box in the house, can be planted in the open ground just as soon as the danger of the last frost is past.

Fresh Things All Year.

By making a study of the different kinds of salad crops offered in seed catalogues one can easily have a continuous supply from the earliest springtime until the late autumn, and even into the winter. Water cress, for instance, is grown commercially in ponds or spring-fed streams in sections where the water naturally contains large amounts of lime. By starting water cress from seeds sown in a box in the house or by getting a bunch of cress in the market and using the stems for plants, it is easy to grow a bed of water cress without the aid of a stream or pond.

Chickory, or endive, is one of the best of the winter salads. The roots are grown during the summer, and then dug in the fall and packed in the cellar in boxes of moist sand, the roots being placed rather close together in the box with the crowns or tops near the surface. A covering of straw is placed over the box, and the soil around the roots kept moderately wet. Fresh, young leaves will be turned beneath the straw, and as they are grown in comparative darkness, they are white, crisp and tender.

LEGION NOTES

Discharged by a Wall Street banking house for refusing to write letters to Congress attacking adjusted compensation, an ex-service man has turned to the American Legion at New York for help in finding another position. He was one of three, out of 250 employees, who refused to sell his pen.

The Legion secured his affidavit stating that typewritten forms were passed out by the firm to all their workers with an order that each employee hand in four unsigned letters, one to President Harding and three to Congressmen, and the remark that "you fellows had better write these letters tonight if you want to keep your jobs."

The order of "commander of the Legion of Honor," conferred on him by the French government, has been declined as a "personal decoration" by Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion. He cable Marshall Foch that he wished to accept the award only "as a tribute to all members of the Legion."

With stores closed, the countryside out on mass, and a plane wheeling overhead to direct the attack, the American Legion at Beaver City, Neb., staged a record wolf and coyote hunt for the benefit of farmers. The money for the pelts went to needy ex-soldiers.

Ex-service men in Alabama will vote without paying a poll tax. A state amendment, backed by the American Legion, grants them the exemption.

Every sick and wounded ex-service man in New York state hospitals will be assigned an able-bodied member of the American Legion, who will see that his charge gets a square deal.

Body pains and legal aches will not go unthought in Providence, R. I. Doctors and lawyers are offering free services to jobless American Legion men.

A referendum on adjusted compensation taken by the Kansas City Kansas post of the American Legion showed 74 in favor of paid-up insurance, 45 for farm and home aid, and 29 for cash.

Several thousand ex-service men who returned to "do Europe right" are stranded in the large cities there. Posts of the American Legion in London and Paris are helping them book passage "back home again."

A two-dollar bill was sent by the American Legion in Boston by a hard-working woman whose son is insane from war injuries. She asked that hungry soldiers be fed.

To Colorado alone 25,000 tubercular ex-soldiers have migrated. Only two per cent of all hospital cases are Colorado citizens. The American Legion is sending the names of the service men to posts in that state to set up lines of communication for them with friends and relatives.

One thousand "doughnuts and coffees" a day to feed the jobless and homeless ex-soldiers in the growing read-line at St. Marks-in-the-Bowery, New York, are being supplied by a single post of the American Legion, during each day and night. The unfortunate men sleep in the church.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's premier ace, was the first Ohio veteran to turn back his state bonus check of $185 to a fund to establish a hospital for Ohio's disabled soldiers. The American Legion has asked all other veterans who do not have imperative need for cash to follow Rickenbacker's lead.

A string of world war medals (bought at a sale) across his chest, the world's fastest-working beggar took $50 an hour from New York's theater crowd until the American Legion got the police on his trail.

The Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburg, Pa., home of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, have voted for the American Legion's adjusted compensation bill. Almost at the same time the Chamber at Los Angeles, Cal., with 9,000 members and called the largest in the United States, endorsed the bonus. Calling the U. S. Chamber's tactics unfair, the local commerce board at El Dorado, Kan., denied its membership and then voted for the compensation bonus.

Racing a street car for a mile, an ex-soldier in Dallas, Texas, just up from a sick bed, beat five other applicants to a job.

To prevent the spread of a small-pox epidemic, American Legion men by day and night guarded all roads into Mansfield, Ark., to stop entrance or exit.

Carrying concealed weapons is a dangerous practice. It is an ancient practice. It is a practice that is entirely too prevalent, especially in the larger centers of population.

The law-abiding citizen has no desire to carry a gun around in his pocket, unless it be for the protection of life and property when they are in imminent danger.

The punishment should be made so swift and severe that the law breaker would shun a gun as he would a poisonous reptile. Then there would be more honest work and less lawlessness.

True Detective Stories

BY PERSONS UNKNOWN

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"IT IS absolutely essential," said the secretary of treasury, glancing across his desk at the short, ruddy-complexioned, rather stout man who sat opposite him, "that the persons responsible for these lynchings at Versailles be arrested, tried and convicted. I don't think it is overstating the matter to say that this case is more important than any counterfeiting plot or smuggling scheme which the department has ever worked on, for the governor of Indiana has applied to the federal government for troops to handle the uprising which threaten to sweep over that part of the country, and the entire state is taking sides in the matter."

"Naturally we do not wish to send troops to Versailles unless it is absolutely necessary. It would only lead to additional bloodshed and disorder. What we need is someone who has the nerve to go out there, investigate the case from every possible angle and make a report as to the persons responsible for the lynchings. That's why I sent for you."

The man on the other side of the desk smiled and tapped thoughtfully with the forefinger of a hand which indicated strength and determination of character.

"Of course," continued the secretary, "I must warn you that the case is one that is apt to prove dangerous. More so, in fact, than anything you have ever attempted. Compared to it, the roundup of a gang of moonshiners is child's play—for here you will have to work entirely in the dark, and you may practically an entire state. A single slip would mean your death, and would force the government to take steps which might lead to protracted bloodshed."

"In which case," replied the other, "it would be well for me to get out to Versailles as soon as I can. The longer we wait the less chance there is of success. Don't make any attempt to hear from me or to locate me for at least a month. If, at the end of that time, you haven't received some kind of a report, you will know that they've got me. But, somehow, I've got a hunch that they won't."

It was two days later that the train which stopped at Versailles, Ind., halted long enough to permit a single passenger to alight—a man who was short and rather plump and with a ruddy complexion, a man who registered at the local hotel as "James M. Beck" and who allowed it to become known that he was an insurance agent, representing one of the best-known companies in the country.

But Versailles, as Beck soon discovered, was a poor field for life insurance at that time. There was only one topic of conversation in which the natives were interested; the lynching of the five prisoners who had been taken from jail and murdered by an infuriated mob. This, coupled with open threats of defiance against the governor's edict that the guilty men must be punished, kept the town in a continual state of simmering, seething unrest—punctuated by frequent statements that any state or government official who tried to find out the names of the men implicated in the lynching would be shot on sight.

Beck, apparently, wasn't in the least interested in the local turmoil. He had been sent to Versailles to sell insurance, and he was determined to sell it, no matter how many people he had to interview. The fact that he was a stranger led, of course, to immediate suspicion of his motives, and some two weeks passed before he was able to allay this.

About the end of the third week matters were brought to a head by reason of a wire which Beck sent to New York, a dispatch which was in code and which caused the operator to spread the report that the "life insurance agent" was a detective in disguise. Getting wind of this and realizing that he must take some radical step to offset suspicion, Beck approached the man who appeared to be the leader of the trouble-faction. The agent explained to him that he was getting tired of the quarters at the hotel, and wondered if it would be possible to secure lodgings in some private house where he would be a little more comfortable.

"Certainly," said the native. "I reckon we can put you up all right." And he smiled at the thought of this man whom he suspected placing himself entirely in his power. That, however, was precisely what Beck wished, and it only took a couple of days of clever acting to convince the local leader that he was only what he appeared to be—a slow, plodding and conscientious insurance agent. It was in the house of the most dangerous citizen of Versailles, under the very eyes of his associates, that the stranger secured the information he wanted and put it together, piece by piece, until he had the entire story.

It was precisely a month to the day after the conversation in the office of the secretary of the treasury, when that official received a wire from Chicago stating that "all facts about Versailles lynching now in hand. Complete list of men implicated follows by mail."

The name signed to the wire was "William J. Burns, chief of the United States secret service."

BURLEY CROP RATED
LIGHTEST SINCE 1903*Future Sales By Pool Expected to Be Made At Higher Prices.

Lexington, Ky.—The 1921 crop of burley tobacco probably will be the lightest since 1903. Joseph Passon-neau, head of the field service department of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association, announced.

While no official announcement was made, it was reported in tobacco circles today that future sales of leaf belonging to the association would be made at a considerably higher figure on account of the shortage.

It is thought that the 1921 burley crop will not run more than 160,000,000 pounds. The association controls practically 90 per cent of this amount and deliveries to it are thought to be the most accurate barometer of the size of the crop.

The association is paying off the money advanced by banks over the State to furnish money for growers who desired loans. It is expected the entire amount will be paid off within the next few weeks and that the $10,000,000 arranged for with the War Finance Corporation will not be needed. Funds to pay the loans, it is understood, came from the $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 received from the sale of approximately 60,000,000 pounds.

WHAT SOCIAL LIFE CAN DO

Rev. J. G. Stamm, a clergyman writes in the Indiana Farmer's Guide, tells what can be accomplished by a program of social life in a country town. When he took up his labors in the community described, he found a great lack of social life. His wife started in by organizing a group of Camp Fire Girls, who got up a home talent play.

Then plans were laid for a July fourth celebration, and there was a parade with floats, races, games, etc. Visitors came from a long distance, and it was a big day in the community history. Two plays were given, and the proceeds used to purchase an old school building, out of which a community house was created.

A lecture course including musical events and stereoscopic pictures was promoted for the winter. A strong grange is actively at work. The picnic of neighboring Sunday schools is a big community event. Then there are neighboring gatherings, wedding anniversaries and birthday celebrations, and altogether there is now a good deal of social life going on in that town. The writer says it has caused people to forget some of their religious, political and other differences.

Some matter of fact people may say that such a program added nothing to the productiveness of a community. Yet events like these have a big influence over a country town. The production of plays brings the young people together, elicits their talent, gives them something to think about, enables them to make pleasant acquaintances, and sidetracks them from restless desires to go on to large cities.

The lecture course and musical events would give people a chance for mental development and enjoyment. Big public celebrations make a jolly time for everybody, and linger long in mind. A place where such things are going on will be regarded as a live town and people will enjoy living in it.

THE RETURN OF THE SUN.

The return of the sun in spring time, is a mere commonplace fact to many. But to others it has imaginative interest, as the revival of the power that promotes life and growth and draws out the productiveness of the earth.

Primitive peoples worshipped the sun. They thought that a power that created food for their bodies must be beneficent, yet its scorching heat suggested that it had its periods of anger. They believed it must be conciliated by sacrifices and pageants, and the American Indians had sun dances to placate this mighty deity.

Such primitive notions have passed away. But people still love to see the sun come back in spring. The longer days mark an ascending scale of progress and each one sees new buds swelling and cheerful signs of the renewal of all life. The sun must be the most popular of heavenly bodies, as the people who are best liked are called "sunshiny."

IN THE WORLD'S WORKSHOP.

The camel can work for six months in the year on a meager diet which the sparse vegetation of the Sahara affords.

The use of coal at one time was strictly prohibited in London on the ground that the air was made impure and unwholesome.

Football, cycling and horse riding are said to be possible to the wearers of a new artificial leg which contains only two springs.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S BOARD IS ORGANIZED.

The Kentucky Disabled Ex-service Men's Board, created by an act of the present session of the General Assembly of Kentucky, approved by the Governor, February 24th, of which Jackson Morris, Adjutant General, and Emmet O'Neil, State Commander of the American Legion are ex-officio members, held a meeting in Louisville and elected Mrs. Scott W. Duncan, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion of Kentucky, as the third member of the board. Gen. Jackson Morris was elected chairman, and Henry J. Riddle of Hopkinsville was elected secretary. Mr. Stitts will assume the duties of Secretary March 1, and his office will be in the Capitol building, Frankfort, in the adjacent general's suite of offices.

The purpose of this board is to assist disabled ex-service men and women in obtaining from the Federal government the relief authorized by acts of Congress.

There are now several hundred delayed and complicated claims of Kentucky ex-service men, filed more than a year ago. These cases, many of them, delayed by the failure of the claimant to receive proper instruction as to the steps necessary to perfect his claim. Working thru the local organizations of the legion in Kentucky the chief work of Mr. Stitts will be to assist in the proper preparation of these claims. The service officers of the local posts of the American Legion and of the Women's Auxiliary will be asked to co-operate with the secretary of the board in securing and preparing these claims. A similar board was created by the Tennessee Legislature over a year ago, and the satisfactory results accomplished through the working of that board prompted the American Legion to request the creation of a similar board in Kentucky.

Dr. A. A. Murat, 77, a notable figure in Boone county, Ky., died last Wednesday in St. Elizabeth hospital, Covington, after a lingering illness. He had lived at Constance, Ky., across the river from Anderson's Ferry, Cincinnati, and for more than 30 consecutive years was re-elected corner of Boone county. He is believed to have held the office of corner longer than any other such official in the United States. He had officially viewed the bodies of hundreds of swimmers and other persons who were drowned in the Ohio river and which had drifted ashore at Constance. He had lived in Boone county all his life. His wife died several years ago.

DO YOU THINK OR THINK YOU DO?

We do not think. That is the trouble with the most of us. If we do not think, we do not study, we do not grow. We develop our tongues and not our minds.

Think deeply of the words we read, the lectures we hear and the things we do. Train the mind, the eyes and the muscles, watch the conditions of your community, your county, your state and your nation.

From these observations learn lessons that help you shape your programs for successful attainment.

Sweep from your mind the chaff and the straw, lay hold of thoughts and ideas of value and study them thoroughly. Elaborate and improve on them, decide whether they fit your case or not, accept the good things and discard what you cannot use.

Go far and search deep for new thoughts, plans and methods and then spend some days upon demonstration work faithfully to a complete fruition of those plans.

TRAINING FOR HOME LIFE

Social workers complain that the modern girl's business experience in stores and factories gives her no training for the duties of home life, which she must usually take up later. So she usually knows little about cooking, and she may not buy home supplies or manage her resources economically.

Also it is complained, the girls expect the men to earn enough money so that their wives can spend as much on personal adornment and amusements as they used to spend when they were occupying business positions.

There may be some exaggeration in these statements, yet there is some basis for them. They may account for the failure of many young folks to save money. A young woman contemplating matrimony would benefit from a short course in domestic science and home management. Every high school ought to have courses of this kind which the older girls could take in evening sessions if necessary. Such training would help young couples acquire independence.

CITY AND COUNTRY MINDS

City minded people are usually of a glib mentality. They do not enjoy doing energetic things, themselves, but want to see activity going on. They like to sit at shows and watch other people perform or stand on the sidewalks and see the crowd go by.

The people who enjoy country life have mental instincts that find satisfaction in rural scenes. Their minds respond to the beauty of nature. The pageant of cloud and sunshine, of birds and trees and flowers, is show enough for them. The care and development of animals are to them a more interesting story than the spectacular stage thriller. They need the activities of a country town's social and community life, but they have mental resources that make rural life keenly interesting, even if they are not going to show all the time.

Farmers of the United States own more than 2,000,000 motor cars, approximately one third of the cars in use in the nation.

"EXCLUSIVE STYLES."

A market report covering the field of women's wear, predicted the other day that the style of wearing wool stockings in winter would not be likely to continue during another season. It noted that the fashion leaders were less for them as soon as they became generally popular. When they ceased to be "exclusive style" they ceased to be interesting.

The fact that such warm stockings seemed eminently sensible for wear in winter weather, particularly in this period of short skirts, may not count with devotees of style.

If this prediction proves correct, it will be an illustration of the common tendency among women to look for original and exclusive styles of clothing. That feeling does not exist among men to any large extent. They dislike anything that is unusual, and may subject them to jollying for putting on airs. But the women long for the touch of choice originality.

This does not necessarily prove that they have less common sense than men. For ages women had to win their successes as the result largely of personal attractiveness. Those who have a touch of originality in their dress, have commanded a certain power.

This is however an ideal of dress and manners that women are gradually outgrowing. They are finding out that solid merit, in the long run, in the business field at least, rather than following the fads of fashion. Merit does not always promote the most ambitious marriage, yet one based on substantial worth will be more permanent than the whimsical ones won by pretty and stylish clothes.

The most successful women dress quietly, after the same unobtrusive manner that men adopt. They are not looking much for exclusive styles and if wool stockings of any other article of dress are the most comfortable and appropriate they will be apt to wear them.

POOL VIOLATORS FACING LAW SUITS

Burley Growers Who Sold Leaf Under Association Contracts To Be Prosecuted—One Uses Wife's Name.

Lexington, Ky.—Prosecution of growers who have sold tobacco belonging to the Burley Growers' Co-operative Association and of warehousemen who have allowed or induced growers to sell such tobacco will be begun in a few days, it was announced here today at the conclusion of a meeting of the Board of Directors.

The field service department, under the direction of Joseph Passon-neau, has been investigating alleged cases of violation of contractual cases, will present the data to Aaron Sapiro general counsel for the association.

One of the first prosecutions, Mr. Sapiro said, will be that of a prominent farmer in the central warehouse district, who sold a large crop of tobacco in the name of his wife.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

To avoid penalty, income tax returns must be in the hands of collectors of internal revenue on or before midnight, March 15, 1922.

Every taxable return must be accompanied by a payment of at least one-fourth of the total tax due. Extensions of time for filing returns are given only in exceptional cases, illness, absence, etc. Applications for extensions under these circumstances should be addressed to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives. No extension beyond thirty days can be granted by a collector. Requests for further extensions must be addressed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.

For failure to make a return on time the penalty is a fine of not more than $1,000, plus 25 per cent of the tax due.

For failure to pay tax when due or for understatement of the tax thru negligence there is a penalty of 5 per cent of the tax, plus interest at 6 per cent a month until paid. For making a false or fraudulent return the penalty is a fine of not more than $10,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both, together with the cost of prosecution and an additional assessment of 50 per cent of the amount of tax paid.

DOINGS AT FRANKFORT.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Bright bill, establishing a State Board of Education, composed of eight laymen and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, was passed by the Senate 28 to 7. The bill provides for the appointment of four Democrats and four Republicans by the Governor. The Monroe measure, relating to the licensing of insurance agents, was killed, 23 to 0. The Senate acting favorably upon Senator Brock's motion to postpone indefinitely. Senator Green then reported the general registration measure as it was enrolled.

The House passed a bill sponsored by Frank L. Strangers, forming the office of oil tester and grader instead of the present oil inspectorship and limiting the salaries to $3,600 a year, no matter how large the fees. The vote was 54 to 32.

Frankfort, Ky.—The House decided that the "flivver" is being discriminated against. So it passed a bill to classify automobiles so that the same license fee will not be required as on cars weighing 3,850 pounds. The flivver's weight is 1,620 lbs.

The reduction is from $13.20 to $11.90. Slight increases are placed on heavier cars, however, which not only will make up the loss but will add $22,000 as a net result.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Senate passed the blind and illiterate voter and the general registration measures. The expected filibuster did not materialize, as the Democrats gained control shortly after the session opened by moving that the Senate go into a committee of the whole to discuss the House bill relating to the voting of illiterate and blind voters. This motion carried, and under the rules the President pro tem, Senator Perry, took charge. Further motions were made to "kill" the power

Both the measures were party measures and both already have gone through the House. It is expected that the Governor will veto the bills as the Republicans lined up solidly against them and filibustered until 4 o'clock that morning in an effort to delay action on them and on the Simonson road department reorganization measure.

Upon motion of Senator Simmons time was given for the introduction offered by Republican members. Upon motion of Senator Simmons, the Senate voted to consider the seventy-four amendments at one time. Senator Brock objected to this procedure, but said that as the Democrats were in charge he could accomplish nothing.

Frankfort, Ky.—Representative G. W. Ellis' anti-evolution bill, prohibiting under severe penalties the teaching of Darwinism theory in the public schools or State colleges was ordered for the first time in the House of Representatives by the Rules Committee.

Mr. Ellis' bill was the first measure of the sort introduced after the speech of William Jennings Bryan against evolution.

He said that he was asked by the committee to agree to an amendment striking out the fine from $100 to $5,000 and a forfeiture of charter of the school teaching evolution. To this he would not agree.

Mr. Ellis said: "I am a man who makes no compromises," he commented.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Democrats broke the Republican Senate filibuster by the simple expedient of going into a committee of the whole with Senator W. A. Perry of Louisville, president pro tem. of the chair.

Partisan measures were pushed and passed. The House bills providing for a general registration and relative to illiterate, blind and disabled voters were adopted by votes of 19 to 17 and 20 to 16, respectively. Senator B. T. Davis, holdover Democrat from Fulton county, voted with the Republicans on the registration measure.

EDUCATION AND COUNTRY LIFE

The people who think that education unites young people for country life, should note what was recently accomplished at Antrim, Ohio. There they planned a new building as a three year high school, and funds were raised partly by private subscriptions and labor. Volunteers cut and hauled logs and lumber, and split and hauled the stone.

The next summer 12 of the 25 pupils went to normal school, and later 16 pupils from this rural high school were teaching in near by schools. Such a school that it fitting young women to teach in its own locality, is a wonderful force for building up a country neighborhood.

On account of bad weather the public sale of personal property of Frank Hammond, advertised for the 11th inst., was postponed until Friday, March 10th, 1922. The sale will begin at 10 o'clock a. m. Soup and lunch will be served at the noon hour.

BLTYHE-HASSMER.

A quiet wedding, but one of much interest to Lawrenceburg friends, was the one of Tuesday morning, when Miss Meta Louise Blythe became the bride of Mr. Anthony Charles Hassmer.

The ceremony was performed in the St. Lawrence Rectory at 8:15 o'clock, with Rev. William Kreis officiating, witnessed by only the members of the immediate families. The bride was very attractive in her simple costume of dark blue. A breakfast in Cincinnati opened the following delightful wedding itinerary: Cleveland, Ohio, to Buffalo, N. Y., where they will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Koch and Mrs. Wayne Atwood; to New York City and other points near by and on to Washington, D. C., where they will be entertained by Congressman A. B. Rouse of Kentucky and family.

Upon their return home, Mr. and Mrs. Hassmer will occupy the Hassmer apartment on Walnut street.

The bride and groom are very popular and have hosts of friends not only in Lawrenceburg but surrounding towns.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blythe on West Center street. Her fine voice and attractive personality have made her a place in the church and in society. As soloist in the choir of the Presbyterian church for a number of years she has given much satisfaction and enjoyment. She is also a member of the Westminster Club.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hassmer, has a wide acquaintance and in one of Lawrenceburg's widely awake and successful business men of the firm of the Hassmer Bros. Music Shops of Lawrenceburg and Aurora.

We, with other friends extend sincere congratulations and best wishes for a happy and successful future.—Lawrenceburg Register.

IRRESPONSIBLE LAW*CAUSE OF TROUBLE

FANATICAL LEGISLATION BLAM-ED FOR MUCH OF THE RADICALISM NOW PREVALENT IN AMERICA.

Washington, March 4.—Commenting on the need to combat radical ideas in American civic life, prominent law-makers at the Capitol say that much disrespect for law can be traced to the enactment of foolish, unnecessary and hopelessly out-of-date statutes.

In Kentucky a bill has been introduced in the legislature making it illegal to teach Darwinism in the public schools.

In Massachusetts a cripple has been arrested and fined for playing a game of checkers outdoors on Sunday.

A Kansas City school official believes that jazz music has a similar effect upon young people to strong drink and urges a jazz prohibition movement.

Says the Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Such superciliousness and hypocrisy is calculated to disgust the average law-abiding morality, and does not tend to stabilize that government by the consent of the governed which makes for public decency and civic morality."

Mrs. Margot Asquith, famous English political leader, says "Americans are not free—you overdo your prohibitive laws and then do not enforce them."

Legislation which attempts to foist upon a long suffering majority the personal prejudice of the fanatical ideas of some isolated reformer invariably does more harm than good, brings the law-making body enacting such statutes into disrepute and, by making the source of law ridiculous, decreases respect for other laws well conceived and thoughtfully passed.

DEMPEY-RIDDELL

Laura Frances Riddell of Burlington and Frank Walter Dempey, of Erlanger, were married at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Walton, in Newport, Ky., Feb. 28th, 1922. Rev. David Blythe, uncle of the groom, performed the ceremony. The bride and groom left on a trip to Washington and other eastern cities. A long, happy and prosperous life is the wish of the Recorder.

The pooled crop of tobacco has nearly all been delivered, and so far as we have been able to find out the price is very satisfactory, thus proving the truthfulness of the old saying, "there is strength." Farmers have done and are doing the right thing. Organization is their only loophole. No unprejudiced thinking man will minimize the value and purpose of the organization in this battle for the soul of the man who dig the soil. Unity of action is as essential to the farmer as unity is essential in other branches of business. The trouble with the farmer, he has all along allowed "the other man" to run his business.

There is only one thing tight about a loose tongue. That is the trouble it fastens upon other people.

HOW LOSSES ARE CAUSED

Over-crowding causes many losses and disappointments with poultry. If you have room for only 50 fowls, you will make more money from that small flock than from twice as many fowls crowded into the same space. Weed out everything but the best. This policy not only prevents over-crowding, but also raises the excellence of the entire flock.

Before election a candidate tells what he will do. After election he tells what he can't do. If defeated he tells what he would have done. There's always something to tell.

The silly age is the time when they think they know the most.

The sad news reached here last Wednesday of the death of Mrs. Lena Buchner, of Newport. She was well known and had many friends here, she was a daughter of the late Capt. John Smith of this place, and a sister of Mrs. Henry Clore and "Pepper" Smith and Miss Julia Smith. Funeral services were held at her home in Newport, Tuesday afternoon.

THE POPULAR PASTEBOARDS

Dealers in playing cards say they sold many more of the same in 1921 than usual. Some attribute this to prohibition, and say that many men who used to frequent saloons, are now playing cards in their homes and clubs. Also unemployment in many places left people with idle time which they used in this way.

Card playing, rightly used, sharpens the wits and gives relief from the tedium or strain of work. Many people, however, idle away too much time at it. When they use it merely to kill time and help drag the weary hours along, it is a sign that they have lost something of desire for self improvement. The ambitious man who is out of work will spend the greater part of his time in trying to fit himself for better service, and the merry pasteboards will be only an incidental and occasional diversion.

Much discussion at the Capitol centers around the Townner-Sterling Bill to create a Department of Education, in place of the present small Bureau of Education. Arguments pro and con from many angles are heard on every side, but even thoughtful legislators who are opposed to the bill on the ground that we now have enough departments and enough members of the cabinet, are finding food for thought in favor of the bill when they consider its Americanization possibilities.

The United States for many years had no immigration policy, beyond throwing wide open the gates and assimilating as many immigrants as cared to come. Later we became a little more particular, and now we have a percentage law which limits our incomes to a reasonable proportion of men and women of the immigrant's nationality already here.

But we have not revised our citizenship acquisition laws for many years; we have rested satisfied with the procedure which did well enough when applicants were few. We did, indeed, amend the law to make it "impossible" to swear men in as citizens in "blocks" but the law is more honored in the breach than in the observance.

The net result is that we make more than three hundred thousand new citizens a year, not to mention their wives and children.

What sort of citizens are they? Just as good, and not one bit better, than we give them the opportunity of being. And "opportunity" here means Americanization, schools, and Americanization propaganda, Americanization methods, directed particularly to those who most need them. History proves that the average immigrant wants to learn, that he usually makes a good citizen when he has had the chance to be one, but he can't learn if he doesn't speak English, and unless he does learn American ways and American ideals, he becomes a very undesirable citizen indeed!

It is the Americanization features of the Townner-Sterling Bill that commend it to many of its pronounced opponents. These features, and its provision for encouraging the education of all, in American ideals and American democracy are but some of many plans included in this absolutely essential measure, which make its passage so heartily and uniformly demanded by chambers of commerce, boards of trade, fraternal, religious and civic bodies the country over.

Creating Desire of Merchandise

Are you creating desire for merchandise, or are you simply trying to satisfy the desire to mf f twgfw to satisfy the desire that some one else created?" was the remark that a traveling salesman made to a business man the other day.

Some business people proceed on the theory that there is a fixed demand for a certain type of article. They set up in business with the idea of getting their share of the sales of that article. Their trade is not apt to grow fast.

The ideal business getter is the man who sees what the people need, who makes a careful study of the markets and the merchandise and the lines that will best fit that need. Then he sets forth the merits of his line so thoroughly, both through advertising and in the sales work of his store, that people can see that they need the goods he has to sell and that they are getting substantial values. That man creates and satisfies new desires, and his business gains because he makes an original contribution to the community.

COSTS ARE INCREASED.

On the Farm By Low Acre Yields, Rural Economists Agree.

There is such a thing as losing money by cropping a field and losing more money by not cropping it. Furthermore, any low yield greatly increases the cost to the bushel or ton.

Farm economists agree as to the relation between yield and cost to the unit. They say:

Low yields are invariably unprofitable.

Readjust acreage and increase acre efficiency.

Within limits, unit costs decrease as yields increase.

Greater acre efficiency becomes more and more important.

Profitable farming is very dependent upon good crop yields.

Large yields are justified if they lower unit costs.

SPRAY YOUR FRUIT TREES NOW.

If talk would put apples or even meal in the barrel, we would have full barrels after the adjournment of many local confabs, but it takes spraying to grow apples, spraying in winter before budding and spraying in summer. Apples are costing three dollars a bushel whether bought through Union or from your merchant this is a price that would pay farm owners big money and if they had time to prune and spray their orchards they would, we believe, have plenty of fruit, as our limestone soil is specially adapted to fruit growing. But few of our citizens seem to realize the value of spraying materials when properly used, and those who prune and spray their orchard will find that they will be well paid for their trouble and would probably create a desire to take an interest in fruit growing.

Pendleton County.

(Falmouth Outlook.)

When we go to Congress the first bill we will offer will be to join all our national holidays into one grand holiday to be celebrated on the 4th of July and make it a capital offense if anyone works or operates a pool room. In this way the business interests of the country will only be disturbed one day each year.

ooo

The former County Judge, Road Engineer and members of the Fiscal Court of Hopkins county have been indicted by the grand jury for illegally exceeding the limit in appropriations and contracts for road work in that county. The Fiscal Court spent $48,000 more than the law allows. If these indictments hold good, Pendleton county ex-officials will be in bad, as well as many of our neighboring counties.

ooo

M. B. Greenwell, line of Pendleton county's good farmers of near Gardnersville, is modestly wearing the honors of getting the highest grade for a crop lot of tobacco of any farmer in the white burley district. His tobacco was graded at $18.25 per hundred, and shows that we have the soil, climate and the farmers to produce the finest quality of tobacco in the district. Mr. Greenwell always produces a fine quality of the weed.

ooo

George Washington, the father of our country, has been dead 121 years and the observance of his birthday anniversary in Falmouth has dwindled until only a one-horse postoffice and five rural route carriers observe the occasion. We are satisfied that if George was to come back on his birthday and find only those few taking the day off and blocking progress, we are sure he would issue a bust order on such hypocrisy. Why should it fall exclusively upon the shoulders of the postoffice force to do all the celebrating of Washington's birthday?

ooo

Speaking about bootleggers, it calls to mind that bootleggers in the days of saloons in Falmouth were almost unknown. Occasionally one would bob up, but the "saloon association" would have him in jail in less than 24 hours after he sold the first drink. It makes us believe that the old "saloon association" could enforce a law that the combined efforts of the civil authorities and the prohibition officers in some communities can do now. The old "saloon association" could easily accomplish what it takes the State militia to do in Newport.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Furnished on application. The value of the RECORDER as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story.

Mud roads are in bad shape, and so are the pikes.

Very little ground has been prepared for crops in this county.

Everybody is preparing to greet Miss Gentle Spring upon her arrival.

There will be a large crop of tobacco planted in this season.

Not merely is the back of winter broken, but the back of the taxpayer is also.

Some of the public sales have been postponed this winter on account of the bad weather.

If you want to guage a man's christianity ask him for $10 to help repair the church.

Some men would like to remove their wives to points of safety until the millinery openings are over.

G. T. Rue, of near Bellevue, will have a public sale Saturday, March 18th. See ad. in another column.

J. G. Jones from out on R. D. two, was a pleasant caller at this office, one day the latter part of last week.

The American people are earnestly looking for a revival of activity, and anyway there is a lot of fox trotting.

Mr. Harding is said to be the best dressed president. No one has claimed this will offend the women voters.

They used to say "Boys will be boys" but from the present day appearances they must also say "Girls will be boys."

Nature intended that you should eat what you want. You can do it if you take Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

As the railroads wouldn't lower their car steps on account of narrow skirts, they won't probably widen their doors to fit the new big hats.

James L. Clore, of Newport, was in Burlington, last Thursday, shaking hands with old friends. He came out to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. G. T. Gaines.

We have many blessings to be thankful for, especially these two—Ground-hog winter and the session of the Legislature will be over in another week or so.

From coast to coast Tanlac is known and honored and millions have taken it and pronounced it the greatest medicine of all times. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

"I have sold over 2,000 bottles of Tanlac and have never had a dissatisfied customer," writes Smiser's Drug Store, Columbia, Tenn. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

On account of bad weather the public sale of personal property of Frank Hammond, advertised for the 4th inst., was postponed until Friday, March 10th, 1922. The sale will begin at 10 o'clock a. m. Soup and lunch will be served at the noon hour.

The National Week of Song Feb. 20-24, was observed by the Graded Department of the Petersburg school. Each day the student body assembled in the auditorium for scripture reading, prayer and songs of patriotism.

On the morning of the 22nd the primary children under the supervision of Miss Myers, rendered an attractive program. The stage was draped with glorious folds of red, white and blue. Rev. Jeffries, Rev. Traynor and other visitors were present.

LEGION NOTES

Adjusted compensation won a decided victory in the nationwide referendum conducted by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce—4,116 chambers voting favorable, 2,657 voting against the measure.

"From the U. S. Chamber's point of view," said John Thomas Taylor, vice-chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee, "the referendum was a flat failure, for that body represents the most highly organized opposition to the bonus. By trying to separate the cash feature from the more productive provisions of the bill, and by other means, it has done everything in its power to influence its constituent members against the bill. In spite of this fact, the vote shows almost 2 to 1 favorable.

"The Legion despises unfair discrimination—cash and the other features cannot be separated as the U. S. Chamber separated them in its referendum."

On March 4, American Legion membership was 108,000 more than on March 4, 1921. New members have joined at the rate of 4,600 a day since Jan. 1. These figures have been given out from Legion headquarters to refute the statement that the organization is losing members because of its stand on adjusted compensation.

The American Legion has won the first suit in its history, brought to defend its name. Judgment by default and damages were awarded the Legion against Francis H. Shoemaker, alleged radical worker, for statements made in a speech last December. Shoemaker was quoted as saying that the Legion is "subsidized by big interests" and "opposed to organized labor."

Before sunset of the first day, 500,000 daisies were sold in the American Legion's "Daisy Day" drive through Massachusetts for funds to help the unemployed soldiers. Four daisies brought $125.

Charging that the bonus is attacked "not by those who fought" but "by those who profited," the American Legion at Marion, O., home of President Harding, has appealed to Congress to look at the facts "in the light of pure reason."

"It will be blown up!" The police at Centralia, Wash., received this threat against the erection of the American Legion memorial building, to be dedicated to men shot down by alleged I. W. W. members, in 1919.

To attend an American Legion initiation, an Oregon rancher trekked 35 miles—18 of them on snowshoes. Wounds received in France did not check his determination to "arrive."

A member of the American Legion or its Auxiliary will sit on every school board in Iowa, if plans of the Legion's Americanism department in that state carry.

Repudiating the stand against adjusted compensation taken by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the Chicago commerce board went on record in support of the bill, following a visit to Chicago of Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion.

The ex-service man on the bench at Waikiki needs a bonus as much as his buddy in this country, according to the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce which has passed a resolution indorsing the American Legion's five-fold adjusted compensation bill.

Making expenses by selling chewing gum, an ex-cavalryman is walking from Chicago to Los Angeles to get a job promised him there. "It's 1500 miles, but jobs are scarce," he says.

The longest wireless jump ever made at sea was recorded when the steamer American Legion, entering Buenos Aires, picked up a message from a ship off Honolulu, 7,000 miles distant.

"How a man worships his God is his own business," wrote Hanford MacNider, Legion commander, answering a magazine article entitled "Rome Heads the American Legion." Mr. MacNider said religion is of no consideration in Legion membership.

Armed with fence pickets, doughy ex-soldiers staged a bloodless bullfight in the Jersey City stockyards to raise funds for the American Legion. The nimble matadors had to jump the fence on several occasions.

Disabled emergency officers of the World War would be retired on an equal basis with regular army officers by the terms of the Bureau bill, sponsored by the American Legion. The bill has already passed the Senate.

Arrested for a minor offense, Gordon Seybold, Onadla, N. Y., ex-service man, says State troopers swung him up by his wrists and persuaded him to get a confession. The American Legion has engaged counsel to probe the charge.

It would hardly do for food prices to take too big a drop. It might break them.

Pretty soon the sheep grower will be called upon by the wool buyer. Before accepting any offers the farmer should get familiar with the crop prospect as well as with the prices. Already the "pinhooker," so to speak, is in the field. While extortionate prices should not be demanded yet a "live and let live" plan should be adopted. As it is the outlook for good prices for your wool is certainly favorable. This is sheep year.

The county board of Tax Commissioners will meet next Monday. The State Tax Commission has increased the assessed value on Boone county lands, town lots and personal property $1,000,000, and it will be the duty of the county board to increase the tax lists of our citizens that amount. This will require time and consideration of values in order to properly apportion this increase.

As the Editor Sees It.

Sometimes we are inclined to the belief that civilized countries are too humane in their methods of punishing criminals.

Landrau, France's modern Bluebeard, was convicted of murdering a dozen or so of his wives.

Did they inflict punishment for each separate murder by taking his life on the installment plan, by the chopping off of a leg today, and an arm tomorrow, and so on until each of his victims had been avenged and he had properly repented of his crimes?

They did not. They guillotined him quite neatly—chopped his head off at one sweep.

One punishment for many murders. It seems weak in proportion to his crimes, yet civilization says it must be so.

There are two sides to every question, although some people are never able to admit or even consider both—until the shoe begins to pinch.

In a certain town there was a choice bit of scandal. It would have looked juicy in print.

But the local editor did not use it. Too many innocent people would have suffered with the guilty.

A male gossip stopped the editor on the street and indignantly demanded that he "publish the news, regardless of who it hits."

Shortly thereafter a member of the old gossip's own family became involved in an unsavory mess.

Did the gossip again demand relentless publicity?

He did not. He busted right into the editorial office with a heart-rendering plea for complete suppression of the facts, for the sake of his innocent wife and daughters.

The woods are full of 'em.

If a child is trained to take a pride in cleaning and beautifying the home lawn and grounds, that child grows to maturity, will have a beautiful home of its own.

If it is allowed to "grow up with the weeds" there will be an overplus of weeds in its adult life.

Two everyday facts worth daily consideration.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The Sixty-Seventh Congress is just completing the first year of its term. It has but twelve more months of existence; if its latter half leaves no better impression on the country than its first, then certain it is that it will go down in history as one of the big disappointments, disheartening to its closest friends and even to its own membership.

Few, if any, attempt to defend a Congress that has become the butt of the jokesmiths on the stage and in the funny papers. Its efforts—if they can be called such—alleviate the distress of the country might become tragic if it were not for the saving sense of humor possessed by the American people.

Everyone laughs when Abe Martin says that business is picking up—he quotes the proprietor of the five and ten cent store as saying he has sold more checker-boards in the last year than during all of Wilson's administration. And the Washington theater rings with applause when Will Rogers, the comedian, tells of the recent fire on the roof of the Treasury—how it stopped when it had burned down to where the money was, for the Administration had beat the fire to it.

Every test of public opinion shows that Congress has made itself intensely unpopular. If anyone had prophesied this outcome when Harding and the big Republican majority in Congress came to bat a year ago he would have been laughed at, but the public has been treated to a succession of delays and party splits on important matters, with increasing bewilderment and helplessness. Every Republican in Congress seems to be a party unto himself, with the exception of a few clear-minded men like Jim Mann—who might bring some order out of this chaos and his ungrateful party give him the place he had won, the Speakership, but it went to one who admits his own utter inability and that of his party.

And yet, every cloud is said to have its silver lining, and we can reflect with joy that this Congress has only twelve months more to live.

PRUNED GRAPE VINES GIVE HEAVIER YIELD

Pruning grape vines helps to keep them within the desired bounds as well as encourage the growth of more fruit and larger bunches and berries, recommendations being made by horticulturists at the College of Agriculture point out. It is desirable to prune as soon as possible before the vines begin to bleed heavily although it is a recognized fact that bleeding does not prove particularly harmful.

While grape pruning may be considered severe, it is well to remember that no fruit is grown except on shoots coming from buds on last year's growth, the specialists say.

Growers who are not following a definite system for training their vines will do well to prune them back to two buds which will mean that about three-fourths of the past season's growth will be cut away.

Any grower who is following one of the seven or eight systems of training his vines can get specific directions for his particular one by writing the Experiment Station at Lexington.

Government revenues collected during January—the first month of operation of the revised tax law—showed a decrease in receipts of nearly $65,000,000 compared with January, 1921, according to reports compiled by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

TOP DRESSING HELPS CLOVER AND BOOSTS WHEAT YIELDS.

Lexington, Ky. — Top dressing wheat with an application of about four tons of stable manure an acre in many cases has resulted in average increases of as much as eight bushels an acre in the yield of the crop, according to experimental results being cited by soil specialists at the College of Agriculture to show Kentucky farmers the value of the method. Top dressing quickens the growth of grain in the spring and encourages a good stand of grass or clover if these are grown in wheat.

Top dressing with straw also is recommended provided it is applied early and at the rate of not more than one ton an acre. This practice has increased wheat yields from one to two bushels an acre and improved the stand of clover. If used at this time of the year, straw should be applied only to poor land where wheat does not succeed and where it is difficult to obtain a stand of clover.

Care should be taken in top dressing wheat to see that the manure is not applied too heavily. Coarse manure should be avoided as much as possible.

Many farmers who are troubled with gullies in which it is difficult to obtain a stand of grass are using manure as a top dressing to good advantage, the specialists say. Top dressing, which helps the growth of grass, has been found to be one of the most efficient methods of stopping gullies and washing, they say.

If the supply of manure is limited, those parts of the field that are subject to washing could be topdressed most profitably, the specialists have pointed out.

PT. PLEASANT.

(Too late for last week.)

Miss Carol White has the grippe. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Tanner gave a Taffy Pulling last Thursday night and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Aylor entertained with one on Friday night.

The Washington Birthday Social at Pt. Pleasant church was a decided success. The proceeds $77.20 will be used for repairing and redecorating the interior. We extend our thanks to all who helped to make this social such a success.

We are glad to report all the flu patients convalescing. Mr. Emery Smith has gone back to the city to work, although his wife is still quite poorly. Mrs. Harvey Southern is on the mend after a siege of pneumonia. Mrs. Hunter and Miss Clementine Walton are still on the sick list, having contracted the flu by nursing the sick. Gordon Southern is much improved but his mother is quite poorly. Miss Emma Hood will nurse her.

The sick of the community are now rapidly recovering.

Mrs. J. S. Eggleston spent last Friday with Mrs. H. A. Jergens.

There was a large crowd in attendance at church last Sunday considering the bad roads and threatening weather. All were much benefited by the excellent services which were conducted by Bros. Clark and Omer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Southern here by which to thank their neighbors and friends who were so kind and helpful to them in their recent spell of sickness. Especially do they wish to thank Dr. Hafer and the nurse, Miss Artye, for their kindness and attention shown in the doctoring and nursing.

Mrs. Flora Dolwick is much better.

Julius Aylor will help Albert Willis farm this year.

Mr. Justin Aylor has an excellent position in Cincinnati.

Miss Alden Smith is staying with Miss Loula while her mother convalesces.

Mr. Moss and family have moved to the Rucker farm vacated by Mr. Sam Aylor.

Mr. Buckler and family moved to the Rucker farm vacated by Mr. Bernard Jones.

Miss Leona Hood has been nursing Mrs. Sallie Southern for several days. Mrs. Siuher is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Aylor and boys have taken up their future abode in Covington. We are sorry to lose such good neighbors.

Mrs. Harvey Southern and father, Mr. Kelsoe, left Sunday for Detroit, Michigan, where Mrs. Southern will visit among her relatives for a few weeks.

VERONA.

We are glad to report the sick improving.

W. N. McCrander our rural route carrier, had the misfortune to get kicked on the hand by a horse last Friday.

John Myers who purchased the Jeff Griffith property recently, is making preparation to farm to a large extent this year.

Miss Mary Ransom, one of our teachers in the Graded school, will attend the Normal school at Richmond this spring.

W. T. Renaker sold to A. C. Roberts a new Dodge touring car thru the Dempsey Motor Car Co., of Erlanger, the 23rd ult.

Elmer Griffith, who sold his property to Joe Estrage, is moving to the property he purchased of D. B. Wallace, near Independence.

On last Saturday morning we were surprised to find that an eight inch snow had fallen during the night. The deepest of the winter.

There will be an unusual large acreage of tobacco pitched this coming season, as most of the farmers are satisfied with the sales of their tobacco through the pool.

We are sorry to lose our friend F. F. Ratcliff, who has accepted a position as clerk and manager of a coal mine near Pikeville, Ky. Mr. Ratcliff will have a public sale on March 18 to dispose of his farm and personal property.

IDA M. STEPHENS, DEAD.

Ida M. Stephens was born near Hebron, Ky., July 29, 1866, aged 56 years seven months and five days. Died March 2, 1922, at the home of M. L. Southern after a lingering illness of three weeks. She leaves to mourn her departure three sisters, two brothers, nieces, nephews and a host of friends. She was a daughter of the late Joe and Alice Stephens.

Her funeral was held in the Christian church at Petersburg at two o'clock Sunday afternoon by Rev. Carter in the presence of a host of friends. Her body was laid to rest in the family lot below town. Undertaker W. A. Bullock, of Hebron, had charge of the funeral.

BRIEF ODDITIES THE WORLD OVER.

Wild canaries were not yellow originally, but green or gray in color. "La Marseillaise," the French national anthem, was composed at Strasburg.

The brown juice of "bitternut" bark is used in some instances for staining cloth.

Surnames cannot be traced further back than the latter part of the tenth century.

SEASONAL TIPS FOR GARDENERS.

Since they mature quickest and can stand more cold weather, the small, round, olive-shaped types of radishes are best to plant early in the spring. Scarlet Globe and French Breakfast are good varieties.

White Queen corn sets usually can be put into the field about March 20. Frequent, shallow cultivation will be necessary since onions are easily choked by weeds that rob soil of the moisture which is necessary for good onions.

Parley is one of the best plants to help make food look its best when served. A ten foot row planted during the latter part of March will furnish sufficient garnishing for the average family. Parley seeds are slow growing, requiring about ten days to two weeks to come through the soil. Moss Curled is said to be the best variety.

Eclipse, Crosby's Egyptian and Detroit Dark Red are good varieties of beets, the seed of which can be sown after the middle of March. Since the seeds are slow maturing, it is best to mark the rows by sowing a few radish seeds in it so that the soil crust can be broken to help the young plants through. The plants should be thinned when they are about two inches high to a distance of three or four inches apart.

Since all vegetables make rapid growth which requires very large amounts of moisture, much of the garden's success depends upon frequent shallow cultivation to conserve soil moisture and keep down weeds, garden specialists at the College of Agriculture say.

LACK OF SPRAYS LOWERS FRUIT YIELDS TO PESTS.

Lexington, Ky.—Failure of farmers to check the ravages of insect pests by spraying at the proper time of the year is one of the several main causes for the low average production of peach and apple trees in Kentucky, according to experienced fruit men. The latest census reports the average production of bearing apple trees as slightly more than one and one-fourth pecks and that of bearing peach trees as a little more than one peck. San Jose scale and peach leaf curl are the particular pests demanding attention at this time of the year, according to the fruit men.

According to the latest census, Kentucky had 3,472,936 apple trees of which 1,280,549 bushels of fruit while her 1,671,044 peach trees of bearing age yielded 459,681 bushels of fruit. While several other conditions, such as soil and climatic ones, contributed toward reducing the average yield of each apple tree in the State to a little more than 1.3 pecks and that of each tree to 1.1 pecks, destruction by insects is the particular problem that should receive attention now in remedying the situation, the fruit men say.

Apple trees should be sprayed with a dormant spray of commercial lime sulphur using one part of the material to eight or ten of water in order to control San Jose scale according to orchardists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Since it is important that this pest be controlled before the leaves begin to appear, it is essential that the spray be applied as soon as the weather conditions permit.

Spraying peach trees with self-boiled sulphur composed of 15 lbs. of lime, 5 lbs. of sulphur and fifty gallons of water controls both the San Jose scale and peach leaf curl according to the station men.

In order to help farmers of the State with their spraying problems this spring, the station, which is located at Lexington, is sending out spray schedules and directions for mixing sprays to those who request them.

DAIRYING ENCOURAGED

ON RECLAMATION PROJECTS.

The irrigated lands on Government reclamation projects are particularly well suited to the production of forage crops. The marketing of such crops as alfalfa hay, however, has not been found profitable owing to the isolation of the irrigated sections and the long distances required for shipment, involving relatively heavy transportation costs.

The United States Department of Agriculture believes it is economically desirable to utilize these forage crops near the point of production, by raising live stock and marketing the crops in the form of dairy products or meat. Particular attention has been given during the past year to the encouragement of dairy and pork production, since both these industries provide profitable use for the forage crops and their products are sufficiently concentrated to bear the transportation costs without serious disadvantage. On some of the reclamation projects it is possible for the farmer to cooperate with the live-stock men who are occupying the surrounding range lands in finishing for market the beef cattle and sheep which are grown on the ranges.

Because of the favorable climatic conditions and cheap feed supply some of the reclamation projects also have conditions suited to the production of poultry. This industry has been stimulated on the Newlands, Minidoka and Uncompahgre projects.

Cerealia Sweets

Who Says Dairying Doesn't Pay?

You can produce milk at a good profit. Ask any dairyman who feeds Cerealia Sweets. They make money. They have more or better milk to sell. Their feeding costs are far less than yours compared to the size of the milk checks. Their cows keep in better physical state than yours.

If you're buying feed because it's "cheap", you're cheating yourself—wasting milk as truly as if you poured it away. Cerealia Sweets, rich in milk-making ingredients, isn't cheap to buy, but is most economical to use. It's all nutritious cereal stuff with just enough molasses added to give it special relish. Cows do not tire of it. Cerealia is flaky, clean and easy to handle—never cakes or lumps.

If you are using your home-grown ground corn this season, feed Cerealia Sweets with it. It will double the flow of milk and keep the cows in good condition. Before you get in your last "big supply" of feed,

Try Cerealia Sweets Four Weeks At Our Risk.

Feed Cerealia Sweets to any cow for 4 weeks. She must give more or better milk, and she must show a bigger profit than she is giving you now, or you get every cent back. You'll need about three sacks to make the trial. Call on us for chart and details.

SECOND HALF OF BIG BURLEY LOAN PAID TO BANKERS

THE CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION SETTLES OBLIGATIONS TOTALING $5,000,000 NEARLY TWO MONTHS BEFORE DUE—SALES AT GOOD PRICES MAKES ACTION POSSIBLE.

Checks for the second half of the loan of $5,000,000 made by bankers of the burley tobacco district to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association February 1st were mailed to the lenders last Wednesday by Secretary H. L. Earley, of the Association, the first half of the loan which was originally negotiated for ninety days, having been paid off about ten days ago.

Mr. Earley said the finance of the Association, due to the sales of the Association's holdings at good prices, were in such condition as to permit the paying off of this loan and that the remarkable success of the Association in the short time it has been in business made it possible for it to settle its obligations before their maturity.

Chairman of the Finance Committee Charles M. Manning, said that bankers of the burley district were entitled to credit for what they had done in evidencing their confidence in the new system of marketing.

"The loyalty of the bankers has been one of the most pleasing features of the co-operative marketing of burley tobacco so far," said Mr. Manning, "and they deserve the gratitude if the organized growers for the confidence they have manifested in the new system, which has been the means of enlisting the confidence of business men generally, as well as of the growers who so often depend on their Bankers for advice."

President and General Manager James C. Stone, of the Association, discussing the repayment of the loan, said:

"It is very gratifying to all of us, who joined the Association, that it is able to make this excellent showing financially within so short a time, and we are deeply grateful to the bankers and business element generally, who saw at the very start the importance of the co-operative marketing of tobacco to every business in the district and made it possible for us to go ahead with our work with the certainty that the crop of 1921, would be financed properly and amply."

"The growers who have stood by the Association through thick and thin, who have waited patiently for their money and who have backed up their officials loyally in what has been done so far for their interests, also deserve and have our gratitude."

"That we have made a splendid start in co-operative marketing of burley tobacco is not to be disputed. If we stand together in future as we have for the past few months, and I haven't a doubt that we shall, the continued success of the Association is assured."

The receipt of a number of additional contracts, signed by growers of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, who did not join the Association last fall, was announced at the office of Chief of the Field Service Division Joseph Passonneau. The number of acres signed was not announced, as the figures had not been tabulated.

O. I. C. SOW

MARCUS W. RYLE, A PROSPEROUS FARMER OF WATERLOO NEIGHBORHOOD, SENDS THE RECORDER THE FOLLOWING.

Marcus W. Ryle, of the Waterloo neighborhood, sends the Recorder the following: "I have one O. I. C. sow that has farrowed 36 pigs in eleven months and ten days—raised 28 of them. First litter March 1st, 2nd litter Sept. 27th and 3rd litter Feb. 10th. I killed two for meat, fed five and sold eleven as stock sows. Total sold brought $1300.00, and have the sow and eight pigs left." This is a remarkable record—one that will be hard to beat.

SPRING CAMPAIGN.

Mr. Tobacco Grower—We never quit—we want your contract, and you owe it to yourself and to your neighbor to sign one. Look at the seal of your great State of Kentucky, "United We Stand, divided We Fall." Think of the advantage gained by being in a solid organization in a short time has sprung into being an active, smooth running institution that has answered every objection that could possibly have been raised that is handling tobacco every day, at a better price than you could get in any other way and at a great saving to you in expense.

Any one of our precinct workers will be pleased to take your contract—look one of them up and sign a contract while you have the chance. C. O. HEMPFILL, Chmn. Organisation Boone County.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The students will give an Irish program Friday morning, March 17, in honor of St. Patrick's Day. All the students that are Irish will take part.

Mr. Edwin Criger made a business trip to the city last Monday.

Miss Grow has been all the past week at the home of Miss Knepper.

Owen Acra was absent from school a day the past week.

The class of '22 are showing great enthusiasm over their class play, "Emeralds," and are preparing to begin practice. It is a play of four acts and good talent will be necessary to stage it. We wish to add that this play was given for 350 nights at Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Oleva Hensley, of Petersburg, visited our school last Wednesday.

The Northern Kentucky Tournament will be held at Williamstown Grant county, May 17, 18 and 19th. H. S. has always been well represented and we expect to keep up our record.

The preliminary spelling contest for the grades will be held March 21.

The professor was walking down the street when unintentionally he allowed one foot to step into the dry gutter. Thinking deeply on some obscure subject, he unconsciously continued walking with one foot on the sidewalk and the other in the gutter. A friend, seeing him, stopped and said:

"Good morning, professor. How are you feeling this morning?"

"Well," said the professor, "when I left home this morning I was feeling quite all right, but during the last few minutes I notice I have a limp in my left leg."

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

Patriotism, a word too often cheapened by improper use, was given a new meaning recently when the Scottish Rite Masons of Charleston, S. C., went on record as opposed to exemption of fraternal orders from taxation.

It is very infrequent that the Masonic order takes any action which could possibly be considered as interfering with political movements. In this case, as has been pointed out, with much pride not only by South Carolina Masons who are members of the national legislature but by many senators and congressmen from other states who are Masons, the South Carolina organization is standing for a principle which, put into practice, will be injurious to them financially. The text of their resolution, to be presented to the legislature of South Carolina, is as follows:

"Whereas a measure now pending before the general assembly of South Carolina proposes to exempt Masonic and other fraternal buildings from taxation, and

"Whereas equalization of taxation is a fundamental principle of our government; be it therefore

"Resolved, That the Cathedral Association of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry of Charleston, S. C., hereby places itself on record as opposed to any tax exemptions extended to Masonic and other fraternal buildings, believing that each organization—and institution should bear its full proportion of taxation, the only exceptions being those organizations and institutions which are operated wholly by the state, county or city governments for the use and benefit of all the people."

CO-OPERATIVE FREIGHT CARS. It is claimed that many millions of dollars could be saved by a plan for joint ownership of railroad equipment, suggested by the National Association of Railroad Security Owners.

If a northern railroad needs a big lot of passenger cars to handle tourist business in summer, and a southern road must have another big lot to handle tourist business in winter, there is an enormous waste if each line buys a complete equipment and lets it lie idle half the year. One branch of cars could handle the business for both companies. The same is true in many cases and it applies even more frequently to freight equipment.

The railroad should give such a proposition the most careful consideration, as it seems as if it might reduce their charges.

The case of Ed. Minkell against W. P. Robinson was on trial in the Quarterly Court last Thursday. Minkell claimed that Robinson permitted his cattle to destroy about an acre of corn and that Robinson also owed him for horse hire. The court was of the opinion that Minkell could not recover for the damage done the crops but that he was entitled to the value of the horse hire and judgment was rendered for plaintiff, Minkell, in the sum of $18.00.

AGAINST CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

HARRY DAVIS, GOVERNOR OF OHIO, TO DEVOTE EVERY EFFORT AND INFLUENCE AT HIS COMMAND TO BRING ABOUT ABOLITION OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN OHIO.

Harry L. Davis, Governor of Ohio, is against capital punishment and will devote every effort and influence at his command to bring about its abolition in Ohio, he declared in an address at a dinner of the Rotary Club, at Sandusky, O., one night last week. Four murderers were electrocuted at the Ohio penitentiary that week.

Governor Davis referred to the taking of human life, even when done by the state in punishment for crime, as a wholly unjustifiable act and declared it to be a perpetuation of a custom entirely inconsistent in principle with the modern era of enlightenment.

Very few persons would be advocates of capital punishment were they themselves put to the necessity of turning on the current or performing some other act that snuffs out the threat of existence of a fellow being," the Governor said.

Yet each citizen bears direct responsibility therefore, for it is in his authority under the law, delegated to designated officials, that is being exercised in the name of society when a person is executed.

"Whether he is in office or not when the next General Assembly meets Governor Davis said he would attempt to permit the voters of the state to pass on a constitutional amendment doing away with capital punishment in Ohio.

"He also said he would advocate a change in the law that would take away from the Governor all power of pardoning and eliminate all the chances of parole in cases where sentences of life imprisonment have been imposed, except where new evidence is produced proving the innocence of the prisoner of the crime for which the punishment has been inflicted.

"I have never been in favor of capital punishment, and my experience as Governor has so strengthened my conviction as to convince me the people will overwhelmingly vote to take Ohio from the list of states where it is still in vogue, if they are brought to realize themselves direct responsibility rests with them," he pointed out.

"It has been years since the people have voted on this principle, and I shall personally do all in my power to foster a movement which will have for its purpose the presentation of the issue anew to the electorate."

"As Governor I have been compelled to turn a deaf ear to the pleas of mothers of men about to die, who nursed them in babyhood and could only see the good in their boys."

"I believe no Governor nor any other official should ever have placed in their hands the unqualified and wholly discretionary power to save human lives."

ODDITIES AND NOVELTIES IN HAPPENINGS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Washington (Capital News Service).—Suing his wife for divorce a deaf mute of Chicago complains that his spouse used too much rough language in her finger talk.

In London a suit for "jactitation of marriage" has been filed by a man against a woman who annoys him by claiming to be his wife when she is not and never has been, the first legal action of the sort for more than a hundred years.

From Texas comes the tale of a physician who has discovered what is called a "truth serum," which when administered to a suspected criminal reveals his imaginative faculties so that he can tell only facts and not thoughts which are not true.

New York has an inventor who has perfected a means by which rays of light, allowed to play upon the letters on a printed page, are converted into musical notes, pleasant to hear, so that the blind can read through their ears.

Denver, Colo., is to furnish blind persons with police whistles, which, when blown at street crossings, will cause the traffic cops to halt all traffic while the sightless cross the street in safety.

A Maryland legislator has introduced a bill which will make it illegal for more than two persons to ride on the front or three on the rear seat of a machine, with the idea that it is crowding a machine which produces accidents. Some of his conferees have asked the author of the bill if he didn't mean it for street cars.

MODERN GHOSTS.

Prof. Sleggs of Dalhousie University, and Dr. Prince, a New York scientist, are going to Nova Scotia, to investigate the famous Antigonish ghost. This spook has driven five families in succession from their homesteads, besides harassing other people.

Ghost stories have gone somewhat out of fashion. Twenty-five years ago, they were a stock source of amusement around the fireside, while timid people had the creeps and went to bed with learnable looks over their shoulders. Many people in those days believed in ghosts, and could relate many weird happenings, which could be explained only in a supernatural way.

Practical jokers, largely quite young people and persons of unbalanced minds, can put over many queer stunts at dead of night. Some ghosts have proved to be a neighbor's dog running around for food. Others are the Antigonish ghost who will remain in retirement while the professors are tracking him.

THE SPAN OF LIFE.

A weekly magazine figures it out that, if a man lives to be seventy years old, his time is divided up as follows:

	Years
Sleeping	23
Working	19
Amusements	9
Eating	6
Traveling	6
Illness	4
Dressing	1
Religious devotion	1

A GOOD SALE.

The sale of Frank Hammond, held last Friday, was attended by a large crowd, and everything sold for good prices—cows from $75 to $85, one horse brought $167, corn 90 cents a bushel. Mr. Hammond will move to Walton, where he will engage in the grocery business.

Approximately 50,000,000 pounds of wood are produced on the ranges of national forests in the intermountain region during 1921.

Pocket telephones of the wireless variety will be part of the equipment of every policeman in Chicago soon. It will then be possible for policemen to be in communication with headquarters at any moment without the necessity of reporting in at the patrol boxes, as at present.

The original put-and-take top is to be seen in the museum of archeology and paleontology, University of Pennsylvania. This top was found in Korea and is a three-sided top marked with notches instead of figures. This top was used thousands of years ago, as was the old Chinese top, a primitive die top called the ch'me. The Hindu counterpart of the put-and-take top game is called the chukres.

MOVING DAY.

Charles Judd, who for the past two years lived about a mile from town on the East Bend pike, moved last Thursday to the Mrs. Matt Graves farm in Bullittville neighborhood, and Geo. Shinkle moved to the farm vacated by Judd from the Geo. Stephens farm on Woolper creek.

Tomorrow, (Friday) is St. Patrick's Day.

DOINGS AT FRANKFORT.

BILL TO LIMIT SALARY TO $3,600 RETURNED TO COMMITTEE; SUBSTITUTE FILED.

ABOLISHMENT IS URGED

Frankfort, Ky.—Recommitment of the bill to regulate the salary of the office of oil inspector and reconsideration and passage of the Brock dentist bill, which had been voted down, marked a day in the Senate. The Senate went into a committee of the whole to hear Representative Frank Strange of Warren county explain the provisions of the bill which would abolish the office of oil inspector, creating instead the office of oil tester and gauger, and limiting the salary to $3,600 a year.

No sooner had the Senate gone into session than Senator Wm. L. Wallace of Madison county offered a substitute to abolish the office of oil inspector, repealing those sections of the law which create this office. Mr. Wallace said the sentiment of the State seemed to be for the abolition of the office.

Senator J. C. Hascall, Republican of Crab Orchard Springs, supported the Wallace substitute. He said that the Democrats wanted to abolish the office of oil inspector, that the press of the State seemed to want to abolish it, and that he was in favor of doing away with it, "all together."

After further Republican support of the Wallace substitute, Senator Lee Simmons moved that the measure be recommitted to the committee, pending amendment, it is understood.

All the Democrats with the exception of Senator J. A. Lee voted to recommit the bill. All the Republicans, with the exception of Senator T. B. Watts, of Louisville, who did not answer his name, voted not to recommit the bill.

Frankfort, Ky.—Neither the coal tonnage tax bill nor the coal production tax bill is up in the House for passage.

This is not the fault of seven or eight members of the Rules Committee, who voted to have the bills postponed.

It was out of deference to Speaker James H. Thompson, who drew the tax bill that has just passed both Houses that these bills are not before the House. He asked that neither bill be taken from the committee, according to members of that committee.

He is reported as having told that committee that when his bill was before the Senate he had agreed if his measure passed the upper body he would see that the two coal tax bills would not come up in the House for passage.

It was explained that neither of the measures in question was necessary since his bill provided the method whereby coal would be compelled to pay its just share of taxes.

Frankfort, Ky.—Last Thursday the Kentucky House of Representatives spent five hours in discussing and hearing discussions of the "monkey bill" of Representative G. W. Ellis of Barren county, forbidding the teaching of evolution in public schools and universities. The measure was defeated by a vote of 42 to 41 after a recapitulation of the vote during which members were dragged into the chamber from other parts of the Capital.

"I am ashamed of this day in the Kentucky Legislature," said Representative G. C. Waggoner of Scott county, a minister and veteran legislator, toward the close of the debate. "This bill smacks of intolerance and the teaching of the Dark Ages are something about us." Mr. Waggoner opposed the bill on the ground that in passing it the Legislature would exceed its functions as a law-making body and would set a dangerous precedent.

There have been times here today when both sides of the discussion were about ready to place their opponents on the rack and torture them," continued Mr. Waggoner.

"I don't know anything about evolution and from what I've heard I don't believe there are others here who do. We have set up a straw man and have been boxing indelicately at him all day."

"Now it seems the main trouble is that there are certain textbooks and teachers who are found objectionable to those favoring this bill. If this is true they should go to the Textbook Commission and to the trustees of the university and not here, for it is not the duty of the Legislature to say who shall teach or what he shall teach."

TWO SPOTS.

When you find a man doing big work down in the cities, it is usually found that he grew up in the country.

When the people of a town have no time to give to community work, the reason is usually that they have done so little community work that no one has acquired any propensity.

THE PERIOD OF BUDDING HOPE

There is a between period in early spring, when tree growth makes its beginning, but when the advance of vegetation is scarce perceptible. As you look at a deciduous tree in winter, it is a clear cut skeleton drawn against the sky. The little limbs and twigs stand out in sharp relief like the strokes of the artist's pencil.

Then before the leaves come out, there is the time of buds. The tree looks the same to the careless observer. There is no hint of green. But the student of nature discovers the buds swelling in every little twig. The trees, assume a haze caused by an infinitude of these little swellings. It is a beautiful time in tree life, since the symmetrical form of the branches is clearly outlined, yet thousands of little fruit buds create a tiny decoration.

This period seems symbolic of human life. There are times in a person's history, when the ordinary acquaintance detects no development. But the intimate friend sees signs of expanding life. In some unexpected moment these budding hopes break forth in some new fruitage of achievement.

MONEY ALL SUBSCRIBED.

DIXIE HIGHWAY WILL BE A GO. THE TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS TO INSURE ITS RECONSTRUCTION HAS BEEN RAISED.

There has been raised by subscription the $20,000 required to insure the reconstruction of the Dixie Highway from Florence to Walton, and the State road department has been notified of this fact, and they will in a very short time advertise for bids for the reconstruction of that road, and it is hoped that a large part of this road will be completed before the work will have to be stopped for the winter. When this road has been completed about $300,000 will have been spent on this improvement, and the road will be maintained by the State and Federal Government. It would have been a calamity to this county and her citizens if this project had failed, for it is one of the heaviest traveled roads in Boone county, and the road fund of Boone county will be relieved of its upkeep. The road, with the heavy truck travel that daily passes over it, could not have been maintained with the limousines that could have been expended in its repair by the State Court. It is now in bad condition and no improvement could be expected, and in a short time would have become impassable during the winter months.

The amount subscribed by different sections of the county follows:

Walton	$280.00
Verona	395.00
Burlington	1215.00
Beaver Lick	2150.00
Walton to Richmond	3800.00
Richmond to Erlanger	5525.00
Covington	1975.00
Total	21340.00

WILLIAM B. O'NEAL, DEAD.

William B. O'Neal, 44, of Latonia, died in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Covington, last Saturday evening from the effects of injuries received in an automobile accident on the Independence pike about 10 days ago. Mr. O'Neal was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neal, of Walton, and was born in Verona. He was an expert telegraph operator, but of late years he had devoted a part of his time to other pursuits. He is survived by a widow and four children and a host of relatives and friends in this county. Funeral services were held at Highland cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

DIRECTORS MEETING.

A meeting of the Directors of the Boone County Farm Bureau is called for Saturday morning, March 18, at 10 o'clock. Every member is asked to attend, so that definite action can be taken and the building at Florence started. Members are responding splendidly to the loan. Entire membership is invited to attend.

J. COLIN KELLY, Secretary.

NOTICE TO MILK PRODUCERS.

The Florence Local of the Queen City Milk Producers Association will hold its regular meeting Saturday night March 18th. All members are urged to be present, as the association has important business.

CLEM KENDALL, Secretary.

BOUGHT COWS.

Mike O'Hara, Jr., of near Erlanger, was in this section one day last week, on the hunt of milk cows. He bought five from F. Kanton, two from Chas. Maurer, two from E. L. Hickman and one from Tim Sandford.

RECEIVED GOOD PRICES.

Karl Rouse shipped 400-pound hogs to the Cincinnati market, last week, for which he received 11½ to 12 cents per pound.

Notice to Dog Owners.

I have been authorized to indict all owners of dogs who have not purchased tags for them this year, and shall do so at the next regular term of Boone County Grand Jury which convenes April 10th. This order was sent me from Frankfort and I am subject to indictment if I fail to do my duty. By securing your tags right away you will save yourself prosecution and heavy fine.

B. B. HUME,
Sheriff of Boone County.

HOW MUCH TO ASK?

Here's hoping for a silent campaign this year! It's the off year and the great political parties should receive for 1924 by trying out a congressional campaign devoid of political buncombe.

The United States has suffered bravely under a century and more of written and spoken politics. In the early years of the nineteenth century, political speakers in America gave such exhibitions of oracular eagle-screaming that they sent Charles Dickens back to write the bitter caricature, Martin Chuzzlewit, which has colored the British viewpoint on this country until today. Subsequent to the Civil War came the crop of soldier statesmen whose stentorian platitudes echoed from the rafters for 30 years.

The Roosevelt era brought a brief period of concreteness to political utterances, and during the last few years the empty-sound hand has had a bear influence on the platform oratory industry. But there has been a vast increase in written buncombe.

Millions of dollars were spent in 1920 in showering upon the defenseless public tons of canned propaganda. No person with a grain of sense believes that this great volume of print paper affects seriously one percent of the vote. There are scores upon scores of influences that affect electors' actions. Hard times, creed, color, ancestry, gossip, war records, personality of candidates—occasionally the publicly proclaimed campaign issue—all combine in awaying the individual elector's judgment when he or she is alone in the election booth. Many of these influences are improper, unAmerican; but they are influences just the same.

But among all the canned propaganda has the least effect. Whatever it may say, to whomsoever it may be addressed, the chances are great that the only judgment it will have a chance to prejudice is that of the janitor as he empties the waste basket.

As long as there are those among us who like to hear their own voices—and there is no race suicide among such people—it is to be feared that politics will be a source of continuous propaganda.

But there is no harm in hoping anyhow. So, once again:
Here's to a bunk-less campaign.
Dearborn Independent.

COUNTRY SPORTS.

One of the reasons why young people have left country towns, has been that there was in many places so little doing in the way of sports. The old fashioned countryman had no hesitation about holding July Fourth or any other holiday. It never occurred to him that his boy might want to see the horribles parade. He looked at ball playing and other sports as a kind of fol de rol that did people no good.

Country people have seen many of their young folks drift off to cities because they wanted more fun. It was a poor reason, yet it was natural enough. So in many communities they are trying to offset that tendency by encouraging interesting sports.

In Illinois last summer the Farm Bureau encouraged the people to go in for the good old barnyard game of pitching horseshoes. Thousands of them took it up, and enjoyed it just as much as the city crowd enjoyed their big ball games. There have been state and local contests and spectators have traveled long distances to see these jolly competitions.

Many country high schools and towns nowadays have ball teams and play mighty well. A boy whose energy and cleverness have had a chance to work itself out on the ball field, is as happy as a king. He is not fretting because there are no theaters and a lot of white lights on the main street of his town.

Sports are needed in the country just as much as in the city. Colleges are made popular because they have fine athletic teams. A country high or lower grade school can attract the boys and girls in just the same way. A country town with a good ball team becomes as much of a center in that section as a city that belongs to a league circuit. These things create pride, and are a sign of life, and they brighten people up and make rural life seem worth living to the young crowd.

FLICKERTOWN.

Ben Hensley was a pleasant caller here Sunday.

The town was visited by the death angel Monday morning and carried away as its prize, Mrs. Belle Cason, one of the most loved women of our neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Smith, Mrs. Henry Clore and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Brady, Jr., and little daughter, attended the funeral of Mrs. Lena Buchner, at Newport, last Thursday.

Be sure to attend the free supper at Bellevue school building March 18, 1922, given by the Ladies Aid of the Bellevue Baptist church. Admission being one cent for your waist measure. Will also have on sale home-made candy, pies, hot coffee, etc. A musical program will be rendered.

Nothing like fair dealing.

The past year has been a pretty hard year with some folks who are too liberal spending their money when they have it.

When the money was gone many folks ran store bills with local stores. Running bills is easy but hard to settle and usually are larger than when cash is paid. Some folks naturally buy more on a credit than they would if they were paying cash.

Most merchants like to credit people who are good pay, but those who get their credit at one place and spend their money at another are not fair dealers. This class of people should be ashamed to ask a man for credit after having spent their money somewhere else.

A fair square dealing makes friends and the merchant who gets your cash trade is more able to pay his bills when he carries your account.

The Assessor listed 1350 dogs and the owners of only 650 have paid their license. The law makes it the duty of the Sheriff to see that all those who fail their names will be presented to the grand jury and indicted, which will carry with it a heavy fine. The Commissioner of Agriculture will assist all officers in the enforcement of the law, and see that all owners of dogs secure their licenses.

A Box Social will be given at the Woolper school house next Friday evening. The proceeds will be used to purchase books for the school library. Every one come and enjoy an evening's entertainment as well as assist your school.

HOME AND FARM.

If you have a surplus of good breeding stock or poultry, run a line in the Recorder. Your fellow country man may need them.

Sugar, beans, flour and grass seed advanced last week.

Farmers and feeders should fatten all hogs of any size and put them on the market as everything points to lower prices for them next fall.

BURRY WOOL RESULTS

IN BIG ANNUAL LOSS.

Lexington, Ky.—With the average Kentucky sheep shearing about five pounds of wool, farmers in the State lose about 50 cents on each fleece that is marketed withburs in it, sheep specialists at the College of Agriculture have estimated in pointing out the advantage of removing these before selling the wool. Wool containing burs always is discriminated against by buyers, the price last year for burry wool being approximately two-thirds of that paid for clean wool. Wool worth 30 cents a pound will bring only 20 cents when it contains burs. In view of the fact that the State produces about 5,000,000 pounds of wool each year, a reduction of ten cents a pound on that containing burs represents a heavy annual loss to farmers of the State which could be avoided, the specialists say.

"On the college farm, we have found that the burs can be clipped out more quickly and easily before the sheep are shorn than they can after the shearing has been done."

L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the sheep work said, "Then too, if the grower attempts to clip or pick out the burs after shearing, the fleece is likely to be torn apart so that it will not be in such good market condition."

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS.

Since the garden is expected to produce more food than any other piece of ground the same size on the farm, it is essential that it be given the best possible care. Large quantities of well rotted manure worked into the soil before the crops are planted are big helps in making the garden a success.

Planning a companion system of cropping is a good way to overcome the disadvantage of the limited space usually provided for the garden. Lettuce, radishes, spinach, early beets or early turnips can be grown between the rows of cabbage, tomatoes or cucumbers.

Prevention has more value in the garden perhaps than anywhere else, especially when it is used to control insects, garden specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Some form of spray pump is almost an essential in preventing insect damage and getting the best results from the garden. A small hand pump with the quart jar attached will give satisfactory results under average conditions.

The latter part of March is a good time to put out early cabbage. Jersey Wakefield has proved to be one of the best varieties for Kentucky.

Records show that one year out of every ten the last killing frost in spring occurs after May 1 in the vicinity of Ashland, after April 29 in the vicinity of Lexington, after April 21 in the vicinity of Louisville, after April 25 in the vicinity of Owensboro and after April 24 in the vicinity of Paducah. Gardeners can determine the best time to plant vegetables liable to be killed by the frost by using this schedule of probable dates after which no more killing frosts will occur.

KEEPS FEEDER PIGS AT HOME UNTIL FINISHED FOR SLAUGHTER.

A cooperative live-stock shipping association in Indiana helps to keep feeder pigs at home instead of sending them to market, when they are offered by members for shipment. This feature of cooperative work has been called to the attention of the United States Department of Agriculture, which thinks the idea a good one. Farmers who desire feeder pigs inform the managers of their wants, and when pigs of the feeder type are brought in on shipping day all but a few head are kept at home until finished for slaughtering. Only enough are sent to market to determine the prevailing market price. Those retained are sold to farmers desiring them at the Buffalo market price less transportation and marketing cost, the usual costs assessed against those animals going to market.

HOME-SPUN YARNS.

(Cornell Extension Service)

Aunt Ada's Axlines: Spare the milk and spoil the child's health; spare the sleep and spoil the child's nerves.

A light weight stick, say four feet long, and stretched at one end, will be a friend if need during housecleaning. Just think how easy it will be to "reach down" curtain poles, pictures, and the like.

When making children's dresses of colored, washable materials, sew a small piece on the wrong side of the pocket or hem. It will fade like the dress and will be found convenient when mending a tear or worn place.

DO YOU KNOW

According to reports of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, of the several high producing cows in the State making more than 100 pounds of milk a day, that six of them are owned in Boone county, three by Hubert Conner, Hebron, Ky., and three by C. O. Hampling & Sons, Taylorsport, Ky.

Miss Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gaines, of Limaburg, is convalescing after a week's illness with flu.

Elijah Stephens will erect a house on the land he purchased near Limaburg on the Florence pike as soon as the weather will permit.

There will be preaching at the Burlington Methodist church next Sunday morning and evening by the regular pastor, Rev. Tomlin.

Mr. Will Morris, of Erlanger, R. D. 4, was transacting business in Burlington, last Monday. He made the Recorder office a pleasant call.

Ten members the family of a Mr. Buckler, who resides near the Harvest Home grounds, have been quite sick for several days with the flu.

On account of Rev. Tomlin, the pastor, being engaged in a protracted meeting at Vanceburg, there was no preaching at the M. E. church last Sunday.

I have as fine stock of Ladies and Men's shoes as you can find, and my prices are lower than Cincinnati prices.

D. R. BLYTHE,

Lawrence Jones, from out on the Bellevue pike, shipped to the Cincinnati market, one day last week, 53 hens culled from his flock, which brought him $67.75—a little over a dollar a piece. The 53 hens weighed 271 pounds, an average of 5 pounds.

When age begins to creep upon a man he begins to wear rubber shoes and exercise caution. At the same period of life the up-to-date woman begins to wear extreme short clothes and exercise discretion as to what shall be the color of her hair for the rest of her life.

One of our good farmers, who was in Burlington Monday, remarked to the Recorder pencil shaver that he believed in education and good roads, but if taxes kept on increasing, the state and counties would own the land and would have to tax themselves to keep up the roads and schools.

The county assessor of Shelby county has instructed the township assessors in that county to reduce valuations on real estate 25 per cent. The assessors in Bartholomew county will make a reduction of approximately $8,000,000 in that county, due to decreased values of farm land and live stock.—Lawrenceburg Indiana Register.

It is quite different on this side of the river.

The county tax commissioner reduced the assessment $1,600,000, but the State tax commissioner ordered the assessment increased by adding $1,000,000.

The management of the Confederate Home at Pewee Valley will not be disturbed at this session of the Kentucky Legislature. The House tabled a bill introduced by Representative W. R. Button, of Oldham county, that would have removed Confederate veterans from the Board of Trustees and replaced them with sons and daughters of veterans.

Robert T. Crowe, of LaGrange, and Captain W. J. Stone, Confederate Pension Commissioner, were called into the House and permitted to present the views of those for and against the bill. Mr. Crowe charged that there had been mismanagement at the home.

Captain Stone, who is also commander of the Kentucky Division of the United Confederate Veterans, asserted that the men in the home were well fed and well cared for.

LEGION NOTES

To put 700,000 ex-soldiers into jobs is the American Legion's immediate objective, according to an announcement from Legion headquarters. To accomplish this, a nationwide drive will be launched from local posts in every city and town in the country on March 20, and employers and business men will be called into conference to devise ways and means of creating jobs and putting an end to a situation which Hanford MacNider, Legion commander, has called "the greatest crisis in the Legion's history."

Civic organizations from Maine to California have been asked to swing into line to back up the Legion and make a concerted effort which will be felt in all sections of the country. By stimulating industry, by pushing engineering projects and municipal development, by speeding up public utility enterprises, roadbuilding, paving, dredging, truck gardening, reforestation and reclamation, and by encouraging the "back-to-the-farm" movement, the Legion hopes to break the labor slump which has kept worthy men out of work and caused widespread distress. Each city will be divided into regions, each under its own post employment committee, with a general committee coordinating the efforts of all.

It took a small Jewish girl and a little maid from Italy to win first and second prizes for the best essays on "Our greatest American." The contest was held by the American Legion at Auburn, N. Y.

Napoleon was right! Fifty cakes, 40 cases of soft drinks, two bushels of peanuts, 20 gallons of ice cream, 4,000 sandwiches, and a crate of oranges were consumed by 900 ex-soldiers (and friends) at an American Legion roadwarming at Birmingham, N. Y.

Galloping from hangars on winged mounts, ex-fliers of the American Legion staged an aerial polo game in a recent carnival at Miami, Florida. Toy balloons were used in place of polo balls.

Capt. Charles, Ainsleigh, skipper of a coal barge in 1918, was the only American wounded on the coast by enemy fire. He was hit by a shell from a submarine while his small son stood on deck and waved an American flag. Jobless for almost a year, Ainsleigh, thru the American Legion, has landed a position as a watchman at the State House in Boston, Mass.

TWO CAUSES ARE CITED FOR SOYBEAN FAILURES.

Lexington, Ky.—Failures in growing soybeans for the first time are due largely to the fact that the beans are planted too deep or that they are not inoculated before seeding, Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist at the College of Agriculture is pointing out to many Kentucky farmers who will try the crop for the first time this year.

In most Kentucky soils, from one-half to an inch is probably deep enough to cover the seeds. Corn planter attachments for planting soybeans take care of most of this trouble by dropping the bean seed thru a separate opening and allowing part of the soil to fall on the corn before the bean drops.

Although soybeans grow well on good soils without inoculation, they take all the nitrogen which they require for growth from the soil when grown under these conditions. On the other hand, most Kentucky soils are of medium fertility and consequently inoculation is necessary for best growth. For this purpose, soil from the top four inches of a field that grew inoculated beans last year will be satisfactory. A quart of soil will inoculate a bushel of beans.

The soil for inoculating may be gathered now and placed in a corner of the barn until time for seeding. In inoculating the beans, a bushel of them is placed in a box or tub and slightly moistened with water after which the powdered soil is sifted over them, care being taken to see that all seeds have some soil on them. They should be planted immediately after treating.

WIDER HIGHWAY TENDENCY SHOWN IN ROAD BUILDING.

Of 6,500 miles of completed Federal-aid road for which statistics have been collected by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, one-half has been constructed of 16 and 18 foot width, 25 per cent of a greater width, and 25 per cent of a less width. As would be expected the wider roads have been constructed largely in the more populous states, although some of the less populous states are building wider roads for the main highways. There is a general tendency, it is said, to build wider roads to meet the need of the constantly increasing traffic, as is shown by the 25 per cent of the mileage over 18 feet in width, 7 per cent being 24 feet or wider.

NEARING COMPLETION.

The new bridge that spans the creek near Taylorport will soon be completed. This will be a great help and convenience to the people of that part of the county, as the crossing was very annoying at most all seasons of the year.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR AUTOMOBILE OWNERS.

In applying tire chains never use a tool to draw them so tight that they cannot be removed. If the cross-grip cannot move to a new position on the tread every time it touches the ground it soon cuts deeply into the rubber, and then into the fabric, seriously weakening the strength of the casing.

If only one chain is used, put it on the left rear wheel, so as to avoid damaging it against the curb. If two are used, they should be on the rear wheels, as the driving force is delivered through them and they must be kept from slipping. Always use two at least. The car will hold the road better if the front wheels have chains as they offset the tendency to slip sideways.

The drive chains on trucks should be adjusted carefully. If too tight they will wear rapidly, and if too slack they will break when the truck is started suddenly. A little care in this respect will avoid much trouble.

Opinions differ as to the value of the four springs used to hold the chains from sagging. If they hold the chains from creeping they are harmful, but if they are properly fitted they are a decided benefit.

When the roads are wet it is advisable to avoid driving fast over sharp curves and in door turns. To cut rubber easily one usually wears the knife. The same principle applies to conditions surrounding the use of tires.

Senator L. A. Arnett, formerly of Covington, now of Lexington, C. E. Swetman, Covington and W. E. Adkins, of Latonia, visited Burlington Lodge No. 109, K. of P. last Saturday night in the interest of the Pythian Home at Lexington. Senator Arnett told of the wonderful work that is being done by the Pythians in maintaining their home at Lexington. They own a farm of one hundred acres of the finest land in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky, about three miles east of Lexington on which are located the home buildings which are equipped with all the modern conveniences. The children from the home attend the Fayette county school, a high school building being located on the Pythian land. Every Pythian should be proud to contribute his might for the maintenance of an institution that so nobly cares for the children of their Pythian brothers, a home in which the child receives not only protecting care and comforts of life, but in which the child is educated so that he is competent to discharge the duties of any position to which he or she may aspire. The children of the Home are looked after just the same as you look after and care for your children. A number of children received their education and training at the Pythian Home and are now occupying positions of trust in Lexington and other points in the state.

The Boone County Board of Tax Supervisors composed of Benj. H. Berkshire, Petersburg, W. M. Whitson, Verona, J. B. Cloud, Constance, J. H. Walton, Carlton and W. B. Johnson, Walton, and Al Rogers of Bellevue, are now in session, and under instructions and direction of the State Tax Commission they must add $1,000,000 to our assessment. This will put the tax value at the same amount as last year. The county Tax Commissioner, H. W. Riley, reduced the assessment on lands 10 per cent but the tax commission would not permit this reduction to stand. The board will first equalize the assessment then increase the different lists as to increase the total assessment $1,000,000.

MRS. BELLE CASON, DEAD

Mrs. Belle Cason, widow of the late Benj. Cason, died at her home in Bellevue, Monday morning from a lingering illness. Her funeral was held in the Baptist church in Bellevue, of which she had been a member for a number of years Wednesday. Mrs. Cason is survived by several children, two brothers and two sisters and a number of other relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was loved and respected by all who knew her. Her remains were laid to rest by the side of those of her husband who had preceded her to the Great Beyond many years ago.

Richard Sipe, Republican county clerk of Marion county, and a candidate for re-nomination, has confessed to a shortage that will probably run to between $150,000 and $160,000. He is now in jail and his affairs are in the hands of the county commissioners, the county prosecutor and a bonding company. — Lawrenceburg Register.

HALF OF HATCHING EGGS TURN OUT TO BE BLANKS.

Nearly One-Half Of All Chicks That Do Hatch Die In Infancy, Specialists Point Out and Tell Why.

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky farmers annually lose more than 24 million eggs and 12 million chicks through their efforts to rear chickens to maintain the ten million hens on farms of the State, according to poultrymen at the College of Agriculture. These figures mean that one-half of all the eggs incubated fail to hatch and one-half of all the chicks hatched die before reaching market size or maturity, the specialists say.

The main cause which they outline for this loss during incubation and the first few weeks of brooding are due to the management of the poultry used as breeders, the care of eggs previous to and during incubation, and the operation of the incubator. The cost of Kentucky chicks could be reduced more than $500,000 each year by increasing the hatch from 50 to 75 chicks from each 100 eggs set, it is said.

"The first step toward more and better chicks is to produce good quality eggs," J. H. Martin in charge of the college poultry work, said. "Eggs suitable for producing healthy vigorous chicks must be fertile, fresh in quality, normal in size, shape and shell texture and produced by healthy vigorous stock. They should be kept in a clean, well ventilated room having a temperature of about 50 degrees. Ten days is the longest period eggs should be held before being placed in machines and the shorter the time they are held the better will be the hatch."

"While the hen is a good incubator of eggs she is being replaced rapidly by the hot air, hot water or electric machines, all of which give good results under proper management. The type of machine to buy is the one that is durable, built of good materials, well insulated from the outside temperature and easily cleaned. It also should have a heating device that is capable of supplying sufficient heat, and a heat control that is accurate. Ample provision for ventilating the egg chamber is important. Operation of the machine is the best done according to the manufacturer's directions."

MEASURE CHANGING STATE'S ENTIRE SYSTEM PASSED; THE LAST MINUTE VETO WOULD KILL IT.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Democratic members of the State Senate agreed at a caucus it was announced, to support as a body the Louisville City Government Bill as drafted, and without amendments.

Stand pat on the Simmons Bill to reorganize the State Highway Commission despite the Governor's compromise proposal.

Support as a body the Strange Bill to abolish the office of oil inspector, and create instead the office of oil tester and gauger, and limiting the salary to $93,600.

Frankfort, Ky., March 14.—Medical colleges in Kentucky would be required to accept as students graduates of accredited high schools or persons who hold first class certificates to teach under a bill passed by the house of representatives. The bill introduced by F. C. Vanhook, of Johnson county, is designed to serve as an inducement for students to enter medical colleges. Rural districts, according to members of the house, are suffering from a lack of doctors and that a lowering of the requirements is necessary if the need is to be supplied.

The bill as originally written would require the schools to accept common school graduates. An amendment offered by Dr. R. A. Muster, of Larue county, was adopted requiring a high school education.

T. O. Holder, of Russell county, and Charles A. Nelson, of Hardin were the chief advocates of the bill. Both argued that something must be done to supply the shortage of doctors and to supply men for the rural districts.

Dr. W. L. Gossett opposed the measure, declaring he often had felt the need of the preliminary education supplied by two years in college since he graduated and that "for the sake of the people who had to take the medicine" he was opposed to any lowering of the standard.

Representative Arch L. Hamilton's bill making the sheriff responsible for extensions of amounts of tax bills was passed 41 to 34 after a stoppage during which a roll call was missed while Mr. Hamilton explained the bill. After the explanation many members changed their votes and others were sought in the cloak room and rest rooms.

400 MORGAN COUNTY FARMERS SEE PRUNING METHODS

West Liberty, Ky.—As the result of number of pruning demonstrations held in different parts of the county by County Agent R. B. Rankin, many Morgan county farmers have been taught how to clean up their orchards as the first step in increasing their productiveness, according to a report. A total of 35 demonstrations held in the county were attended by approximately 400 farmers.

MEMBERS OF ASSOCIATION ARE IN FAVOR OF LEGAL MOVE AGAINST "WELSHERS" ON CONTRACT, SAYS BARKER.

Lexington, Ky., March 14.—Members of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, who thoroughly approve the proposed prosecution of contract breakers, according to Director of Warehouses Ralph M. Barker, who returned from an inspection trip over the district, in which he directed the closing of all but one of the receiving plants in each town having more than one warehouse and talked with growers, bankers and business men in regard to the cooperative system of marketing.

"I have never seen in my life such a wonderful spirit of cooperation as was manifested at every point I visited," said Mr. Barker. "I talked with farmers, merchants, bankers and professional men in every town and county, and it seemed to be the unanimous opinion that we have hit upon the right system for the disposition of the crop."

"In every county I visited, numerous farmers having had opportunity to observe the workings of the new system have voluntarily come forward, asked for contracts and have signed up their crops for the next five years. I also learned that the members unanimously approve the expressed intention of the legal department to sue the men who have broken their contracts by selling their tobacco over the local leaf floors and that they want this action taken as a means of protecting the members of the association in the future from welters who seek to take advantage of price conditions created by loyal members who keep their word and their contract."

"There are not many of these fellows, but some of them are prominent enough to attract attention and if they can 'get by' with such violation of the agreements, the growers declare, it will have a demoralizing effect on the loyal growers and tempt others to violate their contract, should future market conditions continue as this year, which is probable."

Mr. Barker said that practically all the association tobacco would be delivered by the first of April. Leases on the warehouse plants all over the district practically have been completed, he said, and as soon as the work of receiving the tobacco is out of the way trades will be completed between the warehouse owners and the subsidiaries, which will take deeds to the property under the contracts originally signed by the owners and by Mr. Barker as the authorized representative of the association.

F. D. Williams of Richmond, Va., leader of the growers in the sundured association in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, was in Lexington. He said the success of the association in both the bright and dark districts of these three states was assured, beginning with this year's crop.

While he was away from Lexington Mr. Barker visited Camp Taylor and the redrying plants of Louisville, Taylorsville, Bloomfield, Lebanon, Springfield, Harrodsburg, Danville, Lancaster and Carrollton.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—In every city, town and hamlet in the United States, March 20th will mark the beginning of a concentrated effort to find work for unemployed ex-service men, according to plans being mapped out by the American Legion. On that day local civic, fraternal and welfare organizations and prominent business men and employers will be called upon by Legion posts to unite in a systematic drive against unemployment and to set wheels moving which will provide jobs for the 700,000 men now idle.

Heads of such organizations as the Knights of Columbus, the Rotary Club, the Elks, Jewish Welfare, and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce have already been asked to cooperate and to transmit the plan of action to their local units. Governors of States and mayors of cities have been asked to set aside March 20th as Employment Day.

Employers will be urged to distribute their work by changing men on shifts, civic authorities will be urged to speed up community projects such as road-repair and bridge building. Legion posts contemplating club houses will be urged to start at once and employ ex-soldiers, towns will be urged to start community truck-gardens, and every effort will be made to encourage the "back-to-the-farm" movement. Farmers will be placed on employment committees and service men will be utilized in the planning of spring crops.

The Legion has adopted the slogan. Every community will care for its own—if you want a job, go home and the home folks will care for you. Cities will be divided into regions, each under its own post and employment committee, with a general committee coordinating the efforts of all.

Commissioner's Sale.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky
B. C. Tanner, Plaintiff against F. E. Kerna, Defendant

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at its December term, 1921, in the above styled cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the court house door, in Burlington, Boone county, Kentucky, to the highest bidder, at public sale, on Monday, the 3rd day of April, 1922, at one o'clock p. m. or thereabouts being County Court day, upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following property, to-wit:

FOR SALE

Pure Bred Jersey Bulls.

No. 1. Our senior herd bull, Fern's Torono Lad 141879, grandson of Hood Farm Torono, the sire of more A. J. C. C. 2nd medal cows than any other bull living or dead. This bull is 7 years old, but quite vigorous and sure, one of the best breeding bulls in the county. He gets heavy calves, has been producer, and commanded top prices when sold at auction. A splendid opportunity for an individual breeder or buyer.

No. 2. Bull calf, 4 months old; sired by Oxford's Majesty's Chief 190969; set premium bull in his class at Florence Fair, and second in his class at Kentucky State Fair last fall; his dam has a register of merit record of 648 lbs. of butter in one year.

Dam—Volunteer of America's Fairy 457288, now on official test and in 106 days has made 190.5 lbs. butter as a two year old. These bulls are straight and right in every particular and priced at farmers prices. For prices and pedigree address A. O. HAFFER, Helbron, Ky.

The orange was originally a pear-shaped fruit about the size of the common wild cherry. Its evolution is believed by naturalists to be due to 1,200 years of cultivation.

Judge S. Gaines returned home from Owensboro last Thursday evening, where he had been holding court for the past two weeks. He reports that the grand jury of Owen county returned a large number of indictments—mostly for moonshining and boot legging.

In order to help farm boys and girls of Allen county get started in the production of purebred animals, leading banks in the county will finance the purchasing of pigs for members of the junior agricultural club there, a report from County Agent A. M. Allen states.

J. L. Noel, of Big Bone, sued G. L. Miller in the Boone county court for slander. The case was tried and a verdict in favor of Noel for $500. The case was appealed by Mr. Miller to the Court of Appeals who affirmed the judgment of Boone circuit court a few days ago, and in their judgment said considering the evidence, the amount of damages awarded was very reasonable, and even less than might have been expected.

The tax rate for Boone county for 1922 has been levied as follows:

15 cents on each $100 for General County Expense.

20 cents on each $100 for Sinking Fund.

35 cents on each $100 for Road purposes.

40 cents on each $100 For School purposes.

This is an increase of five cents for school purposes above the rate for 1922.

If the money derived from automobiles and truck licenses is retained in the county, we could have good roads in every direction from the county seat. Some states have this law and the people who pay this money receive a benefit from it, instead of it all being spent in certain influential sections. The advent of the automobile, the tax and license thereon must be a considerable asset to our State Treasury, but the question is, who does he pay all this money to, and what for, and what benefit do we derive from it?

NOTHING EXPOSED.

A bishop was traveling in a mining country and encountered an old Irishman turning a windlass which hauled up soil out of a well that was being dug.

His hat was off and the wind and rain were pouring on his unprotected head.

"Don't you know you will injure your brain if you expose it to the elements like that?" said the bishop. The Irishman wiped the rain from his forehead and looked at the clergyman.

"Do you think I'd be doing this all the day if I had any brains?" he asked.

PUT IN THE PUS.

A very small but live boy applied to a great merchant for a job.

The great man sized him up with twinkling eyes, for the one situation open needed a bigger parcel of human experience, and asked what position he wanted.

"A chance to grow in the business, mister."

"Well, we are more or less being depopulated by the drafts. What is your motto, my boy?"

"The same as yours," was the ready answer.

"What do you mean?" asked the puzzled merchant.

"Why, on the door there—'Push.' He got the job of keeper of that very door—Everybody's Magazine."

As a keeper of the record it now becomes our duty to notify the people that the time to drink sassafras tea is here. Many people are prone to read the sassafras advertisements and forget Nature's true and time tested blood purifier. Dig the root of the red sassafras, make it into a strong tea, and drink the tea through the month of March. This will thin down the blood and keep you out of the Ku Klux controversies and political fights. When the blood gets too thick people get into much trouble over argument on the mode of baptism and stoning neighbor's chickens that scratch up the garden truck. All should be very careful, however, not to drink sassafras tea for a longer period than four weeks. If this is done the blood gets too thin and there is danger of having chills and turning sochlist.—Ex.

FLATTERING MILLINERY

Three styles, characteristic of the season, are shown here. At the top a hat of bright blue braid, piped with satin, has a beehive crown and a narrow satin-covered brim. It is trimmed with cherries primly set about the crown in clusters and bunched at the right side. A brilliant all-black hat, suited to older wearers, has a glittering fabric over its upturned brim and sprays of feathers at each side. The youthful hat at the bottom, employs ribbon and flowers to trim a shape covered with a novelty material. This hat is shown in several colors with little springtime blossoms massed against the upward-rolling brim.

THE HOT SCHOOL LUNCH.

Serving a hot lunch to school children is called a costly fad by some old timers. But it saves money by saving food. In Pierce county, Washington, they have begun serving hot lunches and also require the children to take 20 minutes for eating the same. Formerly the children would hurry out to play in the yard, and would throw away half their food. Now they eat the whole lunch. The janitor now finds only half a can of garbage, where before the hot lunch was served the children threw away two cans of uneaten food and refused

CONTROLLING FRUIT TREE PESTS.

Perhaps the biggest problem in growing fruit is that of fighting the pests. A test made last summer in San Mateo county, California, shows what results can be gained by correct spraying. On one orchard in 1920 there were 80 per cent of wormy apples. The orchard was sprayed by the horticultural commissioner in 1921 with the result that only five per cent were wormy.

On another orchard similarly treated, in 1920 there were 25 per cent wormy apples. In 1921, with spraying, there were only 10 per cent wormy. The pests that attack fruit can be kept down by having good advice and carrying it out.

SCIENTIFIC ADVERTISING

A writer in Printer's Ink tells the story of how a big modern concern is using advertising in a scientific way. The company referred to assumes to each salesman a definite quota which he is expected to sell, in each town and each store. If he falls down in any locality or in any store, the advertising department gets busy.

It appears in many cases, that there has been a failure to do enough newspaper advertising to make the product go in that locality, and the company has a fund from which an appropriation is made for that purpose.

The article referred to says: "There are some old timers on the sale staff who had the old fashioned idea about advertising being a luxury, upon which the company spent its good money—money which they produced by their superior selling ability. But they have changed their viewpoint, and now accept the advertising as the primary selling essential. Others who could not or would not accept the new view, have been gently but firmly removed from the payroll."

As a result of the company's advertising methods, in about 99 out of 100 cases where sales fell off, the business is pushed until the salesman is able to make his quota.

Although the business outlook for 1921 was not good, yet the company decided not to cut its advertising appropriation, and as a result the sales for that year were the best in the company's history. It was therefore decided hereafter to set apart a certain definite proportion of the sales receipts for advertising, and the list of newspapers in which their publicity is placed will be greatly increased.

While this is a story of the achievement of a big company and a national advertiser, the same principle applies absolutely to any retail store. When a man's business falls off or fails to grow, instead of growling about hard times, he should jump in with more advertising.

NOT READY TO MARRY.

A very fastidious young man bought a pair of overalls and found in a pocket the name of the sewing girl who made them. He very promptly wrote her a letter with all the effusiveness necessary in such a case, and in due time received a reply, which, however, was void of the romance usual in such cases. Here it is: I am a working girl, it is true, but I make a good living and I do not care to support a husband, as I would have to do if I married some silly fellow who gets mashed on a street car. Permit me to say that I do not know how my card got into that pair of overalls, and that when I do marry, if ever, it will be some fellow that can afford something better than a 47 cent pair of overalls."

Church Membership Grows.

Every day during the last five years an average of 2,173 persons joined the various churches of America, and three congregations were organized daily.

The total religious constituency of the country is 95,858,096. The Protestants count 74,795,226; Roman Catholics, 17,885,848; Jews, 1,120,000; Eastern Orthodox (Greek and Russian), 411,054; Latter Day Saints (Mormons), 1,646,170.

The total active membership is 45,997,199, an increase of 4,070,345 over the 1916 census figures. The several religious bodies report 233,104 congregations manned by 200,099 ministers. For the first time in history the Baptists have passed the Methodists in total membership. The Baptists, showing their greatest increase in the south, now have 7,835,250 members, against a Methodist membership of 7,797,991.

MEN'S CLOTHES.

A writer in a leading Paris newspaper complains of the tendency of French men to let down in style since the war. He finds fault that they rarely wear evening dress, they have almost given up silk hats, and they wear soft collars.

A similar tendency is noted in this country. Men have an increasing dislike to don themselves up like peacocks. The so-called "plug hat" is more rarely seen. The soft collar habit gains, and may become nearly universal this summer.

Yet there is no less neatness. Many types of men take more pains with dress than formerly. Farmers, for instance, once looked much like the Uncle Reuben of the comic papers. Now the majority of the younger men at least, when they come to town, look like other business men. Men shave more frequently than they used to.

But the time has gone by when men will dress for decoration and adornment. They will leave that to their best girls.

ATTENTION! FARMERS.

There will be a big Farmers' Annual meeting at Independence, Ky., Monday March 20th, beginning at 10:00 a. m.

A large number of good speakers on different Marketing problems will take part in the meeting.

Mr. J. F. Walker, The Big Man in the cooperative Marketing of wool in Ohio will address the farmers in Wool Marketing. Geoffrey Morgan, State Secretary of the Ky. Farm Bureau and Morgan Hughes, Marketing Specialist from Lexington, will also speak.

And local men such as Dawson Chambers, Harry Harkins and others will tell us about what these cooperative movements are doing locally.

A big day for everybody. You will be missing valuable information about real farm questions if you stay away.

Tell your neighbors. Farmers in adjoining counties are cordially invited to be present.

C. M. NORTHCUTT, Secretary of Kenton County Farm Bureau.

THE BUSYBODY.

Every community has its busybody, some one who is always trying to find out other people's business instead of minding his own. Quite as likely it may be a she that is prying into the private affairs of other folks and probabp gossiping about them.

These people may be very mannerly, but little do they realize that hunting news is a bad habit which shows lack of good breeding. If you have this habit try to overcome it, because in some people's estimation you are not rated very high.

There are all kinds of busybodies. Here are some of the most prominent. The city clerk generally has several of this kind, viz: Women who spend most of their time running about gathering news, first from one neighbor then another. They also sit outdoors or at a parlor window, so as to miss nothing that goes on. They are particularly interested when some new family moves into the block, and are very anxious to see what kind of furniture they have. They perform the same tactics when a funeral is taking place in the block. At night when sitting out doors these people must rub-neck when they see a light in a neighboring window.

The suburbs have the same kind of busybodies. In the country it is a little different. Everyone gathers at the general store, and here is where one goes to hunt for news.

Where you earn your living there are busybodies, people who like to find out how much you earn and where you spend all your money. If these people would mind their business they would save the company money. In hunting news they waste their own time and interfere with the work of others.

In our churches, lodges, social clubs and gatherings we have busybodies. People who only attend to see how much they can find out about the other persons present.

There is also the family busybody who likes to know how much you paid for this or that, and a lot of other detail. Some people use their children to collect news for them. Don't teach your child to be a busybody.

There are many other kinds of busybodies too numerous to mention. Perhaps the busybody cannot be convinced that he is a busybody, even though most frequently mentioned as the person to be seen if any news of a local or personal nature is wanted.

We hear this very often: "Go ask So-and-so; he or she always knows what is going on."

Still others realize that they are busybodies and yet they make no effort to mend their ways.

We all like to know the news—it may be interesting, but generally it is none of our business.

If you are a professional busybody, break yourself of the habit; get out of this class before you get in trouble.

There's always some drudgery, but there's happiness in housework when it is the means to a full enjoyment of the home and not an end in itself.

A cheap knife is likely to be a poor investment, because it won't hold an edge. Knives with well-tempered steel blades are a joy to the efficient worker.

To freshen the flavor of canned fruit, open the can several hours before the fruit is to be used, drain the sirup and reheat it, adding a little more sugar. Pour the sirup, boiling hot, over the fruit and let it chill before it is served.

FATHER OF ELEVEN.

IS GRANTED LARGEST INCOME TAX EXEMPTION IN CITY.

Had he not had 11 children a Cincinnati man who filed an income tax return at the office of Collector of Internal Revenue Charles M. Dean, might have had an income of $6,900 instead of an exemption in that amount.

He has the distinction of having obtained from the Government the largest exemption granted to any citizen within this district, for, in addition to an exemption of $2,500 allowed to him by law as the head of a family, he was granted exemption of $400 for each of his 11 children. The oldest is 17 years and the youngest is 2 months, he told Collector Dean.

The return he filed showed his income for 1921 to have been slightly in excess of $2,000.

CAR SENSE

Spend a Dollar and Save Ten

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected. The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little. When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money. That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones. The better—the safer—the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble. Today is always a good time to have it done.

CONSTANCE.

There are not many empty houses in Constance.

Mr. Meagley is quite ill at the home of his brother in Kenton county. His brother conducts the store here.

The funeral of Mrs. Kate Kraft was held at the church here and attended by a large crowd of people. Mrs. Kraft was 59 years of age and was the youngest child of Mr. John Wernz, Sr., and lived at the old homestead, where the old mill used to be on Dry creek. She leaves two children, one son and one daughter, her mother who is 91 years old, one brother, one sister and grandchildren and numerous relatives and friends to mourn her loss. Her husband died a good many years ago, since which time she has been caring for her aged mother. Her grief is our loss. She has crossed over the river and gone home.

GRANT R. D.

Mrs. Elvira Hodges has been visiting her daughter the past week.

R. L. Hodges and family spent Sunday with B. C. Kirtley and family.

Marion and Ben Scott called on their uncle Mose Scott, Saturday night.

Chas. Ruth will launch his new gasoline boat next Saturday.

W. H. Hensley is on the road to recovery, we are glad to say.

Mrs. A. E. Lonaker is recovering from a fall she received Sunday a week.

The National Bread Co., is keeping the citizens supplied with bread and cakes.

Perrin Louden and family were visiting his wife's relatives in Burlington, Sunday.

Miss Lillian Carver resumed her school work last Monday after an illness of two weeks.

Grandma Bradburn had a severe attack of indigestion and heart trouble last Saturday night, but is some better at this writing.

Earl Walton and W. H. Yates are about through stripping the crop of tobacco they purchased of George Terral.

Mrs. Johnnie Bradburn has returned home from the city where she was under treatment, and is able to resume her household duties.

No ground plowed as yet. Hurry up boys the 20th and 21st are the days to plant potatoes and onions in this month. Why those days?—ED.

The wild animal about which there has been so much talk, turned out to be a big feathered hoot owl that was captured one day last week on Woodpecker.

Mr. Fox, of Lawrenceburg, who has been running a little gasoline boat from here to Lawrenceburg, will extend his trips to Aurora. This will be quite an accommodation to the public.

We are making arrangements to get through with our spring work before circuit court convenes. There may be a chance to get a rest that may last too long to get our crops planted.

The remains of Marion McNeely arrived here Friday from Illinois for burial. He was a citizen here for many years, and was a brother of Mrs. Theresa McWethy. He was 70 years old.

Quite a number of the citizens are confined to their homes with symptoms of flu. W. T. Stott, Miss Ruth Chambers, Lyndon Christie's wife and children, Mrs. Linn Howard and many others.

Dr. Mrs. J. M. Grant entertained very pleasantly last Thursday at six o'clock dinner Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Cropper and children, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Watts, Mrs. Eva Carver and Miss Lee Etta Myers.

Mrs. Burton Yates entertained March 9th in honor of her little son, Geo. Burton, it being his eighth birthday.

Miss Perry Conner Carver was the guest of honor. An excellent supper was served after which games of all kinds were played.

Mrs. O. S. Watts entertained most charmingly her Sunday school class at her home Saturday March 4, from 2 to 5 p. m. The dining room was artistically decorated in white and green, with a large bouquet of carnations as a center piece. Dainty refreshments consisting of ice cream, cakes and apples were served. Mrs. Margaret Kirtley gave a very interesting sketch of the life of Christ, and Miss Lee Etta Myers read a beautiful piece on "Faith" and also a poem Mrs. J. M. Grant assisted in serving refreshments. The class surprised Mrs. Watts with a very nice gift, it being her birthday. Those invited were Mrs. Lacey Cropper, Mrs. Hubert Walton, Mrs. Josephine Baker, Mrs. Lula Gordon, Mrs. Jeffries, Mrs. Jennie Acra, Misses Lillian Carver Hazel Rector and Olivia Stephens.

EARLY APRIL BEST TIME TO SEED SWEET POTATOES.

Lexington, Ky.—Sweet potatoes, one of the main crops in Kentucky, are best bedded for plants during the first ten days in April, the most favorable date for bedding being somewhat earlier in the western than in the eastern part of the State, according to A. J. Olney, horticulturist at the College of Agriculture. The State produces about two million bushels of the crop each year.

Better plants usually are obtained by using a hot bed of some kind although many plants are grown without this aid. An eight to ten inch layer of horse manure covered with about four or five inches of soil, preferably pure sand rather than garden soil, gives good results in the bed.

Planting healthy seed, that has previously been treated, in soil that is known to be free from black rot, scurf and other sweet potato diseases is the only method of controlling these, the suggestions point out. The seed may be treated easily by placing it in a bag or basket and inserting this into a wooden tub or barrel containing a mixture of one ounce of corrosive sublimate or bichloride of mercury and seven and one-half gallons of water. At the end of five or ten minutes the potatoes should be removed and rinsed off in a tub of water after which they should be spread out to dry. The same solution can be used three times, four ounces of the corrosive sublimate being enough to treat from six to 10 bushels of seed. Precautions are necessary in handling this material as it is deadly poison.

Disease free soil can be secured for the plant bed from a field that has not grown sweet potatoes for at least six years. Fields that are known to be infected with the diseases are not safe places in which to plant the crop for from four to six years.

After the roots have been treated, they may be cut in two lengthwise and placed in the bed with the cut side down in such a manner that they are not touching. In filling up the hot bed it is best to place two or three inches of soil on the manure, then bed the roots and cover them with about two inches of soil.

TELL THE OTHER SIDE.

When you have occasion to speak of this town, what is the burden of your remarks?

Some complaint, or grievance, perhaps.

The good things of our community life we take as a matter of course. We feel that they are coming to us. We can see no reason for comment. We are mum.

But when anything goes wrong our first inclination is to blow up. Somebody is to blame. Somebody needs a good cussing. And somebody gets cussed—perhaps.

Having let off steam, we are ready for the next round, and become quite human again.

But let's take a new tack and tell the other side next. It is far more pleasant—to those with whom we speak.

EIGHTEEN-FOOT BRIDGES THE RULE ON FEDERAL-AID ROADS.

Highway bridges with a width of roadway less than 18 feet are now being constructed on improved roads, according to engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. In the past some of 12 feet and a good many of 16-foot width have been constructed in an effort to economize but it has proved short sighted economy. Only one line of traffic can pass over a 12-foot roadway and 16 feet of width will not accommodate two lines in safety. Many of the states such as Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, and Massachusetts have found it advisable in replacing old bridges on important roads to make them wide enough to accommodate three and four lines of traffic.

BRIEF FARM NOTES.

Poor seeds are dear at any price. A shovelful of wood ashes scattered around each currant bush and a handful on the crown will serve two purposes—fertilize and prevent insects and disease.

The clover or alfalfa plant is the cheapest and most effective subsoiling plow. It runs deeper than a steel plow, is self-propelling, and in passing, leaves more fertility than it takes.

Keeping the boy on the farm is always a live question. One old practice is to give him a pig and a calf of his own. It works mighty fine. But to allow the boy's pig to become dad's hog is disastrous.

TWO SPOTS.

The people who go to cities on account of their craze for "society" are usually awfully lonely because they don't know anybody.

Not all who compete in the boys and girls clubs can win, but those who try and lose are better off than those who don't try.

Many families who never do anything to give the young folks a good time, complain because they drive all around the country attending dances.

IN THE CURIOSITY SHOP

Torpedoes cost $15,000 each, and are rated as the most expensive ammunition used in warfare.

Butter with a flavor of wine is produced by a farmer in Western New York. He feeds his cows grapes.

HAYES NOT WORTH FIVE-CENT
PIECE as P. M. G. SAYS MANN

Not all of the Republican party leaders at Washington are heart-broken over the fact that Postmaster General Hayes is going to withdraw from the charmed Cabinet circle to enter upon a wider and more varied popularity in the artistic circle of "Doug" and Mary and "Fatty" Arbuckle. There is at least one prominent Republican in Washington who does not give a whoop-la about the almost irreparable loss of Mr. Hayes. He is the former Republican leader of the House, Representative James K. Mann of Illinois. His opinion was expressed in the following colloquy:

Mr. Rosedale (Rep., N. Y.)—I will say to the gentleman from Illinois that when I first proposed this measure I provided for a commission of three, and that this change was suggested by the Postmaster General himself.

Mr. Mann. Oh, the Postmaster General has not been worth a 5-cent piece since he has been Postmaster General. He does not know anything about the Post Office Department; and, for one, I am mighty glad he is getting out of it. His only object has been to be extravagant in his own personal relations with the Government. Long-distance telephoning is his main, long suit. I am only speaking of his official duties.

And I can say this, having no postmaster to be appointed.

WORK THE ROADS.

Spring is practically upon us. Hundreds of thousands of honest American citizens are out of employment and begging for work with which to support their wives and children.

Motorists are annually paying in to the public fund millions of dollars for road improvement.

The stage is all set, the audience is assembled, yet there are no actors to start the play.

We Americans continue to sidestep the ruts or wallow in the muck of the poorest roads in Christendom. It is all wrong.

These idle men should be put to work on state and government improvements and there is nothing more urgently needed than hard surfaced roads.

If the robber prices charged by the cement trust stand in the way of the good roads movement the trust can be decently and deeply buried thru the simple expedient of the states making their own cement.

If the states find that they can manufacture more cement than they can make use of on public works, then the surplus can be readily sold to municipalities and private individuals. That would shove the trust down a little deeper in the hole it is digging for itself.

We want good roads, and we want employment for our idle men.

Both should be furnished without anymore monkeydoodling.

PAYING FOR FOLLY.

Only a few weeks have elapsed since the Roma collapsed and snuffed out the lives of many brave men. Yet the incident is practically forgotten.

We use the word "incident" purposely.

That which affects our pocketbooks or our pleasure is vital, and is remembered.

Most everything else is incidental, including the Roma and its ill fated victims.

The government paid Italy a large sum for the leaky old gas bag, when we should be building our own dirigibles and keeping our own people employed.

That it was defective at the time of its purchase appears to have been known, yet Italy got the money, and we got the bag, and the widows and orphans of the victims got left.

But that, as usual, is incidental.

What we want to impress upon the minds of the people is the fact that we should not buy abroad the things that we should be making in this country.

We have the money, we have the materials that go into construction, we have the man power, and somewhere we have the brains necessary to coordinate and put them to proper use.

We've been crawling long enough. Let's learn to toddle.

OF DOUBTFUL WISDOM.

The State Senate has passed a bill amending the law prohibiting the employment of women in manufacturing concerns in Kentucky more than ten hours a day.

The present law was adopted after a very careful investigation of women in industry. And it is a very moderate act. There are many who contend that the working day, neither for men nor women, should exceed eight hours. There are others who dispute this. But certainly a ten-hour maximum is not unreasonable, as we understand it, it is a special permit to the canning industry to employ women more than ten hours a day for three weeks at a time.

The Evening Post has opposed, and still opposes, the maximum wage bill. We are confident that, among other objections to that device, the fact exists that it would injure those whom it is proposed to help. But this ten-hour day law for women is not a radical proposal. And it has worked well. The Legislature should be very careful about changing it in any way.—Louisville Post.

MIDNIGHT MURDER

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"THEN the only thing you have to go on is the fact that several people in Grafton street recall having heard a cry a few nights ago, and the old man hasn't been seen since."

"That's all, chief. If it weren't for the scream in the night—and they all agree that it was a blood-curdling cry—it would look like a plain case of disappearance. We've been all through the house, but of course we couldn't search it thoroughly without a regular warrant, and there's no ground for issuing one. Epstein may have wandered off somewhere to get away from his wife. She's a regular hellion, they say—though she was nice as pie to us."

John Kane, chief inspector of Scotland Yard, rubbed his chin thoughtfully.

"I'll take a run down to Grafton street myself as soon as I have gotten these reports out of the way," stated Kane. "In the meantime keep an eye on the house, and let me know if anything develops."

When Kane approached the house on Grafton street later in the evening, one of his men reported that there were indications of activity inside the place.

"Looks like they were getting ready to go away or something," said the operative. "There's a drag coming up now. Wouldn't be surprised if the woman, alarmed at our snooping around, is preparing for a getaway."

Kane said nothing, but edged closer to the house. From the meager information at his disposal, he was not at all inclined to credit the theory that a crime had been committed. But there would be no harm in looking things over, particularly if Mrs. Epstein was intending to move.

From the driver of the drag, Kane obtained the information that the luggage was to be taken to Charing Cross thence to be shipped across the channel. The tags were on the various articles, and it was not until the last piece was brought out of the house that Kane noted anything out of the ordinary. Then he motioned to his men to close in.

"Take that chest back into the house," he ordered. "Let's see what's in it!"

"What right have you to give such orders?" demanded a voice from the doorway, and the Scotland Yard man, looking up, caught a glimpse of a tall, gaunt woman glaring down at him from the threshold.

"The right of an officer of the crown to investigate suspicious circumstances," retorted Kane. "I happen to be the chief inspector of Scotland Yard, and, as your husband recently disappeared, I desire to know what is in that box."

It was in the dim, barely-furnished parlor of the house that Kane directed the chest to be placed. The flickering yellow light of a single gas jet cast a ghastly illumination over the scene, and even Kane's iron nerves were shocked when the lid of the box was thrown back, and what appeared to be a ghost sat up and leered out into the room! It was the body of the missing man, the upper portion of the trunk attached to the lid of the box in such a manner that, when the top was thrown back, as if it were alive, it sat up, as if it were alive again.

Even Mrs. Epstein, hardened as she was, cried out at the apparition and then fainted away.

"Quick!" directed Kane. "Find out how the man was killed!"

"A thrust of some long, thin instrument through the heart," reported one of the detectives. "A drop of blood on his chest is the only indication of foul play, but that's what did it, all right. Not a stiletto or a dagger, though. The puncture isn't large enough for that."

The chief inspector examined the wound for a moment carefully, and then, stepping across to where the fainting woman lay, began to fumble with something in her hair.

"Throw some water in her face," he ordered, "and then stand back. I want to find out something before she gets a chance to recover her nerve."

As the woman's eyes opened, she became aware, first, of the body of her dead husband staring at her with night-lens, accusing eyes. Then she saw the chief inspector, standing in front of her, examining under a pocket magnifying glass—something that shone yellow in the light of the jet directly above it.

An instant later, Kane stood over her, his finger indicating the thing he held in his hand.

"Why did you kill your husband at midnight, four days ago?" he demanded. Yes, you did! There's no use denying it! We have witnesses who heard the scream. We have proof that you were alone in the house with him. We know that he had a considerable sum of money concealed on the premises and—here his voice became the voice of doom—"I have here the weapon with which the murder was committed—your bath, with a tiny bit of the dead man's blood clotted close to the head where you neglected to wipe it off!"

Some months later, Mrs. Epstein was sentenced to penal servitude for life, while the bath was added to that gruesome collection which adorns the archives of Scotland Yard.

S. B.—To make child desertion law apply to cases where a woman is about to become a mother.

S. B.—To regulate sale of medicines for live stock.

TIMELY REMINDERS.

Do not turn cows on pasture too early. Thoroughly clean and disinfect the barn and whitewash the interior. Selling milk or cream means less work and more money. If there is not a co-operative creamery or cheese factory near you, why not organize one?

The cattle market is usually beginning to advance by this time. Watch it and sell when it seems most favorable. Market feeder pigs if you are not in a position to feed them for the summer and fall market.

Repair and paint machinery. Lay in a supply of bolts, washers, nails, rivets and other necessary tools. Sharpen plow edges, oil and repair harness, build fences.

Plow off the banks of jullees and prepare them for black locust, bush-ber, Bermuda grass, honeylocust and sweet clover. Set out lucid sprouts.

UNSUNG HERO

FOUND IN LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY HOSPITAL—STOPPED 102 BULLETS DURING WORLD WAR—OPERATED ON FIFTEEN TIMES.

Lexington, Ky.—Sergeant Alvin York and Sergeant Samuel T. Woodfill may divide honors for capturing or destroying Germans in the World War, but a hospital here is a man who is in a class by himself. He probably stopped more bullets than any man in the American army, and, unsung, has a war record that vies with those of York and Woodfill.

Samuel Joseph, Hazard, Ky., is recovering from the effects of an operation on his foot performed last Tuesday. It was his fifteenth. Altogether 67 bullets have been taken from his arms, legs and body. He was hit 102 times.

Joseph, a student at the Sue Bennett Memorial School at London, today declared cheerfully that with the exception of his foot "I never felt better in my life." A large man physically, he would be characterized in the vernacular as "husky."

Fifteen months at the front, during which he was the top more than a dozen times without a scratch and then to stop 102 bullets. Fifteen of the bullets passed through his body.

Joseph was sergeant in G. Company, Eighteenth Infantry, First Division.

VETERANS EMPLOYMENT DAY. The American Legion has asked that March 20th be observed as American Legion Employment day, that being the final date of the drive to find work for all service men. It was suggested that employers display in their windows a star for every service man put to work.

It is contrary to every sentiment of national pride and obligation that these fellows should be allowed to remain idle. The men who took the heavy burdens of war service, many of whom were exposed to deadly peril, and all of whom expected to take these risks, are entitled not merely to special honors, but to special consideration. There is a collective obligation resting upon the community to see that these men find work.

Every business house which employs considerable help ought to feel responsible for doing its share. Employers ought to look over their forces and see if they could not manage to find work for some ex-service man.

FARM WOMEN NOT A SUFFERING CLASS.

Many magazine and newspaper articles are printed tending to show the farmer's wives have a hard life, and that the lot is an unhappy one. It is true that many of them do a great deal of muscular work, much of which could and should be saved by introducing labor saving devices.

Yet country women as a class are contented people. They form intimate friendships with their neighbors and townspeople. If they desire social life, they can associate themselves with church and other societies. They can form card clubs and literary circles. The old time isolation of country life has broken down in these days of the automobile and telephone and country women are not in need of sympathy.

Special Distribution Trees For Shade and Ornamental Planting.

The State Department of Agriculture has in the two nurseries located at the State Fair Grounds, Louisville, Ky., and at Frankfort, Ky., the following trees for distribution:

	feet in height
Ash white	3 to 7
Chitalpa	2 to 4
Cherry, wild	5 to 8
Elm, red	2 to 6
Maple, silver	2 to 5
Maple, red	3 to 7
Locust, black	2 to 4
Oak pin	3 to 6
Oak, red	2 to 6
Oak, chestnut	2 to 5
Red bud	3 to 6
Sycamore	3 to 6

These trees may be secured in lots of not less than ten trees at the nominal amount of 5c each for trees up to 6 feet in height and 10c each for trees 7 to 10 feet in height for expense of packing and drayage, f. o. b. express office at Louisville or Frankfort.

These trees are somewhat small in size, easily handled, making small express charges and when planted should grow rapidly.

Neighbors or communities should order jointly to save expense in shipment. Form clubs and send order in at once.

These trees are available for roadside, parks, school grounds and street and lawn planting.

Send your order to or Communicate with F. W. Winstead, R. D. 22, Box 25 Louisville, Ky.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Ringo paid the school a visit Wednesday and took group pictures of the high school and 7th and 8th grades. The proofs were received Thursday.

An interesting chapel program was given by the Irish students of B. H. S. Friday morning in honor of St. Patrick's day. Several visitors were present.

Dorothy and James Cason, formerly of Florence, entered school here last week.

Miss Hester Kelly, of Bellevue, visited our school last Friday.

Mr. Kinsey was absent from school one day last week on account of illness.

Kathryn Maurer, of Bellevue, entered our school last week.

Last Saturday night Miss Turner entertained the basketball team. The motored to town in time to see the basketball game between the U. of C. and Miami. It was an exciting contest but the U. of C. boys were victorious.

RIGHT HERE.

The clean-up and paint-up season is at hand, and the tidying up and renovating that should be done, should call attention of property owners to the importance of leaving undone no longer the painting and cleaning up of the trash that has accumulated around your premises during the winter months should be clean and clear away.

The extremely high prices of paints and oils during the war, and for some time afterward, discouraged painting. The expense of buying, and the cost of applying paint caused many of the property owners to go on strike against what they considered extortion.

It was real economy in many cases, no doubt, to defer painting till prices were less exorbitant. But nothing can be gained and much will in time be lost, by deferring painting indefinitely.

Good boatmen say that water never should be allowed to touch a boat. The same thing is true of buildings that are not of stone or of some other material which water cannot destroy. Whenever water touches a boat or a wood building damage is done. Whenever sun and wind follow water, upon a boat or a building that has been touched by water, more damage is done.

A great deal of good may be done for Burlington by the paint-up and clean-up campaign. A great deal of benefit will accrue to property owners who paint up, and to owners and tenants who clean up.

The Rabbit Hash-Rising Sun Ferry is now being operated by J. W. Whitlock, and the patrons of the ferry are receiving the best of service. No delays and prompt service at all times. Mr. Whitlock expects to make this one of the best ferries on the Ohio river.

A. J. Livingston, living near Ashland City, Tennessee, says: "I feel like going from house to house and telling the people about Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington."

TIME ALONE WILL TELL.

The 1922 Legislature adjourned last Wednesday after having been in session sixty legislative days. Several laws were enacted that were necessary and a number of others that might not have been necessary. But little could be expected of a Legislature in which the Senate was so closely divided, and the Governor of the political faith opposite to that of the majority in the Senate. The majority in the house had no trouble in passing political and party measures but when the Senate voted against a party measure, and then left for home but returned in time to assist his party in enacting other party measures over the veto of the Governor. The registration bill requires all voters to register, and if you will you will lose your right to vote, these registrations are held annually, to supplement the registration by all who have become voters since the last registration, this will not be a popular law in the rural communities, but it will prevent frauds in the larger communities, and it will make impossible the importation of large numbers of persons to vote in those sections that are to be carried in favor of the party in power. This bill is especially aimed at Louisville. The school boards were given additional powers by which they can levy more taxes for school purposes but nothing was done for the improvement of the road system. Time alone will tell us the benefit that we are to derive from the laws enacted at the 1922 session of the Kentucky Legislature.

HEALTH IN THE COUNTRY

It has been claimed that the physical examinations of country boys for the selective draft showed them as a whole less qualified than city boys. While some may doubt the correctness of this statement, many country boys did not show up well in these examinations. These defects are needless, as country life offers the best chances for physical development.

The trouble is that many country young people are not well looked after. Some are mouth breathers. Some need slight operation on their throats. The development of many is retarded by poor teeth. The pure air of the country is a wonder if it has a chance, but the parents and schools must do their share, and see that their youngsters have good modern health care.

WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Campbell-Boone Cow Testing Association Leads in State.

H. F. Link, County Agent of the Co-operative Extension Work, conducted in connection with the Kentucky College of Agriculture, announced that the Campbell-Boone Cow Testing Association led in the state in number of cows on honor roll for the month of February. This roll is compiled from 139 cows on semi-official tests in the state of which 22 made the honor roll.

Of this number 12 cows were owned by members of the Campbell-Boone Association. A Holstein, owned by George Wanner, Jr., of Clayville, led with a record of 145.5 pounds of milk containing more than 4% pounds of butter fat in two days.

The following Boone and Campbell county dairymen are owners of the winners: George Wanner, Jr., of Clayville; Hubert Conner, of Hebron; C. O. Hempling, of Constance; Alfred Eisen, of California; J. E. Riddell, of Louisville; Roy Joseph Broerman, California; and O. C. Hafer, of Hebron.

LOCAL HIGHWAYS BECOMING LONG-HAUL THOROUGHFARES

The United States is now in a period of great highway development, and in a few years many roads which now carry only local traffic originating largely within 5 or 10 miles of the road will be carrying a large percentage of through traffic, much of it coming from outside the State. This is the opinion of officials of the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, based upon the report of two traffic censuses taken by the bureau in cooperation with the State Highway Department of Connecticut.

The roads selected were part of a fairly complete system of highways.

The census showed an average of 2,907 passenger cars and 281 trucks passing the recording station a day; and the second, 3,332 cars and 511 trucks. Forty-seven per cent of the cars came from without the State. Drivers were questioned as to length of travel for the day, and results showed average figures of 70 miles and 52.4 miles for the two censuses.

ATTENDED BY LARGE CROWD.

The sale of the personal property of Tony Rus held near Bellevue, last Saturday, was attended by a large crowd, and auctioneer J. M. Edrington reports that everything sold brought good prices—cows from $75 to $102; horses from $50 to $100, and corn $1.04 a bushel.

"No place like home" appeals to the man who is too lazy to work.

It would never do for some people to be farmers. Their grunting would make the hogs jealous.

Motorists are elated to find that air for their tires will be free again this year.

THE GENIUS OF ST. PATRICK. March 17 was a gala day to some millions of people of Celtic ancestry in this country, who look back to St. Patrick as a heroic and winsome representative of their race tradition.

The sons of St. Patrick have been a center of interest, as the American people have watched their struggles to establish a free government on their home soil, and they have keenly regretted the divisions that have arisen between the two factions of Irishmen now struggling for the mastery. They earnestly hope that these differences may be composed, and that the new Irish Free state may go forward to prosperity and civic progress.

The accounts of St. Patrick dwell on his deep spiritual nature and his power of human appeal. He came to Ireland when there were no Christians there. When he died there were no heathen there. Such a man must have had a wonderful gift for influencing people. If the new Irish Free state can show these same qualities of winsomeness and power, it will win a notable place in the world.

ELECTRICITY—A LABOR SAVER.

In a recent address at Cleveland, Roger W. Babson described the past ten years as the era of automobiles and said that in his opinion the next ten years would be just as largely the era of electricity. It is certain that we are experiencing at the present time an interest that has never been expressed before in the better and greater use of electrical service. We are all familiar with the various types of lamps, washing, ironing, cleaning, food mixing, cream separator electric machinery, but a Michigan corporation has just put on the market an electrical machine which will wash dishes, vegetables or bottles, whip cream, beat eggs, and carry out many operations such as scouring, scrubbing and sharpening cutlery. Through the use of a small thumb screw the egg-beater is interchangeable with a bottle-washer brush; by means of an extension, a wire brush for scouring purposes, an emery wheel and a buffer may be employed.

And, it would seem from the development made in the art in the past ten years that we are just coming into a remarkable era of electrical labor saving devices.

SOME CHICKENS.

J. J. Tanner, who resides about a mile out on the Florence pike, had his flock of Herold Rock chickens culled by an expert one day last week, and the 40 hens, thrown out to be sent to market. The forty hens weighed 267 lbs., for which he received $44.16—an average of $1.10 each.

Rev. W. W. Adams will copy the bulletin at the Burlington Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening.

MAKING CO-OPERATION

A SUCCESS

The movement for co-operative marketing of food products has achieved a tremendous advance during the past 12 months. These enterprises, like any other business, depend on having good management. The people who direct them must thoroughly understand the product which they attempt to handle, and must have a good idea of how to market products. They must be good salesmen, and how to get good prices. They must be systematic and mathematical, so that everything shall be done in an efficient way.

The main thing is to get ahead, brainy men with business capacity to run such projects. If that kind of men are managing it, it will succeed even if the form of association has defects. But if you do not have that kind of men, the thing can't win out, even if the form of organization is perfect.

Some cooperative enterprises have gone to pieces, because the members were not willing to pay salaries sufficient to secure competent management.

It will seem to the newspaper people who are watching co-operative experiments with deep interest, that the members of co-operative societies would have to put in considerable time for the benefit of the movement without getting paid for it. If the farmers, who join in such movements simply elect their managers and expect them to do the whole thing, the movement may not be a success. Few organizations achieve great results where the work is left to paid officials and where the rest sit back and do nothing.

All the members of such a group need to assist so far as they can, giving their time to attendance on committee meetings and to investigating new ideas and methods. It is not possible to get something for nothing in this world. If co-operative movement gets better prices for the farmers, it will be because they put their brains to work to devise some better system of distributing products than has existed in the past.

WHY CHILDREN LEAVE SCHOOL.

One reason why so many people lack general intelligence, is that so many drop out of school, when they get to high school or earlier. A veteran teacher says that the movement gets better prices for the farmers, it will be because they put their brains to work to devise some better system of distributing products than has existed in the past.

Public sentiment demands that children be drilled very thoroughly in fundamentals like arithmetic and English. If this effort is made to give them some variety of studies in the grade schools, it is commonly regarded as a new fashion fad.

Yet grammar school children may need some variety in mental diet. Some of them who do not take well to books, can be helped by courses in manual work, domestic science, or some form of vocational training. Introducing this kind of work has had a wonderful effect to arouse the mentality and ambition of some who have little gift for book study and to persuade them to stay on in school life a little longer.

A BLESSING.

The following card of thanks recently appeared in a Kansas paper: "I wish to thank the city authorities for quarantining my family and one of three weeks recently because one of them had smallpox. During that time my wife caught up with her sewing; we had three square meals a day, as no one came in and she was not permitted to leave; we enjoyed three weeks of good night's rest; and best of all, a cousin with four children had arranged to visit us, and left town so scared she will never come back again. So for these and other blessings we are very thankful for the quarantine."

BIG BUSINESS BUNCLES

Big business makes a mistake in opposing the soldier bonus so strenuously. It is not wise, and it is not patriotic.

If it were not for the work our soldiers did in France Big Business would not be as big a sit is today. It is not paying enormous tribute in one way or another to a foreign country. It would not be dominant, arrogant, as it is now, but would be begging and cringing for mercy and favors. A victorious Germany would not have proven a merciful taskmaster.

Big Business forgets. It needs to have its memory jogged.

TWO SPOTS.

After complaining because their home towns do not grow faster, many people invest their savings in projects a long distance from home that they know nothing about.

Good many of these fellows that would like to see the cities two years ago, look at a square meal now with more respect than formerly.

The fellows who two years ago were singing "How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm" are now singing "How you gonna keep 'em up in the cities when they can't get down to do."

THE WORLD'S HEADACHE.

It is commonly supposed that fighting a war is the most difficult proposition that a nation ever has to face. But the experiences of the world since November 1918, suggest that it is not such a difficult proposition to fight a war, as to pick up the pieces after the war stops.

A war always makes a certain proposition to fight a war, as to pick up the pieces after the war stops. Governments in time of peace have to restrict their expenses to their income. But in time of war, they borrow without limit and money is spent like water. That provides work for everybody at high pay, and people are generally prosperous. Thus the mass of the people may be better contented in a time of war than in peace times.

But this condition of satisfaction is like a man who is gloriously happy while drinking intoxicating liquor. The exhilaration passes off, and then he has to pay with a severe headache.

The world has been having its headache for the past two years. No country can go on indefinitely on borrowed money. When the effort is made to get back to a basis of sane and normal expenditure and production, it is as difficult as the recovery of the man who has been on aspre.

In a time of war all elements in the community work together to win a victory and they sacrifice their own selfish interests. When peace comes they consider their own affairs and work at cross purposes. The results produce industrial and social troubles.

Wars have always been followed by difficult periods. But invariably those troubles have passed over in a few years, and the country has gone on to renewed prosperity. The United States has advanced in wealth and equipment and intelligence so wonderfully in the past half century, that the recovery ought to be much quicker than it was after the Civil war.

The parents who sing "Where is my wandering boy tonight" are usually safe in assuming that he will turn up in time next morning to get breakfast.

Notice to Dog Owners.

I have been authorized to indict all owners of dogs who have not purchased tags for them this year, and shall do so at the next regular term of Boone County Grand Jury which convenes April 10th. This order was sent me from Frankfort and I am subject to indictment if I fail to do my duty. By securing your tags right away you will save yourself prosecution and heavy fine.

Seasonal Tips For Gardeners
Planning succession crops for the garden will make it possible to grow the greatest number of vegetables on the space available. Early peas can be followed by fall beets or cel-

Tuesday was the first day of spring.

The month of March has given us had as well as good weather.

Due to the heavy rains, it looks like the seeding of tobacco beds may be late.

Mrs. John Poston and son Paul, of Hebron, spent Sunday with Elza Poston and wife.

V. W. Gaines and son Melvin, of Cincinnati, were transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday.

So far the fruit crop has not been damaged in this section, according to reports from local experts.

The sale advertised by J. L. Riley Admr. and Day and Ogden was postponed until March 28th 1922.

The Chesterwhite Breeders Association held a meeting at the Farm Bureau last Saturday afternoon.

The members of the Boone County Poultry Association have received orders for 450 settings of eggs.

County Tax Commissioner, J. S. Cason, has moved from Florence to his farm out on the East Bend pike.

Donald Lee, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick, is improving after a serious illness of several days.

Mary Louise, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Renaker, who has been on the sick list for several days, is about well again.

Ira L. Walton, one of the county's hustling young farmers, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, was transacting business at the county seat, Monday.

For the next week or so Sheriff Hume will be the most looked for, yet unwelcome caller in the county—the grand jury convenes the second Monday in April.

When the board of equalization gets through and advises the tax payers of Boone of their decisions, there will be something else raised besides taxes, we fear.

During these dry times did you ever notice that a fellow when he picks up an empty bottle with the cork in it, he will invariably pull the cork and smell of the contents of the empty?

W. B. Johnson, of Walton, advertised a farm for sale in the Recorder last week. While in town Monday he called at this office and said, "take that ad of farm for sale out, I have sold the farm." It pays to advertise.

C. T. Claunch, the Erlanger real estate man, sold last week Harry Brown to Joseph Hill, a 6-room house for $2850.

Also from Clarence West to Earl Mudman a three room bungalow. Price private.

On account of sickness the Box Social advertised to be held at the Woolper school house Friday night, March 17th, was postponed until Friday night, March 24th. Everyone is invited to come and enjoy an evening's entertainment. The proceeds will be used to purchase books for the school library.

The present law that requires the owners of dogs to obtain a license, the tax of which went to create the fund to pay the damage caused by dogs that injured sheep and other animals, was repealed by the last Legislature and a law enacted that permits each family to own one dog without paying a license tax. As a larger number of families own only one dog there will be but little funds collected from the sale of dog licenses, not enough to pay the damage done to sheep by dogs. This will require owners of sheep that have been injured and killed by dogs to sue and recover the damage from the owner of the dogs that did the damage, a very unsatisfactory proceeding. The law should not have been changed and the Legislature made a mistake when the new dog law was adopted. The dog law as it was, was satisfactory to a large majority of our people.

RAPE PASTURE BALANCES*CORN FOR GROWING PIGS

By reason of the food materials which it contains, rape has come to be recognized as one of the best pasture crops with which to balance a corn ration for growing pigs, experienced hog raisers say. When young, the crop contains as much protein as many legumes, it is said, and the proportion of protein to carbohydrate found in it makes it an ideal forage crop for offsetting the large amount of carbohydrate present in corn. The crop can be seeded as soon as the ground is dry enough and when seeded early will supply pasture from May until frost. "On the College of Agriculture farm, we have found that the crop does well only on rich soil," H. G. Sellards, swine field agent said. "In Iowa it has furnished as much as 18 tons of green feed an acre but should be sown in the spring when there are less than five blades remaining on the stalk.

"When the crop is to be grown alone for hog pasture, five to eight pounds of seed sowed into each acre will give a good stand although the heavier rate of seeding is preferable since the seed is cheap. It also may be used with oats, three to five pounds of rape and one and one-half bushels of oats an acre being a good rate of seeding in this case. When used with oats and clover, about three pounds of rape, one bushel of oats and eight pounds of clover seed an acre will be found satisfactory."

THE MEAT IN DUTY.

It is the duty of every citizen to vote in the primaries, and also at election time.

But duty does not begin or end there.

Going along with our party it not enough. It is not the way to insure good government.

Just "going along" or "bes the wrong element to secure control of the party and that means poor government when the party is in control. It also aids in putting the party out of control.

Our greatest care should be exercised in nominating our candidates.

We should study both the past and the present of each person who is up for nomination. If his past is not clean we should not consider him for a moment. If his present does not offer prospects of satisfactory achievements while in office he should be passed by in favor of a better man.

The ability to make pleasing and enticing noises with his mouth does not necessarily indicate that a man would be successful as a public official. It requires brains and integrity as well as words, to make good.

"Going along with our party" is all right, provided we harness up the right men for leaders.

And the man should fit the harness.

NOTICE.

No dog tags will be sent by mail unless 5c postage is included with fee.

M. E. ROGERS, County Clerk.

Mrs. Laura Martin and daughter, Miss Nell, and Miss Pink Cowen entertained last Sunday, the following: Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Bryan, of Lockland, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Roessler, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ecker and son, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newman, Miss Marion Molloy, Mr. John Blades and Edward Reel, of Clifton, Ohio.

MRS. BELLE CASON.

Isabelle Roberts, (Cason) daughter of Thomas and Roxanna Roberts, was born in Boone county Dec. 7th, 1853.

She was united in marriage to Benjamin C. Cason October 1, 1874, by Elder E. Stephens.

September 1877, she confessed her faith in her Saviour and united with the Middle Creek Baptist church, which later became Bellevue Baptist church, and was a faithful member until death. She departed this life March 13th, 1922, at her home in Bellevue, aged 68 years, three months and six days. She is survived by five daughters and three sons, Mrs. O. P. Phipps, of Lawrenceburg, Indiana; Mrs. G. W. Sanford, of Glendale, Arizona; Mrs. Richard Marshall, Mrs. Linnie Love, Miss Roxanna, Carlos, Ralph Z. and Thos. B. Cason, all of this county, also two sisters Mrs. Ella Beasley of California, Mrs. Mary Craven and two brothers, John and Thos. Z. Roberts. Those with nine grandchildren remain to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother sister and grandmother. One son Stanley Cason, also the husband and father have preceded her to the great beyond. Mrs. Cason has been an invalid for a long while and at times her suffering was great, but she bore her sufferings with patience, and when the final summons came her gentle spirit took its flight from the frail tired body, and she entered the eternal rest like a babe falling into peaceful sleep. She was a Christian woman of high character and an exemplary life, one of the most lovable women of our community. She had a host of friends who were attached to her for her many qualities of virtue and noble womanhood, tender and loving, sympathetic and self-sacrificing. Her death came as a great shock to this community, and her children and relatives have the fullest sympathy of a host of friends, and while we are keenly aware of our loss yet our sympathies go out especially to the bereaved children whose loss is all the greater because of their own worth of love and tenderness of feeling.

To love to hold and then to part, Is the saddest thing of the human heart. Earth has lost its look of gladness, Heaven seems to us more bright, Since the spirit of our mother took its happy homeward flight.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors for the expressions of love and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our dearly beloved mother, Isabelle Cason. Especially do we wish to thank Rev. C. L. Nicely for his kind visits and comforting words, Dr. E. W. Duncan for his kind and untiring efforts, C. S. Chambers for the kind and efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral, also the donors of the beautiful floral offerings, and the pall-bearers for the kindness and sympathy shown.

The Bereaved Children.

HAVEN'T TIME.

Young college students are not as good at spelling as they used to be, and Editor Fitzhugh, of the Wilmore Enterprise, has "a reason for it." "How could they be," he asks, "when in addition to the courses they took ten years ago, they have taken on jazz, jazz, dress reform and higher criticism, with intermittent studies in evolution, evolution and biological reflexes, excursions in the realms of psychical indeterminism and the philosophy of intellectual integration along with Latin, Greek, mathematics and regular old standbys that went to make up a college course in the days when it was considered more important to be able to write a good letter than it was to compose a Hebrew thesis? What time have they for such plebeian things as their three R's in the multiplicity of their modern delvings into the whicness of the whence?"

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Misses Grow and Turner went to the city Tuesday night to attend a concert at Music Hall given by Fritz Kreisler, Austrian violinist.

The Professor is noted for his absentmindedness. In hurrying to school one morning he was stricken with the idea that he had forgotten his watch. Consequently he took his timepiece from his pocket to ascertain whether or not he had time to go back after it.

On account of the bad weather the Riley-Day-Ogden sale was postponed, and will be held Tuesday March 28. Sale will begin at 10 a. m.

The Board of Equalization adjourned Tuesday afternoon after a week's session. The list of twenty-one hundred taxpayers were increased. The Board will meet again on April 6th, to hear complaints.

The sale advertised by J. L. Riley Admr. and Day and Ogden was postponed until March 28th 1922.

Marriage licenses were issued to Earl Daniels 23, and Gayle Fitzpatrick, 21, of Cincinnati, and Charles W. Elinger, 35, and Grace Hartke, of St. Bernard, Ohio, last week.

ATTEND THE RILEY-DAY-OGDEN SALE, March 28th.

In commenting on the things accomplished by the 1922 session of the Kentucky Legislature, the Louisville Evening Post says:

"Looked at from the standpoint of the things accomplished rather than from the standpoint of the dangers avoided, the work of this Legislature may be made the subject of more or less severe criticism. Very little, indeed, has been accomplished by a constructive way. Our educational problems remain just about as they were when the Legislature met. Not one step has been taken in the difficult but highly important matter of determining the proper method of 'taxing coal.' The measure, which has been confirmed in their privilege of conducting public gambling on their premises. The $50,000,000 road bond proposition was not submitted to the State, and although a diligent effort was made by the majority party to submit that proposition in the best way possible, few people believe that the bonds could have been ratified, and the decision not to submit the bonds was wise. A bill has been passed to reorganize the State Highway Commission, and the validity of that act remains to be tested in the courts.

"The law legalizing the Tobacco Co-operative Society was promptly passed, and this may be put on the credit side of the ledger."

Read and Smile

BRIEFLY STATED
(Judge).

In a Western city, just before an election for city officers, one of the candidates, a Mr. Grow, a very fat man who aspired to be Councilman from his ward, made a house-to-house canvass soliciting votes.

At one place his knock brought forth a young and frisky dog, which leaped through the open door when it was opened by the lady of the house, and ran the candidate off the porch and down the front walk toward the gate.

The woman at the door, knowing the dog to be harmless, called to the fleeing candidate: "What are you running for, Mr. Grow?"

And Mr. Grow, with the office in his mind, even in the presence of danger, called back between gasps: "Councilman of this ward, madam!"

ORATORY.

Former Senator Penrose once said at the Philadelphia Club:

"There are old fogies who maintain that oratory has disappeared from our midst. They sigh for the fiery eloquence of the days before the Civil War. As a matter of fact, though, they don't realize it, what they are sighing for is oratory like that of the frock-coated man, with tobacco juice leaking from the corners of his mouth, who waved his arms around his head and roared:

"I may be up a tree, but my back is to the wall, and I'll die in the last ditch, going down keel foremost with all flags flying, thence from the heaven-kissing mountain-top of Democracy to burn my boats, hurl defiance at the foe, and soar on the wings of victory from sea to sea, regardless of the party lash which gnashes its teeth at my heels."

STRONG LANGUAGE.

A good story is going around New York about Alfred Noyes, the naturalized English poet.

Mr. Noyes, the story runs, met at a Princeton dinner party the other evening, the editor of a literary weekly. Smarting under the recent rejection of a batch of half a dozen poems, Mr. Noyes called across the table to the editor in a loud voice:

"I saw a good thing in that sheet of yours the other day."

"Yes. What was it?" the editor beamed.

"A pound of fish," said Mr. Noyes beaming balefully back.

SAVED THEIR HONOR.

Three Scotsmen went to church, each clutching tightly the bawbee he intended to contribute when the plate was passed.

Consternation reigned when the minister announced that this particular Sunday an effort was to be made to raise the mortgage, and asked every member of the congregation to make a substantial offering.

During the prayer the Scots held a whispered conversation as to the solution of their dilemma, and reached a satisfactory decision.

One faintly and the other two carried him out.

CASH CONVERSATION.

The crowded street car was rolling and bumping on its way, and at a sharp turning the strap-hangers were thrown off their balance. A minister in the crowd stepped on a little boy's toes, whereupon the boy let out a yell and hollered. "Gosh darn it all."

"I'm sorry," said the minister, "but you should not say those words, it is very wrong. Here, take this quarter, and promise me never to use such language again."

At the next turning, somebody stepped on a big navy's toes, and when he got his breath he turned to the minister and said, "Mister I've got a word in my mouth worth a dollar."

TOO GOOD FOR THE WORLD.

With fear and trembling he approached the doctor. "I know there's something wrong with my heart, doctor. I have a feeling that I'm not going to live very long."

"Nonsense! Give up smoking."

"Never smoked in my life, doctor."

"Well, stop drinking."

"I am a total abstainer from alcoholic drink."

"Well, try going to bed earlier; get more sleep."

"I'm always in bed at 9 o'clock."

"Oh, well, all I can say is, my dear sir, that I think you had better let nature take its course. You're a little too good for this world."—Everybody's Magazine.

Better Employment Conditions.

The latest report of the United States Employment service is very hopeful, and it expresses the belief that early spring will witness a large revival of industrial activity.

With the starting of highway and other construction jobs and the renewal of farm operations, a great body of idle men should be put to work, and their improved earning power will start up many idle wheels.

With so many conditions presaging expansion of trade, some prudent business men should look out lest they suffer by their own caution. It happens on all business booms, that a lot of people do not get the benefit of renewed activity. They had no faith that it would come, and they failed to get ready for it.

OF BEAD-TRIMMED CREPE

When you go in quest of a new blouse keep in mind two phrases—"crepe de chine" and "over the skirt," and in all the displays you will find the blouses repeating them. There are many simple over-the-skirt styles similar to the pretty blouse shown here, and they invite the seamstress to try her hand at blouse making. This is made of a colored crepe, with white in the collar and cuffs, ornamented with stitching of silk floss and trimmed with beads.

KENTUCKY CROP AND LAND-VALUE REPORT, MARCH 1922.

The March crop report issued by the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna shows the average values of improved farm lands in Kentucky have fallen to about two thirds what they were March 1st, 1920, and that on March 1st, 1922, Kentucky farmers held about 83 per cent of their previous 5-year amount of corn, 78 per cent of their 5-year average amount of wheat, and 72 per cent of their 5-year average amount of oats. The carry-over of corn and oats March 1, 1921, from the 1920 crop was large, but these crops in Kentucky in 1921 were much smaller than the 1920 crops.

The average amount of corn on Kentucky farms March 1, 1917 to 1921 inclusive, has been about 40,647,000 bus. and of oats about 2,001,000 bus. Of last year's Kentucky corn crop 41 per cent (or 33,682,000 bus.) still was held by farmers on March 1, 1922, compared to 50 per cent of the 1920 crop or (50,844,000 bus.) on farms March 1, 1921. About 12 per cent of Kentucky's 1921 wheat crop (or 761,000 bus.) was held on farms March 1, 1922, compared to 18 per cent of the 1920 crop or 900,000 bus.) on farms March 1, 1921. Of the 1921 Kentucky oat crop farmers held 26 per cent (or 1,447,000 bus.) March 1, 1922, compared to 36 per cent of the 1920 crop (or about 2,699,000 bus.) held on farms March 1st, 1921. Kentucky farmers' holdings of barley (nearly all of which is grown in a few Blue Grass counties) was about the same (14,000 bus.) March 1, 1922 and March 1, 1921, about 10 per cent of the previous year's crop being held on farms March 1, both years.

Average land values, according to reports from farmers and others throughout Kentucky, have fallen from $85 per acre average for improved farms March 1, 1920, to $57 average March 1, 1922, and from $62 average for unimproved farm lands March 1, 1920, to $42 average March 1, 1922. The average value per acre reported this spring for poor plow land is $28 compared to $42 two years ago; good plow land $67 compared to $95 two years ago; and the average of all grades of plow land $47 compared to $70 on March 1, 1920. As there have been comparatively few sales during the last several months these estimated values are based partly on previous sales and on prices at which farmers now are holding, as well as on recent sales, this year's valuation being, therefore, largely estimates.

SWEET BEULAH LAND.

(William Allen White, in Judge)

The 1920 census reveals the fact that in three Kentucky counties no one has a motor car. Sure here is the "land that is fairer than day!" No motor car, no Greek temples on the corners dispensing gasoline and misinformation about the roads. No places where they keep time on a repeal job with the speedometer; no dinner talk about the new models, no accidents and deaths. Probably there are no telephones and no prohibition, and no votes for women, and the world still is unsafe for democracy. Holy, holy, holy smoke! What a place for the simple life! Here Dr. Nellie Bly still is going around the world, pigs in clover still agitate the rustic mind, and Mary Garden could walk in the cool of those sylvan glades with Salome's seventh veil over her arm and no one could misunderstand her noble purpose.

Some one should lead Menoken there, tell him to appoint an official Adam and Eve for the dump, let them name the livestock while he is in his innocence goes to work as Providence to make the world over as it should be.

Five million miles of wire are used in the New York city telephone system.

Raise ALL Your Chicks

After the trouble and expense of hatching good chicks, you want to raise them all—into heavy layers and husky brooders. It's a lot cheaper to raise them than to replace them even if you had the time. So take no chances—give them the start that will make them sturdy and keep them growing—feed them the original, dependable "baby food for baby chicks."

Pratts Buttermilk Baby Chick Food

Should be fed for the critical first three to six weeks, because it contains exactly what the delicate little bodies need, for building bone, muscle and feather. Start with the first meal and count on it for results in husky, well-developed youngsters that will continue to grow to profitable maturity.

Used every season by thousands of successful chick raisers, because it raises the chicks, relieves you of danger, worry and loss. Depend upon it for your chicks—try it at our risk.

TIME AND TIDE WAITS

FOR NO MAN.

"Prune and spray" as well as "watch and pray" may well be adopted at this season. The killing of last year's fruit crop resulted in a luxuriant tree growth and development that will tend to abundant yields this year. It also resulted in many bare pantries at this time. The continual cold snaps of this spring are retarding the budding of trees, giving greater chance of escape from freezing and killing.

It is just as profitable to spray to prevent destruction of fruit by disease and insect pests, as it is to gather the fruit when ripened. Who would tolerate the man who left a tree loaded with luscious Grimes Golden or Delicious to rot and freeze on the ground? Proper spraying will increase the yield and quality of your fruit threefold and often tenfold, or it may mean the difference between a profitable crop and absolute loss.

The alarming part of our story is that winter is past, spring is here, the buds are swelling, and your days for work are few. Don't save 20c per gallon on lime sulphur and lose $2.00 per bushel on a whole load of apples. I will be glad to furnish you with spraying instructions for the various fruits or help you in any way I can.

"Some little bug will get you if you don't watch out."

W. D. SUTTON,
County Agent.

Tobacco News.

Jas. W. Taylor, near Willow Grove, Bracken county, delivered at Augusta 2470 pounds, on which he was given an advance of $20.49 per hundred.

ooo

The highest grade price in Bourbon county this season was placed by the graders of the Burley Tobacco Co-operative Association on a crop of 5,600 pounds, raised by J. M. Algerson on 4 acres of ground on the farm he recently sold to Speaker Jas. H. Thompson. The average was $16.38 per one hundred pounds.

ooo

The Burley Tobacco Co-operative Association last week paid the banks the balance of the loans extended to finance the Association, including the million advance by Judge Bingham, and is now out of debt. Some record, that didn't have to call on the War Corporation for funds.

ooo

It is reported on good authority that the association is planning to make another distribution of money to the growers as soon as all of the tobacco has been received which will be within the next two or three weeks. This is good news for the farmers and shows that the association is making a wonderful record for its first year in business.

ooo

The Carlisle warehouses have received up to the week ending March 4, 3,342,368 pounds of tobacco on which has been made an advance payment of $242,505.79.

This tobacco was handled at a cost of 18 cents per hundred, so it can very readily be seen that the co-operative plan of marketing is the cheaper for the grower than it is remembered that, under the loose leaf system, the floor charge alone was 25 cents per hundred. Based on last season's market average, the grower has marketed his tobacco at this point at just a little less than one-third of what he paid on last year's crop.

TRIALS SHOW MORE FARMERS WOULD PROFIT BY SILO USE

Results of beef feeding trials conducted in various parts of the State show that the silo could be added as a profitable piece of equipment to many Kentucky farms that do not have one at the present time, beef cattle specialists at the College of Agriculture say. The State now has about 10,000 silos, this number being sufficient to take care of only about five per cent of the State's corn crop when it is made into silage, it is said. The chief advantages of a silo are that it provides economical storage, preserves the corn or forage crop in a succulent and palatable condition and permits the complete utilization of the crop for feed. Regardless of whether or not it is made of hollow tile, crested wooden staves, cement staves or monolithic concrete, the silo must have certain features in order to produce sweet silage of a desirable kind. J. B. Kelly, head of the college farm engineering section has pointed out.

The walls should be amply reinforced to resist the bursting pressure of the silage. The greatest amount of reinforcing is needed at the bottom and the least at the top.

In order to permit even the settling of the silage to eliminate air pockets, it is essential that the walls of the silo be smooth and free from rough spots. When such air pockets are formed, they usually result in spoiled silage.

In order to produce good silage it is necessary that the air be excluded and the water retained. For this reason it is essential that the walls be tight.

Length of the feeding season and the number of cattle to be fed will determine the size of the silo. Since it is necessary to feed from one and one-half to two inches of silage daily off the top to keep it sweet, the diameter of the silo will vary with the number to be fed.

PT. PLEASANT.

Mrs. Sallie Souther is beginning to feel better as spring advances. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Blackburn entertained Sunday some people from Camp Washington.

Mrs. Harvey Souther returned from Detroit Sunday morning much improved in health.

Miss Mary Eggleston is able to be teaching again after quite a serious time with a felon or abscess on one of her fingers.

Miss Sarah E. Tanner and Miss Eleanor Walton went shopping Saturday, and in the afternoon they saw "Thunderclap" at the Lyric.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Riddell and children, Mr. Brown and Miss Sarah Tanner were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. W. E. Walton and daughters, last Saturday evening.

Come to church at Pt. Pleasant next Sunday morning and evening. Special music is being planned, and great joy is in store for all who attend as the church is beautifully finished inside. Bro. Omer will preach morning and evening.

Miss Lucy Russell reports in a recent letter from Long Beach, Cal., of this being the coldest winter in that particular region since 1913. She said the lemons were all frozen in that belt but the oranges were slightly damaged.

The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. Dexter Carder last Thursday, and 15 enthusiastic ladies were present. This is considered the best meeting held for quite a long time, and a whole quilt was completed. The C. W. B. M. was also held at Mrs. Carder's the week before.

The Reaper visited our midst last Saturday morning, March 11, and took into his own dear little baby girl, Anna Earnestine, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Ruckle aged five and one-half months. The bereaved family have the deepest sympathy of the entire neighborhood. Funeral services were conducted at the home Monday morning by Bro. Omer. Interment at Hebron.

There is a Reaper whose name is Death.

And with his sickle keen, He reaps the bearded grain at a breath

And the flowers that grow between "My Lord hath need of these flowers gay,

The Reaper said and smiled, Dear tokens of the earth are they, "Where He was once a child.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Ruckle and mother Mrs. Anna Ruckle wish to thank all those who were so kind to them during the illness and death of their darling baby. Especially Bro. Omer for his consoling words, and Mr. Bullock for the efficient way he conducted the funeral.

The Family.

The Y. W. A. will meet with Mrs. Lewis Begmon next Saturday at 2 p. m.

Some women have a good reason for not smiling. It might crack the veneer on their faces.

The beginning is often indicative of the end, without reference to what comes in between.

It is easy to tell the home life of some people. Their sweetness in public is overdone.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.
The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.
When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.
That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people--neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.
The better--the safer--the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble.
Today is always a good time to have it done.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

Washington, D. C., March 21.—This administration has completed its first year; the President says that it's great accomplishments "speak for themselves." If they do, their voice remains unheard by the great majority of the people, who are practically agreed that it has been a year of wasted and misspent time, and that the people who voted Harding into the White House have not even "had a run for their money." To hear the voice of these wonderful but unlisted accomplishments, the ear of the public would have to be equipped with Mr. Edison's new invention, which is said to be so capable of multiplying sound that it can hear a molecule when it turns over for another nap.

The President may have thought the list of achievements so tedious that he had no time to enumerate every great blessing flowing forth to gladden the happy and prosperous toilers who make the welkin ring with their shouts of approval as they cast their sweaty caps in air. Or could it be that the list is like the short and simple annals of the poor and would remind the public that the administration has been trying to dip away with a teaspoon the ocean of our difficulties?

What is the answer? Here it is—here is the list of accomplishments completed to date:

1. The appropriation of twenty million dollars from the grain corporation's funds (profits made off the wheat growers) to relieve starving in a section of Russia, while starving at home is overlooked.
2. The passage of the maternity bill with most of the good features left out.
3. A good roads bill.
4. The Alaska bill, turning over all of Alaska's resources to the Secretary of the Interior, so he can reward the friends of the Administration to his heart's content.
5. Buying a Senate seat for Newberry at $200,000.

To list the failures would require columns. The tariff bill is deadlocked; the re-apportionment bill failed in the House because the Republican caucus could not agree on it. The soldier-bonus bill has been deadlocked repeatedly and no prophet is so bold as to predict its outcome. But the ship-bonus (in this case the money would go to the rich and powerful ship-owners is being energetically pushed by the President. (It all depends on who gets the bonus.)

The treaties made by the Disarmament Conference are held up in the Senate. This conference by the way, was provided for six years ago in the Naval Appropriation Act of 1916, in a Democratic Congress and the law was signed by a Democratic president. Even the money to cover the expenses was then appropriated; all Harding had to do was obey the law and call it. On foreign immigration there has been an utter failure to legislate. The taxation laws have been revised with measures which even the Republicans admit are unsatisfactory compromises. Taxation has been reduced very slightly and the expenses of the government not at all. The Immigration and Reclamation Bill has been lost in the Committee—no action of any sort. Budget reform a failure. Almost every member of the House who has spoken on the subject has attacked it. And so on through the list—millions of dollars appropriated in excess of pre-war appropriations, but no relief afforded to anyone anywhere. Wheat has risen in price—farmers get none of the benefit, but all of the people have to pay more for their flour and their bread. In only this one thing has the Administration kept its promise, and this promise has been kept to the ear only, for the increase at this time is an evil instead of a good.

Chairman Rouse of the Democratic Congressional Committee has issued the following statement:

"Recently there was a luncheon at the Raeligh Hotel in this city at which a number of Republicans who expect to be candidates at the fall election and several managers of the motion picture industry were present. At this luncheon it was pictured in glowing colors the things that could and would be done for the Republican party by using the big moving picture trust to flood the country with propaganda helpful to the Republicans."

"The Democratic organization in charge of the congressional elections desire to take this means of notifying Democrats everywhere of this declared intention."

"I did not believe the men who own the controlling stock in the motion picture industry will countenance this plan. In the first place, they have too much sense to jeopardize the success of their business, and in the second place, I believe most of them are Democrats. Even the Republican theatrical men know that everything shown on the screen in recent months connected with the present administration has been unpopular. Every theatre goes over comments on this. Before this procedure is allowed to start, it would be well for the heads of the moving picture business to reflect, and to ask themselves if they can afford to go into politics at this time."

"My own belief is that the movies should and do play a great part in the education of the young and develop good sentiment, but they will fail in this great mission and fail from a business standpoint unless they do two things—keep clean and keep out of politics."

A Missouri editor has suggested a new way to pay the bonus—he gets the idea from the recent action of the Senate in voting Henry Ford's seat to Newberry. He says it should be easy; if a seat in the Senate is worth $200,000, why not sell them all to the highest bidders and use the money to pay the soldiers? And then there is the Supreme Court—the big predatory interests should be willing to pay a million dollars a piece for five or six of the jobs, and a few millions for the Presidency—last time it cost the Republican party almost nine millions to pick that plum. And then there is the control of the House—the tariff beneficiaries and the fellows who have to pay big surtaxes might use a lot of the jobs at $100,000 each. Even Herlick's seat might get a bid.

The city of St. Louis, Mo., had a mayoralty election the other day and the Democrat, who was wintering in Florida, was elected, carrying every ward in town. The place had not gone Democratic since 1911. There was a very heavy vote of both sexes.

A Washington undertaker advertising a funeral for $125.48 that is guaranteed to please even the corpse and invites "any interested party to investigate." Could that word "party" refer to the one now holding all three branches of the Government?

IN THE POULTRY YARD

Never feed your fowls musty grain of any kind.

The busy hen is the one that lays the most eggs.

The feed is of as much importance as the breed.

With proper care and food come plenty of eggs. Remember that "anything worth doing at all is worth doing well."

Variety in rations is one of the most important things connected with good feeding. Sometimes even a faulty ration will give fair results because of the variety that enters into it.

Don't expect the fowls to find grit for themselves. No matter how much range they may have it is best to keep grit, charcoal, oyster shells, etc., constantly before them.

Don't feed dry grains alone to your hens unless you want them to become too fat, and always make them scratch for all grain feed by throwing it in a deep litter.

Apoplexy and egg-bound are almost always the results of excessive fatness among the hens.

Don't feed any more mash at one time than the fowls will eat up perfectly clean. To allow more is not only wasteful but promotes unsatisfactory conditions.

The best way to care for a hen when sitting is to leave her alone. She knows her business better than most men know it. A little watching to see she gets back on the right nest is about all that is needed.

We are likely to figure that given grain, grit, greens and meat, chickens need nothing more. But charcoal is worth its weight in gold to raisers of young chickens. It aids digestion and promotes health wonderfully.

"What is the matter with the public schools? The only answer is that there is too much public, too little of the school. From one end of the land to the other we need more and more schools. More schools, so that the cherished hopes and ideals and hard work of the whole teaching force from the superintendent to the assistant teacher may serve the nation as they so sincerely aspire to and plan for."

The quotation is from "The Teacher and the Taught," an article in the March issue of Harper's Magazine, written by Grace Irwin. Every friend of the Americanization feature of the work of the public school should read it; every legislator who raises a hand or a vote against equal rights to the public school should be tied to a stake and made to listen to it. For it is not only the child of foreign parents or the child born abroad and emigrant to the United States who needs Americanization; it is the street child, the child of poverty and ignorance and wretchedness, who must have it. And it is here that he gets his first and often his only knowledge of what real American citizenship may be; here in the public school, he learns not only the three R's but what truth, honor and decency mean, and what the rights of others stand for in young lives otherwise lived only in selfish egotism.

Would there were more Grace Irwins and more Harper's Magazines to publish articles like this; articles which show the American public school in a more grim light than that which the children of the street see. For it is to the public schools, down in the slums, standing often the one clean spot in a wallow of civil, political, moral and actual filth, to which America must look for the fires which will melt the pot. And the more we know the facts, the more we read and understand the truth, the more we demand of our city fathers that there, the cradles of American ideals for all our youth, be well made and adequately supported.

True Detective Stories MATTER OF MINUTES

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

IT WAS evident that the robbery of the Rock Island Express had been effected in less than a quarter of an hour. The express car had been hatched on immediately behind the engine, and one of the firemen recalled having seen Kellogg, the messenger, checking up his accounts about fifteen minutes before the train pulled out of Morris, Ill. The next time he glanced up a shade had been pulled across the window of the express car, and the first he knew of the robbery was after the train stopped at Morris, and Pitney, the brakeman, shouted out that Kellogg had been killed and that thousands of dollars was missing from the safe.

Jameson, who was in charge of the baggage car directly behind the express car, provided what appeared to be the only clue to the crime, by stating that shortly after the train left Joliet, a man in a red mask had entered his car, held him up at the point of a revolver, and had then passed through to the car beyond, leaving Jameson in charge of another masked man who had disappeared as the train slowed down at Morris.

"I was scared stiff," admitted the baggage man, "and didn't dare budge."

The express authorities at Morris promptly ascertained the express car, and wired the details of the case to William A. Pinkerton, who arrived only a few hours later. Meanwhile, however, the contents of the safe had been checked up, and it was discovered that more than $20,000 was missing. Kellogg, the messenger, was dead, but before dying, he had evidently given a good account of himself.

Before he did anything else, Pinkerton walked back over the track on which the train had come into Morris. Less than half a mile out he discovered a red mask lying close to the track, and he also noted a most significant fact—although there was more than a foot of snow upon the ground, there were no foot-prints within a quarter-mile of the mask!

Returning to Morris, the detective commenced his examination of the express car, but failed to find anything of value.

Close inspection of the body of the dead messenger, however, brought to light another point which Pinkerton felt certain ought to prove valuable. Under Kellogg's finger nails was a considerable quantity of what at first appeared to be wet paper or pulp of some kind, but which the detective recognized as the outer layers of human skin, torn off during the struggle when the messenger's fingers were fighting to secure a hold upon his assailant!

Upon returning to Chicago, Pinkerton at once requested the officials of the road to have all the men employed on the train come to his office, one by one, to be interviewed. Jameson, he directed, was to be the last man sent.

When Pitney, the brakeman, entered, Pinkerton did not overlook the fact that he was dressed in a new outfit which was distinctly above his sphere in life. From the points of his glossy shoes to the top of his new derby, the brakeman had evidently treated himself to a brand-new wardrobe in honor of his interview with the famous detective. In spite of the fact that he had very little to tell. It was he who had discovered the robbery, but he had seen nothing of the man in the red mask, though Jameson's excited recital of the hold-up had been so vividly described as to lead him to immediately investigate the express car.

"That was just as we were pulling into Morris," concluded the brakeman, "and I gave a yell the minute I saw what they had done to Kellogg."

"That's what I wanted to talk to you about," said Pinkerton. "Sit down, won't you? And take off your coat. It's warm in here. Your gloves, too, he added, noting that Pitney kept his hands covered."

After a moment's hesitation the brakeman peeled off his new gloves, and Pinkerton had difficulty in concealing a start of satisfaction. The backs of the man's hands were seamed and scored with a network of scratches.

"Been playing with the cat?" inquired Pinkerton casually.

"No, no," Pitney replied. "I got those handling a bruised trunk a few nights ago, and then he launched into a description of his experiences on the night of the robbery. When he had finished, Pinkerton thanked him and snatched Pitney out of the office, but the muffled buzz of a bell in the anteroom informed the men stationed there that Pitney was to be followed night and day.

"So far as I was concerned," Pinkerton said, "the case ended right there. The backs of Pitney's hands coupled with the absence of foot-prints in the vicinity of the red mask—which proved that the job had been handled by someone on the train—gave the whole thing dead away. There had been no hold-up in the baggage car. The robbery was in the game, too. The pair of them had framed up a most plausible story, which, if it hadn't been for the shreds of skin under the dead man's nails, stood a good chance of being believed. "As it was, my men shadowed them until they got careless and began spending their stolen money. Then we closed in, recovered all but $2,000, and sent the pair to the penitentiary for life! Dead men may not tell tales, but sometimes their fingers do!"

CHECKING HOG
CHOLERA RAVAGES

STATION WARNS FARMERS TO VACCINATE PIGS AND TAKE PRECAUTIONS WITH OUT-BREAKS IN VARIOUS CENTERS THREATENING KY'S PORK IN-DUSTRY.

Lexington, Ky.—Neighboring advice passed out over the line fence may be cheap medicine for some of the ills found on the farm but many Kentucky farmers have found it is a costly remedy for hog cholera, veterinarians at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station say. Such advice, taken seriously by a large number of other farmers, is held responsible for the fact that the disease is flourishing in the State this spring as the most threatening menace to the hog cholera industry. "Watch your hogs. If they get sick don't be too ready to take the advice of a neighbor who has had as much as forty years experience with swine and says it isn't cholera. If it is cholera, immediate vaccinations with anti-hog cholera serum and virus will prevent its development. Liberal use of the serum after the disease has gained footing will save at least a majority of the pigs. With the spring crop of pigs coming on, the cheapest insurance is to immunize every pig against the disease by vaccinating." These suggestions sum up the advice given to farmers in a statement by Dr. W. W. Dimock, head of the station veterinary department.

Outbreaks of the disease in different centers of the State are said to be more serious than most farmers realize. Because of the general economic conditions and low price of pork, many farmers decided not to vaccinate their pigs last year in the hope that they might be able to carry them through without losses from cholera. The result is that there is a larger per cent of non-immune hogs among the two million in the State at the present time than has been the case for several years, the veterinarians say. This condition will allow rapid spread of the disease.

Vaccination to immunize pigs against the disease does more than protect the individual farmer against heavy loss, the statement points out. It also protects the community by eliminating a possible center of infection and the consuming public as a whole by making it possible to produce pork more economically.

In line with its resorts to assist in controlling the disease, the station is prepared to send out hog cholera serum and virus to farmers at a low cost and wherever possible will furnish trained specialists to help in diagnosing diseases that threaten in any section of the State, according to Dr. Dimock.

LICENSING FIREARMS

As a protection against the crime wave, a number of states have passed laws restricting the right to carry weapons to those having licenses. It should be made easy for reputable citizens to possess arms and they need them in many places in these times.

A licensing law would not prevent professional criminals from getting weapons. But it may make them more difficult to obtain for a class of irresponsible young men, who do not intend to embark on a life of crime, but are led into lawless acts on impulse, and would be deterred if they found it difficult to obtain their guns. There are too many deadly weapons being carried by un-licensed persons. No one should be able to get them lawfully, until he is certified by the authorities of his home community as a suitable person to be trusted.

THE TRANSMUTATION

OF METALS.
Members of the American Chemical Society announce that by treating the element tungsten with temperatures of 50,000 degrees they turned it into helium, a different element. This tremendous heat was 25 times warmer than molten steel.

To a limited extent this discovery is a confirmation of the theory of medieval alchemists; that one metal could be turned into another, and particularly that baser metals could be changed into gold. Also, they sought the philosopher's stone, which was supposed to accomplish this result, and the grand elixir, which would give people eternal youth. Whole libraries were written on these visionary subjects, and students dreamed their lives away in these futile experiments. While the theory of manufacture of gold and silver will probably never be realized, the patient research of those students laid foundations for modern chemistry with its marvels, which are revolutionizing daily life.

Tanlac is the result of years of study, experiments and research by some of the world's greatest chemists. Hence its merit. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

GOT A PUNCTURE.

We saw him start out the other morning in his handsome roadster. He was very proud as he turned the corner at there was a nail in the street and with a sharp hissing the air rushed out of the tire and we heard a small boy yell, "Mister you've got a puncture."

It was true and with a sage expression the proud young man clambered out of his car and proceeded to remove the tire.

The pain of one puncture offsets the pleasure of a hundred safe trips as every motorist knows. But to our proud young friend it came with all the force of a revelation. As we stood watching the youth removing the tire we were reminded that the road to fortune is full of nails and the tires of the vain and ambitious go flat all along the highway. The contestants in the race for success start gaily forth in the morning of life, but come sadly back in the evening and the merciless wits along the wayside greet them with the hated cry, "You've got a puncture, Mister, got a puncture, got a puncture!" We know of young men who are rolling along in their good clothes, with all the accomplishments of the best parties and the most extravagant, cutting a wide swath as they go, sought after, admired, caressed, but they are doing it on wind. Be careful, boys; there are nails on that road—borrowed money, a disgraced employer, unpaid debts.

You remember how gamblers and honest endeavor, instead of the prodigal's tire in the far country? He walked home, you know, and a long hard trip he had of it. We dread to see the journey of life made on wind. Take off your pneumatic for that trip and put on tires that are solid—filled with thrift, hard work and honest endeavor. Instead of wind and pleasure, they may not ride so easily, but at least they will not puncture.

BURLEY GROWERS TO BE PAID SOON

Second Distribution Of Funds To Members Of Co-operative Committee But Date Is Not Announced.

Lexington, Ky.—Another distribution of funds in the hands of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association will be made soon, Secretary H. L. Earley, of the Association, said Wednesday, but he was not able to say just when this distribution would be made.

Mr. Earley's attention was called to a report in which it was said to be "authoritatively stated" that such a distribution would take place and the probable time given, along with the statement that the third and final distribution would be made within four months.

The secretary said it was true that a second distribution would be made, but that the time could not definitely be fixed now. He said full information would be given the 58,000 members of the Association in regard to this distribution as soon as possible to do so.

THE DIRT DIGGING INSTINCT.

At an early age children go out in the streets after every rain and make mud pies. The instinct that leads them to dig in the dirt is bred in human fiber. When they get a little older, they take hold of school gardens with enthusiasm. They enjoy the sense of accomplishing something. When the little plants for which they sowed the seed come up, they feel like grown-ups and have pride in doing things.

People ought to retain this enjoyment through life time. Other pleasures fade in passing. The tangible result is left from the ball game they have enjoyed. But the flowers they have cultivated bloom on for the season and give a touch of joy and cheer to the homestead. Every time they greet the eye, the householders with pride, "that old time that work of beauty to this home in this neighborhood." Similarly he can rejoice when he supplies succulent vegetables to his table without paying tribute to anyone.

MOVED TO FLORENCE.

M. G. Martin and wife moved, last Thursday, to Florence, where Mr. Martin is engaged in the merchandising business. The citizens of Burlington are sorry to lose Menter and his wife from their midst, but what is Burlington's loss is Florence's gain, and the best wishes of a host of friends go with them to their new home. May they be blessed with all the good things the world affords is the wish of the Recorder.

THOUSANDS TO GET EMPLOYMENT

FEDERAL ANTICIPATION IN ALL STATE ROAD PROGRAMS TO AID JOBLESS; FARMERS TO TO BENEFIT.

Washington.—Every state in the union possessing a state highway department and appropriating state money for road construction will share in the $75,000,000 road appropriation passed by Congress. This, on a fifty-fifty basis, means one hundred and fifty millions to be spent upon public roads this year, giving work to an army of a hundred thousand men.

Warm weather, already making its presence felt in the south, starts this work going. Many states have their plans all made, and have secured the approval and the cooperation of the Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, which organization has control of the federal aid funds. Roads constructed by federal funds must meet with certain federal specifications as to width, grade, location and character of construction, which particulars vary with the locality, the road building material available, and the probable use of the road.

Farmers are hoping that the employment of so much unskilled labor will aid them when crop gathering time arrives by bringing into and making accustomed to country life many jobless men who otherwise would remain in or near urban centers.

THE PULL OF THE COUNTRY HOME

The growth of interest in country life, is not merely promoted by a conviction that it is going to offer good business opportunities. These opportunities are going to be well worth the ambition of industrious young people. But there is something more than that in the attraction that country life exerts.

There is a deep attachment to the soil and locality and the homestead that is developed in country living. The city dweller moves around a good deal from place to place, and usually develops no deep attachment to his location.

Even if he owns his house, his grounds are too limited to afford the chance to develop much beauty. Even in the attractive suburbs that grow up around cities, the population lives too thick together to develop attachment to the soil. The hand of man defaces natural scenery.

In a country home, people feast their eyes on the hills and plains and groves and rivers and all features of the world that God made. The line of trees on the distant horizon are the finger of God writing his love in the hearts and every feature of the landscape becomes dear to them. They part from it with a wrench, and do not quit except under some strong pressure.

The home owner in the country town has an incentive to beautify his place. He has room to develop it in a simple and attractive fashion, to make it a thing of beauty. Each year if he has the spirit of improvement, he adds some feature of use or charm, and the place becomes a living and growing thing, into which he has built day by day something of his soul.

It will take a far better business opportunity to pull him away. If he moves he is apt to be disappointed in a business way for all that glitters is not gold. But even if his change proved to be financially profitable, he often concludes that he bartered real happiness for dollars.

THE POTATO CROP.

Great interest in potato raising is reported from many localities, and in some sections of the northwest the farmers are reported as "potato mad." The possibilities of the potato, when appetizingly cooked, are not fully realized. It is a very nutritious vegetable. The Irish developed a vigorous race with that as their chief article of diet, and the German army fought largely on potatoes.

The business may be overdone this season, yet if methods of handling potatoes were well advertised the consumption by the American people of this staple could be greatly increased.

THE POOR DEVIL

Little Mathilde McCormick, 17 and self-willed, wants to marry a Swiss riding master old enough to be her grandfather.

Her father and her mother and even John D. with all of his billions can not prevent her. She rides rough over them all and is determined to have her way—and her riding master.

Bully for Mathilde! We hope she gets him, for we do admire a game sport.

But, O, the poor devil! Everybody should have a living wage, but a lot of folks are not satisfied unless they get a five-figure wage.

SPRING FEVER.

These lovely days of the returning sun, when the earth seems abounding with life, often turn so warm as to give folks a feeling of lassitude and unrest. The shop or office seems dusty and sleepy. One feels weary of the grind of labor, and longs to get out with the irresponsibility of childhood and wander along some rural path, and note the sweet sounds and sights of the season.

Some times this feeling would have been called pure laziness. The energetic pioneers and hard workers of a previous generation, were not to be diverted by any exterior influences or inner feelings.

Nowadays they call this unrest "spring fever." The feeling of weariness induced by a warm spring day is the result of the unhealthy indoor life people lead in these times. The man who has worked out doors regularly, or who keeps up active physical exercises, is inspired to new activity by lovely spring sunshine. The desire to wander out into country scenes on a bright April day, however, is not mere indolence, but shows that most people have a love for natural beauty, and seek refreshment after the artificial conditions of town life.

WASHINGTON NEWS

Washington, D. C.—The House has at last passed another bonus bill, though almost identical in form with the one passed two years ago and which the Senate laid on the shelf at Harding's request. It remains to be seen what will be done with the present bill, with all of Wall Street opposing it. The bill itself is satisfactory to no one. The soldier whose "adjusted compensation" entitled him to less than $50 can get it in cash; the others have to take a certificate of indebtedness which finally becomes due in twenty years. Meanwhile if he wants to get money, he has to borrow it at a bank and pay a larger rate of interest than the certificates bears, but the certificate is as much the obligation of the government as is a Liberty Bond and should entitle the owner to the lowest rate of interest at which money can be borrowed. It is difficult to understand why the soldier should be allowed to borrow only 50 per cent of the face value of the certificate; almost any bank will lend 75 per cent of the market value of a certificate of stock in a railway or industrial corporation if the stock is listed on the New York Exchange, though these stocks at times fluctuate wildly, and of course have much less stable value than the obligation of the United States Government.

A Washington paper called Labor devoted to the interest of the "Reds," thinks that Wilson, Billy Sunday and Harding should be added to the lists of the immortals, "because Wilson kept us out of war, while Sunday is keeping us out of Hades and Harding is keeping us out of work."

Harding could not control the House on the bonus proposition; the members of that body have to answer to the voters in November. The President can only control the House when he asks it to do something which the people desire. President Wilson was called a dictator when he put one meritorious measure after another through a willing Congress, co-operating with him day after day for six years, until the Republicans got control of the House. Then Wilson said: "Those who call me a dictator should wait until I propose to Congress something to the interests of the people. Then they will realize how little power I possess."

COSTS FOR ATTENDING

CITY SCHOOLS

Some people move into cities in hopes to get better education for their children. But frequently they find it costs more to send their children to city schools, that they have to take them out at a relatively early age. There are trolley fares to pay, and the children have to dress well.

A child that is not handsomely dressed, particularly a girl, is often neglected socially. She fails to make friends and feels snubbed and unhappy. Better the country school where children are taken into social life for what they are worth, and where neat and tasteful, but inexpensive dressing, is all that is required.

HUNDREDS SIGNING
BURLEY CONTRACTS

TOTAL OF 109 RECEIVED IN ONE DAY AT CO-OPERATIVE HEAD-QUARTERS—$2 FROM ONE COUNTY.

Lexington, Ky.—"That hundreds of Burley Tobacco growers, who did not join the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association last fall, have become convinced that Co-operative selling is the most business-like way of marketing their crops is evidenced by the fact that we have received hundreds of contracts within the past two weeks," Assistant Chief of the Field Service Division William Collins, of the Association, said Wednesday.

A total of 109 such contracts were received during the day, representing about 225,000 to 250,000 lbs. of tobacco. These contracts it was said, are coming in every day, 51 having been sent in Tuesday, indicating the fact that the tendency toward co-operative marketing of tobacco is growing in all parts of the Burley district.

Of the 109 contracts received last Wednesday, 82 came from the one county of Pendleton, which already had signed in the campaign last fall considerably more than 75 per cent of its acreage to the association.

Reports from the "black patch" indicate that Organization Manager Joseph Passonneau, who led the organization campaign in the Burley district, is receiving the co-operation of business men and bankers in the dark district, as he did in the Burley belt.

$1,000,000 INCREASE

ADDED TO BOONE COUNTY TAX LIST BY TAX COMMISSIONERS—MEET AGAIN APRIL 5-6.

The County Board of Tax Commissioners, under instructions from the State Tax Commission added to the tax list of Boone county nearly $1,000,000. This required the County Board to raise each and every list in the county and the Sheriff will be notifying you of the amount that the assessed value of your property has been increased. The county board will meet April 5th and 6th to hear complaints in regard to the assessment. The Board can not change any of the lists unless they should find an error as they can not reduce assessments. Taxpayers will save their time and expense by not appearing before the board in response to the notice.

People everywhere are complaining about the amount of taxes that they are required to pay, yet they demand better roads, schools and other public conveniences. All improvements cost money and we can not have any of them unless we are willing to pay the amount necessary to provide and maintain our schools, roads and other public conveniences. We pay a tax of 40 cents on each $100 for schools and 35 cents on each $100 for road purposes in Boone county. Roads that will stand the heavy truck and automobile traffic, that daily passes over them, are prohibitive in cost for the rural communities. Concrete one of the best ways to save on the cost of traffic costs in the neighborhood of $25,000 per mile to build, while asphalt roads cost about $15,000 per mile. The asphalt road costs much more to maintain than the concrete road.

NOTICE.

Those wishing their family lots in either of the Burlington cemeteries cared for through the summer with any extra work of renovating, sodding, etc., send an order to me now with the lot number if possible, for "Listing." I will do it carefully for you. I can furnish anything for beautifying them. April is the time to renovate and sod.

DIDN'T PASS.

In last week's issue of the Recorder we stated that the Dog Law had been repealed by the Legislature, and in its place a law enacted exempting one dog to each family residing in its place. This was a mistake but the facts were contained in the news items of the day, and it was found that the law was not passed by the Senate but was sent to the Governor by mistake, with other bills that had passed. There is no change in the dog law as it now is and a representative of the Commissioner of Agriculture is now going over the state and seeing that the Sheriff in the different counties are enforcing the law. Your attention is called to the notice given you by Sheriff R. B. Rice that you must get your dog licenses.

Only a small portion of our population served with the army in France, but the rest are in danger of getting gassed during the coming political campaign.

Spring is near. Let us hope that it brings with it a reasonable resumption of business in the industrial world.

Regardless of the fact that depression and unemployment have been a widespread, there has been but little real complaint. The people have accepted conditions as a matter of course, secure in their faith that the tide that ebbs will always flow again.

Pank! There is no such word any more. It has been erased.

That, at least, is a good sign.

One reason why many folks have no money in their pockets, is that they are carrying a flask in the place where their purse used to be.

SEASONAL TIPS
FOR GARDENERS.

Turnips for spring use can be sown the last week in March. It is best to plant them in rows about 18 to 20 inches apart. The late crop can be broadcasted the later part of July.

Dusting early potatoes with Paris Green as soon as they are about 4 inches high has been found to be an effective means of controlling potato bugs, gardeners at the College of Agriculture say. One part of the Paris Green should be used to ten parts of air-slaked lime in making up the dust.

It is well to remember in buying seed for the garden that good seed is fresh, free from foreign seeds, true to name and has strong vitality.

Fifty to 100 strawberry plants planted along one side of the garden are sufficient to furnish enough berries for the average family. Good varieties are Aroma, Gandy and Klondike.

Cutworms, which are considered one of the most troublesome insects that damage garden plants, may be controlled by using a poisoned bait made of one quart of bran, one teaspoonful of Paris Green, one tablespoonful of molasses and a small piece of lemon. The bran and Paris Green should be mixed thoroughly and then the molasses added. After the piece of lemon has been cut into smaller pieces an added to the mixture enough water should be added to make the mass sticky. The bait should be scattered in small piles over the ground infested with cutworms. It is the best to scatter it late in the evening as the worms work at night.

DECADE SHOWS CHANGES IN TYPES OF ROAD MATERIALS

In the last 10 years there has been a great change in the type of road suitable for traffic conditions on main traveled highways, according to engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1910 plain and surface treated macadam were considered among the highest types of paving for country roads and a large percentage of the mileage was of the two types. There was a small mileage of brick and concrete and a somewhat greater mileage of bituminous macadam but the plain and surface treated macadam were the predominant types of road surface roads. How great the change has been is shown by figures recently issued by the bureau. On Federal aid roads, completed between 1916 and 1920 only 2.9 per cent of the total area paved was plain and surface treated macadam. The types that formerly constituted such a small part of the mileage were as follows: Bituminous macadam, 3.1 per cent; bituminous concrete, 6.3 per cent; cement concrete, 19.3 per cent; and brick, 4.1 per cent.

APRIL FOOL DAY.

The instinct of humor has manifested itself for countless generations in the custom known as April Fool jokes. Nowadays this harmless habit is largely confined to children, but in ages and localities when the adults were less sophisticated, everybody used to indulge in it.

Innumerable generations of unwarlike folks have been at their glib on this day of deceptions, and have scanned the heavens for strange birds, have tried to pick up purses attached to strings, have bitten into wood doughnuts. Innumerable young innocents have chased around the neighborhoods for left handed screw-drivers, strap oil, etc. All these jokes may be considered a foolish habit by severe minds. Yet they have led slow witted young people to wake up, an not be bamboozled too easily, hence have helped some to acquire caution in a world of many fakes and shams.

We are called upon by the solemn behest of Heaven, to chronicle the sad death of Della Smith Emery, who was born at Verona, Ky., June 9th, 1882. In early life she gave her life to Jesus and at the age of 17 was immersed in the Baptist faith. In later years she removed her membership to the First Baptist church of Aurora, under the pastorate of Rev. Davies. She was united in marriage to Poe Emery, Feb. 11th, 1903. Mrs. Emery was a faithful, helpful, loving wife, mother and companion, sharing the joys and sorrows of her family in prosperity and adversity, making the best of whatever she had, and of her it could truly be said: "The Heart of her Husband Doth Safely Trust in her."—Aurora Indiana, Bulletin.

The Y. W. A. will serve dinner April (Court Day) March 3, in the court-house yard, consisting of ham sandwiches, hot coffee and pie, for the benefit of the Armenian Relief Fund. Let everyone remember these people are God's children, who are holding up the cross of Jesus Christ; who are being sorely oppressed and suffering. Then as we are placed on the other side of the scales in God's balance with our abundance and blessed of God so bountifully, be not found wanting. Then may every one do their part, for God never forgets to bless the giver as well as the receiver.

Remember these Y. W. A. ladies, how to serve the best to eat, and thank you before hand for your patronage.

PENN'S SPELLS

Quality
CHEWING TOBACCO

Because Penn's is packed airtight in the patented new container—the quality is sealed in.

So Penn's is always fresh. Have you ever really chewed Penn's tobacco?

Buy Penn's the next time. Try it. Notice the fine condition—fresh—Penn's.

Governor Morrow has, as was expected, vetoed all bills presented to him that were of a political nature, he even went so far as to veto the Thompson tax bill which reduced the state tax on lands five cents on each $100. This bill had intended to reduce the tax rate on lands 10 cents on each $100 on lands and town lots, but by mistake in copying the bill and by adding amendments an error was made reducing the rate on lands only five cents on the $100.00, but the Governor would not permit this reduction to stand and he vetoed the bill and by so doing requires you to pay the 40-cent rate, thus showing that the Governor is not in favor of reducing the tax rate on farm lands but believed that farm lands should bear the burden of taxes in Kentucky as his action can not otherwise be construed.

Governor Morrow attached his veto to the Oil and Inspection bill, and gave as his reason that the office was unnecessary and should have been abolished, but the Democratic legislature would not abolish the office, and in place of the present law enacted the inspection bill which permitted the Democrats as well as the Republicans who now hold office to remain in office until July 1st and then their successors could be appointed by the different county judges as at present.

In the bill adopted by the Democratic legislature the fees paid the inspectors was reduced so that in one county the state would receive about $25,000 and the inspector a salary of $3,600, but under the present law the inspector received the entire sum, in this particular case the office is held by a Republican friend of the Governor, and rather than secure for the state in one county, at least $25,000 by the approval of the bill, he vetoed that bill and the $25,000 that would have been paid each year, into the state treasury will be kept by a very near and dear friend of the Governor for the services which our Governor says that for which the State receives no benefit.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Mattie Kreylich and Gladys Wilson were absent from school one day last week on account of illness.

Miss Lee Nora Graves visited the school Thursday and Friday, spending Thursday night with Miss Kreylich.

Prof. Kiskey and Wilford Rouse attended the Y. M. C. A. conference held at Brooksville, Ky., last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They acted as representatives of our school.

Mr. Sutton visited our school Wednesday enlisting club members. He gave a most interesting talk at the chapel period.

The graded school spelling contest will be held at Burlington March 31. We have held the banner now for two successive years and hope to claim it as our own after Friday's contest.

TOLD OF SUCCESS OF BURLEY PLAN

PRESIDENT STONE ATTENDS THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING AT RICHMOND AND SAYS GROWERS IN VIRGINIA AND CAROLINAS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PROSPECT.

Methods of operation of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association and something of the success of the first American tobacco Cooperative were told the members of the executive committee of the Bright Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, another Saporo organization, formed among the planters of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, by James C. Stone, president and general manager of the Burley Association, at Richmond, Virginia, Wednesday.

Mr. Stone was invited to attend the meeting of the executive committee of the southern organization, in order that it might profit from the experience of the Burley producers. They were encouraged by the report of Mr. Stone of one success after another, following the enlisting of the business men, bankers and professional men, the well-to-do housemen and nine-tenths of the growers of the Burley district, in the organization.

The growers in the bright belt have 70,000 members now, with control of $70,000,000 pounds of tobacco, Mr. Stone said, have already organized and are ready for business.

Mr. Stone told the executive committee of the confidence of the bankers of the Burley district in the new system of marketing, that confidence being shown by a loan of $5,000,000 to be used to pay advances to farmers on the delivery of their crops, and of the further agreement of the banks to loan money on the participation certificates, so that the growers would not be tempted to trade with speculators and thus lose a part of the profits they had rightfully earned themselves.

"What has been done in the Burley district has attracted the attention of the entire tobacco industry," President Stone said. "Not only are the growers of the bright belt of the South interested, but our brethren of the black patch in Kentucky and Tennessee are realizing that the only hope for the future of the tobacco industry, so far as the producer is concerned, lies in the proper merchandising of the crop. They are going to do it that way in Virginia and the Carolinas, and, judging from reports of the meetings addressed last week by Mr. Saporo and Judge Bingham in the 'black patch' they also intend to do it there."

"These organizations, of course, will be a help also to the burley growers, and the more successful they are in enrolling the producers of their different districts in co-operative associations, the more help they will be to us."

"I found the Southern planters intensely enthusiastic over the prospect of establishing a marketing system that would mean a living and stable price for tobacco year after year. Their president is G. A. Norwood, a banker and farmer, of Goldsboro, North Carolina, and in their choice of Mr. Norwood as the head of their association the directors have been peculiarly fortunate."

Mr. Stone returned from Virginia late Thursday. He said there was no news of interest in regard to the Burley association, that the association was doing very well, much better than some of its optimistic friends had expected it to do, and that the unsold portion of the 1921 crop would be sold at good prices.

Director of Warehouses Ralph M. Barker returned Monday from a visit into the Northern District. He said that the tobacco controlled by the association probably would all be delivered by April 1, and all the receiving plants would close on that date. He said that about two-thirds of them has already closed. Mr. Barker declared he found all the members in the counties he visited "satisfied and happy" over the success of the association and the prospect for a stable market in the future. Many growers, he said, are joining the association, more than eighty farmers having been added to the rolls in one county recently.

HAMILTON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Quite a stylish wedding will take place at the Hamilton High School building April 7th. The bride, Miss Mabel Adams, is one of Emma Bend's most promising young ladies, and the groom Chester Phelps, is a prosperous young high school student. One of the best cooks in the vicinity, will bake the wedding cake. Miss Inez Phelps will be bridesmaid. Miss Biffin and Miss Winterblom, two well known ladies of Hamilton district, had quite a little encounter one day last week over Henry Primrose, an elderly gentleman. No damage was done however, but Mr. Primrose's chignon was maimed forever and a couple of chairs broken. The people think this such a fine drama you really must see it again at the High School building April 7th.

Miss Alta Beemon and Mr. Adren Sorrell, were married by Rev. Royer at his residence near Florence a few days ago. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huber Beemon, of near Limaburg.

The County Judge has been notified by the State Road Department, that in order to insure the construction of the Dixie Highway through Boone county, that an additional subscription will have to be raised on account of changes in the railroad crossings which will increase the original estimate. Something near $3,000.00 in addition to the amount now subscribed, will have to be raised. The State Road Commissioners were not certain that the entire road can be constructed this year on account of the financial condition of the state road fund. The Dixie Highway must be constructed as contemplated and we must do all in our power to insure the completion of the project.

What is needed in Kentucky now is to have less gasoline used and more shoe leather.

Mr. Elbert Slayback left this week for Mayville, Ky., where he has signed up with the Mayville Base Ball Team, for the 1922 season.—Aurora (Ind.) Bulletin.

BOONE CO. RECORDER

Published every Thursday
N. E. RIDDELL, Publisher

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION
Entered at the Postoffice, Burlington, Ky., as second-class mail.

ADVERTISING RATES.
Furnished on application. The value of the RECORDER as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story.

Money is the root of all evil—yet everybody roots.

Another man thought bootleggers wouldn't lie. Aged 36. Wife and three children.

"A girl in short skirts is in danger," says a reformer. Shucks, every man looks after her.

Messrs. Harry A. and Frank Perkins, of Covington, were visitors to Burlington, last Friday.

If people move much faster than the recording angel they will have to take a course in shorthand.

Babe Ruth's big salary must cause a good deal of unrest among bank presidents and captains of industry.

Some folks need to practice cheek to cheek dancing, as their heads need support that their brains won't rattle.

In England the girls are winning plowing championships, but in this country they merely harrow up the feelings of the boys.

The fact that women have been observing Spring Hat Day is an indication that soon the Old Man must observe Cough Up Day.

The kids who are now kicking on Saturday night bath, will soon be escaping from the house several times a day to go in swimming.

William Rice, formerly of Bellevue, but who has been a resident of North Manchester, Ind., for several years, was in Burlington, last Friday, meeting with old friends.

B. H. Stansifer, of Walton, and N. M. Northcutt, of Covington, have purchased the shoe store of Geo. Rawe, No. 8 Pike Street, Covington. They keep a full line of shoes of quality.

Some people seem to entertain the delusion that the U. S. navy is maintained to protect this country from attack, rather than to boost business in the states where the navy yards are located.

Two teaspoonful of Tanlac in a little water taken three times a day just before meals will make you eat better, feel better, sleep better and work better. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Boles, formerly of the Beaver neighborhood, but now of Wayne, Pa., announce the birth of a daughter on March 19th. This makes their seventh child. Mother and baby doing splendidly.

The moving picture show had an attraction last Friday night. Four young men from Petersburg added a touch of Jazz to the show with a performance on wind instruments, the names of which were unknown to our critic.

James T. Gaines and wife, of Idlewild, have returned to their home after several weeks visit with their daughter at Erlanger. While in Erlanger Mr. Gaines was quite ill, but has regained his health and his friends are glad that is again on his old stamping ground.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the Boone circuit court in the case of Charles Corbin against Phil Lambert. Corbin sued Lambert for assaulting him and the jury in the circuit court awarded him damages, and this award was found to be correct by the higher court.

In this issue you will find a statement of all the banks in Boone County, and also of the Erlanger Deposit Bank and Citizens Deposit Bank. These statements show that all of the banks are in good condition, that they have been properly managed, is reflected in the statements. The Boone County banks have been conducted along conservative lines.

Senator Stanley of Kentucky has just returned from Boston, where he was the orator of the day on Boston's most important annual event—the celebration of the anniversary of the evacuation of the city by the British, the 16th of March. As Boston has more Irishmen in it than Dublin, the event couples up finely with St. Patrick's Day and gives that great Democratic stronghold a double holiday of great significance. Senator Stanley reports a united Democracy ready to give the Republicans the fight of their lives for the Old Bay State. He had a wonderful crowd and of course made a notable speech.

LEGION NOTES

Indianapolis, Indiana. — With more than 200,000 of its total of 700,000 jobs, veterans of the world war placed in positions the first day, with Gov. Louis Hart of Washington defying the 47 other state heads to beat him in finding places for them and with Louisiana reporting 100 per cent employment, the American Legion's campaign to give every ex-service man a job opened optimistically, national officers of the Legion state.

In order that no loophole may remain unfilled, Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the Legion, has extended the time for the campaign indefinitely. Word from Texas Legion officers was received at headquarters stating that the posts there had set 15 days as the limit. Cumberland, Md., was the first city to report employment ranks filled and was followed closely by Port Angeles, Washington, the farthest Western Legion post.

St. Paul, Minn.—A straw vote of civilians and world war veterans held by a St. Paul, Minn., newspaper gave count of 8 1/2 to 1 in favor of adjusted compensation legislation. A count of 2,338 ex-service men's ballots showed three out of every four had voted for a general bonus to all ex-service men.

Washington, D. C.—At the request of a federal "adjustment board," James S. Daugerty, veteran of Pershing's bodyguard in Mexico and wounded during the world war at Cantigny, died in a hotel room. Identification was established by the aluminum tag he wore around his neck.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Cumberland, Md., was the first city to reach the 100 per cent mark in the American Legion's campaign for jobs. Four hundred service men were placed.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Official American Legion grade markers have been cut in price. They may now be had from Legion headquarters for $1.30.

Chicago, Ill.—A Chicago man was given six months in jail following his exposure by the American Legion as a fake soldier. A Croix de Guerre, marksmanship medal and overseas service chevrons on his uniform had been bought in a pawn shop, he said.

Dallas, Texas.—Texas has received $19,000 from the American Legion as the state ex-service men's share in the expense of building a new hospital.

Canton, Ohio.—Forty three per cent of Ohio's ex-service men are putting their state bonus money in the bank, a poll of American Legion members at Canton shows.

Nashville, Tenn.—Battlefield soldiers turned fire fighters at Joelton, Tenn., and prevented a $75,000 fire loss. An American Legion post formed a bucket brigade and kept the flames in check until the regular apparatus arrived.

Seattle, Washington.—The Seattle Washington, program for the entertainment of Marshal Joffre of France will be in charge of the American Legion. The hero of the Marne will arrive from Japan in the spring.

Racine, Wis.—In order that no ex-soldier who serves during the world war will have to sleep in a Potter's field the Wisconsin American Legion has purchased a cemetery plot of its own at Racine.

Seattle Wash.—Ex-service men are being sought by the American Legion of Seattle, Washington, to take farms on the Yakima Indian reservation, renewal of leases of which has been refused former Japanese tenants by the state. Preference is being given disabled and maimed soldiers.

Indianapolis, Ind.—"Spring clean-up days" are being observed throughout the country as a part of the American Legion's campaign to give jobs to all unemployed ex-service men. "Have an ex-soldier do it" has brought out old time kitchen police whose knowledge of barrack cleaning hasn't been forgotten.

San Francisco, Cal. — That race feeling is a thing apart with them is shown by the action of the several San Francisco, Cal., American Legion post in turning out almost en masse for the funeral of Col. Chas. Young, one of the few negroes to graduate from West Point.

Mexico City.—Producing documents which showed him to be an honorably discharged German soldier and holder of the Iron Cross, an applicant for membership in the American Legion at Mexico City, Mexico, said he thought the organization took in all soldiers regardless of where they ever fought.

New York.—Facts about wounded ex-service men and the work which it is doing to relieve unemployment and teach Americanism will be broadcasted to wireless telephone operators March 31 by the American Legion of New York. Weather conditions permitting the Legion expects to reach the Middle Western Atlantic and Southern states and Cuba.

TYPICAL COAT STYLE

Out of Busela came the inspiration for this spirited coat, typical of the spring modes. It is made of a novelty mixture and its trimming is something quite new. Note that its lines are straight, its sleeves roomy and loose, its patch pockets large, its belt wide, with an original fastener, and be assured that it embodies the high points in the new styles.

WEIGH THE MARKET MILK—IT PREVENTS MISUNDERSTANDING

Producers who ship milk to city distributors have voiced frequent complaints because of the display between their figures on the quantity of milk shipped and those of the dealers on the quantity received. In order to locate the cause of complaint by studying the actual loss between the country shipping point and the city plant the U. S. Department of Agriculture made an investigation on the Baltimore market. Records kept on more than 1,100 cans showed that the loss between the country station and the city plant was less than 1 per cent. The loss on trains, probably due to spilling, was only 0.19 per cent; and from the city railroad platform to the plant it was 0.55 per cent.

However, it was found that when the milk was weighed in the city plant there was a shortage of 2.56 per cent on the amount shipped according to can measure in the country. Of this shortage, 0.74 per cent was the difference between can measure and weight. This is easily accounted for by the fact that cans become dented and battered, which decreases their holding capacity.

In a former investigation by the department an even greater discrepancy was found between can measure and weight, the difference being over 3 per cent. It would seem that there would be less trouble between producers and dealers if the milk were weighed at both ends of the line.

TWO SPOTS.

The jangling of heavy trucks over the paving stones in the city, are a pretty poor noise to substitute for the sweet bird songs of spring in the country.

Some people who got out of farming when prices of staples were at the bottom, would perhaps like to buy their farms back at higher prices now that the foodstuffs are selling for more.

Weeds growing in a man's front yard raise the question in the public mind whether he is equally careless in rooting the defects out of his business.

Congress is reducing the army and navy to mere skeletons—to shadows without substance.

We see no conclusive evidence of other nations doing the same. In fact, we have strong suspicions that if the truth were known conditions would be found to be quite the reverse.

A dog without teeth can growl and snarl, but is easily licked.

A country without an army or navy can protest, but it can not repel an invader with its tongue or with its fists.

We need no weapon of offense, but it is wise to destroy entirely our means of defense?

Raise ALL Your Chicks

After the trouble and expense of hatching good chicks, you want to raise them all—into heavy layers and husky breeders. It's a lot cheaper to raise them than to replace them even if you had the time. So take no chances—give them the start that will make them sturdy and keep them growing—feed them the original, dependable "baby food for baby chicks."

Pratt's Buttermilk Baby Chick Food

Should be fed for the critical first three to six weeks, because it contains exactly what the delicate little bodies need, for building bone, muscle and feather. Start with the first meal and count on it for results in husky, well-developed youngsters that will continue to grow to profitable maturity.

Used every season by thousands of successful chick raisers, because it raises the chicks, relieves you of danger, worry and loss. Depend upon it for your chicks—try it at our risk.

For Rent.

175 acre farm for rent in Big Horn neighborhood—fort on shares for corn, tobacco, meadow and grazing. Extra good chance to right man. C. H. YOELL, Burlington, Ky.

The people of Boone county are glad to know that the J. R. Watkins Co., has secured a man who will make regular trips with a full line of the well known Watkins remedies, extracts, stock and poultry tonics, etc. 1849—21.

Gallatin county wanted Boone to join with them and construct a bridge across South Fork creek at Berkshire. The Boone Fiscal Court offered to join in the building of this bridge provided each county would pay one half of the cost, but the Gallatin fiscal court would not agree to the proposition and have brought a suit against the county and the members of the fiscal court seeking to compel the Boone fiscal court to join with them and each county pay for the construction according to the assessed value, which would mean that Boone county would pay for over three-fourths of the cost of the bridge, and this certainly is not a fair proposition as the bridge would be used by the citizens of Gallatin county much more than by the citizens of Boone. The Gallatin fiscal court think that they can by legal proceedings, make the Boone fiscal court join with them and build this bridge but the Boone fiscal court thinks otherwise, and will resist the action taken by the Gallatin fiscal court. This is a good proposition for Gallatin county, as their citizens would be benefited much more than the citizens of Boone, yet the taxpayers of Boone county would pay more than three-fourths of the costs.

Every time the Republicans carry an election in Maine they loudly announce that Maine is the finest political barometer in the land—that "as Maine goes, so goes the country." Of course Maine is as reliably Republican as Georgia is Democratic. Everyone expects Maine to go Republican, and when the Democrats carry elections up there it has a deep significance. Four cities in the State have elected mayors this month and all four of them were Democrats. The smallest majority (150) was in Saco, but the Democrats got six of the seven wards. In both the majority was four to one. Republican leaders don't talk about it, but if four cities in Georgia were to go Republican the country would be informed that it indicated a huge Republican landslide. And it would.

SPECIALS FOR FRIDAY

"Good Merchandise at Fair Prices"

OUR FRIDAY SPECIALS PROVED VERY POPULAR LAST WEEK.

For this week we offer you some more good things.

We also desire to voice our policy in this issue, as follows:

IN the policy which governs our relations with our customers, there are three principles which we believe are vital:

PRICE: The honest pricing of merchandising, to allow a fair profit, and no more.

QUALITY: Dependable goods, backed by the responsibility of national manufacturers.

SERVICE: A sincere attention to the individual, which subordinates selling to service.

In putting these principles above all others, we must depend for success on your appreciation of fair dealing. Will you not give us an opportunity to vindicate our policy?

Mr. Henry Schaffer, of near Crescent Springs, Kenton county, was a visitor to Burlington, Tuesday. He had been out to Joe Walton's where he bought some shoats. While in town he called at this office and had his name put on our list of readers.

BANKER HAS BIRTHDAY.

On Friday evening J. N. Perkins, president of the National bank, was very pleasantly surprised at his home on High street, the ladies' guild and men's club of the Presbyterian church coming in to help him celebrate his birthday. The house was very prettily decorated in St. Patrick Day greens, the Blarney stone occupying a prominent place. St. Patrick Day games were played, after which Mrs. J. B. Scott and Miss Harriet Perkins entertained with plans and selections and Miss Louise Drescher and Paul Davis with vocal solos. Delicious refreshments were served and all present spent a very enjoyable evening.—Ohio Co. News.

Although the above does not state how many birthdays Mr. Perkins has celebrated, but his many friends in Burlington, where he was born and reared, wish him many more happy birthdays.

Interred in I. O. O. F. Cemetery.

The remains of Mrs. Belle Cason were taken from the vault in I. O. O. F. cemetery, last Thursday, and interred in the family lot by the side of her husband, who had preceded her to the grave many years ago.

Mrs. Martha Roberts and son Clinton, returned to their home in Walton, last Thursday after a week's visit with relatives in Burlington.

Silent ALAMO

FARM ELECTRIC POWER AND LIGHT PLANT

I can give you what is known as the full kilowatt for $465.00 set on stand table ready to pull its full capacity without any extra cost to the consumer at this price.

The time is coming when I will prove to you that I have a real piece of machinery that will perform the duties for the farmer for very little cost. I have already put this plant up against some real work for a plant of this size.

The cost of a Lighting Plant is the motor and batteries. That is what you want to take into consideration when you get ready to figure on the equipment for your home.

As an illustration, I have one of these plants performing at the Boone County Infirmary, one of the largest institutions, that is now being taken care of by a plant of this size. So you see how easy it would take care of the average home.

If you are interested drop in and get some literature on the Silent Alamo.

PETERSBURG.

Mrs. Burton Yates has been quite poorly for several days.

Mrs. L. S. Chambers is out again after several days illness.

Miss Ruth Chambers is confined to her room again with a cold.

R. E. Berkshire is always on hand with the best films for his movie show.

Mrs. Bud Stamper is near Burlington nursing Mrs. Drucilla Goodridge.

Miss Kate Geisler, who has been bedfast since the death of her sister Mary, does not improve.

We were entertained on the 22nd by "A Noble Outcast" given by the Star Dramatic Club of Petersburg. The play was well attended and a grand success.

We reported some time ago that the wild animal that was annoying the community, was disposed of, but several nights ago it seemed to appear again, right in town. When investigated it was found to be Duley Edwards, who was overjoyed by the arrival of a 10-pound boy at his home.

In the early morning hour Monday March 20th, 1922, the Death Angel stretched out his finger and touched the loving heart of Miss Mary Geisler. She was born in Cincinnati, July 5th, 1857, and came to Petersburg with her parents in 1863, where she has since lived. She was a true and consistent member of the Catholic church. After her brother John's wife died she made her home with him, and filled the place of a mother to his children, reared them to man and womanhood. Her religion was not of somber cast, which looks to the beyond for the beginning of its enjoyment or the first actual realization of its reward, it was of a deeply devout nature, her sense of dependence upon God and her faith in Christ, were as sincere and abiding as they were in the beginning of her walk with her Savior. Naturally of a sunny disposition, she carried all the brightness and buoyancy of her childhood forward even to her latest years. She shared with others in their disappointments and grief with the deepest sympathy. She leaves three brothers, one sister, nephew and niece to mourn her departure, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. The funeral service was conducted in the Lawrenceburg Catholic church on the 22nd, after which her remains were laid to rest in the family lot in Greendale cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We feel ourselves under such obligations to our neighbors and friends for their kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our sister and aunt, Mary Geisler, we are unable to express our thanks as we should, but God knows, we feel it more sincerely than we can express, and especially to those donating their autos for our friends to attend the funeral of our beloved sister, Mabel Brown, for the manner in which the funeral was conducted.

A heavy rain fell here Sunday night, and it will be several days before the farmers will be able to work the ground.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Allen, of Ft. Pleasant neighborhood, entertained some of their friends with a big dinner last Saturday, the occasion being her birth anniversary.

The new dog law don't appeal to many of the sheep owners. We see no gain in it but everything to lose, and seems to me it is quite a draw back to the sheep industry, as we have no protection against the ravages of dogs. A dog that is inclined to kill sheep will go quite a distance from home to put in his work, and then times it happens at night and in nine cases out of ten you will never know the owner of the dogs, and again there are those that own dogs which they have a perfect right who are not able to pay a big loss if their dog should be the guilty one, and when it is necessary to prosecute a neighbor the chances are there will be trouble. The old law was satisfactory with nearly everybody. Why change it? (The present dog law was not changed. The Recorder was in error last week in so stating.)—ED.

CUT PRICE PAID ON WOOL TIED WITH BINDER TWINE.

Lexington, Ky.—Losses as high as seven cents on each pound of wool were experienced last year by Kentucky farmers who tied their wool with ordinary binder twine, instead of using paper twine, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the College of Agriculture sheep work, who is suggesting that farmers take steps to obtain a supply of the proper kind of twine before the shearing season opens. With about three million pounds of wool being produced annually, losses of this kind amount to a considerable item in the State's sheep industry, it is said.

Paper twine costs from 20 to 25 cents a pound and since each pound is sufficient to tie about 40 fleeces, the cost averages about one-half cent a fleece or one-tenth of a cent a pound of wool. No more twine should be used than is necessary to go around the fleeces once each way, Mr. Horlacher said.

In the past, buyers have been inclined to discriminate against wool tied with binder twine because fibers from it adhere to the fleeces and cannot be removed except with the use of expensive machinery. If left in the wool, these fibers cannot be dyed and appear in the cloth as white stripes, which must be picked out by hand. Wool containing these fibers is classed with that containing burrs, it is said.

GOOD SPRING CARE OF BEES WILL INCREASE HONEY CROP

Lexington, Ky.—Mild weather experienced thruout Kentucky the past winter promises successful wintering of bees in practically all sections but the harvesting of a good crop of honey later in the season will depend largely upon management of the bees during the early spring, specialists at the College of Agriculture say.

In case they have been packed in winter cases, the bees should not be unpacked until settled warm weather, H. H. Jewett, one of the specialists pointed out. When the winter packing is removed too soon, sudden changes in the weather often will result in the death of a large part of the young brood through chilling.

As soon as the weather permits, it is well to clean the hive and make sure that there is plenty of food available since the rearing of a brood requires large quantities. Clean water also is a necessity for brood rearing. Each colony should have about 15 pounds of stored honey at this time of the year but if the supply is short, the bees may be fed with a syrup made of two parts of water and one of granulated sugar. Weak and queenless colonies may be united with normal colonies, the specialists say. Successful bee keepers have their colonies full of bees of the proper age for gathering nectar at the beginning of the main honey flow.

PAYING THE PRICE OF FOLLY.

Folly is sweet while it lasts, but the bite is bitter when we pay the price.

While our troops were fighting for victory in France, the rest of us were fighting for dollars—at least the majority if it were. Money literally poured into America from other countries in return for our munitions and supplies and foodstuffs. There seemed no end to the stream of gold.

Prosperity came with a leap, profiting with a bound, and insanity outstripped them all. Everybody made money—big money—and apparently the question of money was how to make it fly. And it flew.

People who before the war could hardly afford a sewing machine suddenly blossomed out in fine raiment and rode in expensive automobiles. Nothing was too good or too high in price.

Money was the only thing that was cheap. It came easily, went swiftly, and forgot to return.

In the early days the foolish virgins went out without oil in their lamps, and had no light.

The five virgins filled their lamps, and had light. The virgins remind us of our own people in the profiteering days.

Foolish heads of families spent money like water. Now they have water and little money.

Wiser ones saved their money, and now live in comfort and plenty.

That is the difference between wisdom and folly.

If the people had saved their money instead of squandering it in riotous living they would not be feeling the pinch of want.

Wise men saw the reaction that was sure to come. They accumulated all of the money possible and invested it in interest bearing securities. They are now profiting from their wisdom.

Those who considered only the pleasures of the hour are now wondering how to combat the miseries of the future.

They are paying the price of their folly.

MOST ANYTHING.

Norwich, England, is famous for its canaries. They came to Norwich with the weavers of Flanders, banished from their homes by the Spaniards, and ever since, the people of that city have been canary lovers and fanciers, almost to a man.

The American Bible Society, after more than 100 years of publishing the Bible, has announced it will soon close down its plant in New York City because of the high cost of production.

The undergraduate in college now is better than was the student of a quarter of a century ago, according to the dean of Brown University. The new man is more amenable to discipline; has a keener interest in education; has a larger capacity for work and a higher sense of integrity. The dean says in 30 years he has met but two students who were liars.

The "superphone" is a new invention which is said to assure absolute secrecy of communication and security from interruptions. One telephone line to which "superphones" are attached can be used for a number of conversations simultaneously and no pair of speakers can hear or interrupt another pair.

The "grape cure" attracts many invalids to the vineyards of the Tuscan district of Italy. The day begins at 7 o'clock, with a breakfast of wholesome food and with grapes on which the dew is clinging. Grapes are served with each meal and the diet is carefully planned. The guests wander through the vineyards, eating the grapes and breathing deeply the sweet aromatic air. Plenty of exercise is essential to the "cure." Most of the invalids leave at the end of the vine harvest, in robust health.

BUSTING THE BUSTERS.
The cement trust has done more to bust up the roads of this country than any other agency. They have done it by forcing the price of cement up to such a prohibitive price that road building and improvement has practically ceased.

Now the government is after them and they must face indictment in the federal courts.

It is hoped they face good round terms in federal prisons as well. They will if the courts and prosecutors do their duty.

They appear to be getting what is coming to them, and we hope they enjoy what they get.

In the meantime, if the price of cement does not come down to a reasonable figure there is still a potent card left up the American sleeve.

Let the states build their own cement works.

Then let us build new roads and improve others.

Let's lift ourselves out of the mud. We need good roads and millions of people need work.

And incidentally, if more jails are needed to accommodate the gougers, let's build them—and fill them.

Be a student of human nature. You will learn much and be wiser.

A certain project is suggested for the home town.

John Smith is an enthusiastic supporter. He sees success as a certainty. There can be no such thing as failure.

Tom Jones opposes. He can see nothing good in the project. It is doomed to certain failure, with disaster in its wake.

There you have the two extremes of a small community—the stumbling block which prosperity is unable to surmount or sidestep.

Smith is granite in his optimism. Jones is flint in his pessimism. Somewhere there is a middle course—most likely the correct and safe solution—but neither Smith nor Jones is willing to take it, or even to consider it.

They stand pat—and the town stands still.

True
Detective Stories
BELOW DEAD LINE

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

CONTRARY to the general opinion, it was not Inspector Byrnes who instituted the famous imaginary barrier known as the "dead line"—a point beyond which crooks could not penetrate except under peril of immediate arrest, even though no charges were pending against them at the moment. The device was originated by William Melville, superintendent of Scotland Yard during the reign of Queen Victoria.

But it was in connection with the prevention of a crime, rather than in the solving of one, that Melville had his most distinguished success, for if he had not been able to capture Vroff, the famous anarchist, it is quite possible that the czar of Russia and possibly some of the members of the reigning family in England would have been blown into eternity.

The affair in question occurred some months after Melville had taken charge of Scotland Yard. The visit of the czar had been widely heralded through the press and every governmental operative in Great Britain had been pressed into service to secure the safety of the visiting ruler. The entire island was combed for men who were known to be hiding, and, as a final resort, Melville issued an order that any suspicious character found within five square miles of the line of march from Buckingham palace to the Mansion house would be arrested on sight.

Three days before the arrival of the czar, Melville's reports indicated that the city had been thoroughly cleaned up.

But on the very day of the procession, only two hours before the royal families were scheduled to leave the palace, Melville was informed that his men had failed to apprehend the most dangerous nihilist on the continent—a young Russian by the name of Vroff, who had escaped from a prison in St. Petersburg and had entered England in such a roundabout manner that his arrival had not been recorded. According to the word which reached Melville, Vroff had secured employment in a wine merchant's establishment along the line which the procession would follow, and had sworn to throw a bomb under the czar's carriage as it passed.

Melville realized that there wasn't a moment to be lost. Also, it was a job which he must handle alone.

As it happened, Melville knew the establishment where Vroff worked, and he also knew that a certain vintage of champagne was kept in the cellar, whence it was produced only at a special request. It was for this reason, therefore, that he made his way to the wine shop and stated that he would like to purchase half a dozen bottles of the champagne.

As he expected, the proprietor informed him that the vintage was in the bin, but offered to have it brought up immediately.

"Don't bother to do that," replied the Scotland Yard man, "I'll go down with one of your cellarmen and pick out the bottles for myself. Possibly I'll see something else that I want at the same time. Send that man along with me to point out the way," and he indicated one of the employees whom he had recognized from the description as Vroff.

As they reached the foot of the stairs, the cellarman pointed to a bin nearby and stated that it contained the champagne the customer asked for. Realizing that he could not stage his coup so close to a means of exit, Melville examined the bottles, offered some objection to the age of the wine and inquired what lay in the back of the cellar.

"Burgundy," replied the other, commenting to be a real restive, for the hour of the approach of the procession was drawing rapidly nearer.

"Fine!" said the Scotland Yard head. "I think I'd prefer that, after all. Let me see some of it, will you?"

Grumbling a bit under his breath, Vroff led the way back into the dim recesses of the cellar, and as he bent forward to secure a bottle, Melville closed with him.

With a sideways, cat-like slip, Vroff ducked out from under the detective's arms, and, before Melville knew what he was doing, he had reached into a bin in the center of the cellar and secured a big, murderous bomb, which he held high above his head.

"Stop!" he commanded, as the Scotland Yard operative started toward him. "One more step and I'll blow the whole place to h—l and you with it."

Melville, wise in the knowledge of anarchist principles, realized that this was a bluff.

"You've got me," he admitted. "But for God's sake don't throw that thing in here! We'd both be killed!"

"Then back into that doorway," directed Vroff, "and don't make a sound. Slowly and hesitatingly, so as to bring the Russian nearer to him, Melville obeyed orders. Then, just as the anarchist reached out to close the door, Melville sprang and seized the bomb with one hand, and with the other delivered an uppercut on the point of the anarchist's jaw from which Vroff did not recover for fully five minutes.

When he finally came to, he found that he had been securely handcuffed to one of the stanchions—there to remain until the sounds of the passing procession had faded into the distance.

AN APPEAL FOR HELP.

Boone County Citizens Asked to Assist in Feeding Starving Armenians.

Dear People of Boone County:

Did you know we were being called upon to assist in sending relief to the 175 orphanages, containing about 100,000 children over in Armenia? Our quota is $1,800 or 30 orphans. Did you know Armenia gave 250,000 men in the last war and fought at our side, and that she gave more in proportion to her size than any other nation?

Its an old story, how out of 50,000,000 people, scarcely 3,000,000 are existing today. They haven't had a crop in six years. You can not imagine the awful desolation which reigns in that land. Refugees are roaming the country, children perishing on the wayside, but America, chartered by Congress, has enabled 1,000,000 to exist, who could not have done so, having labored in that place for the last five years, and now have 175 orphanages and about 100,000 children.

However, America has begun to get tired and discouraged, so save out appropriations 25 per cent, when they need an increase of 50 per cent, and if extra funds do not come forth, 100,000 of the children, on the inside, will have to perish.

Our flag floats over these orphanages, and is all that protects them from the bloodthirsty Turk. They are not only being fed, but taught different industries, and some of the boys will soon be large enough to help farm.

Remember these are christian people, in a Moslem land, and have remained true to their faith, it is the reason they have suffered. We owe them a support from a patriotic standpoint, if no other, but how can we as christians turn a deaf ear to their pleas? They are our neighbors if they do live far away.

I know Boone county people, and they will not fail if they know and have a chance.

Mr. J. C. Miller, of Walton, Ky., is our County Treasurer. Sixty dollars will keep a child from starving. Some folks at Walton are taking one—either cash $5.00 or food $5.00 each and some together; some $5.00 cash and $5.00 per month; some $1 cash and $1 per month. Verona and Walton schools have taken coupon books—sixty coupons representing $1.00 each. The smaller grades are selling postcards, which will be furnished at 25 cents a package or two for five cents. There are many in our county who ought to give us $100 each, which supports an orphan in everything. Who will be the first to send check to Mr. J. C. Miller—come across and show your patriotism and christianity.

MRS. S. C. HUGHES,
Chairman Boone County,
Walton, Ky.

GEORGE DUNLAP, 13, WINS COOK COUNTY SPELLING BEE

George Dunlap, 13-year-old pupil in the Irving Park school of Maywood, is the best speller in Cook county schools. He proved this in the annual spelling bee at the county court building. Supt. Tobin presided.

In fact it was the boys' day from the beginning, despite the fact that out of the eighty-four school district champions who competed, fifty-five of them were girls. The second prize was won by a girl, Fern Phynne, 12 years old, of Central Park school, Greenwood, but the third was won by a boy, John Angard, 13, of Shermerville school.

To the winner went a gold medal, to the second best a silver medal, and to the third best, a bronze medal.

Two lists of 100 words were necessary to determine the winner. The first 100 were selected from the school spellers and the second 100 from the newspapers.

Elimination contests in the district schools throughout the county have been conducted for the last two months.

The spelling bee was attended by scores of pupils to cheer for their champion, and by the parents of the contestants.—Chicago Tribune.

George Dunlap is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dunlap, of Chicago, and a grandson of Dr. J. M. Grant, of Petersburg, and the Rev. G. W. Dunlap, of California.

Mrs. Emma Brown, who tendered her resignation as Postmaster at Burlington, last September, was released from duty last Saturday, after serving the public eight years. She had been appointed under Wilson's first term. Mr. E. L. Hickman is now in full charge of the office and will act as Postmaster until a permanent appointment is made.

for your wishes I did not heed, for the counsel I did not obey, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me my pride in my youth and my glory in my strength that forgot the holiness of your weakness, for my neglect, for my selfishness, for all the great debts of your love that I have not paid, mother, sweet mother, forgive me.

And may the peace and the joy that passeth all understanding be yours, my mother, forever and ever. Amen.

GIVEN DEATH PENALTY.

After several hours' deliberation a jury in Kenton county circuit court at Covington, Ky., found Jas. Powers, 21 years old, 19 West 3rd street, Covington to be guilty of murder and fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair at Frankfort.

Powers was charged with the murder of Morris Lee 25 years old, 643 Garrard street, Covington, motion picture theater manager, who was shot to death in front of his home on the night of January 22 by one of four bandits, who followed his car from Madison and Pike streets.

Powers' mother, Mrs. Jennie Lee, held a sack containing the day's receipts of $300. Lee was killed when seated at the steering wheel of his car, while other members of his family were going to the house.

Mrs. Lee identified Powers as the bandit who came over to the Lee car, twirling a revolver on his finger.

Powers was indicted jointly on the murder charge with Isiah McKnight, 24 years old, Second street, Covington; George Sanders, 301 Nassau street, Cincinnati, and Ray Rodgers, 5 West Seventh street, Cincinnati.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

During the war period folks seemed to believe that money could be had by easy methods, and so relaxed their efforts to work. Some tried speculation others went in debt and expected the investment to make them rich in place of giving good hard work to their occupation. Henry Ford says: "It would seem that common sense would warn people that there is never a chance for getting something for nothing. All the apparently miraculous successes of the day were built up bit by bit through obscure years, the main capital being hard work, people don't see that part of a business. All they see is the huge success after it has emerged above the shoulders of the times. But beneath that structure, buried in its foundations, are long years of plain hard work, plentifully mingled with discouragement and threats of imminent disaster."

There are as many chances now as there ever were, if people should begin at the bottom. But people don't want to do that. They are in too big a hurry to make money. They desire to attach themselves to something that is already making money. And yet all the successful businesses of today grew up, not because they were attached to previous successful businesses, but because they were built from the ground up by work.

It is not backing that brings success it is showing to the world that you will work and that you know how to work.

Now is a time when the future seems to be bright and prosperous. The world seems to pay for all kinds of produce. They who have something to sell find a ready market for it.

A coal expert announces that, despite the large quantities of coal taken from the Illinois coal mines during the last twenty years, 90 per cent of the Illinois coal deposits are yet untouched. We suppose that something like the same percentage remains in the ground in Kentucky. The coal deposits in Kentucky are, indeed, enormously large. Not long ago a man experienced in such matters said that there is enough coal under the ground in Kentucky to supply the pre-war demand for coal for the world for over one hundred and fifty years. There is no danger of the world using up its available coal supply any time soon.—Louisville Post.

Federal officers have been in Williamson and surrounding territory, and have located fifteen automobiles that had been stolen and had found the owners of six of them. A number of the autos had been purchased from second hand dealers in Cincinnati and Covington, who had executed bills of sale.

The law is very strict in the sale of second hand automobiles and no one should purchase a used machine unless he knows that the seller is the owner and that the auto is not a stolen car.

SUITS TO BE FILED.

GROWERS WHO VIOLATED THE AGREEMENT, AS WELL AS WAREHOUSEMEN WHO PERMITTED THEM TO DO SO, WILL BE MADE DEFENDANTS IN COURT WITHIN NEXT FEW DAYS.

The first of the suits against members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association growing out of violations of their contracts pledging their 1921 tobacco crop by selling it over the independent loose leaf floors probably will be filed within the next few days. It was announced at the offices of the Association in Lexington Friday.

Warehousemen who have permitted the sale of such crops over their floors, also are to be made defendants in separate suits for damages.

The papers in a number of the suits have been prepared and await only the approval of General Counsel Aaron Sapro, of the Association, to be filed in the courts, according to the statement made today.

Many inquiries are being received at the offices of the association for information as to the method of marketing tobacco and the results achieved under the new system, as compared with the old auction system. Reports from a number of counties in which the receiving plants of the Association have closed for the season show a warehouse expense of about 18 cents a hundred pounds for the tobacco handled, while under the old system the charge for warehousing alone was not less than 25 cents a hundred and ranged from that up to 80 cents a hundred in most of the warehouses of the Burley district.

Among the states from which inquiries as to the operation of the new tobacco co-operative have been received are California, Arizona, Connecticut, North Carolina, Wisconsin, New York, Indiana, West Virginia, Tennessee, as well as from growers in Kentucky, who did not sign the contract to fall, but who are joining the Association by hundreds this year from almost every county in the district, as shown by the records of the Field Service Division.

BOONE COUNTY RED CROSS

It is too bad everybody interested in up-to-date wide awake affairs in Boone county was not present at Florence Christian church Wednesday March 22, to hear from Dr. Brewster, who is touring the state, speaking on the possibilities of the Peace Time Program of the Red Cross in the counties. He is such a wonderful speaker that where ever he goes the crowds clamor for his return.

The time of his address was known too late to be advertised in the papers, but each precinct was notified by the secretary and most places it was announced in the churches, very little interest was shown and so few present, so we were forced to have an informal meeting, but many plans were made and much was accomplished. At last meeting the motion carried to get permission of Cleveland, Lake Division Headquarters to do Civilian Relief work in the county. To do this we have to have a real live head with authority to carry on the work. So we selected Mrs. Garnett W. Tolin as executive secretary of the chapter. She has to appoint her committees in each precinct to help in any cases of distress in the county. So report all cases to her at once. She is also to look after soldiers and their families while authorities say will be needed until 1925. Then to ask the physicians in the county to have physical inspection in the schools. Did you know Altamont Hotel in Ft. Thomas, has been made a Government Hospital for our soldiers of the world war and that there are 50 Kentucky boys there, and up to this time Ohio has been bearing the expense of clean clothing? Mrs. White of the Redcross said if we would give ($10) ten dollars to start, and we can follow it up with more when needed.

An appeal was made for this chapter to make a donation from the treasury to the Near East Relief. Mrs. White said Cleveland would have to give permission so a letter has been written and if permission is granted—a motion carried to give $500. An emergency pantry was offered by Mrs. B. F. Bedinger where flour and staples can be stored to use in relief cases. Misses Anna and Mildred Egger, Misses Emily Hughes, were put on membership and publicity committee.

READY FOR BUSINESS

Bellevue ball club is the first in the county to organize. Bellevue always has a very strong line-up and its fans hope to play with them.

WHAT COUNTRY NEEDS

More and more we are convinced that what this country most needs is a religion or training that will make a man pay his debts. Shouting does not settle accounts with God or man. Often we want to bounce a fellow right out of church because he went fishing on Sunday, but never say a word to the pious scamp who never pays his debts, and such people are doing the church more harm than any lot of Sunday deserters, for there are more of them in the church. Reader, are we getting close to you? Then lay down this paper and go and pay up and you can read on at ease. And don't you stop paying because the "statute of limitations" excuses the open account which you made for bread and meat. You must pay it in are and brimstone. God knows no such excuse for paying as "homestead exemption." When you raise that excuse to keep from paying your debts you can stop singing; "When I can read my title clear to mansions in the Skies." You've got none up there.

OLD LANDMARK GONE

To Be Supplanted By a Bungalow of the Modern Type.

Carpenters began wrecking the building at the corner of Washington and Union streets, last Wednesday, and by Saturday night one of the oldest landmarks of the town—one that had stood the storms of winter, the sunshine and rains for more than a century was razed to the ground. Just when this building was erected, the oldest inhabitant, who is 94 years of age does not remember.

This building was owned and occupied by the late Samuel Cowen, who for many years, served as jailer of Boone county—having been elected to that office just after the close of the Civil war. The corner room which was built of logs and used by Mr. Cowen as a grocery store, and the room adjoining on the north as a shoemakers shop. After the death of Mr. Cowen the children, Mrs. Martin and daughter, Miss Nell, and Miss Pink Cowen have been running a boarding house.

The timbers composing the structure were prepared in the woods with the broad-axe and when the frame was raised and pinned together it made a structure that was almost massive and was very stout, and at this late day the workmen found the timbers in a fine state of preservation and very hard to tear to pieces, the very best of material being used throughout in its construction. Thus it was raised and pinned together it made a structure that was almost massive and was very stout, and at this late day the workmen found the timbers in a fine state of preservation and very hard to tear to pieces, the very best of material being used throughout in its construction. Thus it was raised and pinned together it made a structure that was almost massive and was very stout, and at this late day the workmen found the timbers in a fine state of preservation and very hard to tear to pieces, the very best of material being used throughout in its construction.

When the town was first laid off in 1800, it was called Wilmington. There are 74 acres within the corporate limits, and this land was conveyed to the town trustees by John H. Craig and Robert Johnson. The trustees were William Cave, Cave Johnson and John Love. The town of Burlington was incorporated in 1824, and the first court house was erected in 1817, but just when the old house that has just been razed to the ground, was built no one knows.

Miss Nell Martin, a granddaughter has bought the interest of the remaining heirs and will have erected on the site the eight-room bungalow of the modern type.

KNOCKER VS BOOSTER

When the Creator had made all good things, there was still some more work to do, so he made beasts and the reptiles, and poisonous insects, and when he had finished, he still had some scraps left that were too bad to put in the rattlesnakes, the scorpion and the skunk so he put these together, covered it with suspicion, wrapped it in jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak and marked it KNOCKER. This product was so fearful to contemplate that he had to make something to counteract it, so he took a sunbeam and put it in the heart of a child and the brain of a man, and then wrapped it in civic pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grasp of steel, made it a lover of fields and flowers, and many sports, a believer of equality and justice and called it a BOOSTER—Selected.

The Warsaw Independent of last Saturday says:

The Gallatin County circuit court adjourned last Friday afternoon after one of the most interesting sessions in the past fifteen years. A five day court had been thing of the past in Gallatin until the above mentioned term.

The grand jury examined more witnesses than at any period in the past five years and turned in 24 in-

PLANNING TO DISTRIBUTE SALE PROCEEDS

SECRETARY FACED BY GREAT TASK, UNABLE TO NAME DATE FOR SECOND PAYMENT BUT IT WILL BE SOON.

With the closing of most of the receiving plants of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association the past week, will come the work of apportioning a second distribution of funds received from the sale of the association crop, Secretary H. L. Earley said Saturday.

Mr. Earley said it will require some time to work out the apportionment and still further time to write the 75,000 checks necessary to make the distribution, and that, he said, was the reason he was unable to say just when the distribution would be made.

Mr. Earley said that there were not 75,000 members of the association, but that attachments had been served in some cases and that there would be at least 20,000 assignments most of these to secure loans advanced by banks. The banks advance received on delivery, the banks receiving the check for the amount of the loan and interest and the grower the remainder of the amount distributed.

Contracts continued to come in the past week to the office of Assistant Chief of the Field Service Division William Collins at the Tattersall warehouse. The number received the previous week was 235, representing 542,000 pounds of tobacco, and with no special effort made by chairman in any county to obtain signatures, most of these signing would be voluntarily.

Of the 235 contracts, received 83 came from Pendleton county, 32 from Lewis, 16 from Campbell, 10 from Clermont county Ohio, nine from Green county; eight from Garfield, eight from Bullitt, seven from Boyle, six from Lincoln, six from Casey, five from Franklin and four from Henry. The others came from all parts of the district.

THE COUNTRY MINISTER.

The great need of country life is leadership. Most of the rural people read about the progressive things being done to develop country life and they would heartily like to do the same things themselves. But it takes time and effort to put over community movements. Many things are left undone because no one else has sufficient time to take them up and push them.

Here is where the modern country minister comes in, in thousands of towns. The old time clergyman was mostly a preacher and social visitor. He delivered scholarly sermons on Sunday, dealing often with theological subjects that seemed remote from common life. He also went among his people on social calls. He did a lot of good, yet was on the whole too much absorbed in the scholastic side of his work.

The modern minister sees the great need for leadership in civic matters. It is not so much that his flock lack capacity for leadership, as that they lack time to organize community work. In a multitude of cases, the country minister steps into that gap and provides that leadership. He organizes community associations, literary societies, athletic teams for young people, recreation events, etc. Frequently he helps start co-operative marketing enterprises among the farmers.

In such ways he accomplishes a great deal to put rural life on a sounder basis. Also he gains a more intimate relation to its townspeople. He sees more clearly the needs of his flock, his preaching takes on a more practical character. Whatever effort he puts into building up the community, is amply rewarded in the deeper interest that the community takes in him and his church organization. The minister of the future will be not merely a spiritual leader, but an organizer of community forces.

FAIR SIZED CROWD.

A fair sized crowd was in attendance at court Monday, but nothing like the April court days in years gone by, when there would be from 300 to 500 people on the streets and from 15 to 20 fine horses on exhibition. The crowd in town Monday was served with lunch, consisting of ham sandwiches, hot coffee and pie by the ladies of the Y. W. A. from tables in the court house yard, the proceeds to go for the benefit of the Aremman Relief Fund.

WILLS PROBATED.

The following wills were probated in the county court last Monday: Ida M. Starnes, executrix Goodridge Mary Cason, Nicholas Sanning, Emma Howlett and Fleetwood Hoffman.

Ella Poston was taken to Christ's Hospital, Cincinnati, Monday morning.

CORRECTION

In the advertisement of Geo. W. Hill & Co., in last week's Recorder-Conkey's Butter milk starting food, was quoted at $4.82 for a 200 lb. bag when the correct price should have been 100 pound bag.....4.85

Saturday March 25, 1922, Grant county citizens by a vote of 1878 to 189 against, carried the Bond issue election for good roads. The Fiscal Court of Grant county is now authorized to issue $250,000 in bonds to be used in the re-construction of the Dixie Highway thru that county. When the improvements on the Dixie Highway through Boone, Kenton and Grant counties are completed there will be a concrete road from Covington to the Scott county line, a distance of forty miles. The result of the election shows that the citizens of Grant county are in favor of good roads.

WORK OF GRIM REAPER

MRS. HUBERT ROUSE, DEAD

Home is a box of jewels more precious than diamonds or fine rubies, and the most holy tie that binds the family circle has been severed, and the mother taken away, there is that bitterness of grief which only those who had the same experience can understand. For what is a home without a mother?

Another home has been made sad and lonely by death. On the morning of April 2, 1922, at 1:30 o'clock, the death angel knocked and found admittance into the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rouse, near Lima, and carried into that beautiful beyond, where there is no suffering, pain or sorrow, the mother, Bessie, who for a number of months had been a sufferer of that dreaded disease, consumption. She battled bravely for life while every effort was put forth for her recovery, but the frail body was overpowered and after all a mighty battle swept it away and she closed her eyes forever on this world to open them in a happier one where there is no painful separation, no more sickness or death.

Mrs. Rouse was 46 years, two months and 23 days of age. She leaves a husband and two sons—Morris and Franklin, one brother, F. H. Rouse, and one sister, Mrs. Elmer Kelly, both of Burlington. There is great for she was a kind and loving wife and mother, a patient and loving sister.

Her funeral was preached at the Hebron Lutheran church, of which she was a faithful member for a number of years, last Tuesday morning, by the pastor Rev. Royer, before a large assemblage of sorrowing relatives and friends, after which her remains were laid to rest in the Hebron cemetery by the side of loved ones who had preceded her to the grave.

She was a daughter of Brashier and Ange (Tanner) Rouse, and was married to H. W. Rouse June 26th, 1892.

The husband, children and brother and sister have the sympathy of all in this their hour of grief.

MRS. LOU KELLY, DEAD.

Mrs. Lou Kelly, widow of the late Eddie Kelly, died about noon last Saturday, at her home on Miss Julia Dinmore's farm near Bellevue, after a short illness of flu. She was a daughter of Richard Loudon, and besides her parents she leaves five children—three daughters and two sons and many other relatives and friends to mourn her death.

ROBERT ADAMS, DEAD.

Robert Adams died at his home at Sherman, Grant county, March 31, 1922, at the age of 90 years, seven months and two days. He was born near Union, this county, where he lived for many years when he moved to Grant county. He was the father of Homer Adams, of the Hebron neighborhood. Funeral services were held at Big Bone Baptist church, Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial in the cemetery at that place.

The funeral of Mrs. Drucilla Goodridge, was held at the Baptist church last Friday morning at 10 a. m., by Rev. J. W. Campbell, after which the remains were put in the vault in the I. O. F. cemetery. Mrs. Goodridge had been in failing health for some years and bore her suffering without murmur. She is survived by two sons, J. W. and L. E. Goodridge, of Burlington, two sisters, Mrs. Mary Goodridge and Mrs. Lucy Cloud, and one brother, Geo. White, Milan, Indiana, and other friends and relatives. Mrs. Goodridge was 68 years of age and had resided in this county all of her life. We have lost another one of our most respected citizens who has been called to a permanent home of happiness. C. Stett Chambers, undertaker.

SIZING THINGS UP.
In sizing things up, especially those having a bearing upon local conditions, it is well to remember that there is more than one angle from which a question should be viewed.

Many people err in judgment purely from haste and over zealous-ness.

Impressions are often formed at first glance, and unless a person is willing to probe beneath the surface and consider all available facts those first impressions will remain and become fixed convictions, irrespective of whether they be right or wrong.

Then there are those who, having formed a hasty conclusion, refuse to recede from their position even when confronted with indisputable proof of their error of judgment.
This is pure stubbornness.

But in this town, as in all other towns, there are many people who are quick to form impressions, but are willing to, and do, analyze the arguments of the opposition. Often their views are completely changed as a result of the additional information they thus acquire.

Sizing up local conditions is an admirable habit, but undue haste in forming conclusions is regrettable.

Best results are obtained in an admirable habit, but undue haste in forming conclusions is regrettable.

Best results are obtained by taking a calm survey of the situation from every conceivable viewpoint before taking a definite stand.

Communities prosper and grow when their citizens adopt this plan.
It is the latter one for this town.

PARDONED BEFORE TRIAL

Frankfort, Ky., April 4.—A. L.
Stephens, indicted in Boone county on a perjury charge growing out of his failure to tell a grand jury of a bet he had made on the Sheriff's race in the primary election last year, today was pardoned by Governor Edwin P. Morrow, but he will have to pay two fines for having bet on an election.

Stephens, according to a statement of reasons for the pardon given out by Gov. Morrow, made three bets on the primary election. Later he was called before the grand jury and asked about the wagers. He told of two bets, but failed to tell of a third.

Governor Morrow says he has talked to Stephens, and the latter asserts that he was excited and "simply forgot it."—Enquirer.

The Ideals of Young People.

The folks who think the young people are going to the dogs, should read a recent article in The Outlook, telling of a questionnaire circulated among 1,000 pupils of Binghamton,
New York, High school, in regard to the ideals and purposes of these young people.

The favorite characters of these young folks, were not movie stars and baseball players, as some might imagine. They were Lincoln, Roosevelt, and Florence Nightingale. The personal achievements that most of them valued highest, were helping others, thrift, school success, music and writing. When asked to say how they would spend $5,000 if given them, 428 said they would invest it, 182 would use it for college education, and 58 would take it to help their families. These people who don't think such ambitions are out of the question.

One of the stanchions—there to remain until the sounds of the passing proce-sion had faded into the distance.

he had been killed by a train

GREETINGS—

Neighboring-City Buyer!

From MAIN STREET, Cincinnati!

We want you to consider this page an INTRODUCTION and an INVITATION and accept it with the HAND-SHAKE and GOOD WISHES and SMILE of WELCOME with which it is offered.

WE WANT TO MEET YOU PERSONALLY—on MAIN STREET, Cincinnati, and the real WELCOME and HAND-SHAKE that we are trying to extend to you here, awaits your visit to MAIN STREET.

We want you to know that MAIN STREET, Cincinnati, is your own, individual MAIN STREET, and that the merchandise carried and displayed in the stores and shops of MAIN STREET has been selected and PRICED, always with the view of YOUR OWN, INDIVIDUAL needs and requirements.

We are making MAIN STREET shops YOUR OWN shops, and we ask you to help us by making known more of YOUR wants.

We ask you to come to see us and talk with us; to pass judgment upon our merchandise; we want you to MEET YOUR FRIENDS in our stores; to leave bundles and packages at our shops, while you go about your affairs in Cincinnati, until you are ready to leave for home; ask us the things you wish to know about Cincinnati, and tell us the gossip back home.

We want you to call us JOHN and BILL and HENRY and SU-SAN and leave off the MISTER.

We want you to know that we will always find time to talk with you about your individual needs and extend to you personal service.

In our shops you will not be jostled by hurrying crowds, nor neglected by impatient and disinterested clerks. Our sales-people and our stores are busy, but we are NEVER TOO BUSY to show you CONSIDERATION, COURTESY and to extend to you OUR WELCOME.

We have made an especial effort to determine the kind of merchandise that our neighboring-city buyers most desire, and here, ON MAIN STREET, you will find it; abundance of STYLE; maximum of QUALITY and VALUE; minimum of PRICE.

MAIN STREET believes that ONE HUNDRED CENTS
MAKE ONE DOLLAR; SIXTEEN OUNCES MAKE ONE POUND and THIRTY SIX INCHES MAKE ONE YARD.

AGAIN WE INVITE YOU—

COME TO MAIN STREET, Cincinnati.

We want to know you and we want you to know us; we want to demonstrate to you what MAIN STREET can do for you in the way of HONEST MERCHANDISING.—When you can not get what you want in your home town.

Again, "GREETINGS" from MAIN STREET.

When you hoard money away you assist in stifling the commercial activity of this country.

If you put it in the bank the banker lends it to some one who uses it in producing something. That keeps other people at work and keeps the money in circulation.

If you lend it in a mortgage or buy bonds it answers the same pur-

Milk Meeting

Meeting of the Hebron Local of the Queen City Milk Producers Association and Farm Bureau will be held at Hebron, Tuesday night April 15th. This will be a lively business meeting and should be well attended. At this season of the year the Farm Bureau can be of service to everyone in supplying fertilizer, seed potatoes, etc., and will meet with us at this time.

YOUR PLAIN DUTY.

Every American citizen, native born or naturalized, owes a solemn duty to this country. That duty is to vote for the very best men for public office, without regard to the ties of friendship or other considerations.

It is possible that a conscientious discharge of this duty may require that a person vote against a warm personal friend in order to install in office a man who is better fitted to perform the duties of the position.

This fact, painful though it might be, should not deter any man from following the course which he deems to be right and just, for the ties of country are greater than those of friendship—or at least they should be.

Many otherwise good citizens feel that if they are busy on election day that fact should be sufficient excuse for refraining from voting.

But they are mistaken. They are setting a bad example to the rising generation. They are strong for the inalienable rights of citizenship that devolves upon a citizen.

They are good citizens except in the matter of voting.

In that they are not good.
Their indifference hurts not only them, but their country as well.

It has cost this country $241,- 000,000 to keep its army on the Rhine in Germany. Some of our troops are still there, when they should be here.

Some people think evil, but they haven't the courage to carry it out.

Denied that the congressmen are not busy, as they have succeeded in grinding a lot of their axes.

Elbert Riley, of Dayton, Ohio, was in Burlington, one day last week shaking hands with old friends.

Dr. W. S. Cole and Prof. Yeasley, of Florence, were transacting business in Burlington last Saturday.

H. G. Clutterbuck and wife, of Covington, spent Sunday afternoon with his sister, Mrs. Adna Hall.

Newspaper headline reads "Internal condition growing serious." Many of the hootch consumers will say so.

The dear girls feel that economic conditions are all wrong, when the necessities of life like silk stockings cost so much.

Some men who chase after the girls are called "snakes." They should look out that St. Patrick doesn't get them.

The city boy takes pride in the amount his Dad paid for his clothes, the country boy in the fact that he earned them himself.

While the kids have learned better than to bite into April Fool wool doughnuts, the adults will still pay good money for sucker stocks.

Bert Sullivan, of the Dixie Highway, near Erlanger, attended court in Burlington, Monday, meeting with his old friends and viewing the scenes of his boyhood days.

Miss Ruth Kelly, who is teaching in the Dry Ridge, Ky. school, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly, out on the Burlington and Waterloo pike.

While the politicians are delivering their speeches to the people by wireless, it might be a good idea to have a radio phone that would convey the cussing of the people to the politicians.

Jesse Loudon from out on R. D. 2, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Friday, and while in town called on the printers and had his subscription to the Recorder moved up another year.

The following Boone county citizens are serving on the United States Jury in Covington this week: J. W. Kelly, of Burlington, Walter Renaker, of "Jensons, and John L. Jones, of Big Bone.

Some people claim that the desire of the Paris style makers for longer skirts for women, is due not so much to desire to promote female modesty as to a wish to sell more dress goods materials.

A portion of the roof on the large barn of Onnie Rouse, of Gunpowder neighborhood, was blown off during the hard wind last Thursday afternoon. The wind was very strong through that section of the county, and did quite a lot of damage.

QUALITY SHOULD BE CHIEF AIM OF GROWER

PRESIDENT STONE, OF BURLEY CO-OPERATIVE, CALLS ATTENTION OF PLANTERS TO THE IMPORTANCE OF PRODUCING GOOD BURLEY LEAF.

Quality, rather than quantity, should be the motto of the members of the association, President Stone said in discussing proper and market conditions in the Burley district. "Our members should raise good tobacco," said President Stone. "They ought to plant on good land. They should not crowd their barns with the harvested crop. They should have their seed right, their plants beds right, their cotton right. If they use the old cotton it should be boiled before using it. Good quality be the constant aim of the burley tobacco grower, for there never has been a time in the history of the burley market when good tobacco did not bring a high price. Planting the care and trouble necessary to produce it, when compared with the prices paid for more tobacco of poorer quality."

President Stone had before him a bulletin of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station prepared by W. D. Valleau, the tobacco expert of the College of Agriculture, which told the story of the ruin of thousands of acres of tobacco in 1920 by wild fire and angular leaf spot, which materially reduced what at one time appeared would be a record crop.

President Stone commended this bulletin, circular No. 89, to the growers of tobacco throughout the district. He said this bulletin gave full directions for the treatment of seed before planting, so as to avoid the development of plant diseases.

SHOULD SOAK SEED.

"The grower is told," said Mr. Stone, "in this bulletin to soak the seed in a solution of an ounce of commercial formalin to a pint of water, or in that proportion, stirring the seed constantly for fifteen minutes, washing it thoroughly in several changes of clean water and drying it in a place free from dust or tobacco litter of any kind. The bulletin also informs us that bichloride of mercury or corrosive sublimate may be used in place of the formalin, in the proportion of one part of the bichloride to 1,000 parts of water. The same process of soaking and washing the seed is required and the bulletin impresses the importance of treating tobacco seed even though it may have been taken from a field which has always been free from tobacco plant diseases of any kind."

"This bulletin impresses the necessity of avoiding infection by the use of new canvas or canvas that has been disinfected by boiling in water or soaking in formaldehyde. It also advocates the steaming, instead of burning of tobacco beds, because it kills weeds more completely and effectively."

GUARD AGAINST DISEASE

"Caution against the use of diseased tobacco which may be on hand as a fertilizer for tobacco land is given in the bulletin, as it is pointed out that this diseased tobacco can be used on land for other crops, inasmuch as the disease from which tobacco suffered in previous years have not been known to attack anything else except tobacco."

"We expect from time to time, to communicate with our members, advise them as to the best methods of planting, growing, curing, and to keep in close touch with them at all times. We hope all will adopt the practice of growing good tobacco, be it much or little, for it has been demonstrated on the Lexington loose leaf market time and again that five acres of burley tobacco, properly planted and tended to maturity, will bring as much on the market as ten or even fifteen acres carelessly grown and handled."

ABE ZELLERS, (COL.) DEAD

Abraham Zellers, (colored) who has resided about three miles south of Burlington on the East Bend pike for half a century, died at his home last Friday morning, March 31st, 1922. Funeral services were held at the church in Burlington, Monday April 3rd, of which he had been a consistent member and a deacon for a number of years. He had been suffering with stomach trouble, and the end was not unexpected by the family and his friends. He is survived by three sons and three daughters. His wife preceded him to the grave 18 years ago.

The work of erecting the Farm Bureau's warehouse at Florence, is expected to begin this week. The building is to be of concrete, and when completed will be a great convenience to the members of the Bureau from all parts of the county. The building committee held a meeting at Florence last Saturday and let the contract.

Miss Hazel Grow was a guest at the hospitable home of Miss Mattie Kreylich Friday evening and night. The two young ladies spent the following day in Cincinnati, returning Saturday night to the home of Mrs. Kate Riley, Miss Kreylich's aunt, in Ludlow to remain as her guests over Sunday.

Rev. R. H. Carter, of Lexington, was in Burlington Monday.

FLEETWOOD HOFFMAN

Fleetwood Hoffman of Petersburg, Ky., was born August 19th, 1874, and departed this life March 15th, 1922.

He was married to Fannie Cave in the year of 1901, and to this union were born two children, Lloyd and Lucille. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Etta Klopp and one brother D. B. Hoffman, two sisters preceded him to the grave several years ago. He joined the Methodist church thirty-two years ago, and since that time had filled a number of offices in the church, and at the time of his death was Steward, Trustee and Parsonage Treasurer. He served his church faithfully and was a frequent guest at the parsonage, looking after the things that needed to be done. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. He had been in declining health for over a year but was not confined to his home until recently. He bore his suffering so patiently and had a smile and a cheerful word for every guest that entered the sick chamber. He told his pastor some weeks before he passed away that the Death Angel should call he was ready to go, or ready to stay. He will be missed most by his family, and then by the church and friends. But we are glad we can submit ourselves to the Lord and say "Thy will be done, not ours." May the blessing of the Lord comfort and bless his loved ones.

He is gone, but not forgotten.
Never will his memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts will ever linger,
Around the grave where he is laid.
G. B. TRAYNER.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors for the expression of love and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear father and husband, Fleetwood Hoffman. Especially do we wish to thank Rev. G. B. Trayner for his kind visits and comforting words during his long illness, Dr. J. M. Grant for his kind and untiring efforts, Mr. J. H. Stitzer for his kind and efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral, also the members of the M. E. church for the beautiful floral offering, and the pall-bearers for the kindness and sympathy shown. The Bereaved Wife and Childre.

Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday by doing his regular day's work. Edison, seventy-five, confessed somewhat shyly to being a few minutes late for office because his family was celebrating.

Two men, both long past the age when most men are useful, continue to live and work and make the world better. How do they do it? A stagnant pool is one into which no water flows, from which no water runs. A fresh, clear pool is one into which water runs and from which water constantly flows. Edison and Elliot have minds through which thought, ideas, pictures, conceptions, constantly flow. To stay young, read, think, educate your brain. You will never be an Edison or an Elliot, probably, but you will be of use, and live long enough to make that use count in proportion to what you know, what you learn, to what purpose you use your brain.

FRESH COWS PRODUCE BEST WITH EXTRA FEED AND CARE

Lexington, Ky.—Dairymen and farmers who get the highest milk and butter fat records out of cows that are on official test know the value of having the animals in strong condition at the time of calving, according to J. J. Hooper, head of the College of Agriculture dairy department. With large numbers of dairy cattle freshening at this time of the year, it is essential that they be given special care and feed if they are to produce the largest amounts of milk and fat during the year, he said.

Green grass cannot be counted on to furnish much feed in the spring, it is said. It is succulent and good for the animals, but the winter ration should be continued even the cows are allowed to graze or try in April. A standard grain mixture that has been used successfully by many Kentucky farmers is made of eight parts of corn meal, two parts of wheat bran and two parts of cottonseed meal, all mixed by weight and pound of the mixture given the cow for each three to three and one-half pounds of milk that she produces a day. This should be supplemented with 10 to 15 pounds of clover hay and 30 pounds of silage each day.

While many Kentucky farmers now breed their cows to freshen in the spring, experience has shown that fall freshening is more profitable, Mr. Hooper said. This is due to the fact that milk is higher in price in the winter than it is in the summer. The cow that freshens in the fall also gives more milk than the one that freshens in the spring since she is stimulated twice, once in the winter by the act of calving and again in the spring when put on pasture.

Experience has shown that it is best to allow cows to attain considerable growth before they are bred, he pointed out. When bred too young and frail the animals develop into small cows. Fifteen to 20 months of age is the best time for breeding the ordinary heifer, he said.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD
Shelbyville, Ky., March 31.—B. W. Noel, member of the family at the Old Mason's Home here, celebrated his 100th birthday anniversary today.

Dignitaries of the order from various sections of the State were at the home for the birthday dinner. Despite his age, Mr. Noel is in excellent health and his mental faculties are as vigorous as those of the average man 75 years old. He generally carries a cane, but this he laid aside for the festivities today.

Mr. Noel is of a cheerful disposition and is as gentle as a woman. He was born in Boone County, Kentucky, March 31, 1822. He joined Napoleon Lodge of Masons in Graves County in 1855 and transferred to Cloverport Lodge, from which he was admitted to the home in 1916.

He has been married twice, but both wives are dead and he has no children.

The principal table ornament was a mammoth cake decorated with the emblem surrounded by roses.

The cake was the gift of Mrs. George Dow, wife of the Episcopal rector of Shelbyville and Pewee Valley.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.
The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.
When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.
That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.
The bottom—the safer—the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

Washington, D. C.—The President has returned to the city from his fishing, boating and golfing trip to Florida. A great many Washingtonians regret that he did not find time to commute the sentence of the half-witted boy, McHenry, under the death sentence here. The heart-broken mother had walked to Washington from a distance to ask this of the President, but he had just left for Florida. From all accounts Mr. Harding had a delightful time, freed from the cares of State—his arduous daily grind. He was the guest on a palatial houseboat, of a young Washingtonian who was famous a few years ago for his wild driving—a veritable road burner. His late father's will created a "pendthrift trust," but the heir has been blown holes in it. One of his friends recently lost $60,000 worth of choice liquors by thieves, but the supplies on the houseboat are said to be intact, except where shrinkage was due to "natural causes." Perhaps a hatch was left open. Dangerous waters for an orthodox Baptist down Havana way.

ooo

Though the President shows more backbone in standing against the soldiers' bonus than he was supposed to possess, he yields readily to the demands of the ship-owners who also desire a bonus. But they are rich and powerful and can reach his ear. The Wall Street Journal daily reflects the desires of the big corporations and the few dozens of men who are all-powerful in big business. It says: "There is no way of passing a soldiers' bonus, and if there were a way the bonus should not be paid. In any form it constitutes the rawest bribe ever offered to the voters, while it prostitutes patriotic service to the level of the meanest panhandler. But President Harding's program for building up a merchant marine will appeal as sound as all but the demagogue. The money used to subsidize shipping would be in the nature of a national defense." The President accurately reflects the mind of Wall Street. It is still true, as when Israel roamed the valley of the Jordan, that "the ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib."

ooo

The Newberry case will not down: Townsend of Michigan and Frelinghuysen of New Jersey are both opposed for renomination on the ground that they voted to establish the principle that a man could bribe the electorate and be re-elected, admitting it and then sit in the Senate, posing as the equal of men honestly chosen in the manner provided by law. If these Senators who voted for Newberry—accessories after the fact—should escape defeat in the primary, their chance to get by the general election will be exceedingly slender, for all good people of all parties will unite to rebuke them. For their contempt for the proprieties and their abasement of the Senate of the United States. The satirizing of Newberry was the most damaging blow that has been struck at the rot of our system of government within a generation; to find worse examples one must go back to the purchase of the Presidency by Mark Hanna in 1896 and the theft of it from Tilden in 1876.

THE DEADDEST MAN

No, the deadest man on earth is not numbered in Father Time's harvest. You can not find his tombstone in the cemetery, neither does a mossy mound mark his lowly bed. His last resting place was on a cracker box in the grocery store and there he will remain dead to everything good, dead to all activity, dead to friendship and dead to his homelies until Gabriel shall awaken him to a more active life in a future world. Boys, don't get stagnant, don't be a living corpse. Don't be like any other cabbage head. Be something. Make every minute count. Why, I would much rather be a first-class corpse, with my body nurturing the green grass above me and taking my chances of developing into the liveliest kind of an angel "over there," than to exist in such a mental fog of stupidity, as if the undertaker had judged I was not even worthy of a coffin.

EVERY VOTER IN STATE

MUST REGISTER JULY 10-11

The most far-reaching law enacted by the General Assembly is the general registration bill, which would require every voter in the State to register. The registration day is fixed on the second Monday in July, but this year two days, July 10 and 11 are designated.

The law contemplates only one registration in a life time for a voter who remains in the same precinct. In the event a voter changes his precinct or the county he must secure a transfer from the County Clerk.

Supplemental registration will be held sixty days before the election year.

The registration law will require strenuous efforts upon the part of the party organization to get the voters out, and it is probable that a precinct organization, similar to that employed in a campaign, will be formed.

Some people are anxiously looking for the road to prosperity, and particularly for some conveyance that will take them along that road without any effort on their part.

CAMP ROOSEVELT HEADQUARTERS, BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Boys from Boone are again invited to take the course in physical-military training to be given during July and August at Camp Roosevelt, under command of Major F. L. Beale U. S. A. Word to that effect has been received by Superintendent of Schools J. C. Gordon, from Peter A. Mortenson, Supt., of Chicago Public Schools.

During the past three summers, thousands of boys underwent training at the encampment, and it is expected this number will be greatly increased this year.

Camp Roosevelt is intended as a living memorial to the principles of military and physical fitness for which Theodore Roosevelt stood, and is established by the Chicago Board of Education, with the sanction and support of the War Department of the U. S. Government.

In order to stimulate general interest in physical and military preparedness, Camp Roosevelt is all-American, and recruits are accepted from all parts of the country. At the Executive Headquarters Board of Education, Room 503-460 South State Street, Chicago, applications are steadily coming in from practically every state in the Union.

The camp is divided into three sections, to meet the different needs of the boys: The R. O. T. C. division is for boys of high school age whoseek primarily out-door life and physical training; the Summer School Division includes seventh and eighth grade and all high school subjects. The Chicago Board of Education authorizes the acceptance of credits earned in the camp school. The Junior Camp Division is for the younger boys, and includes instruction in scoutcraft and woodlore.

As a further cooperative step, the War Department furnishes equipment for the camp and the recruits. This year the camp will open on July 5, and will be conducted for six weeks, divided into two periods of three weeks each. A boy may attend either one or both of these periods, as desired. The enrollment fee of $2.00 will be charged, and a three weeks' outing under finest possible conditions will cost each recruit less than $30.00 for the training, mess privileges, and other incidental expenses. The principal expense of the camp is borne by a group of patriotic Chicago business men who are interested in making the camp a nationwide success.

The camp will move from Michigan to LaPorte, Indiana, 65 miles from Chicago.

Arousing The Merchants.

The president of a Business Men's Association located in Pennsylvania handed out his usual talk to business men of his city at a public meeting the other day. He was frank in telling merchants that it was up to them to wake up and use modern methods in promoting their business. Many of them, he said, had never advertised their business since he had lived in the town, and some of those that did advertise never changed their copy.

He told the merchants that there was no good excuse for people's going to other cities to do shopping and if people did it the merchants were largely to blame.

This line of talk would fit in most cities and towns. Methods of promoting business have radically changed during recent years. Any business that is worth enough for a live man to put his time into, is worth enough to advertise and it can be increased by advertising.

The way to do business in these times is to seek new patronage and thereby create a greatly increased volume of trade. You can add to the scope of any enterprise by soliciting business for it. If you ask for a subscription for any good public cause which will benefit every citizen of the community, you will get every little money merely by opening up some place to receive it. But if you go around from door to door you can get the money.

It is too expensive to keep solicitors for a business going around from door to door of the houses in Boone county. But the people feel so keenly the desire to make good bargains, that a newspaper advertisement will perform the same function, and will draw them to the stores that show their enterprise by making an effort to sell their goods. When volume of trade is built up in this way, then the cost of doing business per article is reduced, and sales can be made at a very low price.

LEGION NOTES

Baltimore, Md.—Hundreds of ex-gobs who raked mines out of the North Sea during the world war want to re-enlist, but in Prohibition Commissioner Haynes' "hooch Navy." Four submarine chasers are being put in commission at Baltimore, Md., and when completed will form a Navy that will wage war on rum runners.

ooo

Omaha, Neb.—A discovery that Harvard, Neb., didn't have a way of getting the latest news on the weather, crops and current events caused an old Navy radio operator to get busy. Now the American Legion is issuing "hot off the wire" news to the Harvard citizenry.

ooo

Denver, Colo.—If the Legion wants the flag taken down they can hire a couple of steeple jacks and take it down," was the answer the board of commissioners made to the Littleton, Colo., American Legion post which complained the flag on the court house. Nothing loath, a couple of old mast climbers turned the trick.

ooo

Des Moines, Iowa.—Their own hero's death from old war wounds has caused a Des Moines, Iowa family to send a request to the American Legion for an ex-service man for adoption.

ooo

Trenton, N. J.—War wounds and nervousness laid to shell shock is believed responsible for the act of Ralph W. Harrison of Maplewood, N. J., who committed suicide by shooting himself with the army revolver he had carried in France.

ooo

Denver, Colo.—The American Legion rifle team of Golden, Colo., composed entirely of men whose rifles played a part in the World war battles, has issued a challenge to any rifle team in the United States, the scores to telegraph to each team at the end of each range.

ooo

Paris, France.—When the Paris "Figaro" published a cartoon against the payment of the expenses of the United States Army of Occupation, the American Legion in France registered a healthy kick. The picture showed a doughboy pushing aside Marianne as the latter is about to take a plate of gold from Germany.

ooo

Seattle, Washington.—Every Chamber of Commerce in the State of Washington has voted in favor of the American Legion's plan for adjusted compensation.

ooo

Boise, Idaho.—When John A. Isham of Boise, Idaho, discovered that Oscar Weymire, his old bunkmate in the army had not paid his American Legion dues he decided to visit Weymire. The latter was trapping 300 miles away but Isham made the trip by foot, horse and skates and brought in the dues.

ooo

New York, N. Y.—The strength that won the Argonne and St. Mihiel is being used to guard New York against payroll and bank messenger robberies. The American Legion is furnishing ex-soldiers who go heavily armed with the men and women who carry huge sums through the business sections.

ooo

St. Augustine, Fla.—When a carnival pitched its tents on his hotel property and an appeal to the authorities proved of no avail, Charles E. Young, Sr., St. Augustine, Fla., used the old sea method of showing distress and hung the American flag on his hostelry upside down. The American Legion protested the act and Young publicly apologized.

Evidence is cumulative that American farmers are going to make some money this year. Nearly all of them lost money in 1920, and those counted themselves fortunate who broke even in 1921. But the cost of production on the farm has been steadily going down, and the prices of farm products have been slowly coming up. The result of all is that by the time the 1922 crop is harvested, the purchasing power of those who live upon the farms will have been in part, at least, restored. And that is going to make a tremendous difference in America.

The season of Covington loose leaf burley tobacco market was brought to a close last Friday morning at the Kenton-Warehouse with an offering of only 9,480 lbs., of new crop tobacco. It was the smallest sale of the season, and the quality of the tobacco was extremely inferior. The market, however, closed strong and warehousemen expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with the sale. Shippers failed to exert their right of rejection and it was a clean sale, as most of the auctions this season have been. The top price for the day was $47 per 100 lbs., which was paid for bright leaf of good grade.

Senator Lewis A. Arnett, W. B. Adkin and other Knights of Pythias, visited Workum Lodge, K. of P. at Petersburg, last Friday evening in the interest of a drive that is being made by the Knights to free the Pythian Home of debt and to create an endowment fund. Senator Arnett has been visiting lodges all over Kentucky since January, and has been very successful, and he is certain that by May 1st the Home will be free from debt, and he hopes to have in addition an endowment fund. The Knights have a Home about three miles from Lexington, for which they have refused $400,000. The Home debt has all been paid except about $4,000.

Americans Find Armenians Victims of Circumstances, not Beggars

The Armenian government would soon be able to work out its own salvation. It could enjoy a brief period of peace, in the opinion of an American Commission which has just returned to the United States after an exhaustive survey of the situation in the Levant.

This Commission, which was sent out by the Near East Relief, made a personal inspection of conditions from Syria to the Caucasus Mountains. In addition, the reports of relief workers who have been long on the field and of government officials carefully examined.

"In those few districts where the Armenians have been able to stay, they have demonstrated the ability to care for themselves and their own, declares Chas. V.ickers, general secretary of the relief organization, who headed the Commission.

"Naturally, industrial work is an inherent disaster to accepting charity, it has been the whole sale disorders of the past year that have prevented the people from realizing their cherished dream of a stable, independent government.

"Even in the present crisis, with starvation and cholera making such rapid strides into the population that it seems impossible for any survive, the people are struggling bravely against overpowering circumstances.

"Armenia is starving, not because her people are depending on outside aid for their existence, but because occupation of their land by hostile forces and the consequent interruption of normal occupation, have made them helpless.

Homeless Waifs at Erivan Railroad Station.

"Time after time since the outbreak of the world war, the Armenians have made a brave attempt to cultivate their land. And time after time some new disorder has prevented them from gathering their crops or laid waste their fields before the grain has ripened and been gathered in.

"After two years of American relief activity it seemed less than fair if we would be able to reduce our program in Russian Armenia to the care of the children we had gathered into our orphanages. But then came the new invasion, crops were trampled down in the fields, live stock was carried off, and the peasant population were driven from their homes.

We may not be able to save all of the helpless refugees who are now crowded in this territory, but we certainly cannot desert the hundred thousand orphan children who are now in our orphanages or under our protection in the Caucasus, Anatolia, Cilicia and other devastated areas of the Near East. Last spring, when our supplies ran low, 1,000 of these children died out of a total of 20,000 in one of our orphanages. These children are absolutely dependent upon aid from America and will perish if our aid is withheld.

Next year, if further chaos can be avoided, possibly we will be able to reduce our program, but prompt action is necessary now or for thousands there will be no next year.

A Victim of Scabies, Nearly as Prevalent as Starvation.

STOCK SHIPPING BODIES LOWER MARKETING COST

Lexington, Ky.—Cooperative marketing as a better and cheaper means of getting livestock to the market could be practiced more extensively in practically all parts of Kentucky, marketing specialists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station said here today. Up to the present time, the development in this method of marketing livestock has been slow in the State in spite of the fact that its efficiency has been demonstrated repeatedly, it is said.

During 1920, livestock shipping associations in Iowa saved farmers approximately $3,000,000 on 50,000 car loads of stock, D. G. Gard, one of the specialists pointed out in showing the advantages of this method of marketing. The average saving was about 35 cents a hundred pounds on stock marketed through the associations. The same year, 35 associations in Missouri shipped 2,521 cars at an average saving of $68.30 a car load. During 1921, one Kentucky association saved about $6,000 on 83 carloads shipped while another reduced the local buyer's shipping margin from $1.25 a hundred to 75 cents a hundred pounds, Mr. Gard said.

Although financial savings are the most important benefits of such associations, other results are of almost equal importance, it is said. Chief among these is the improvement in the class of livestock raised in the community. When farmers ship their own stock to market where it is graded and sold accordingly, they soon learn the value of good stock and strive to improve their own flocks and herds in order to receive better prices, the market men claim. Successful local associations also form an excellent foundation on which to build large cooperative enterprises, it is claimed.

Livestock shipping associations constitute one of the simplest forms of cooperative marketing, the specialists say. Stock is assembled at a shipping point, where one man is held responsible for the receiving, weighing and loading. Each farmer's stock is marked so that all expenses may be prorated among the various shippers in proportion to the amount of stock shipped. In this way, each man receives exactly what his animals sold for on the market less the cost of getting them there.

SPORTS FOR COUNTRY YOUNG PEOPLE

In most prosperous country towns effort is made to provide live sports. In Orange, Iowa, for instance, a town surveyed by the Iowa state college of agriculture, five tennis courts were found in this township, which has 780 people. That would be about one to every thirty-five families.

Not many cities could show a tennis court to every 35 families. A town where young folks have this chance at one of the best of modern sports, will keep its young people interested and happy. Such games make them brighter, more wide awake, more healthy, and they keep down the restless spirit.

The people who kick on spring bonfires will probably also find fault if you leave rubbish in your yards.

Raise ALL Your Chicks

After the trouble and expense of hatching good chicks, you want to raise them all—into heavy layers and husky breeders. It's a lot cheaper to raise them than to replace them even if you had the time. So take no chances—give them the start that will make them sturdy and keep them growing—feed them the original, dependable "baby food for baby chicks."

Pratt's Buttermilk Baby Chick Food

Should be fed for the critical first three to six weeks, because it contains exactly what the delicate little bodies need, for building bone, muscle and feather. Start with the first meal and count on it for results in husky, well-developed youngsters that will continue to grow to profitable maturity.

Used every season by thousands of successful chick raisers, because it raises the chicks, relieves you of danger, worry and loss. Depend upon it for your chicks—try it at our risk.

OFFICIAL TESTING.

Your County Agent overheard a group of farmers at a cross roads store the other day commenting on the record recently completed by the Jersey cow Fugis Leon, owned by O. C. Hafer, Hebron, Ky. The record made was 10704 pounds of milk and 649 pounds of butter fat. These men were speculating on the cost of making such a record and denying that such things do. Here are the exact figures kept on cost of production by the official tester:

What Fed	Per Ton	Cost
3845 lbs. Home Mixed
Feed	$34.00	$50.65
4200 lbs. Silage	7.00	14.70
857 lbs. Dried Beef
Feed	$2.00	14.20
624 lbs. Clover hay	26.00	8.11
366 lbs. Soy Bean hay	20.00	3.66
346 lbs. Timothy hay	20.00	3.66
7 mo. pasture, etc.	2.00	14.00
		$118.68
Am't milk sold (wholesale)		$63.92
Balance		$245.24

If a dairyman had 50 such cows in his herd, declaring a profit of $245.24 each, he need not worry about the comforts of life.

I have known in one cow testing association in this state of one cow to make as much profit as 40 cows in another herd. We ask ourselves this question. Is there any honor to a man for milking 40 cows 700 times a year, when another single cow making maximum production would declare the same profit?

Official testing is showing us many things. We have several other cows in our testing association that promise to equal or excel the record made by Mr. Hafer's cow. The accusation is often made that great records if Register and Merit cows are made under hot house conditions, consequently they mean nothing to just the average farmhand. Early in this test Mr. Hafer's barn burned, along with all feed and dairy equipment, and this cow made the large part of her test in a "tumbled down shack" and one could throw a dog by the tail through any crack as the saying goes. She shivered from the wintry winds during many days of her test. Our Official Test Association will be reorganized October 1st with twice the number of cows. Will you want to put any of the good cows of your herd in this Association?

FOR BOYS AND ## GIRLS EYES ONLY.

The season is on for club members and many likely boys and girls are joining. Any boy or girl has the following projects to select from: Registered Jersey male or female, Pure Registered pig, male or female, Pure bred poultry Barred Rocks or other breed of choice, Corn, seed project and potatoes seed project. Features of the work this year will be the local shows. Local club picnics and programs. New and bigger premium list at Florence Fair. Stock Judging team to State Fair and most important the three day Junior Club Camp held in connection with Kington county club boys and girls. During the campaign 200 to 300 boys and girls will be enrolled.

Your Farm Bureau has arranged to get certified (or disease free) early seed potatoes for you direct from North and at prices but a few pennies higher than common stock. We suggest that you buy this seed, and if you desire, compare yield and quality with other seed. Northern common seed are becoming diseased each year, and unfortunately these diseases are not detected on the seed.

Another splendid egg laying record has come to this office for the month of March. Mrs. Clarence Jones of Hebron, Ky., member Boone Co. Poultry Association had 19 culled White Leghorn pullets that laid 461 eggs in March. These pullets have laid since early fall average 24.26 eggs per hen. And just think, time was when hens laid no more eggs than crows. We all marvel at the mechanical inventions of man, but oftentimes fail to appreciate the wonderful development made by man in animal life and nature.

W. D. SUTTON,
County Agent.

WOOL POOL ORGANIZED

At a meeting of the wool growers of Boone county, held in Burlington, Monday, the following officers were elected:

J. H. Stevens, President.

L. T. Clure, Secretary.

MEMBERS OF BOARD

L. T. Clure, Burlington.

J. H. Stevens, Petersburg.

Geo. McGlasson, Bullittsville.

L. D. McGlasson, Constance.

J. C. Bedinger, Walton.

O. K. Powers, Verona.

J. W. Walton, Rabbit Hash.

John Rogers, Bellevue.

Extra Blankenbaker, Union.

Clint Blankenbaker, Florence.

The Farm Bureau did a rushing business Monday—besides the large amount of feed disposed of about $700.00 worth of grass seed was delivered to its members. When night came Manager Penn was a tired man.

On account of the Sunday School Convention at the Baptist church in Lexington next Sunday there will be no services at the Methodist church. There will be services

ORVILLE NORRIS ALLOWAY

Our Heavenly Father has seen fit to call from this life to that home eternal, our Father Orville Norris Alloway. He was born June 11th, 1835, was nearing his 88th birthday when the summons came. The departed was taken from the home of his son Arthur at McVine, Boone County, Kentucky. He was born at Petersburg, Ky., and followed in the footsteps of his father and spent his entire life at the place of his birth. He married Carolina Clark in 1856, and to this union were born four children, Fannie Buchanan, Irene Buchanan, William J., and Arthur who survive him. He was ever a friend to all who needed sympathy and help and he will be missed by not only the fathers and mothers but the children as well.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends who assisted in any way during the last illness of our father O. N. Alloway. And we especially extend our thanks to Mr. John Steere for his beautiful and splendid work for funeral and interment. We also emphasize our expression of appreciation to Brother Robert Carter for his kind and timely expressions over the departed.

THE FAMILY.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The leading question among school people in rural districts is what are we to do with the one room school? The one room school seems to have served its purpose and its efficiency, is not adequate to the new conditions about us.

The Boone County Board of Education has had this matter under advisement for a year or more. We find after investigation that the solution seems to be to consolidate the one room schools. It means amazing forces and concentrating efforts, and this action means highest efficiency.

In view of these facts the above named board went on record at its last meeting favoring this plan. According to these views and this plan the board offers an opportunity to the following districts: Bul, Litsville, Bullittsburg, Franceville, Hebron, Rucker and a portion of Limaburg. The boundary of the proposed district will be described and notices published and posted in the proposed districts and the proposition submitted to the voters for their decision.

The proposition is this: Are you in favor of a ten cent tax on the hundred dollars to be used in paying one third the costs of the building and furnishing the same for a house adequate for the accommodation of this consolidated district? The County Board is to pay two-thirds the cost of the building and equipment, to pay transportation charges and to pay for maintenance of said school.

This proposition will be discussed in each district affected, during a period of thirty days, (or 1 month) before the vote is taken. More anon.
J. C. GORDON, Supt.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. A. B. Renaker gave us an interesting and instructive talk on "Banking" in Chapel Friday morning.

The storm last Thursday blew out one of the large window panes in Miss Kreylich's room. No one was hurt in spite of the fact that glass was scattered over the room.

Misses Hazel Grow and Mattie Kreylich spent the week-end in the city.

Mr. Wayne Phipps, of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, and Mr. Robt. Clure, of Burlington, visited our school last Friday afternoon. They were former students of B. H. S.

Miss Hazel Grow entertained the faculty with a theatre party at Burlington, Tuesday night.

Jessie Jones was absent several days the past week on account of illness.

The Grade School Spelling Contest was held at the Burlington High School Friday afternoon. Burlington was represented by Dorothy McMullen, Catherine Huey and Kathryn Clure. Their opponents were pupils from Hebron and Limaburg. Hebron won the banner.

RURAL INDEPENDENCE.

Dean Iddings of the University of Idaho wants the country people to be more independent of the city producers. He places the farmer who lives on a place having a few cows, some chickens and pigs. Such a farmer and his family, he says, are contented. This man did not buy any canned milk at the store, because he had his own cows. He did not buy any pork or bacon, as he had his own pigs and smoked his own meat in his smokehouse. His cream checks and his eggs paid his grocery bill and bought most of his clothing. The country family has the soil as a resource from which to draw support and create independence from city industry. Here the people who live in the center of country towns can get this independence to a large extent, through raising vegetables, chickens and perhaps pigs.

John Finnell made a business trip to Walton, Saturday.

Miss Alice Afterkirk, of Beaver Lick, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Alva Wood.

Claude Litteral wife and children, visited Mr. Jack Litteral and wife, Sunday.

Victor Huff was the guest of his grandparents last week, Lute Abdon and family.

W. L. H. Baker wife and son, of the city, were at their farm Saturday and Sunday.

Lute Abdon and wife were guests of Loren Abdon and family, near Richwood, Sunday.

Sheriff B. B. Hume of Burlington, was a visitor to this town Friday, and called on his aunt, Mrs. J. G. Finnell.

Some months ago mail robberies came thick and fast. Bandits were making many rich hauls. The public was becoming demoralized.

Then the government put the U. S. marines to guarding the registered mails. Instead of getting money the bandits got bullets in the carcasses. Some said "good morning" to the devil.

The marines had no future votes to consider, hence they shot, and shot straight, and mail robberies ceased.

All of the rest of the banditry that is disgracing this country could be handled and checked as effectively if officials would consider only the conscientious custom of pandering to the votes of the criminal element.

Law ad order can not expect to accomplish anything by sleeping while criminality works.

The lady directors of the Farm Bureau are laying plans for a big picnic some time in May.

Atty. S. W. Tolin was in Covington last Monday on legal business in the United States Circuit Court.

Edgar C. Riley of Lexington, was transacting business in the county court last Monday.

Silent ALAMO

FARM ELECTRIC POWER AND LIGHT PLANT

I can give you what is known as the full kilowatt for $465.00 set on stand table ready to pull its full capacity without any extra cost to the consumer at this price.

The time is coming when I will prove to you that I have a real piece of machinery that will perform the duties for the farmer for very little cost. I have already put this plant up against some real work for a plant of this size.

The cost of a Lighting Plant is the motor and batteries. That is what you want to take into consideration when you get ready to figure on the equipment for your home.

As an illustration, I have one of these plants performing at the Boone County Infirmary, one of the largest institutions, that is now being taken care of by a plant of this size. So you see how easy it would take care of the average home.

If you are interested drop in and get some literature on the Silent Alamo.

Oliver Geisler and wife, have returned to their home at South Norwood, Ohio, since their aunt Kate is convalescing.

We have not recovered from the removal of J. M. Botts and family from our burg, their residence and surrounding country is a cemetery, but we are sure that our loss is Burlington's gain.

Last Thursday the remains of an old and esteemed citizen, Orville Allday, who died in McVillie at the home of his son Arthur on the 27th of March, were interred here. He had lived in this town and was the village lackamith for many years. He was respected and esteemed by everyone. He was known as (Pap) by everyone.

Mrs. Josephine Baker entertained in honor of her son Edgar's seventh birthday. A table laden with flowers, cakes and fruits was enjoyed by the guests. Those present were Mrs. Sophia McWeeth and her little son Henry Milton, Edmond Shinkle, Ruth, Gladys, Mildred and Orvil Mullin, Geo. Burton Yates and Tyria Ruth. All left wishing him many more such birthdays.

Miss Lee Etta Myers, spent the week-end in Bellevue, Ky., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Earl Elliott and Mr. Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. P. Holloway entertained most hospitably at dinner last Tuesday evening Mrs. Eva J. Carver and children and Miss Lee Etta Myers.

In the Graded School Spelling Contest held here March 31st, Petersburg school was successful in retaining the district banner. Eva Bruce, Fannie Berkshire and Blanche Shinkle comprise the team. Mrs. B. C. Gaines pronounced.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank the neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our mother, Mrs. Drucilla Constance.

CONSTANCE.

Listen for wedding bells which will ring soon.

Mr. William Clore has moved into Mr. Moore's house.

James Harrison and Justin Aylor attended Sunday school at Pt. Pleasant, Sunday morning.

Mr. Martin has improved the house he bought and moved into it. It was part of the Zimmer estate.

This community was shocked to hear of the death of Mr. Wm. Massey, who died at the home of his brother in Kenton county, on the Amsterdam pike. He died March 26 of hasty tuberculosis, just 3 months and 2 days after the death of his wife. He leaves to mourn his loss two little children, a daughter and son, father, three sisters, two brothers and many relatives and friends.

He did a large grocery business here and was well liked as a man. He made many friends here, not one person ever had a word of dislike for him. His family has the sympathy of this community in their bereavement, but the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, and we must bow to his will. A good man has gone home.

HOME NOT LIKE SOME OLD PLACE.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead who hasn't to his wife said "I wish you'd drop this voting scheme, which makes life seem a weary dream and straightway to the kitchen hie, and round me up some kind of pie. For age-long weeks this ding-dang campaign has got the ballot on your brain until your culinary art seems quite unequal to a tart. I'm hungry wife dear, and weak. I wish you had no dates to speak. I'd give my franchise up to you for one old-fashioned Irish stew. The bed on which my bones are laid, not since last autumn has been made, and Oh, it's full of knots and lumps and fleas and awful bump-the-bumps. The laundry you sent out last year has not come back—you do not care, and all my clothes are tied with strings and safety-pins and nails and things. I do not think a single room has felt the tickle of a broom since you went on a strike for rights which robs me of your days and nights. Oh, come with me and be my bride and let this Votes for Women slide!"

Breathes there a wife with soul so dead who hasn't to this hubby said: "Cheer up, old top, 'twill not be long till life will be one grand song. In want and rage just six weeks more you'll have to rove, then as of yore I will find time to tend to thee; just now you must not bother me. Just pass Amendment Eight and see how nice and peaceful things will be. But if you fellows don't vote Yes, the strike will go right on. I guess, until there is quite a freeze below—if you want misery, vote No."

LADIES TO THE FRONT!

Here's a suggestion for the ladies of our home community, and we know they can carry it through to completion with great success. There are less attractive towns than ours, and then there are those that are more attractive. The latter condition is due to the fact that their citizens take exceptional pride in beautifying their surroundings.

We can do the same.

It could be a simple matter for the citizens of this town, under the leadership of our charming women, to get together and each agree to plant something especially attractive around the house or grounds this spring.

A few cents in seeds, a little time in digging and arranging, and the work would be done. The time consumed need not be taken from our daily labors. The slight digging and arranging would be no more than beneficial exercise after business hours, and the cost is too insignificant to consider.

When you walk through a city park you marvel at its beauty, but it is no more than human hands have made—just as human hands could make this town a bower of beauty.

Our wives and mothers and sisters and daughters are the ones to inaugurate and push a movement of this kind. Theirs are the eyes for beautiful effects, and the minds to conceive them. And the men? They would do the work, of course. What man will not exert himself to that slight extent in order to assure his wife that her flowers and shrubbery will be as beautiful as those of her neighbors and friends?

Why not, ladies? This paper will follow your lead with all the encouragement and publicity you desire.

We believe in you, and we believe you can manage a beautifying campaign even better than the men. Let's have a meeting of the women of the town at once for the purpose of effecting an organization. The "Home Beautiful Club" is waiting to be born, and it needs a mother.

Who will she be?

SPRING TIME ROADS

There is an old saying in the rural districts, prompted by bad condition of the roads in spring that it's mighty fine overhead, but we aren't going that way. The beauty of the spring time is in many neighborhoods offset by the practical difficulty of getting about.

In many localities the vehicles will go to their hubs at this time of year. Even in cities and towns, the side and outlying streets may be so poorly surfaced as to be nearly impassable, and sidewalks so soggy that walking is almost prohibited.

Spring is a good time to get up enthusiasm for good roads. Many a disgruntled taxpayer who usually thinks they can rub along another year will admit in spring that the roads have reached the limit and something must be done. The town that has its lines of thoroughfare sufficiently improved so they are fairly good thru the season, makes friends among the country people. Those who form the habit of trading there in March and April may continue it the rest of the year.

Somewhere in this community there is someone who is less respected than any other person. His condition is the result of his own acts. Such a person all but dead?

Yes, from his. He has his good qualities, but they may be stifled by Ideas are epidemic, as well as influenza. Someone sees a "ghost" which throws stones, or sets the house on fire, and behold, all over the country come reports of "ghosts." Some one who has a reason for not wanting the children of today well educated sees a mythical objection to the Towner-Sterling bill, now before Congress, which provides for a Department of Education and a Chief who is a member of the Cabinet, and all over the country little men of little minds echo the cry of "paternalism."

The Towner-Sterling bill requires these three things in a state before it can receive the "paternal" federal aid to education provided in the bill:

1. A public school opportunity of not less than 24 weeks.

2. Compulsory attendance at some school, public or private, for at least 24 weeks in the year, of all children between 7 and 14.

3. English as the basic language of instruction in all schools, public and private, in the common branches.

The man who comes out in the open and says those provisions are wrong, or un-American, or vicious may have courage, if not sense.

As a matter of sober fact, there are no real objections to the bill, even by those who don't want it! The only persons who don't want it are the people who have always fought education, who see in education the mass the end of spiritual and thus civil tyranny. But the people of the United States as a whole want education, believe in education demand education, know that education is the one and only salvation for both the individual and the nation.

Talk is cheap. Action takes thought and time. When the Towner-Sterling bill passes it will pass because enough newspapers, clergymen, educators, influential men and common ordinary, every-day citizens have printed, talked and written about their convictions both to and at their respective legislatures.

You who read this paper, a representative in Congress and the right to address two senators. Three two-cent stamps and your convictions sent to these gentlemen will aid in bringing to your schools, your community, your children the same federal aid which has helped your and other communities in roads, in agriculture, in postal facilities, in reclamation, in mining methods, in forestry in all the hundred and one ways in which Uncle Sam assists Americans to be better, abler and more prosperous citizens.

Do it now!

TOO MANY TROUBLE RAISERS. During the present period of readjustment there is a certain percent of the population in every place that are composed of wise ones. They do not realize that seventy five per cent of factories and other business institutions have for the past twelve months lost money. They do not realize that the fellow who worked at his occupation last year with a keen determination to succeed regardless of the rest of the world, is the fellow who today is farther ahead than any one else.

We find these wise ones on every job ready to raise a kick about the wages being paid or the hours being worked. They belong to the class of never-do-wells and should consider themselves lucky to get employment at any price. They are never satisfied and should be spotted on every job and laid off. They are tongue artists and never study to cultivate and develop their ideas along their line of work. They are misfits and are a burden to humanity. There is the hobo spirit, they had rather soldier and sponge than to render to the world good service. They belong to the class of trouble raisers and a few of them are found in the mines, in the factories, upon the farms and in all occupations.

WHAT MAKES A HOME? Edgar A. Guest, a noted writer, says: "It takes a lot of livin' in a house to make it home."

We believe that Mr. Guest never said anything that was truer in his life, yet we know of some neighborhoods where the inhabitants spend a large portion of their time visiting on or the road to town.

That family that does not love home well enough to feel uncomfortable unless at home does not give to the nation that which makes it the strongest power on earth. The home for years was the foundation stone upon which the United States rested. Today style, clubs and high society has made of many homes only a house, barren of content, love or happiness. These same elements have not only destroyed that which makes homes but they have caused children to grow up ignorant of the habit of thrift and industry and the members of the family to fail to do their duty and to despise work.

To make a home, each member must be anxious to do his part, good books and papers must be read and regular habits of industry formed.

It does not matter so much who is president of this or that club or who is the leader at the latest supper or how each one was dressed, but it does matter whether or not we are walking in the straight and narrow path and making the world better by us having lived in it.

Boys and girls will never learn the value of money unless they learn it

BUILDING AND THE GENERAL BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

The present activity in building operations is an outstanding feature of the general business situation. The building industry in the United States is second in importance only to agriculture and many million workers directly and indirectly are dependent upon it. In the more active building sections of the country that are systematically reported, comprising about half the states, considerably more than two billion dollars in contracts were awarded last year.

In the first ten weeks of 1922 the value of contracts let for building and construction, including public works, in the twenty-five states north of the Ohio River and east of the Missouri, as reported by the F. W. Dodge Company, was $427,267,000 compared with $290,841,000 for the corresponding period of 1921. March is regarded as the crucial month by which the building outlook is to be judged. Contracts for the two weeks from February 24 to March 10 for the indicated territory were $118,121,000 compared with $66,264,000 in 1921. Bradstreet's report on building permits shows a total of $263,303,000 for January and February, compared with $133,516,000 for these months in 1921.

Problem of High Building Costs.

The significance of the building expansion thus indicated must, however, be considered in the light of several factors peculiar to current circumstances. Building costs are out of all proportion to costs in other lines. The main factors entering into building are materials, transportation and labor. Prices of materials at point of production have been well liquidated, although an upward tendency would quickly depress the present building movement. There should be no illusions as to what the traffic will bear.

High freight rates due to labor conditions and high wages to labor are the controlling factors in building costs. They maintain construction prices at levels that interfere with the full and well-rounded development of building operations. They also serve to inject element of fixed inflation into this, the greatest construction movement in the nation's history.

The lack of well-balanced development is made manifest by an analysis of contracts let and permits issue to date. Residence construction leads. Public buildings, roads, bridges, and other types of building for public purposes are next in importance, stimulated somewhat by desire to relieve unemployment. Business and industrial construction, which must be done on a basis of cost that will permit a present and continuing return on the investment, has not expanded correspondingly.

Despite the handicap of high costs home building activity is being maintained for the present because the housing necessity compels it, even on the basis of uneconomical investments. Public building and construction are also being done on a high cost basis which will be reflected in high tax rates for years to come. Public building, like residence building, cannot continue indefinitely under these conditions.

MENTAL SLEEPERS.

A teacher from the schools of a city was saying the other day, that people have no conception of the number of boys and girls that quit school without getting thoroughly educated. A good many of them, he said, never even learn to read.

Others can read in a stumbling way, but their views of life are of the most elementary character. Such folks easily become the prey of demagogues, and they create a tremendous force in behalf of bad government, since they are so easily led astray.

This teacher's ideas would not please the people who believe in an education consisting simply of the Three R's. She said these pupils would go over and over their arithmetic, for instance, and would be unable to grasp it. They would see that they were making no progress, and would feel a natural desire to try something else. Hence they would quit school and go to work, but utterly unfitted to meet the problems of life.

"It would frequently happen" she continued, "that if you give such young people a greater variety of study, they will wake up. They may have failed in the Three R's, yet they may do better in history and civics, and get a lot of ideas they need to know. Also if you can give them some hand work to do in school so they can acquire some manual skill, it tends to keep them contented in their work, and they dig into their books with more interest."

The main problem of school is not stuffing the heads of these slow pupils with facts and rules of arithmetic and grammar. They will soon forget all these. The problem is this: Are you waking up their sleeping minds? If you do not do that, their education is a failure. But if you succeed in arousing their interest and attentions and ambition, it does not make much difference what particular branch of learning they are studying.

Our allied "friends" have arranged for extracting from Germany the sons of sailors and soldiers.

NINE SHRUBS SUGGESTED FOR BEAUTIFYING LAWNS.

Lexington Ky.—There are at least nine varieties of shrubs which can be planted by Kentuckians to beautify their home grounds, according to N. R. Elliott, of the College of Agriculture. The height the shrubs will attain, the size of the individual plants and their hardiness are the important things to remember in making mass and border plantings with them, he has pointed out.

Deutzia, which grows from four to six feet high, has a white and pink flower that blooms from May until June. This shrub is in flower and is most satisfactory for planting in groups.

Pearl Bush grows from five to six feet high and has a white flower that blooms during May and June. It gives the best effect when planted with other shrubs. The flowers are beautiful and may be used for cutting.

Golden Bell, which grows from 4 to 6 feet high, has a yellow flower that blooms during May. This shrub should be given a prominent place in the masses and border plantings as it has a large yellow flower that blooms before the leaves appear.

Rhododendron grows 4 to 6 feet high and has white, red and pink flowers that bloom during May and June. This shrub has a heavy foliage with broad leaves and is especially good in corner hedge plantings.

Because of the delicate bloom and graceful appearance which it has, Bridal Wreath is said to be one of the favorite shrubs. It grows to be 4 to 6 feet tall and has white flowers that bloom during May and June. The Lilac grows 10 to 15 feet tall and blooms during May and June, the flowers ranging in color from white to the characteristic lilac color. This shrub is satisfactory to mix in very heavy plantings or it can be used in rows. The newer varieties are said to be better than the older ones.

Snowball reaches a height of 10 to 12 feet and has white flowers that bloom during May and June. This shrub is in well almost any place in the border plantings since there are a large number of varieties, some of which spread more than others.

Weigela grows from 6 to 8 feet tall with white, red and pink flowers that bloom during June and July. It has a spreading habit, is easy to grow and produces a beautiful bloom. It should be given sufficient room to develop properly.

Butterfly shrub also grows from 6 to 8 feet tall and produces pink and violet flowers in July and August. It requires sunny position and rich soil. Many consider it one of the best flowering shrubs.

Mrs. Margaret Gartner, aged 60 years, died Sunday evening at her home in Elmore. Services were held at her residence Wednesday at 10 o'clock, after which the remains were taken by Undertaker Philip Taliaferro to St. Bernard, Ohio, for interment.

WOOL CROP HARVESTED FROM APRIL TO MAY 15.

Lexington, Ky.—April 15 to May 15 constitutes the sheep shearing season in Kentucky during which time about 3,000,000 pounds of wool are clipped as the State's annual crop, sheep men say. The profits from these fleeces make up from one-fourth to one-third of the total income from the State's flocks, the chief object of the Kentucky sheep raiser being the production of lambs for market, it is said. Late sheared fleeces are heavier than the early sheared because the fiber has grown slightly longer and mire yolk has been secreted, it is claimed.

Proper attention to the handling of the wool crop offers possibilities for materially increasing the income from the flocks, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the College of Agriculture sheep work. Some of the suggestions he has outlined for shearing follow:

"Remove shorn before shearing.

"Never shear wet sheep.

"Keep the sheep in dry, clean pens that are free from dust.

"Have the shearing floor smooth, clean and bright.

"Keep straw and trash out of the wool.

"Remove the fleece in one piece without any second cuts.

"Roll the fleece toward the neck, wash side out.

"Tie with a strand of wool or paper twine.

"Use only two strings to the fleece one each way.

"Do not roll or tie the fleece too tightly.

"Immediately after shearing, pack the fleeces in wool sacks. The sack should hold from 175 to 200 pounds.

"Store the sacks in a dry place."

NEGLECTING LATE LAMBS REDUCES SHEEP PROFITS

Lexington, Ky.—A big percentage of the seconds and cull lambs that go to the market from Kentucky each year are late buck lambs, according to R. C. Miller, sheep extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. This condition is apt to result in heavy losses for sheep raisers who neglect to alter their late male lambs before sending them to the market this year, he said.

In addition to bringing a better price, lambs that are docked and altered are neater and present a more blocky appearance to prospective buyers, it was added. It has been recommended that all late lambs be docked and all males, except purebreds of quality that are to be kept for breeding purposes, be altered.

The Satisfaction of Country Life.

The life is more than meat, said St. Luke's, and the problem of country life is not merely the creation of economic prosperity, important as that may be. There are many people who never attained any great success from a money point of view, who have lived exceedingly happy lives. Many others who had all the dollars they wanted, have never been happy. Manifestly then there are ideals more important than money.

Country life has certain advantages and benefits that are outside of money and do not depend upon business success. They can be attained both by those who make large financial gains in the country, and by those who never succeed in getting very far ahead in business. People who win these results, and who thereby live lives of many and rewarding satisfactions, are getting the very best results of life, and are successful from any rational point of view.

Before people rush away to cities, in the blind search for money and pleasure, they should study more carefully these satisfactions that are theirs for the asking right here in Boone county.

Rev. Cates, of Oak Ridge, Ky., will preach at Bullittsburg next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Rev. Tomlin preached an excellent sermon before a large crowd at the Methodist church, last Sunday evening.

In Brown & Dunsen's adv in this issue P & G Soap should be 3 bars for 16c, Clmax Wall Paper Cleaner 2 for 25c.

Efficiency.
While efficiency is an overworked word, yet it comes near being the key of all success. The people who perform their tasks efficiently forge ahead to success in life. Those who lag in efficiency drag behind. The people therefore who long for better conditions of living, the young folks who aspire to take a position in the world, ought to study carefully just what it means by this quality and how it can be attained.

Efficiency is not a gift handed down from heaven, which some people are endowed with and some can never attain. Almost anyone can become efficient. Some of course inherit from efficient ancestors a better start. But any boy or girl in our schools, who possesses fair intelligence, and who conceives the idea that he would like to perform superior service, can acquire this quality.

While efficiency is not something that can be taught in schools and newspapers, it should be possible to name a certain set of habits that usually make a person efficient, also to make some practical suggestions must then take such suggestions, and go into his daily work and try to apply them to his own task, little or big.

Geo. Miller, of near Florence, one of the county's noted fox hunters, attended court Monday, and made the Recorder a brief call.

He can exemplify them just as well in sweeping out a store as he can in running a business. If he manifests then in any task, he can be sure that his employer sees his effort, and will give him a chance to go ahead.

We Want to Tell the Public a Few Things about the

Silent ALAMO

FARM ELECTRIC POWER AND LIGHT PLANT

I can give you what is known as the full kilowatt for $465.00 set on stand table ready to pull its full capacity without any extra cost to the consumer at this price.

The time is coming when I will prove to you that I have a real piece of machinery that will perform the duties for the farmer for very little cost. I have already put this plant up against some real work for a plant of this size.

The cost of a Lighting Plant is the motor and batteries. That is what you want to take into consideration when you get ready to figure on the equipment for your home.

As an illustration, I have one of these plants performing at the Boone County Infirmary, one of the largest institutions, that is now being taken care of by a plant of this size. So you see how easy it would take care of the average home.

If you are interested drop in and get some literature on the Silent Alamo.

The H. Sander Co.

825 and 827 Main St., Bet. 8th and 9th Sts.
Cincinnati, Ohio

Sunday, April 9th.

Dear Cousin Martha:

It is such a beautiful, joyous spring day and I am simply bubbling over with happiness. Easter is only seven days off and I have been buying so many beautiful, new things that I can hardly wait to dress up and walk out in them, on that day.

John and I were on MAIN STREET, Cincinnati, yesterday, and found so many pretty gowns, such beautiful hats, such stunning costumes—in fact, I cannot begin to tell you all we saw—and SO REASONABLE in price, that I cannot understand how I did without them so long.

At SCHWENKER'S I found the most marvelous Silk-lined wrap, the very latest style, and as chic as can be, and we got it for only $25! Just think of that! And I had worn the last one three seasons, feeling that I couldn't afford a new one yet, because it had cost us $70; yet it isn't nearly so pretty nor good as the new one at almost a third of the price.

From there we went to the H. SANDER STORE; John said that he just couldn't afford to be seen with me in his old suit, and me all fixed up so pretty, so there he found the most stylish Easter suit for only $25. They make them themselves, you know, and John got the most perfect fit! He looks as dressed up and fashionable as when he came courting me, ten years ago. And, I know you will think it childish in me but after we had tried those things on, I just couldn't help but insist that we keep them on and we had our photos taken.

Just went around to the HOFFMAN STUDIOS and set for our photos; first time since the second year we were married, and it made me feel just as romantic as if I were a girl again. I hope they come out nice, but I understand they always do, at HOF-MAN'S.

Just looking around, we found some items of furniture at the EFFRON COMPANY, that we have been needing for the house for a long time and they were so reasonable and pretty, that we just had to buy them; and as it wouldn't do to go back home forgetting little John, we got him a baseball uniform, and bat, ball and glove at SPINNEY'S. And just because we had cut out an advertisement and brought it along, he allowed us one tenth off the price. Said it was worth that to get acquainted.

Everybody on MAIN STREET seemed so glad to see us, and made us feel so "at home" that the visit was a pleasure, and we're going to "call again."

John says now that he is going to buy us a new car, and next time we go to MAIN STREET he is going to look around some, for he believes he can do better there.

Well, I must close for this time. I have so much to tell you, but I know I will soon MEET YOU ON MAIN STREET, and I will save it for then.

Cousin Henrietta.

BASE BALL

Manager Zimmer of the Taylorsport Club wishes to announce to the fans and patrons of our county that Taylorsport will again be in the field with a better club than last summer. He has added several good players, including Henry Mathews and Ben Black, two of our best players in the county, and our old reliable Edward Sandford again. Opening game Sunday April 23, with American Legion and shows that Taylorsport management intends to book nothing but best attractions.
Also enlarging playing field and the grandstand, besides parking place for autos, shows to the fans that they will be well taken care of. Lets all turn out for a "grand opening boys." "American Legion" at Taylorsport Sunday April 23d.

Mrs. Rose Ann Borders, aged 79, passed away at her late residence on Gunpowder creek Friday evening following a stroke of paralysis earlier in the week. Funeral services were held at the home, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in the presence of a large concourse of friends of relatives. Intervent being in family cemetery near by. She is survived by two sons and two daughters. Philip Taliaferro Undertaker in charge.

Lee Clore, Paul Cook and Leslie Ryle, of the fast Bellevue ball club have been trying out for the past few weeks with the fast Cleves, O.,

The Sunday School Convention held with the Burlington Baptist church, last Sunday, was attended by a fair sized crowd, but not as many as was anticipated by the good cooks of Burlington and surrounding community, from the amount of provisions they had prepared for the noonday lunch, as there was enough to have fed twice that number. On account of the wet condition of the ground around the church, the lunch was served in the dining room at the Boone House, the crowd present was given plenty to eat. The exercises at the church consisted of several interesting speeches, and some fine singing by visitors from a distance.

Assistant State Inspector and Ex aminer T. Z. Morrow, was in Burlington Monday, and made an inspection of the County Clerk's books, and found everything in ship-shape order and complimented the Clerk on the manner in which the records were kept. The books were audited for the past two years.

John C. Scott, aged 51, was found dead in bed Friday morning at his residence on the Dixie Highway, near Erlanger. Services were held at the Highland cemetery chapel, Monday at 10 a. m. Mr. Scott is survived by the widow and eight children. Rev. Runyan officiated.
Undertaker Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

H. W. Rouse, of near Limaug, on the Limaug and Hebron pike, will have a sale next Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. H. G. Collins, of Erlanger, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Sunday afternoon in the Taliaferro ambulance. She having had an attack of appendicitis.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.
The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.
When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.
That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little

MOST ANYTHING.

The government employs something like 40,000 girls as stenographers and typists. Their average pay is $1,200 a year.

A treasury expert estimates that each one of these girls use up one hour a day in primping during working hours. It pains the expert to think that the government pays them $6,000,000 a year in salaries for which it receives no return.

Should the girls be docked for the time they consume in primping and powdering their oes? Possibly they should. Not even the government should be expected to pay for services that are not rendered.

But let's start right and dick impartially.

Is there a man in the government employ who really works his eight hours each day?

As a matter of fact, don't the majority of them loaf from one to three hours every day? Call it two hours as a fair example.

Include among the number the gentleman expert who would dock the girls for keeping themselves beautiful for our benefit.

Now do some more brilliant figuring, Mr. Expert, and tell us the result.

Save $6,000,000 a year? You bet!

By including the male loafers it would be nearer a hundred millions.

Sure thing! Turn the switch and start the official docket to working. But soak the big guns and chief loafers first.

An old manuscript, dating back almost a hundred years before the invention of printing, contains a description of the punishment of criminals in a courtyard in the city of London.

"One fellow was whipped upon his barye back," says the script.

"Oh, but that was in the middle ages," says the comfortable reader.

So it was. But this month, in Rockville, Md., two men—one white, one colored—were tied to posts and whipped.

Agreed, beating pour wife is a horrible crime. Any man who strikes a woman is a brute, and perhaps deserves to be treated as such. There is no sympathy here for those who beat women and were themselves beaten. But how about the rest of the community? The beating is reported in the newspapers. People read of it. Children hear of it. Those concerned in the punishment, both victim and wielder of the whip, talk about it. And "eye for an eye." Doubtless; but there was One who came with a new law, and civilization has rested upon it, and it is not most emphatically not, to be brutal to brutes.

Beating a wife beater is doubtless salutary to the beaten. But it is deadly to the beater. In this year of grace 1922 can we find nothing better to do for brutes than brutalizing ourselves by going back to the middle ages, aye, to the Mosaic law?

CROP GROWTH IS STUNTED WHEN CLOUDS LOCK UP FOOD

Lexington, Ky.—Clouds are the most common cause of poor seed beds and the resulting decrease in the yields of many crops. R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist at the College of Agriculture, is telling Kentucky farmers in suggestions being given on soil tillage. They not only prevent the germination of many seeds but also result in stunted plant growth because no clouds give up its plant food to the growing plant until pulverization takes place, it is said. No matter how fertile he soil is, a field of clouds can never give the maximum crop yields, Mr. Stephenson has pointed out. The ideal seed bed is one made of fine soil properly tilled, he says.

"Plowing is an important operation in the preparation of the seed bed and the prevention of clouds. Early plowing is best provided it can be done when the soil is dry. Good plowing not only will turn under everything that is on the field, in the way of manure and plant growth, but also will crumble and break the soil so that it will yield readily to tillage.

"As a general rule, clouds are caused by tramping over a wet field, plowing or cultivating when the soil is too wet, and by a lack of sufficient tillage. Working a soil when it is too dry also may cause cloud formation. Tillage operations that give best results are performed when the soil is moist but not wet.

"Since poor soils usually are cloddier than fertile ones, one way to rid a field of these chunks is to use manure and grow more legumes for soil improvement. A clover sod nearly always is friable and easily cultivated. Organic matter and the roots of plants tend to cause the crumb formation necessary to good tillage.

"Freezing and thawing tend to pulverize clouds while the use of lime and wood ashes makes it easier to crush them. Thorough drainage improves the tilth of wet lands and makes it easier to get rid of clouds."

The anti-tobacco campaign in Chicago has hit the rocks. An alderman introduced a resolution in the city council making it unlawful for women to smoke in public, and femininity immediately exploded in a burst of protest against such an unjust curtailment of their liberties. It worked.

LEGION NOTES

Omaha Neb.—Jobless and without money, F. W. Smith of Omaha, Neb., ex-soldier and head of a family of three, grasped at the chance for "work" offered by the American Legion employment service and sold a pint of his blood for $25. By his act Smith saved the life of Edward Belitz, Bolgado, Neb., farmer, who had been severely injured.

Annapolis, Md.—Ten dollars for each month's service, with 25 per cent additional for overseas service, is to be paid world war veterans of Maryland under the provisions of a bill which passed the Maryland House of Delegates with only four dissenting votes. The act provides for a $9,000,000 bond issue, to be passed on by the people.

Indianapolis, Ind.—American ex-service men in New Zealand and Denmark have joined together and formed posts of the American Legion. The ex-service men's organization now has 11,013 separate posts, located in practically every civilized country.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—After the college trustees had refused their request to have college President C. D. Dunaway removed from office, students at Colorado college set off a huge giant firecracker on "prexy's" lawn, burned red fuses and hauled the American flag to half mast. For the latter act they aroused the wrath of American Legion members who demanded that it be rightly hung.

Toledo, Ohio.—A questionnaire, "What will you do with your state bonus?" conducted by the Toledo, O., American Legion, was answered by ex-service men as follows: 16 would use the money to help defray the cost of a home; 13 to pay hospital and other bills; three for clothing; two for furniture; one for a Ford and seven would bank the entire amount.

Grand Rapids Mich.—After being picked up by American Legion members while wearing the uniform of a Belgian aviation lieutenant, Emil Lemard, Grand Rapids, Mich., tobacco dealer, was sentenced to 6 months in jail by District Judge Sessions. His Honor then turned on court officials and took them to task for allowing Lemard to appear in court attired in his bogus regalia.

Wheeling, West Va.—When state officials of the American Legion in West Virginia heard that several ex-service men's organizations were considering asking Jack Dempsey to appear before them, issued a statement which refused sanction to any affair to which the world's boxing champion might be invited.

Sioux Falls S. D.—A store for the sale of articles manufactured by the sick and wounded ex-soldiers now in South Dakota hospitals has been opened by the American Legion auxiliary of that state. The proceeds will be used to buy additional comforts for the disabled veterans.

Madison, Wis.—Describing the Social Science Club of the University of Wisconsin as a "group of un-American radicals and extremists who are inciting unrest among the student senate at University American Legion post has adopted a resolution asking the student senate to abolish the organization.

Toledo, Ohio.—During the past few months the American Legion at Toledo, Ohio, has caused 32 persons to be put in jail for falsely collecting funds for sick and wounded veterans, obtained the release from jail of seven ex-soldiers, found jobs for 1,057 more and conducted 135 military funerals.

New York.—Large numbers of ex-soldiers who are suffering from shell shock are looking for work in New York City. The American Legion obtained work for one but he got into such a heated argument with the man who was hiring him that the Legion had to take him away and arrange for his commitment in a government hospital.

Washington, D. C.—A tract of land along the Potomac river has been turned over to the American Legion and other veterans' organizations for use as a summer camp for the hundreds of disabled ex-service men from Maryland and West Virginia who are now confined in the four government hospitals at Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C.—News reaches some places quicker than it does others. The American Legion has received a letter from a world war veteran who says, "I understand the government is giving us adjusted compensation with the option of taking land or money. I've just discovered an island in the St. Lawrence river that I want, so tell the government I'll take that."

Sioux Falls, S. D.—In order that the products of ex-service men in South Dakota hospitals may be sold and the profit returned to the men, the American Legion Auxiliary has opened a store for the sale of these articles.

Albert Clore, of Rabbit Hash, was transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday.

Mrs. Cora Rouse, of Midway, Ky., visited her brother, L. A. Conner and family, last week.

Senator R. C. Simmons, of Covington, was transacting business in Burlington last Thursday.

Remember the sale of H. W. Rouse next Saturday afternoon on the Hebron and Limburg pike.

Congressman A. B. Rouse and wife, of Covington, spent a few hours in Burlington, last Friday.

The kids approve of waste paper cans in the streets, as they are splendid to tip over and use for drums.

The kids formerly played a game called "still, calm, or moving." Now the revenue officers are playing it nightly.

W. B. Arnold, of the Bellevue precinct, shipped to the Cincinnati market, one day last week, nineteen 250 pound hogs.

Outside of a few onions and lettuce, very little garden truck has been planted by the local gardeners, because of too much rain.

Proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. Thousands praise Tanlac. So will you. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Furnish Penn, of Sadleville, Scott county, spent the latter part of last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Penn.

Circuit Clerk R. E. Berkshire and family are now citizens of Burlington, having moved into the residence he purchased of W. C. Weaver.

There was a fire in the capitol building at Washington the other day. What can you expect in a place where there is so much hot air.

If you feel tired, worn out, nervous and all unstrung, take Tanlac. It will straighten you out. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Tanlac overcomes rheumatism by toning up and invigorating the vital organs, thereby enabling them to eliminate poisons from the system. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

Some one asks what has become of the "barefoot boy with cheek of tan," that the poet formerly sung about? O, well, he's grey haired now, and his son is wearing toothpick shoes and powdering his face after shaving.

Claimed that with the wireless it may become possible to listen in on telephone conversations, and a man whose time was worth anything would probably be willing to listen to ordinary telephone stuff for about $1 an hour.

August Drinkenberg, Jr., of Florence precinct, had seventeen cows and calves that failed to stand the tuberculin test, and were condemned by a State Veterinarian one day last week. Mr. Drinkenberg has since stocked his dairy with tuberculin tested cows.

Ira Ryle, a former Boone county citizen, but now living near Aurora, Ind., was in Burlington, last Thursday meeting with many of his old friends. He reports the farmers in his part of the country behind with their spring work on account of the rainy weather.

Miss Mary A. Thompson was the recipient of many kind remembrances from friends far and near, last Thursday, April 6th, it being her ninety-fourth birthday. Considering her advanced years she is enjoying good health and is able to be up and about looking after her daily household duties.

The county board of equalizers were in session at the court house last Thursday where they heard reasons from various taxpayers from all sections of the county why their property should not be assessed at an higher valuation than the assessment list showed. While many appeared before the board very few got any relief. The board had been told just what it had to do and it reopened to do it.

Raise ALL Your Chicks

After the trouble and expense of hatching good chicks, you want to raise them all—into heavy layers and husky breeders. It's a lot cheaper to raise them than to replace them even if you had the time. So take no chances—give them the start that will make them sturdy and keep them growing—feed them the original, dependable "baby food for baby chicks"—

Pratts Buttermilk Baby Chick Food

Should be fed for the critical first three to six weeks, because it contains exactly what the delicate little bodies need, for building bone, muscle and feather. Start with the first meal and count on it for results in husky, well-developed youngsters that will continue to grow to profitable maturity.

Used every season by thousands of successful chick raisers, because it raises the chicks, relieves you of danger, worry and loss. Depend upon it for your chicks—try it at our risk.

MY MOTHER—A PRAYER.
(By Tom Dillon.)

(Extract from Congressional Record, May 16, 1914.)

For the body you gave me, the bone and the sinew, the heart and the brain that are yours, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the light in my eyes, the blood in my veins, for my speech, for my life, for my being. All that I am is from you who bore me.

For all the love that you gave me, unmeasured from the beginning, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the hand that led me, the voice that directed me, the breast that nestled me, the arm that shielded me, the lap that rested me. All that I am is by you, who nursed me.

For your smile in the morning and your kiss at night, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for the tears you shed over me, the songs that you sang to me, the prayers you said for me, for your vigils and ministrations. All that I am is by you, who reared me.

For the faith you had in me, the hope you had for me, for your trust in me, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for your praise and your pride, my mother, I thank you. I thank you for your praise and your chiding, for the justice you bred in me and the honor you made mine. All that I am you taught me.

For the sore travail that I caused you, for the visions and dreams, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me the peril I brought you to, the sobs and the moans I wrung from you, and for the strength I took from you, mother, forgive me.

For the fears I gave you, for the alarms and the dreads, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me the joys I deprived you, the toils I made for you, for the hours, the days, and the years I claimed from you, mother, forgive me.

For the times that I hurt you, the times I had no smile for you, the caresses I did not give you, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me for my anger and revolts, for my deceptions and evasions, for all the pangs and sorrows I brought to you, mother forgive me.

For your lessons I did not learn, for your wishes I did not heed, for the counsels I did not obey, my mother, forgive me. Forgive me my pride in my youth and my glory in my strength that forgot the holiness of your years and the veneration of your weakness, for my neglect, for my selfishness, for all the great debts of your love that I have not paid, mother, sweet mother, forgive me.

And may the peace and the joy that passeth all understanding be yours, my mother, forever and ever. Amen.

SHEEP ON RAPE PASTURES
MAKE CHEAP FAST GAINS

Lexington, Ky.—Lambos on rape pasture gain weight more rapidly and cheaply than those on bluegrass pasture, according to results of trials conducted by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station to determine the most profitable pasture for these animals. Other pasture crops for sheep that can be planted during the next few months include soybeans, cowpeas, and Sudan grass, the station sheepmen say.

Rape seeded in April or May will make early pasture, eight to ten pounds of seed being required an acre. This may be drilled or broadcasted. Many men who fit sheep for shows sow oats with rape at the rate of one bushel an acre thus making it possible to change the sheep gradually from green feed to dry feed and grain as the oats ripen, it is said. One acre of rape will carry from 10 to 15 ewes or from 15 to 25 lambs but should not be pastured until it is 10 to 14 inches high.

Cowpeas for sheep pasture are sown from May 15 to June 15 in rows 28 to 35 inches apart, about 48 pounds of seed being required an acre. This crop which has a carrying capacity about the same as rape, is ready for pasture in September.

Soybeans also are seeded in rows like cowpeas but should be planted about 15 days earlier than the peas at the rate of 35 pounds of seed an acre. This crop can be pastured in September and will carry from eight to 15 ewes or ten to 20 lambs an acre.

Although not as desirable for sheep as soybeans, cowpeas or rape, Sudan grass makes an excellent catch crop or dry weather one to be used when the others fail, the sheepmen say. It may be sown in May or June at the rate of eight to ten pounds of seed an acre and is ready for pasture in about one month. Last year in eight weeks during which no rain fell, one acre of this grass furnished pasture for 20 sheep on the station farm, according to the sheepmen. The animals were turned on the grass after it had been planted 18 days.

Cheating contractors and crooked officials of Sumerian civilization in Mesopotamia 5,000 years ago were tried briefly and thrown into the river, according to recent scientific discoveries. Among other things, they had an elaborate banking system, with a reserve bank comparable to our own of today, a postal system with a parcel post branch and circulating libraries, which distributed clay tablet books.

HOW A SAFE MILK SUPPLY IS INSURED FOR SMALL CITIES.

Milk inspection is of prime necessity. In most of the larger cities laboratories are maintained where bacteria counts and chemical analyses are frequently made on samples collected from retail delivery wagons, stores, and restaurants. But the small cities and towns that can not afford the expense of a tester and laboratory find it hard to give proper supervision to their milk supplies.

The United States Department of Agriculture suggests that a practical way for such cities and towns to insure a safe milk supply is through the cooperation of two or more adjacent towns in hiring a milk inspector and maintaining a laboratory. The cost of supervising such a plan may be prorated among the different towns on the basis of population without the expense being burdensome to any one of them. State and Federal authorities are always willing to cooperate in work of this sort.

This plan of town cooperation in milk and dairy inspection has been carried out in different parts of the country, probably the most conspicuous example being the group of towns in northern New Jersey known as "The Oranges." In these towns the plan has been in use for a number of years with results that have been very satisfactory to all concerned.

FOR TRACTOR LUBRICATION
CAUSES OWNER MOST TROUBLE

Lexington, Ky.—Faulty lubrication is the source of trouble in the majority of cases where farmers have been unable to operate tractors to the best advantage, farm engineering specialists at the College of Agriculture believe. Faulty spark plugs and other minor troubles can be corrected easily with little or no damage to the machine but when proper lubrication is neglected, a reduction in the lifetime of the machine is almost sure to result, they say.

Included among the points which they have outlined in a number of lubrication suggestions are the following:

"It is a good idea to keep lubricating oil, greases, buckets and funnels in a clean, dust-proof cupboard since they easily collect dust.

"Use the kind and amount of oil recommended by the manufacturer.

"Extra attention should be given the lubrication of the engine while it is new and stiff.

"Oil and grease on the outside of the bearings are a decided detriment since they easily collect grit and dirt. A little oil in the right place is worth many pounds placed carelessly.

"Too much lubricating oil causes extra carbon and needless expense.

"On account of fuel passing the piston rings, oil in the crank case of the engine becomes worthless and must be removed. Such oil cannot be used again safely for the same purpose.

"As a rule, lubricants that are lowest in original cost are the most expensive for the tractor owner.

"Never depend on someone else to lubricate the tractor you are running. You will know whether or not it is done right if you do it yourself.

WEEDS SOMETIMES SMOTHER
ALFALFA SEEDED IN SPRING

Lexington, Ky.—Spring seeding of alfalfa in Kentucky is not as reliable as summer seeding because the weeds may prove so troublesome that the crop is smothered, crop specialists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station have stated in reply to inquiries from over the State. However, on land which is adapted to alfalfa and which is inoculated, the chances of getting a stand by following the methods generally practiced with clover are excellent, it is said.

"This is especially true if a clover seed drill is used and the seeding done as soon as the ground can be worked," E. J. Kinney, said. "The cost of seeding in this way is much less than the cost of summer seeding and the method is well worth a trial. If a failure results the field can be reseeded again in August. Weeds are apt to be most troublesome if the spring-seeded alfalfa is sown without a nurse crop since the weed seeds are near the surface in freshly-worked ground and ready to grow. Early seeding, which gives the alfalfa a start on the weeds, is advisable."

The station workers have succeeded in keeping weeds and grasses out of spring-sown alfalfa but it has been at the cost of large amounts of labor for clipping and cultivation while no hay was obtained the first year, it was added.

In one case on the station farm, where spring-sown alfalfa was completely destroyed by weeds, which could not be controlled, the ground was rebroken and cultivated frequently until the alfalfa was seeded in August. The crop was comparatively free of weeds for three years and produced an average of a little more than one-half ton of hay an acre in each cutting, it was said.

SHARP TEETH IN NEW 'DRY' LAW

The Most Drastic Prohibition Law Kentucky Has Ever Known.

The most drastic prohibition law Kentucky has ever known, perhaps the most drastic in force in any State in the Union is now the law of the Commonwealth.

The measure was passed thru the legislature with little opposition and signed by Governor Morrow. It carried an emergency clause and went into effect with his signature.

Some of its more stringent provisions include:

For a second conviction of making intoxicating liquor a penitentiary sentence from one to five years. The third offense draws two to 10 years.

Any person who buys, sells, possesses or transports a still or part of a still, upon second conviction, will get from one to five years in the penitentiary.

Farm Becomes Forfeited.

The building or farm on which a still is operated with the knowledge of the owner of the property becomes forfeited to the State. Similar provision is made for the forfeiture of any vehicle, boat, or air craft used to transport liquor illegally.

Trial for the violation of the law can be had before any circuit judge, County Judge, Police Judge, or Justice of the Peace.

After one conviction for the violation of the act a peace bond is required before the prisoner is released.

A reward of $50 for information leading to the conviction of any person for the violation of the act is authorized.

Penitentiary Penalties.

The illegal manufacture of intoxicating liquor is punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 for the first offense and one to five years in the penitentiary for the second offense. The third violation makes the illicit manufacturer liable to a penalty of from two to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Any person, who buys, sells, loans, owns, possesses or transports any still or part of a still used or intended to be used in the manufacture of liquor is liable to a fine of from $50 to $500 for the first offense, one to five years for the second offense. Any person who aids and abets in any violation of the act is liable to like sentences.

No witness will be allowed to refuse to testify because of self-incrimination, but no testimony given by the witness can be used against him at any subsequent trial. Neither can the witness be prosecuted for any violation of the law disclosed in such testimony.

When any person is found in possession of any liquor the burden of proof to show that it was lawfully acquired and was to be lawfully used is placed on the owner.

Seize All Vehicles.

Officers of the law are directed to seize and forfeit to the State all vehicles, boats, or air craft found to be used in the unlawful transportation of liquor. The property will be sold and the receipts paid into the State treasury.

Similar provision is made for the forfeiture of any building, house, structure, farm or real estate on which liquor is illegally manufactured or sold. If the owner of the property leases loans or rents it to any person who illegally makes or sells liquor on the premises the owner must prove that he had no knowledge of such manufacture or sale. If he is unable to do this he forfeits the property.

No complaint filed by any citizen or officer shall be dismissed except on the written approval of the Commonwealth's Attorney or County Attorney made in open court.

If a private citizen makes a complaint which leads to the sale of any property for a violation of the act the citizen receives ten per cent of the proceeds of the sale. Another provision which will offer incentive to citizens to report violations of the act is a reward of $50 for each report, which leads to conviction. The reward will be paid from the county funds.

A provision of the law will make it impossible for the owner of liquor to regain possession of his property, unless he can prove that the liquor was lawfully acquired and was to be used for lawful purposes.

Reputation in Testimony.

The general reputation of the defendant for moonshining, bootlegging or being engaged in any form of illicit liquor trade will be admissible testimony before the jury.

Before a person once convicted is released from custody the court must require of him that he execute a peace bond of $1,000 to $5,000 for his good behavior for a year, and that he will not violate the provisions of the prohibition law during that time. Upon his failure to execute such a bond he will be forced to go to jail for ninety days.

Provision is made for a State registration of all stills made or transported within the State and punishment for the violation is fixed at a fine of $100 to $300 and ten to sixty days in jail.

Any officer who fails to enforce the provisions of the law shall be liable to indictment for malfeasance of office and be subject to a fine of $100 to $1,000, and the office shall be declared vacant.

PANELED CLOTH SKIRT

Spring presents its separate skirts of wool or silk or cotton and those for general wear are called "walking skirts" to distinguish them from sport skirts. Here is a pretty new model made of crepe. It is cut on straight lines and has a separate belt of the material. Around the bottom there are set-in panels trimmed with rows of narrow silk braid in a contrasting color.

SLIMLY FED PULLETS BECOME POOR LAYERS

Lexington, Ky.—Three-fourths of the pullets hatched annually in Kentucky grow into undeveloped hens and poor layers largely because the ration fed them while they are young lacks protein, poultrymen at the College of Agriculture say. This can be corrected if the chicks are given all the sour skim milk or buttermilk that they can drink or have a dry mash available at all times containing from ten to 20 per cent meat scrap or tankage that is 60 per cent protein, they say. During the first two months the mash also should contain from five to ten per cent bone meal, it was added.

Suggestions given by the poultrymen on chick feeding include recommendations to withhold feed until the chicks are at least 48 hours old, to avoid overfeeding, to feed only fresh clean feeds and to get the chicks on the ground as soon as the weather permits.

"After the first feed of milk, any good commercial chick grain or a mixture made of equal parts of finely ground cracked corn, cracked wheat and steel cut oats can be added," J. R. Smyth said. "It is best to feed this mixture five times a day in amounts that the chicks will clean up in 15 minutes."

"During the second week, the same grain mixture fed three times a week should be continued and a dry mash added to the chick feed. Any good commercial chick mash or a home made mixture of 20 pounds of bran, 20 pounds of shorts, 20 lbs. of corn meal, one and a half pounds of charcoal and eight pounds of bone meal and 12 pounds of sifted meat scrap may be used."

"About the seventh week, the grain mixture may be changed to a coarser one and by the 12th week, the chicks should be able to eat the same size grain being fed to laying hens. During the second and 12th weeks the mash should be kept before the chicks at all times in a self-feeder or hopper and the birds given as much milk as they can drink."

The Sorrows of Housecleaning

The man of the house comes home on some of these nice April days, and finds all his customary possessions removed from their appointed places, and his comfortable chairs covered with dust cloths, and he complains of the spirit of desolation. It seems to him a needless unheavenly, and he gets sour and cross over the dinner table.

The housecleaning spirit, however, is the product of good old fashioned housewifery. It is the inheritance of a time when women scrubbed and swept long hours in the attempt to make their homes sweet and clean. It is this patient war against dirt that makes a well kept dwelling so much more healthful than one in the slums of the cities.

These well cleaned homes give their inmates protection against the perils that always lurk where dirt accumulates. Before getting cross at the annual scrimmage, the man of the house should reflect on the dangers he has escaped through his wife's standard of clean living.

Some people will pull any kind of a fool stunt in order to get their names in the newspapers. In figuring his income tax a New Yorker found that he owed the Government just four cents.

Did he send the four cents? He did not.

He elected to pay quarterly and mailed the collector a one cent stamp.

The freak action was duly reported in press dispatches, as he expected—but with names omitted.

Good enough—all that a fool deserves.

When they get their backs up against a wall in another war they will yell lustily for aid from America.

And they will get it right where they are giving it to us now—in the neck.

Some people do a lot of talking about hell before they get there.

"POULTRY DAY"

To Be Held on The College of Agriculture Farm, Lexington, April 28th.

Lexington, Ky.—Boone county farmers and their wives who are interested in improving their poultry flocks will be among those who will have a special invitation to attend the first "Poultry Day" to be held on the College of Agriculture farm here April 28, it has been announced. While the program for the event has been designed for farmers in all parts of the State, the college and County Agent W. D. Sutton will make a special effort to have a large delegation from Boone county attend. The county is close enough to the college farm to give farmers living in it a good opportunity to obtain new pointers on the care and management of their flocks, it is believed.

Following a description of the farm by J. H. Martin, in charge of the college poultry work, those who come here for the day will be shown the breeding pens where the mating of six different breeds will be explained, the brooders where 1,500 chicks of different ages are being reared under coal and oil burning brooders and the largest laying house of the farm with 300 hens. The method of managing the laying flock together with the electric light experiment to increase egg production will be explained at this point.

In experiments now under way, the college poultrymen will explain the reasons why sour skim milk, semisolid buttermilk and meat scrap in the laying ration, those showing the value of limestone in the laying ration of hens, those showing the inheritance of egg shell color and skin color together with those designed to show the best type of poultry houses for various conditions. Use of various types of incubators including an 1,800 egg one together with several small ones also will be explained.

Addresses and discussions on a variety of poultry problems by Dean Thomas F. Cooper, of the College, J. R. Smyth, extension poultryman, and Mr. Martin will help round out the day's activities.

The College poultry farm is said to be well equipped to help farmers with their poultry problems. It contains eight acres of land, has eight hundred birds on it and has an incubation capacity of 3,300 eggs. The highest producing Leghorn on the farm produced 260 eggs in a year while the highest producing Wyandotte laid 248 eggs in the same time.

JOINT PROCLAMATION

By The Governor of Kentucky and The State Board of Health.

Naming the First Week in May as Kentucky Clean-Up Week.

WHEREAS, Official reports show that six out of every one hundred cases of sickness and forty-three out of every one hundred deaths in Kentucky are due to preventable diseases, many of which are the result of conditions brought about by the careless disposal of human and animal discharges. The accumulation of filth and rubbish about the home and premises, which will afford breeding places for flies, mosquitoes, rats and other insects or vermin which will as soon as the warm weather sets in, act as carriers of disease germs are, not only a menace to health, but are unsightly and a reflection on civic pride, besides contributing to the community's fire hazard.

Now, therefore be it known, That the Governor of Kentucky, together with the State Board of Health, by virtue of authority vested in them by law and in discharge of a manifest public duty, do hereby set apart and proclaim the week from April 30 to Saturday, May 6th, as Kentucky Clean-Up Week, and urge upon all health officers, welfare agencies and public spirited citizens to at once organize for this work in such way as will insure effective results in their respective communities. The State Board of Health will furnish, upon application, extensive plans for the organization and conduct of such a campaign.

By authority of the Governor of Kentucky, and the State Board of Health this 10th day of April, 1922.

EDWIN P. MORROW,
Governor, Commonwealth of Kentucky.

A. T. McCORMACK,
President State Board of Health.

If you are hunting for something to protect your late planted potatoes from the drought try this receipt furnished by one of our correspondents who has tried it with great success: "Set a large onion between each hill of potatoes—not too deep. The onion brings tears to the potatoes eyes, thereby furnishing enough moisture."

Some folks claim that the craft unions are becoming too crafty.

SPEED AND HIGHWAY COSTS.

The United States government is investigating the causes for the rapid wearing out of highways. One of the army officers who has been studying the subject in co-operation with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, states that light weight automobiles operated at high speed, cause more damage than heavy trucks running at low speed.

There is no doubt that heavy trucks have done a great deal of damage to highways, but if their speed were restricted probably this damage would be largely avoided. Merely fining truck drivers and owners for excessive speed, however, would fail to check many reckless ones. To keep them all within proper speed limits it would be necessary to build the cars so they could not be operated beyond a certain limit.

This investigation suggests that the people are paying a tremendous cost for allowing all kinds of cars to tear around the country like mad, without regard to the enormous damage they do to highway surfaces.

A TRIUMPH OF CO-OPERATION.

One notably successful co-operative movement has been that of the United Dairy Association of Washington made up of county associations having a membership of 6,000 dairy producers. The output of the plants connected with this movement in 1921 is estimated at the great sum of $8,500,000.

Although 1921 was called a bad year in agriculture, yet this society operated every plant full time without interruption, and it retired a considerable part of its bond issue. The less than one per cent of them retired from membership during the year. This shows what could be done by co-operative enterprises in Boone county.

DIXIE HIGHWAY TO GET FIRST AID

Commission To Consider Efforts On Jackson, East Dixie and Midland Routes.

Frankfort, Ky.—State and Federal efforts this year will be directed principally toward the completion of the Jackson and Eastern Dixie highways, running north and south through the State, the former from Louisville, the latter from Covington and the Midland Trail.

The Federal Bureau of Highways has divided Federal aid projects into primary and secondary, considering those linking up a chain of interstate highways as primary. It also is limiting its apportionment to $12,500 a mile, which meets the approval of the State Highway Commission, as it means more serviceable mileage, rather than superior type.

Dixie Nearly Graded.
The Eastern Dixie, 238 miles long, is surfaced or nearly graded its length, excepting half across Laurel. Much of its 126 miles of "macadam" is ad, however, notably through the Bluegrass, Kenton, Grant and Boone are building it of concrete. It is completed from Covington to Florence and in short sections in Grant and Boone. Scott promises to do something next year; yet its purpose reconstruction this year; Madison is putting in seven miles of concrete, and construction is progressing in Rockcastle, Laurel and Whitley. There are on the road twenty-one miles of concrete, 12 miles of Kentucky rock asphalt and brick city streets, 126 miles of macadam, thirty-eight miles of surface treated macadam and forty miles of earth graded and drained.

As fast as sections of the roads are put in shape they will be taken over for State maintenance and in the next two years Joe S. Boggs, State Highway Engineer, anticipates there will be 1,000 miles under maintenance throughout the State. It is probable that the requirements for counties to bring roads up to standard before they are taken over by the State, will be modified to enable the State to help some of the counties put their mileage in proper condition through these routes.

Home Entertainment Courses.

Some country towns that have usually had entertainment courses with hired speakers and artists, from outside, were deterred last winter by prevailing business conditions, and had to depend upon home talent. But they have not necessarily fared any worse.

Usually the country town can find that some of its people or neighbors near by towns have had interesting experiences and are willing to talk about them. There are always some local singers or musicians who will give their services. The women will furnish a supper, which dancing or games will make the evening social. Any town can have a good course of entertainments, even if it does not care to spend the money for professional talent.

Some people are never keen on the borrow. They always pay.

ALLEGED AUTO THEFT PLOT DISCOVERED

(Grant County News.)

Messrs. St. Clair and Young, who claim to be working in this county for the Department of Justice in locating stolen automobiles and securing evidence against the thieves, have given out some rather startling statements to the daily press during the week, intimating that prominent citizens of Williamsown are in collusion with the thieves and are hampering them in their work. Following these reports which purport to come from St. Clair and Young, The Times, a Louisville afternoon newspaper, sent a special reporter here to make an investigation.

TIMES REPORTER'S STORY

Times reporter's story in part follows:

Denying intimations that they had interfered in any way with the work of A. J. St. Clair, Louisville detective, and Todd Young, Department of Justice agent, in their inquiry, Grant county officials Sunday told of their efforts to co-operate with the work of the officers and related their story of the situation here. The officials ridicule talk that there is a "ring" of thieves among citizens of Grant county.

No friction developed between local authorities and the outside officers, according to L. M. Ackman, County Attorney until Cecil C. Clay, employee of a garage and taxicab driver at Dry Ridge, took out a breach of the peace warrant for Mr. Young last Monday after the latter had questioned him. The warrant alleged that Mr. Young had used abusive language and was sworn to in spite of his advice, Mr. Ackman said, by Clay, whom he had never seen until he came for the writ. This statement was corroborated by former State Attorney C. E. O'Hara, who was at Mr. Ackman's office at the time.

Since March 20, according to Mr. Ackman, Sheriff H. B. Filson and Kenneth Jett, proprietor of a garage, there have been fourteen automobiles stolen in the county as stolen property. Seven have been abandoned by strangers. Of these Mr. Filson made a sworn statement that he seized seven, six of them before the detective arrived. Four of the cars were sold by Mr. Jett who buys and sells a number of used cars and the others have not been identified. The total number of autos in the county is 675.

Supplied With Numbers.
On March 19, according to Sheriff Filson's statement, St. Clair, who was passing through the town, supplied him with numbers of several stolen automobiles from Louisville. The following day he found a Ford coupe, belonging to M. Schuster, and a Ford sedan of a farmer's barn. These cars were brought here and held until Friday, when St. Clair took them to Louisville. "He did this without my knowledge or consent," said Mr. Filson.

CITIZENS HERE INDIGNANT

Citizens of Williamstown and vicinity are naturally indignant that to the world as a harboring place for stolen cars and that the officers are being interfered with in the pursuit of their duties. It looks now as if it is about time for these officers to make good their implied charges or to make an apology. Some of the stories published border on libel if they cannot be proven, and it is not believed that they can be.

THE FLOWER SEEKERS.

In the simple life of the old fashioned country school, the teachers used sometimes to organize parties of the children to go out in search of spring flowers. But probably the modern kid would consider any such search eccentric.

However the cult of nature study has many followers. It may be a reaction from the desire for literary culture. After people have philosophized and poetized in words of theory and imagination, there is a simple and genuine pleasure in getting away from recondite dreams, out into sunny fields to observe the handiwork of nature.

A warm spring day will start many folks on these quests who all the rest of the year are buried in the sordid pursuit of business. The first sight of familiar spring flowers is like seeing the face of an old friend, and people gather them as a trophy of their insight into nature's secrets. If more people studied the flowers, there would be fewer pessimists and more sunshine in the world.

A five-room house has been turned over to the Carl Schurz school of Chicago, and the girls attending this school will know how to care for it from top to bottom. Mondays they will occupy the kitchen, learning to cook. Tuesday is sewing day and Wednesday the house is to be scrubbed from cellar to attic. Thursdays they will wash clothes and on Friday the girls will have a course in military.

A DAM GOOD STORY

(From The Fort Worth Record)

It's against the dam law to fish off the dam pier. When I slung a wad of squirming earth worms over the dam pier into Lake Worth I didn't know that. But that fellow Harve Music, Ft. Worth's plenipotentiary extraordinary to Lake Worth, told me about the dam law. He said a man working on the best morning paper in Fort Worth ought to know it. It was against the dam law to fish off the dam pier.

When I asked Harve why the dam officers didn't have a dam sign letting the dam visitors know it was against the dam law to fish off the dam pier, he said they did have the dam signs on the dam pier but the dam visitors burned them up for kindling. While it didn't occur to me then, I afterwards wondered why the dam officers haven't sent some dam paint out there and put a dam sign on the dam pier, for the dam visitors certainly wouldn't burn that.

Sign or no sign, it's against the dam law to fish on the dam pier. I stood there on the dam pier and had my dam ignorance shown up to some twenty-five dam visitors all of whom were as dam ignorant of the dam law as I and most of them as guilty of fishing off the dam pier as I. Only they saw what was taking place, and in thirty seconds were sitting on the dam pier as if they were merely there for the dam scenery.

Harve didn't arrest me, because he saw I was so dam ignorant, but he said he would if I didn't have a dam sign in today's Record, so the dam visitors would have fair warning for the future. Here's the dam story, all right, but I still contend that the dam officers ought to send the dam paint out there and put a dam sign on the dam pier. There's none there now by a dam site.

ENJOY READING THE OLD HOME PAPER

In renewing his subscription to the Recorder, Mr. Dunlap writes as follows:

Chicago, Illinois,
April 13, 1922.
Editor Boone County Recorder,
Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir:—An enclosing check for $3.00 in payment of my subscription to your paper up to August 1st, 1923. Both my wife and I enjoy reading the Recorder, especially the neighborhood news, which is like getting a letter from home. You know she is from Kentucky and I lived at Independence, over in Kenton county for about sixteen years.

You see from heading that I am in the Income Tax business and frequently go to Washington, was there thirteen times last year, and saw the ceremonies in connection with the funeral of the Unknown Soldier. If I live to be one hundred years old, I never expect to see another such impressive sight. The procession and the services at Arlington were most solemn. In this country there were never before such notables brought together at the same time. The Federal Government in Washington was the one marching on foot; even the President, Ex-President Wilson was the only man who rode.

Often see Arthur Rouse and his general secretary. With best wishes for a prosperous year, I am,
Yours Sincerely,
GEORGE G. DUNLAP.

Go To Sunday School Day

May 7, 1922, will be Kentucky's Go-To-Sunday-School Day. There is an organization known as the 100,000 Club whose purpose is to win one hundred thousand members for the Sunday Schools of Kentucky by May 7, 1922. The Club holds no meetings, collects no fees, has no other object than the adding of one hundred thousand new members to the Sunday Schools of Kentucky. Will the several Sunday schools of Boone county do their part? Most certainly they will, and to that end let the good work begin at once.

A. B. Renaker sold for Mrs. Eliza Walton, one day last week, her house and lot in Burlington on the northwest corner of Jefferson and Union streets, to W. Lee Cropper and James D. Acra. Mr. Cropper gets the dwelling and front half of the lot and Mr. Acra gets the half of the lot that adjoins the property he owns. Price, $6,000. Mrs. Walton purchased this property from Dr. M. A. Yelton several years ago, and is one of the best locations in the town.

R. K. Aylor, of Waterloo neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Thursday, and while in town made this office a pleasant call. Mr. Aylor reports that he has 45 ewes and that 43 of them gave birth to lambs and 45 of which are living, and he has two ewes to lamb yet.

BOONE CIRCUIT COURT

Grand Jury Adjourns After a Days Session and Return Eight Indictments.

The case of the Standard Scale Co., vs. L. C. Scorthorn was tried on Tuesday before a jury who rendered a judgment in favor of the defendant Scorthorn. This case was an appeal from the Quarterly Court, where Scorthorn also was given a judgment.

C. H. Youell obtained a judgment against J. W. Quigley for $540.00 as commission on a land and store sale. The jury rendered a verdict for the amount claimed.

The grand jury returned eight indictments and referred two cases to the next grand jury. The report of the grand jury follows:

To Hon. Sidney Gaines, Circuit Judge:

Your Grand Jury empaneled on the first day of the April term, 1922, of the Boone County Circuit Court, beg leave to report.

We have been in session four days, have examined forty-two witnesses and have returned eight indictments. The cases of Roy Sorrell, charged unlawfully knowing a female under 16 years of age, and of Emil Regenbogen, charged with detaining a woman, we recommend be referred to the August, 1922, grand jury. In all other cases referred to us by examining courts we have returned true bills.

We complied with your instructions we examined the public property. The County Infirmary is in excellent condition except that the cellar should be drained. We recommend that this be done.

The Court House also is in good condition, but we recommend that the metal work and cornice be painted and the furnace pit be drained.

Former grand juries have suggested that public toilets should be installed in the court house and we are advised that the Fiscal Court has ordered these improvements made. We heartily approve these plans and recommend that no time should be lost in consummating them.

M. P. BARLOW
Foreman
Attest: E. A. MARTIN Clerk.

The case of Thos. Senour and others against W. B. Johnson, was called for trial Monday morning. The plaintiffs are contesting the will of Sallie Mardis and are represented by Attorneys E. P. Ware and M. L. Lyons, of Covington, and Benj. H. Biley, of Burlington, S. W. Tolin of Burlington, and J. L. Vest of Walton represented the defendant. The jury is composed of the following gentlemen: Henry Afterkirk, Chester Grant, Wood Stephens, Emmett Kilgore, Arch Rouse, Edwin Botts, A. J. Ogden, Walter Gaines, Hogan Wingate, J. H. Doahn, E. R. Smith, L. T. Clure. The estate of Mrs. Mardis is worth about $10,000. The plaintiffs claim that Mrs. Mardis was unduly influenced to make the will, and that she did not have mental capacity to make a will. Miss Lelia Wilhoit, of Lexington, official stenographer, reported the case. After the evidence for the plaintiff had been introduced the court instructed the jury to find in favor of the plaintiff, which sustained the will of Mrs. Mardis.

The juries were discharged Monday afternoon.

Esq. T. F. Curley, of Walton, attended court Monday.

Attorneys W. M. Dickerson, Jno. L. Vest, O. M. Rogers, Elmer Ware, M. L. Lyons, D. E. Castleman, Jno. J. Home and Warde Yeager attended circuit court at the April term.

TWO SPOTS.

When you pay cash at the stores you help your home merchant to buy for cash, and thus become able to put goods on the market for less.

The folks who keep their children out of school to work around the place, will probably find fault later because their offspring show so little brains.

About now the city folks come out to the country to try farming thoroughly equipped with pleasure cars, hammocks, and easy porch chairs.

KEEP AFTER THEM.

Keep always before national and state officials the fact that this country—and this community—needs hard roads, and that there is no other way in which we can pull ourselves out of the mud and onto the highway of progress.

If hard roads are worth having they are worth going after, and if we don't go after them it will be a long time before we get them. Sporadic kicking won't do any good, but quiet and determined insistence will eventually produce results. Do not forget that it takes not only talk but money.

AUTOMOBILES AND CRIME

A prominent bonding company recently stated the belief that automobiles are the most important factor in inciting the wave of crime that has prevailed for the past two years. The problem of getting away from the scene of a crime has been made far easier by the speed with which the crooks can jump into a car and soon be far away. That is the penalty that civilization has to pay for its improvements. When you create a wonderful facility for the commission of a crime, the task of the world immediately put it to work to help out their scoundrelism. But the answer is to beat them out with their own game. Equipping the police forces with motorcycles which can usually overtake an automobile, must do a good deal to offset this advantage gained by the criminal element.

A VERY FUNNY WORLD.

It's a very funny world! And there are a lot of very funny people in it. Some of them are located in Atlantic City, from which municipality of joyous vacationing comes the news that the Supt. of Schools has assembled his feminine teaching staff and warned them, doubtless with the gravity due so serious a subject, that they must not bob their hair if they expect to retain their jobs as purveyors of information to the youth of Atlantic City.

The cogent reason alleged for the prohibition is that bobbed hair is "not dignified."

It must be wonderful to be a school superintendent with such a fund of knowledge, and to set so high a standard for teachers. Curious people may wonder what will happen to a teacher with hair naturally short, or one who has to have it bobbed because of fever. For, of course, if short hair is undignified it is undignified regardless of the cause of said indignity; unless indeed, it is proposed to put an O. P. label on natural short hair or short hair acquired for medicinal reasons.

It would be a matter of some interest to know this official's views upon spats, shoes, sweaters, short skirts, Atlantic City bathing suits, the reading of Freud, Sunday movies, and chewing gum, and his rationation regarding textbooks, training, ability to teach, personal sympathy with children and standing of classes under the non-bobbed-haired would certainly be worth hearing!

THE STORK IS GENEROUS

Leaves Baby, Calif. Puppies and Chicks at One Farm.

Kinston, N. C.—Blessings come not singly, but in bunches, is the view of Thomas Moore, a farmer who lives near here. Moore is happy because the stork visited his premises in four places a few nights ago.

The stork's first stop was Moore's home. There he left a baby-boy. Then he stopped in the cow shed and left a calf. He flew over to the dog house and left a litter of pups. He also paid a visit to the chicken shed, because Moore says, one of his hens was strutting about the yard the next morning with ten little chickens strolling behind her.

If the bloom is any indication, the prospects for an abundant crop of all kinds of fruit and berries in Boone county was never more promising than at the present time. The fruit trees were full of blossoms and the vines are also showing the buds. If a late frost does not kill them we will have a rich harvest. Last year the fruit crop was killed the latter part of this month by a heavy frost and freeze.

In the foreign countries the task of the soldiers for the graves of the men who died on European battlefields during the war has fallen on the Legion posts in these places. The Paris, London, Brussels and Constantinople posts and those in Ireland, Scotland, Wales and other places where war dead are buried have Legionnaires to do the resting places of their dead comrades religiously.

The capitalist sitting in the grand stand in the ball games may not enjoy it as well as the kid looking through the knothole.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

While Harding golfs and week-ends the veterans of the world war suffer. Congressman Lamar Jeffers of Alabama is an overseas soldier who is trying to light their battles for them. He finds it rough sledding. In the House of Representatives the other day he directed attention very pointedly to the many months wasted by the administration in providing hospitals for which the appropriations were long since made. He declared Secretary Mellon to be guilty of criminal negligence and expressed the view that many men had gone to their graves for lack of the facilities which should have been provided before now. He then gave a list of projects and of progress made thereon; it gives little promise of relief: Tuskegee, Ala., $2,500,000 hospital for negroes. Bids to be advertised for this month. Palo Alto, Cal., $1,400,000 neuro-psychiatric hospital. Bids to be opened April 10. Western Pennsylvania, $1,000,000 tubercular hospital. "Concourse survey is being made." New York City, $1,000,000 tubercular hospital. "Preliminary studies have been made for sites under consideration, and negotiations for sites pending."

The bill for the bogus bonus is still in doubt. At present it is struggling with the much-amended tariff bill to see which shall gain the right of way in the Senate. There is little chance that the soldiers will be lucky enough to have the bonus provisions so changed that they will not have to pay interest to the bankers. The financial interests will see to it that they either receive a sales tax or the price of their consent or the bonus will only be obtainable after paying tribute to the banks.
